For, hereupon the Amballadour retolued, and fitted all things in a readinesse, and on the nineteenth of this prefent, which was the morning following, fent both his money, treature, and all his carriage ashoare, with the Baluches Boates, that came abourd for that purpose. Very early also they brought a message from the Vice-Roy and Governour, that they have provided a Tent for his Lordship, and all his followers, neere adioyning vnto their Tent: and therefore he might come alhoare fo toone as he pleased. All things were ready; into which Tent all the Ambassadours goods were carryed, and by his order, some of his followers: were appointed to remaine with them, vntill his Lordinip should come ashoare himselfe. Intending to have followed the fame day in the afternoone, at foure of the clocke, he fent the Vice-Roy word, that hee would 30 then come. And in the meane time our Skiffe went alloare with emptie caske, to bring fresh water abourd : wherein went the Ambadadours Persians, and three or foure others of his followers, to fee the landing of the goods, and carefull carrying of them into the Tents. And at the landing thereof, the countrey people demanded if the Ambassadour had no more goods then those to bring ashoare? To which answere was made, that there was all, except lewels, and fach like things, which should be brought when himselfe did come. Other Baluches standing by, dec. replyed to each other amongst themselves, that it was no matter; for there was enough for the fouldiers: which Nazerbeg ouer-heard, and vinderstood, yet concealed it for that time, although it possessed him with a seasous concest; and as hee said afterward, that neverthelesse he had no power to cotinue in the same, by reason of such equal correspondencie of all matters passed before; 40 but was somewhat more attentine vnto what should be said afterwards amongst them, and could heare nothing contrary vnto honest dealing : vntill at length meeting with one Hoge Coma! Hoge Coma! (whom God had made an inflrument to dik lofe their deuillish project vinto vs ) hee vinderstood the particulars of their bloody intents, by him reuealed. At which Nazerbeg was somewhat amazed, and angry with the man, that he did not tell him of it before the goods were brought ashoare. Also, the houre appointed of the Ambassadours comming ashoare drew neare, which made him feare, left he should have come ashoare before he should get to our shippe, to forewarne him : but as God would have it, our Skiffe was yet a filling of water by the scafide ; where, when he came, he told our men, that there was treachery plotted against vs athoare: and withall withed them to row him aboord our thip with all the speed they could; and so was brought a-50 boord immediatly, although not one eighth part of an houre too foone; for both the Amballadour, and all his followers, together with the Captaine of our shippe, and all the chiefest of vs (who were willing to grace his Lordship all we might, for the honour of our Countrey) stood in the ships waste, ready to go ashoure. But Nazerbeg bringing these newes, wee were not halfe to September 19hafty mour proceedings, he telling vs what had pailed; the chiefe effect whereof was this, That The greattreathe Vice-Roy, and Gouernour, did entice to many of vs as they could aftoure, of purpose to our fin of the peoour throats: Which being done, they meant to haue fet vpon our flup, and to haue made thouse ple of sale. And for they they they have been all Palada and Which they have been sale to have received. of all. And ferther, that they were all Rebels to the King of Perfia, being present death for any once to name the King of Perfix in that place. Also, that they had made enquiry of enery particular man in our flip, both of our places, profession and estates : for they lead consulted and 60 concluded upon the Maffacre of vs all (except the Chirurgions, Mufitians, Women and Boyes) with determination to have put all the reft to death without mercy. Now, God be thanked, although we understood of their intended plots to fufficiently, whereby we were forewarned to preuention thereof, by arming our felues, (we knew, vnder Gods protection, wee were able to defend vs from receining any minry aboord, notwithstanding their great slore of Boats and men-

CHAP.9 S.3.

494

dred that of the caumic.

Fifteene hunted they having at that inftant about fifteene hundred fhot, befides others) yet we were to feeke how we might procure againe his Lordibips goods, and his three men, which were ashare in their custodies. For performance whereof, God, that had thus miraculoufly delivered vs from their tyranny, likewife opened our understandings, in so much that wee obtained all, according to our owne defires, in this manner following, viz. Whereas they expected the comming afhoare of the Ambassadour, his followers, and our Captaine, and vs, accompanyed together: we presently fant Nazerbeg ashoare againe, with directions what he was to doe, and to tell the Vice-Roy, that the Amballadour was not very well, and therefore deferred his comming till the next morning. September 20. Which was Munday, the twentieth day of September. Allo, to request the Vice-Roy and Go-Sec ary deluduur vernour, that they would fend two or three of their Boats very early for him, the women, and 10 the rest of his company, because the ship-boats were too small. And withall, that the Ambaifadour did expect to bee received by fome men of fort from the Vice-Roy, to come in the faid Boats, in regard of the King of Persian Honor, whose person he did represent. This message being well delivered tooke effect, and wi ling grant was made for performance thereof. Which bufineste Nazerbeg having fine hed, he was to go to the Tent, where the goods were, and to bring out of one of the Trunckes two bagges of money, containing two hundred pound therling, with fome other things of worth, if conveniently hee could without being spied ; because they inould not fulpect that we had discouered any of their villanies. Also, wee gaue him order to returne instantly, and to with the three men to stay still in the Tent, till the next morning, and they should be freed. Ail which was done accordingly; and not only the faid money brought away, 20 but also a Trunck, wherein was the Lady Sherleyes apparell (not with standing the Baluches demanded why that Trancke was brought aboord againe) andwere being made, that therein was the Ladyes night-cloathing, and that it should be brought agains the next day; and for paffed on for current. Now the Ambaffadour made account, that if he could but get one great Trunck more (wherein were things of moment and charge, with his faid three men) to lofe the reft with-Out care. And for the better bringing to palle hereof without fulpition, we fitted ouer-night a great Cheft, and a close-stoole bound and maled up together with cords, very fast and handsomely: which were filled with billets, rubbith and itones, to make them heavie, to bee left in the place of that Truncke which should be brought aboord: and the three men should come forth of the Tent, with each of them their in truments of musicke in their hands. And for excuse, if 30 the Baluches should demand why they brought that Truncke aboord againe, answere should bee made it was one of the Merchants, and it was mistaken. Likewise, if they demanded why the men came aboord againe, answere should be made, that his Lordship did send for them, to accompany him ashoare with their musicke. So all being ready, the next morning very early, wee percei ang the three Boats comming aboord to fetch his Lordship, according to promile, prefently manned our Skiffe, and fent her alhoare, to put our plot in execution : whereby wee hoped to catch them in the same snare that they had laid for vs. And in the meane time we receiued the three Boats of men into our shippe, with entertainment requiste: wherein came about fortie or liftie persons; but not about seven or eight of any reckoning, whereof our friend Hoge Comal was one, the rest Slaues and Fisher-men. We kept them in talke, and much conference of 40 b' -matters, to palie away the time, because our Skiffe might returne before we did meddle with them. Among it which talke, one of them earnestly requested vs, as from the Vice-Roy, that we woul I carry our Sturbon alhoare with vs, he being very defirous to fee it. So we smoothed them in their delires. And not long after, we espied our Skiffe returning, with her successe, which, God be thanked, fell out prosperoully: For they did not only bring the three men, and the Truncke, but allo one chiefe man of the Baluches, whom Nazerbez inticed aboord. And fo foone as hee was entred into the ship, hee, with the rest, defired to see our Gan-roome, wherein, hee knew (by intelligence) we had all our fire-workes, they standing in much feare thereof, especially of our Slurb, w, with the fiery Arrowes; which fell out fit for our purpole. For wee had meant to haue fent them downe turker, to take away their kniues which they wore by their fides. So all so write by their the chiefett of them being gone downe into the Gun-roome, and our ship fitted, with energone of vs our weapons in our hands, we divided our felues, some about the Deckes, some betwixt, and others, as was needful, in the Gun-roome, to lay hold of the Traytors (to foone as the word floul! be given) to take away from them their long knives: all which was done in an instant, without any difquietnesse or resistance. Then we began to parle with them upon plaine termes, laying September 20. open to them their cloodie intents : also telling them, that their lives by in our hands, and they were now themselves caught in the same inare, which they had plotted for vs : and that if wee ferued them rightly, wee should cut them in pieces, as they had determined to serue vs. All Their naturales which, they like stony-faced Mahametans denyed. So we kept fixe of them, which were the c'nefett, with two of their Boats, the reit of the crew we fent alhoare, being all, for the most part, nake ! Raicalls, except one, to whom we deliuered a message in particular, to tell the Vice-R wan Gouernour, That voleffe he would fend vs aboord all our goods, and things wee had afhore, without one peny-worth diminished, wee would carry away those men we had abound for satisfaction. This meffage being delinered to the Vice-Roy and Governour, they prefently

fent answere backe againe, by the same messenger we sent: that if wee would release the Baluches, then they would fend vs all our goods againe; and with many lame excuses, would make vsbeleeue they meant vs no hurt. Whereupon, prefently in the fight of the meffengers, we clapped them all in Irons, and writ one letter to the Vice-Roy, and the Prisoners wrote another (both tending to one effect) in the Persian Language : threatning the lines of those Prisoners, if they did not fend vs all our goods, as aforefaid, and that without delay, within the space of two hours at the most: to which purpose we set up the running glasse, before the meffenger departed out of the shippe, because he should make the more speed backe againe. By thefe sharpe meanes, we viged them forthwith to returne all our goods againe, in very ample manin ner, as we defired. Which being received into the ship, wee freed both the men and Boats, and fent them away according to promile : only one named Malin-Simsadin, who, by Hodge Comal, They say a was discourred to be a good Pilot for Sinde and Cambaya; we kept with vs for the same purpose, Pilot for Sinde. conditionally to reward him according to his deferts.

Thus with Gods affiftance (to whom bee alwayes endlesse praise for our happie delinerance) we had dispatched all this intricate businesse, by six of the clocke in the evening, being the twentieth day of September : and fet faile from hence the fame night, with our new Pilot and Hodge Comal (who came abourd from among it the curfed crew, to faue his life) for Sinde: because wee would be fure to auoyd all infuing inconveniences there, which they might atter pt by their future circumuentions. And in our way to Sinde, we had much conference with Hodge Comal, our good friend, of whose company we did much esteeme. He was borne at Dabul, but his Father was a Persian by his profession, he was a Church-man of that Sect, and had some skill in Chirurgerie and Physicke, for which wie he was resident in the Gouernours Tent; and by this meanes he over-heard all that passed. And excusing his comming abourd for certaine Oyntments, which our Surgeons had promifed him, hee told vs that when hee heard of their intents, his heart was full of bemoning compassion, to thinke that we should come like innocent sheepe, to the slaughter of suchbutcherly Bloud-suckers : and therefore he perceived well, that God would have him reueale it. And he further told vs, that to his knowledge, they had betrayed three thips before in the like manner; and that they were all rebels to the King of Persia, denying to pay the Tribute, which both they and their Ancestors had formerly done. Wherefore, the King of Persia 10 had leuyed a great Armie of Souldiers, not farre from Gnader of purpose, to come vpon that Countrey the next Winter.

This Countrey Macquerona, is bordering close wpon the Persian Land, beeing part of the Macquerona. Maine Continent of Asia: and Guader Port standeth in about twentie fine degrees of North Guader Portin latitude, and the variation feuenteene degrees fifteene minutes; good anchorage betweene foure 25. degrees, and five fathomes.

The one and twentieth of September at night, our Baluche Pilot brought our ship in danger of a shoale : where we were inforced to chop to an anchor, till the next morning.

The foure and twentieth at night, as we lay a hull (because we were not farre from Cape Camelo) there paffed close by vs a Poringall Frigat bound for Sinde : which at the first wee sup-40 poied to haue beene a Galley, and therefore armed our selues for defence.

Their comming to Divulginde landing the Embassadour, seeking Trade, and croffed by the flanderous Portugals, going to Sumatra and Bantam : and returne.

He fix and twentieth, we came to an anchor right before the mouth of the River Sinde, The mouth of with directions of a Pilot, which we had out of one of the Fisher-boats which were fi- the River Sinde with directions of a prior, which we had one of one of the a microscopy much bearing in a degree a fining there. We road in a frost leffe then fue tatione water (the Rusers mouth bearing in a 4 degrees Eaft & by North) in very good ground; and is in the latitude of twentie four degrees. Similares in the state of the and thirtie eight minutes, to the Northward of the Equinoctiall Line, the variation is fixteene Dominions:

Hereupon the same day the Ambassadour sent two of his people as floare, to speake with the degrees 45. Governour concerning his Lordships comming ashoare: and to tell him his intent, to have past minutes. fage through that Countrey into Persia. Which Gouernour, named Arab Manewardus beeing of Dial, was very willing to welcome the Ambaffadour, and to shew him all the kindnesse hee could (for the love he professed to the King of Perfa) both in his Royall entertainment, and pas-60 fage through his Countrey, or Iurisdiction : and sent a principall man abourd vs , accompanyed with fine or fixe more to welcome his Lordship, with many Complements, affuring him of kind

So presently, there were Boates sent for from Dinl, to carrie him, his people, and his goods Dinl. ashoare, which came on the nine and twentieth of this instant: vpon which day, we were elecredboth of him and his (both in number and health) as when they first entred into our ship; and for his farewell, eleven Peeces of Ordnance were thot off from our ship. Also Simfadin, our treachercus Baluche Pilot, wee fet ashoare at the same time (beeing intreated of the Gustrate) notwithstanding his defert to have beene set in the Sea, in that hee would have east vs away twice; whereor, once by himfelfe, and another time by his Deuillish counsell given to another Pilot, which we had of the Fifter-boates here. At the Ambaffadours departing out of the fhin Tatte a great the Captaine deliuered him a fine piece double locked, to prefent the Governour of Tata, a great can one dayer. Citie one dayes form Dind, both Cities standing in the Great Mogeli Dominions. Allo we intreated his Lordship, that hee would fend vs word how he found the Countrey, and whether we might have trade there or not : and withall deliucred his Lordship a note in writing, 10 what we chiefly defired. They Copie whereof doth follow.

20

Inprimis, that our comming hither to this Port, as it is purposely to land your Lordship, fo withail we have brought certaine Commodities and Money, to the end if we obtaine fafe protection for quiet and peaceable Trade, we may make fale of fuch and fo much of our Commodities as shall e fitting : otherwise we defire but leave to refresh, and so depart. Likewise, if the Governour please, that we may settle a Factorie heere, we also defire it : and although now wee are but ilenderly prouided, yet, hereafter we will bring such flore, and forts of Commodities. as shalbe most required and conveniently vented in this Port.

The Commodities we now have brought are thefe, viz.

Lephants Teeth. Fine Peeces. Lead in Bartes. Morfet Teeth. Tinne in Barres, Some Rials of Plate.

Lied er in Dial His flander of

The thirtieth of September, the Ambaffadour had audience with the Gouernour of Dinl concerning all his bulinesse, vnto whom he thewed the King of Persians Firma, as also the King of Spaines Palle, thinking thereby to fatisfie and refolue the lealous doubts of the Portugals Lied. ger there, (who reported, vpon intelligence from Ormu, that Don Roberto Sherley was come forth of England with three shippes into the Indies of purpose to steale) but they peremptorily denyed credence to any Writing hee shewed them, faying, it was neither their Kings hand, nor Seale. For if it were, they could not be ignorant thereof, confidering they knew it to well; and 30 further faid, it was counterfeit. Whereat the Ambassadour was much moued to impatience, and replyed againe vnto them, faying, that it was meere folly to shew them any Kings hand or Seale: for they had no King, and therefore could not know it. And that they were a waste Nation only fubdued, and brought under fabiection perforce by the King of Spaine, and were feruile both to him and his subjects. Norwithstanding the Portugals were not canted, but flood stiffely in their former opinions : and faid, that he had two thips more in the Indies. Then Arah Manewardas spake in the Amballadours behalfe, rebuking them sharply for such unseemely contradictions of the Perfun Ambassadour; and so concluded, absenting the Portugals out of the roome, Afterward the Ambassadour made a speech vnto the said Gouernour and assembly, concerning the admittance of vs into his Port, to trade (according to directions, given his Lordship from vs, 40 as aforethis) which was very kindly imbraced of the Gouernour : with willing neffe to do therein what he might, all inconveniences underflood. For which purpose he willed the Ambassador to fend for one or two Merchants from aboord, to conferre with him upon the fame. Whereupon the Ambassadour wrote a Letter vnto vs, by two of his people, who came abound our ship on the second of Ostober 1613. in the morning by which Letter we perceived his Lordthips proceedings in our defired bufinelle with the Governour, with affarance for our fafe going and returne : being in such good fort and fashion, that our hopes were great in establishing a trade there, if not a Factorie : especially to make sale of the small quantitie of goods which weenow Toloph Salbanche brought. Wherefore Mafter Tofeph Salbanche, and my felfe, fitted our felues with the advice of the Captaine and others in our thip, and went ashoare in one of the Countrey Boates the lime 50 morning about eight of the clocke, our ship riding about soure or fine miles from the riners mouth, from whence we had fifteene miles to the Citie Dial, where the Amballadour was, to that it was late in the eneming the fame day before we landed.

And in our way we met with a Portugall Frigat bound for Ormus, which I faw went to carrie newes of our ships being there : becaute none of their ships (which were daily expected) should come till we were gone. This Frigat came close by our shippe, and tooke view of her, and so departed. Now when we were landed, there came three or toure Portugals vinto vs , demanding it we had brought any goods afhoure, and fuch like quethons : to whom wee made no reply, making thew that we understood them not, because we might understand them for our admantage, Portugalishan if occasion ferued. Then there came another Portugali (who spake the Dutch Tongue very per-60 derous policies feetly) telling me many things concerning the people and Country, all tending to diffrace, in an idle and friuolous manner: thinking thereby to diff wade vs from defiring Trade there. Not long after, the Officers of the Cuftome-house came and condicted vs up to the Castle, where the Gouernour dwelt, who we thought would have spoken with vs that night but did not, because it was fo late : yet the Officers (being for the most part Banians, and spake good Portugus;) fearchedeuery part about vs for money, not leauing to much as our thooes vnfcarched. Which being done, and peceining vs to take it firangely, they prayed vs to be contented, for it was the order of that place. To which I answered, that although the Portugals might give them cause to ordaine to lad a fathion , yet English Merchants did not, Meazle like, hide money in their shooes ; but notwithilanding, we were therewith contented. Then the Gouernours Seruants came to vs. excusing it likewise, saying, that he was displeased thereat. And so they brought a great light, and directed vs from the Caille, vnto the house where Sir Robert Sherley, the Persian Amballa-

to dour did lodge : to whom wee found our felues very welcome, and lodged there all the time of our abode in Dinl, expence free. The Portugals feeing vs landed, and hearing that wee were to Themalice of treate with the Gouernour about the fetling of Trade there, did nothing all this time but (like the Portugal, enuious and lying Malignants) spread clamorous and scandalous speeches, in diffrace of our King, Nation, and Countrey: reporting that we were theeues, and not Merchandizers, but lived clattly by robbing of other Nations on the Seas.

The third of October in the morning, the Governour fent the Ambaffador word, that in the October 3; afternoone he would have speach with vs. In the meane while, wee had intelligence that the Portugalls were labouring all they could with him, and others, to preuent out intertainement: both by offering him gratifications if he would refuse vs, and by threatning to be gone, if he did receive vs, alledging as before, that they would not trade where theeves did trade, Nevertheleffe, 20 according to our expectations, the Governour fent for vs; and withall commanded foure great horles gallantly trapped, to be brought vnto the Embaffadours house, for his Lordship, Sir Thomas Powell Mafter Salbancke, and my felte; also a certaine company of his feruants, to conduct vs to They goe to the Cattle: also all the Embastadours followers went with him, each of them carrying an Halbert the Castle in on their thoulders.

Thus we rode through some part of the Citic, wherein the people in every street came flocking to fee vs, they having of long time heard talke of Englishmen, but never had feene any before now: for we were the first that ever came into that part of the Countrey. When we came to the Their enter-Caftle, we were received very orderly, and directed through fome spacious roomes, (where souldiours were standing on each fide as we went in rankes, cloathed all in white linnen from head 30 to foot) up to an high Turret, wherein the Gouernour, and some other were set: who at our entrance arofe, and faluted vs, bidding vs kindly welcome. Then we all fate downe together round vpon the Carpets, which were spread vpon the floare according to their fashion. Then the Go-uernour againe said, we were very welcome, and that he was glad to see Englishmen in those parts: and proceeded to further talke concerning our businesse, and told vs (whereas wee defired trade) the Portugals would not confent that we should drive any trade, or have to doe where they were, threatning to be gone if he did entertaine vs. Not with standing, if he could be affored of a greater benefit to arise by our trade then by theirs, he would not care if they did for lake him : for hee did well affect our Nation. But in the meane time, he having farmed the cultomes of that Port from the King, vnto whom he stood bound for the payment of certaine summes of money yeer-

40 ly for the fame, whether it came in or not: it behooved him carefully, to be circumfect in ordering those businesses, whereby to avoid the Kings Highnesses displeasure; which vnhapply might fall out to his vtter ouerthrow and vndoing. And then he began to tell vs further, that the custome of the Poringalli trade, together with their meanes in letting out their ships to Guzerates and Banians, amounted vnto a Leck of Rupias A Rupiaistwo yeardy, which is tenne thousand pound sterling. Then he demanded of vs, what forts of Com- fallings, or modities we had now brought, and the quantities of each; also what store of money ! All which somewhat we answered him, a little more or leffe, and withall told him, that although now we brought but more, and a we amwered man, a new most of the state of t what louer the Portugalls did bring; and fuch a quantitie of each, as we should perceive requisite 50 and fitting to be vented there. Of this heliked well, and asked in what time we could returne from our Countrey thither againe ? We answered him, in about twenty two moneths. So hee concluded, faying, That in regard of our small stocke, the Portugals would both laugh at him, and vs, if we should be entertained now. Wherefore, he wished vs to deferre it vntill our next comming, and in the meane time he would give vs a writing vnder his hand and feale, thereby to affure vs of entertainement at our next comming, conditionally, that we come prouided as aforefaid, and we to leave him another writing, to affure him that our flup should not molest any of the King of Mogors hips, goods, nor fabrects; which we agreed vnto: withall requesting him, that although hee would not receive vs whereby to establish a trade now; yet that he would permit vs to make sale of those goods we now had: which in no wife he would grant, for feare of 60 offending the Portugalli, all cadging as before. Then we defired him that wee might have water, and other refre hing for our money, and we would depart to foone as we could. For this he faid, that fo foone as we did fend him our writing aforefaid, he would both fend vs another, and give order to his Officers for the fame; but he would not have the Portugally to know thereof. So we feeing no remedie, demanded of him what forts of commodties he would have vs bring thirther;

honourable

488

CHAP. 10.5.3.

also what Commodities that countrey did affoord: who answered these, viz.

Broad cloath of divers prices, and light colours, as Stammels, Reds, Greenes, and Sky-colours and Aniles, Blewes, and Azures, &c. Elephants teeth, Iron, Tinne, Lead, Steele, Spices, Mony. Thefe Commodities are to be carried for Sinde. Commodities to be bad there.

Ndigo of Labor. Indigo of Cherques. Callicoes all forts. Pintadoes of all forts. Guerat and A Cambaya. Commodities of all forts, with many forts of Drugges.

Then wee tooke our leaues of him and parted, returning to the Embaffadours house against where I framed a Letter, and fent him a coording to our promile, figned by M. Salbarcke, and my felfe; and received another from him likewife, which was in the Perfian language, much like the Hebrewe Letter backward: the English whereof was interpreted to vs by the Ambasadour; as 10 followeth, viz.

W Hereas here arrived at this Port of Diul, in the Kingdome of Mugore, one English ship cal-led the Expedition, whereof is Captaine Christopher Newport, and Merchant, Joseph Salbancke and Walter Peyton, to land Don Robert Sherley, the King of Persians Embassadour, who defired grant of trade in this Port (being under my government) which willingly I would have graunted but onels for presuduciall inconveniences in suing: for they brought not merchandize sitting in quantitie to beem such trade: neither the Portugals by whose trade at present I reape benefit, would consent thereto, threatfuch trade: neither the Portugais of woose time as profile to bee gone if I didreceive the English Nation. So that thereby, I should have beene lest destitute of all trade, whereof those Summes of Money doe arise yearly, which I am bound to pay unto the Kings Maiefie: and in default therein , I should put in hazard his Highnesse displeasure , to my veter overthrow and vedoing. Tet rowithflunding for the love love onto the King of Petfia, by whose Embedding day a transfer on the English Nation; together with the faithfull performance of their writings, left with me under their hands and seales, of the two Merchants afore said, which is not to molest or meddle with any of the said Kings suppers, goods nor subjects, in the time of this their Voyage, in the shippe aforesaid ) I have given them this writing under mine owne hand and seale: hereby promifing the English Nation ( that if they will come like themselves , so fitted that I may advantage my felle more by them, then by the Portugals) infullible affurance of intertainement to trade, with fuch reafenable grant of Priniledges as we fiall agree upon. Dated in Diul the third day of October, Anno 1613.

Signed, Arah Manewardus. Sealed with Inche.

The fourth of October, we received the writing from the Gouernour, together with order to his Officers for our watering and refreshing; and then wee hastened to return about our ship againe. And a little before our departure, the Ambassadour fell into discourse with vs, about the precuring of a Finma from the King of Magore: and withall, wished Master Salbanck to go along with him for Agra (which is the chiefe place where the great Mogoll keepeth his Court) and he would warrant vs, that he would procure the same in very short time: especially now, at this fo fit an opportunitie offered, both in regard of his businesse with the Mogoll, as also the 40 willingnesse of Arab Manemardus, to entertaine vs at this Port : which opportunitie being let flip, we should neuer obtaine the like; his Lordinip protesting and vowing to doe his best endeanour therein, and shew himselfe a true hearted English man towards his Countrey how socuer the Company of Merchants (he faid) did conceit him. And further, that Master Salbanck shouldbe an eye-witnesse of his constant and faithfull proceeding therein, to doe the Merchants good, in obtaining the faid Firma: not only for Dist, but also for any other part in the Mogolls Dominions : an . alfo should bring it for England ouer-land himselfe. All which being grounded vpon fome reason, and Master Salbarck having been in those parts before, hee was willing to vndertake: Provided, he might have the confent of the Captaine, my felfe, and others in the ship. To which purpoles, the Ambaffadour writ a letter to the Captaine, perfiwading his confent thereto, so and fent it aboord by vs.

So we parted from Dial this day in the after-noone, and when we came to the Rivers fide to take Boat, there flocked about vs many of the Countrey people : also there came downe to vs 2bout a dozen of the envious Portugals, who began to talke with vs in Dutch, as before, demanding of vs many friuolous questions; which, when I had answered, I spake in their owne language, (because the Banians which were there present, might understand) and told them that they were a shamelesse and lying people, in spreading of so many deutsed scandals, and slanderous reports of our Nation; vnto whom they knew themselves much inferiour in many respects; and that they did it only in malitious policie, because they would not have vs to trade in the Indies, as well as they. Alio I told them, that if they did not containe themselues within the compasse 60 of better peace, reforming themselues hereafter, both in their fayings and doings, they should be all rooted cut of the Indies, and a more honest and Royall Nation placed in their roomes. Then one of the chiefest of them fingled out himfelfe, and answered thus: That they had enemies too many already, and therefore they defired no more. And as for feandalous speeches they did not deny, being viged thereunto : for not long past, off from Surat, they had a ship taken by English men, as they supposed: to which I answered them, that it might bee rather the Hollanders. So they concluded, in the end very plyant and fociable, wishing that we might trade in all parts of the Indies with them, and they with vs, like neighbours and friends; and that there were fome agreement made betwixt our King and theirs, for the bringing to passe thereof. Thus they taking their leaues of vs in very kind manner, we parted.

The fixt, we arrived aboord our ship againe, where it was agreed upon, that Master Salbanck fould goe, as aforefaid, with the Ambaliadour for Agra. Wherefore he fitted himfelte, thinking to have gone a hoare the next day; and in the meane time, the Captaine fent the Purfer and his 10 man to buy fresh victualls, and prouision for the Sea: who, when they came to the Citie, were by the Gouernour prefently turned backe agains as they went; and expresse command by Proclamation, vpon paine of death, the Country people should bring no more English men ashoare. These sudden and strange alterations made vs much to maruell; for wee could never know the certaintie whereupon it grew, or what should be the cause.

All the time of our being heere at Sinde, we could never understand of any trade feeled at Su- They depart rat: for if we had, we might have taken other couries. The Ambaffador had about feuen moneths from Sinde. iourney, (from Sinde to Spahaun in Persia) by Carauan; or if he procured to trauell otherwise, then it is one moneth leffe.

The ninth, we fet faile from hence, directing our course, with Gods leave, for Sumatra. The twentieth of Nouember, we came to an anchor in the Roade of Priaman, where we went Nouember 20. in betwixt the two Northermost little llands, and anchored close by the Northermost of them Priamen. both in fine fathome water. And in the meane time wee beat the price of Pepper at Priaman, and brought it from two and twentie Rialls, to feuenteene Rialls a Bahar, first peny : at which price we bought two Bahars, which were brought aboord our ship. But the Governour, although we had prefented him with a piece, would not fuffer vs to take an house, nor to buy any Pepper ashoare, vnlesse wee would bestow some twentie Presents upon the Officers and Merchants

The two and twentieth, we received a letter from Captaine Christen, out of the Hosiander at Tecoo, earnestly wishing vs to come to Tecoo with our ship, so some as we could, and wee should 30 not faile to lade to much Pepper as we determined, and that in short time. And because we were not well acquainted with this place; Captaine Christen sent one of his Masters Mates, named Richard Hall, to Pilot vs into the Roade, by reason of many dangerous shoalds that lye a-

The eight and twentieth, we came to an anchor in Tecoo Road, in foure fathor water, where Tecos Richard Hall returned aboord the Hosiander, and being troubled with the Fluxe, dyed the same night. Now we being come to Tecoo, found all things contrary to our expectation. For, whereas before our comming littler, the Country people offered their Pepper to Captaine Christen after twelve and thirteene Rialls a Bahar, in trucke of Surat commodities; they now demanded two and twentie Rials ready money, refuting to trucke with him at all for commodities. Also, heere they demanded as many prefents, as they of Priaman; belides leventie two Rials of plate for anchorage. So that we were now worfe to palle then before and time not permitting vs to make delay, we grew into short termes with them : and told them, that although wee did not buy a Cattee of Pepper there, wee would not agree, nor yeeld vnto their vnreasonal le demands. And withall, I framed a letter, as from the Captaine, by him firmed and con igned to the chiefe Gouernour, shewing him that they did not vie our Nation so well, as we did expect at their hands, both in regard of their vniuft demanding of prefents; (which we did not viuelly give by compulsion, but either for affection or deferuing) and also their vnreasonable delaying the performance of their promifes, falling out to be forncertaine, that wee could not account them to bee Merchant-like dealings. For our fhips have flayed there divers times, three, foure or five moneths, so only depending upon their posting promises, to have their full lading; which might have beene as well dispatched in one moneth, with that small quantitie of Pepper which they had. This December 1; letter was Englished by the Hosanders Linguist (names John, an Indian, who spake the language 1613. very well) unto the chiefe Gouernour; who hereupon gaue prefent order, that wee might buy Pepper of any man that would fell. And withall fent a meffenger aboord our ship, to wish one of vs to come ashoare, and it should be weighed there. But we doubting their delayes, accepted not thereof; and therefore fent him word againe, that wee could not flay fo long, as to weigh it ashoare: if they would bring it abourd and weigh it, we would give them eighteene Rials a Bahar for their Pepper, and two Rials vpon each Bahar, for the cultome and Gouernour, being just twentie Rials, conditionally they would bring it abourd; otherwife we would not flay. So they lingring tomewhat long before they came, we let taile, making thew to depart: which the Gouernour perceiung, forthwith fent another meffenger (who spake the Portuguife language indifferently well) to entreate vs to come to an anchor againe, and wee should lique as much Pepper brought aboord immediatly as we would lade: which we did, and they came as fast with Prawes lading of Pepper, as conveniently we could weight t: and fo continued for the space of three or foure dayes, till they had brought about fome two hundred Bahars, and then began to flack their bringing. Which we perceiving, and fearing to fpend over-much time heere (left we should lose the featons of the Monfons) we departed for Bantam. The eight of December, we let faile from Tecoo, where we left three of our men in the Hof-

December 8.

ander, their necessitie to requiring. In our course to Bantam, for the most part, we failed within The fixteenth, at our entrance into the Straights of Sunda, being the fixteenth of this prefent, we met with the Dragon bound homeward, by whom we writ home.

Innuary 2.

They arrive in The feuenteenth, wee brought our thep to an anchor in Bantam Road: where wee prefently Bastam Road. went ashoare, to prouide her lading. On the nine and twentieth, we made an end of lading our 10 whole complement. The second of January, we set faile from Bantam for England, not having lost one man by sick-

in the Closus,

nesse in all our Voyage hitherto; for which, God make vs thankfull. Also this day, as we were Generall Sain going out by Pulo Pan Ian, wee met with Generall Sain in the Cloane, come from Iapan: for whole letters, and the deliuery of four chefts, the Captaine cast anchor againe. Also we spared him two of our men, namely, Mortimer Prittie Yonker, and Thomas Valens, one of our Carpenters Mates whereof they flood much in need; for they had not one Carpenter left aline. Thus having also dispatched these businesses with the Cloane, we set faile once agains for England, on the fourth of this prefent.

March 21. Tne Bay of Saldania, Aprill 9.

May 11.

The one and twentieth, we came to an anchor in Saldanha Bay : where wee had sheepe and 20 Bullocks reasonable store, besides great abundance of fresh nish, which we caught with our Savne

On the ninth of Aprill, we departed, and then we had prosperous winds, which continued untill we came in the latitude of about three degrees to the Northward of the Equincatiall Line, which we passed under on the eleventh of May, finding our ship then to be in two and twentie minutes North latitude. Hereabouts many of our men began to fall ficke, some of the Scurule and fwelling in their legges. The tenth of July, we came to an anchor in the Downes in safetie, God be euer praised.

After this twelfth Voyage, the order of that reckoning is altered, because the Voyages enfuing were fet forth by a joynt stocke, and not by particular and proper ships, stockes, Factories, (as before) but promifcuous and generally accountable to the whole focietie. Of which, all are not come to our hands : fuch as I have (that which thence is meete for the publike view) give

Снар. ХІ.

Extracts of the Iournall of Captaine NICHOLAS DOWNTON, Who was employed chiefe Commander in the second Voyage set forth for the ioned Stockes in the East-Indies, by the Gouernour, Deputie, and Commuttees of that Societie. Wherein is related their happie successe against the Vice-Roy, and all the Indian sea forces of the Portugalls, by force and cunning attempting their destruction.

∂. I.

Their comming to Soldania, Socatora, Swally: Disagreements betweene the Mogoll and Portugalls, and the Nabob and vs.

He Shippes employed were the New-yeeres-gift, Admirall, of burthen fixe hundred and fiftie tunnes: The Hector, Vice-Admirall, of fine hundred tunnes The Merchants Hope, of three hundred tunnes, and the Salomon, of two hundred tunnes. Mafter William Edwards was Lieutenant and Cape Merchant, and Commander of the Heiter: Matter Niebolus Enfworth Cape Merchant and Commander of the Merchants Hope: Matter Thomas Elkington Cape Merchant, and

Commander of the Salomon: Matter Peter Rogers Minister, Martin Pring, Arthur Spaylin. Matthew Molineux and Hugh Bennet, Matters of the foure Shippes, affifted with discrs

The first of March 1613, we set faile. On Wednesday the fifteenth of June 1614, we anchored in the Road of Saldania, and were welcommed with a great storm. John Barrer by along Feuer bereaucd of his vinderstanding, was suddenly missing, and by former speeches of his it seemed that he made himfelfe away, whiles every one was busie in mooring the ship, and none looking after him. The fixteenth, wee got all in readmelle for erecting our Tents, which was that day effected.

and a Guard placed for their reliefe. On the feuenteenth, we landed halfe our Caske to be trimmed and feafoned. Choree the Saldarian presented me with a young Steere.

The eighteenth, we landed more of our Beere Caske to be washed, trimmed and seasoned, and 10 supplyed the wants of our men labouring about our Boates: also this day (Choree) the Saldanian departed from vs, carrying with him his Copper Armour and Jauelin, with all things belonging Charge and his to him, promiting to come againe to vs the third day after, but he neuer came againe.

The nine and twentieth, I fent George Downeton on land to observe both the latitude and varia- mour. tion of this place, in regard of the great difference in our variations wee had found betweene my former Voyage in the Pepper-Corne, and this present Voyage: the latitude he found was hirtie foure degrees, and no odde minutes, and the variation one degree and fortie five minutes by an Azimuth, being Westerly variation, whereas for the most part all formerly have made Lauerly Note for the variation. This night wee diffolued our Tents and brought all our things abourd, and made readie variation as our thip against the next day to depart, which we did accordingly.

The fixt of August, we came to an anchor in the Bay of Saint Angustine, in Saint Laurence Hand. But on fight of our comming the Inhabitants abandoned the place, that wee could have no speech with them: we cut straight Timber for divers vies. And afterwards wee got some refreshing of them. On the twelfth, we set saile.

The ninth of September, wee anchored in the Bay of Delifa in Socotora. The next day wee went on shore to salute the King, who was readie with his troupe to give me entertainment, and told me of the Warres at prefent in India, the Mogoll and Kings of Decanie joyning to roote the Portugals out of the Countrey. The reason whereof was, their taking of a shippe which came This ship was from Ledda in the Red Sea, wherein was three millions of Treafure. Hee also informed mee of the Haffanie. Captaine Bests two great fights with the Portugals, with other newes of those parts. Heere I 30 procured what refreshing wee could get, and hought of the King Alloes, two thousand feuen hundred twentie two pounds, and on the fourteenth departed.

The second of October, we had fight of land being on the Coast of Decany neere Dabul. Wee found great hinderance, till by observation we were taught to stay the obbes and ply the flouds. The twelfth, we againe weighed and plyed the flouds, and anchored the ebbes till the fourteenth day in the evening, and then anchored two miles and an halfe short of the Barre, where presently came a fleet of Frigats being fourteene faile and anchored necre vs , discouring them- Portugal Frifelues by their lights being darke: but feeing our readmesse by the lights out of our Ports, durst come no neerer vnto vs, fo we rid quietly all night.

The fifteenth, early in the morning we weighed with the land-turne, and approching some-40 what neere them, they also weighed and stood to the South-wards, and wee held on our course by the Barre towards South Smally, where foone after we arrived after much itriuing against con- South Smally, trary winds. Affoone as I anchored I fent Mafter Molineux in his Pinnaffe, and Mafter Speoner, and Samuell Squire in my Gellywatte to found the depths within the fands. Mafter Molineux tooke a Channel in which in our former Voyage we had but fine foot at low water, but now found three fathomes water, and Mafter Spooner found that where our Boats could not passe formerly by reafon of shoalds, he had now seven and eight foot water. In the after-noone, I seeing people ashoare Lent my Pinnaile to them, supposing some of our Merchants had beene come from Surat : but found otherwise to be some people of Cogenozan sent downe to discover what Nation we were; Catenoran. two of which came abourd to me, by whom I vn.lentood further of their Warres with the Por-50 tugals; they belieged Damon and Din, and that Moerib Can was Generall of the Mogols forces against Damon, and also to my griefe, I valeritood that he was Gouernour, and as Vice-roy not onely ouer Swat, but also over all the Countrey neere about it; I efteeming him to bee the greatest Aduerlary to our Nation, and one that most favoured the Portugals. This was my serled conceit by former experience. I vnderstood of the health of Master Aldworth and the rest, to whom I writ to haften his presence, and sent it away by Baly Ball, together with the other Semants of Cogenozan.

The fixteenth, in the morning early I fent my Purfer and Pinnasse on land to buy such Commodities as I supposed might be brought, who about ten a clocke without buying any thing for our turne, returned with Mafter Aldworth our chiefe Merchant at Surat, and in his company one 60 Richard Steele who came by land from Aleppo to Surat. Mafter Aldworth finited to periwade M. Admits me that Mocrib Can the Nabob was our friend, and that now was the best time by reason of their and stede. Warres (with the Portugals) for vs to obtaine good trade and all Priviledges that in reason wee could demand; and for that both he and all the Countrey people did so much rejoyce at our comming, therefore of necessitie could not but give vs Royall entertainment, I liking all their hope-

Thomas Ker-

the Afrigols

Court.

full words, yet ouer withing tome other in his place, and that Moerib Can lad beene further away, of whom I reited fill in doubt, that we should have no free trade but according to he saccustomed manner; and to see and to be printe to all that ever past, and restraine all others, which then I tooke to bee an injurie forced by him to croffe vs , and not by the direction of the King, which in time, though too late, we were better adulted. And notwithstanding the remembrance The firmificate of his name given him by the King, Moerib, which is as much as his owne bowels, and Chan which The formers to mis many great many year. A way to much deluded by being perfected that his flate in face of the King flood tottering, and might eafily be made subject to any difgrace, by any complaint of things done contrary to the will or humour of the King, which made vs somewhat too bold and thereby preindice to our butinesse when we found him opposite to our wils, and as weethought 10 contrary to reason. I inquiring of the state of our businesse, and the health of our people, Master Aldworth informed that Paul Canning and divers others were long fince dead, and that Thomas Paul Canning & Kerridge hadlong fince refided at Court in his roome, and that there was no more Factors him ridge Agents at onely himfelfe and William Bedulph at Surat.

The feventeenth, in the morning I called a Councell to aduite of all things herre to bee effe-Eted, and who fitteft to fend to Agra to remayne as Liedger there, and then entring into the fixe Interrogatory Articles included in the fecond Article of our Committion, requiring Master Aldworths direct answere to every question should be demanded.

The first, in what favour Paul Caming was with the Emperour and his Councell, and how he carried himselfe in the businesse at Course that was committed unto him. Hee answered, that at 20 Ic wits courhis first comming to Court, hee was well respected by the Emperous, vntill such time as the lefaites made known: he was a Merchant, and not fent immediately from the King : but afterwards he was neglected as himfelte complained, and for his carriage there, Mafter Aldworth faith that for any thing he knoweth, it was fufficient and well.

The third, then demanding whether needfull to maintaine one as Liedger at Court, his an-Twere was, not onely necessarie, but also by the King required, that one of our Nation doe reliate there, and therefore fitting to be a man of good respect for preventing and righting any wrongs that may be offered by the lefuites our Aduerfaries, as also by his direction may stand in great flead for the buying or felling of Commodities.

The fixth, concerning the charge of him that flould refide at Court, hee faith to bee about 32 three hundred pounds per amum, by Paul Cannings estimate, but some-while after when his Writings came to be learched, his estimate is found to be fine, fixe or seven hundred pounds per annum. Question being made whether it were fit Master Edwards should proceed under the title of a Merchant, according to the firsthesse of the Companies Commission, his opinion was by Master Cannings experience, that then he would not be respected by the King.

The Ma of liztle respects Merchants.

The four and twentieth in the morning, Cogenozan came downe to the water-fide with a great traine as their manner is, relting himfelfe in my Tent till my landing : vn:o whom I repaired a heare accompanyed with all the Merchants and a good guard of Halberts, Shot, and Pike; I having a Coach to carrie me up from the Boat to a place neere the Tentiand at the inflant when I alighted from the Coach, he came forth of the Tent, addresting himfelfe to meete mee, and af-40 ter falutations returned into the Tent and fate downe. And before any other conference began he was let to know, that there was a Prefent to be delivered him for the Nabob, which was pre-Picture of Paris in indgement , two Musconie Hides , and one great gilded Cafe of Bottles full of rich and throng Waters. Then for himfelfe I caused a Present to bee deliuered him, which was fix Kniues in fingle theathes, foure Sword Blades, two Pikes, one Combe-cafe, one Lookingglaffe, one Picture of Mofes, one Cafe of Bottles, in regard of the promife of the Nababio our people that what Cogenozan should do, he would performe. It herefore moved for the inlarging of our Priviledges; for the leftening of our Cuftom, especially at Baroch to have a Bazar or Market by 50 the waterfide, that we might buy Beef for the peoples eating (in regard that other fielh was not good for them) according to the Kings Fama given. His answere was, that if I would a list them against the Portugale, the Nabob would do vs all the fanour that in his power lyeth; but for the Custome of Bareh it was out of his power, for the King had let it to another by rent, and could not be helpen. A Bazar we should have, but for Bullocks and Kine, the King had granted his Firms that he had power to grant vs : yet willing to leave mee in content, withing that I would find fome of my Merchants along with him to the Nabob, that our bufineffe on both fides might bee confidered on, and receive antweres accordingly from each other. I fent along with him Mafter Aldworth, Mafter Enfirorth (who defired to goe up because he was not well) Matter Dodfworth, 60 Mafter Minford and others; which when they had acceffe to the Nabob, two or three dayes atter be would know againe their demand, which was as aforefaid. Then he defined to know it we would goe with our ships to fight against Damon for him, and then he would doe vs any fanour; but that was antiwered, that we could in no wife aucuclithe doing thereof, for that there was

Preferrior the fently brought in , Viz. One Cafe with fixe Kniues, two paire of Kniues, fixe Sword Blades, Nabob, or Go. fixe Sparift Piker, one Combe-case, one Looking Glasse, one Picture of Mars and Venus, one to the Banians for a mightie fumme yeerely to faue their lines. In fumme, wee found nothing

betweene our King and the King of Spaine. Then he demanded if we would goe to the Baire and ride there and fight with them that should come to prejudice them. That we could neither conenant to doe, for it was a breach of the peace betweene our two Kings as aforefaid. Then he anfwered, that if we would doe nothing for him, he would doe nothing for vs. Divers of the principall Merchants of the Towne came to move our Merchants that I might give way to the Nabib his reatonal le requeft, and though I did grant for fatisfying his minde, yet I might doe what I lift : and that they all knew the Frigats might for all my riding at the Barre come in and out on each fide me. Antwere was returned it was writt for me to halt, but whatfoeuer I promited, I must maintaine, though it were to the losse of my life, and all under my command: and that I to would not be hired to fight with the Portugals, which is contrary to my Kings Commission (vnleffe they game me first cause) not for the World; neither would I bee withheld from fighting with them if they prouoked me, not for his wealth, which difference it seemes he tooke small notice of; but that we refused to fulfill his defire, he was much moved, and in all things croft our proceedings all that he might : infomuch that he had almost queld all former conceined hopes of happie Commerce in this place. Continually denifing what to doe, or what course to take, this meanes failing vs, as I fee no likelihood to the contrary, I made inquision of Gengomar and Cafelletta, also of Gogo, but could heare small incouragent for transportation to seeke better deaflappes.

The fetten and twentieth, in the morning Nicholas Villes going alloaie found all the people of exprelly commanded them to to doe, as also the people from the Tents. Whereupon hee inquiring further thereof, was certified that our Merchants were stayed at Swrat, and that atempting to passe over the bridge, they were perforce with-held, and received some store of b owes by the guard thereto appointed by the Nabab, with whom in company to attend upon them, the Gunners Boy and his companion formerly supposed to haue beene sunne away, were also well beaten and withheld as the rest.

ling; to with doubts wee rested perplexed a long while, yet returning to our businesse at the

The one and thirtieth, we began to take in fresh water, because our stay heere was so vncertaine, not knowing how fuddenly our departure might bee. This day Thomas Smith the Malters 30 Boy being fivimming about the thip, had most of the out-fide of his thigh bitten away by a great Rivenous Elic Fish which pulled him vnder the water, yet he comming vp againe swamme to the shippe side, and got up to the bend, where as foone as he was come up, he prefently founded. Then the Chirurgion brought him into the Gunners Roome to see what might be done for his recourie: but the iffue of bloud had beene so great that they could not reuise him, but presently dyed, and towards night was buried a hoare.

The second of November towards night Master Aldworth and Master Elkinton came downe from Surat, where they had left Mailter Enfrorth very ficketchey declared vnto me their proceedings with the Nabob as formerly, and of their reconciliation, with large promites of future good respect, with free Traile throughout all their Countries. This hard measure hitherto offe-40 red vs by the Nabob, I cannot attribute vnto any hatred or ill will borne to our Nation, but his owne doubt and feare of vs, least I should joyne with the Portugals against him: which feare was the more increased in him, in that I would not agree to fight against Damon. And his suspition and doubt was the more increased by a Knaursh deutee in the subtile and lying Jesuites, who Jesuites tricks. tooke occasion by my denyall, voluntarily without cause, to fight against the Portugals at Damon, or otherwise. They pretended a Letter from the Vice-Roy, to give notice to the Nabob, that valeff he made peace with them, that both he and the English his triends should joyne together and come against Surat; which Deuilish dedice did vs much hinderance in our businesse, by the Nabebs continual doubt, which he made of our friendship towards them. And besides vnfortunately by their extreame vinkind vlage Mafter Aldworth in the middeft of his hafte, and thinking to qualifie their rigorous couries, and yet altogether ignorant of the gractice of the Ie-fuites, in threatning-wife witht them to take heed, that by their ill vilge of vs, they doe not force vs to joyne with the Portugals against them; which proved a kind of confirming the Issuits former report from the Vice-Roy, as altogether making against vs. Likewise, hee forbade all Trade with our people abourd, which at first wee likewise thought had proceeded out of his troubletome humour to croffe vs; but afterwards we were a furfed the contrary by Thomas Kerridge his Letter, who declared that he and all Sea-port Gournours, had expresse Commandement from the Mogoll, not to fuffer any Trade with vs, till they had made choise of all strange things that we bring, and they to buy them for the Kings vie, and to fend it vinto him.

The chird, I called a Councell concerning our bufinelle, viz. how farre wee might proceed to in their aide against the Portugals, and examined our Commission in that point; also we appointed the Mirchants for the feurall places of imployment, afwell those that were to the increase those also that were to proceed on the Yoyag. The goods that were at Smat of the twelfth Voyage care aboutd, which was of Indico fixtie Bales, and Cotton Yarne eleuen Packes.

The fixteenth, whereas my defire was to have been althour amongst our Merchants, to have Great preparations of the Portugals at Sea.

The Portugals Forces, Atts, Attempts, Fight with the English, and diffracefull Repulse.

CHAP. 11. $.2.

He fixteenth, Master Elkington wrote me that the Nabob told him that the Portugall Frigats had burnt Gogo with many Gonges or Villages thereabouts, and tenne great Gozo burnt, & thips, one whereof was the Rehemee, and one hundred and twentie small Vessels : and diners ships.

that he was displeated at me for not shooting at them when they past by vs; which did renue his suspition of our friendship with the Portugals: to all which Master Elkington anfwered him, yet he could not reft fatisfied. The three and twentieth came two Boates more for Lead. This day wee faw twentie two Twentie two Frigats, who in the night came to anchor betweene vs and the Rivers mouth, where they roade Paringall Frie most part of the next day. The foure and twentieth, in the morning we faw foure Boates comming downe the River towards vs, who feeing the Frigats returned, two Frigats chaing them vp the River : but feeing they could not fetch them vp, went alhoure, and fired two or three poore noules, and tooke away two or three head of Cattell, and foreturned backe to their Company, who in the after-noone 20 went up into the River together.

The fine and twentieth, in the morning early we faw fine or fixe Frigats vuder faile an houre or two:after, we perceived a small Boat under faile standing towards vs , but was presently chafed by two Frigats, the men in the finall Boat runne her aground, and for fooke her, fo that the Frigats could not float where the lay, the tyde ebbing to fait, therefore they departed without doing any further harme vnto her.

The fixe and twentieth, in the morning I fent the Hope to the Northwards a good way from the reit of the Fleet, to fee if the Portugals would charge vpon her.

him, or mischieued him by fire, they comming vpon the aduantage both of winde and cycle that none of the rest of the ships could come to the rescue; and in such fort right a head, that hardly

The feuen and twentieth, early in the morning, the Frigats came and made a brauado before Portugal bra-

our ship, and then before the Salomon, which was next vnto vs, and from her to the Hope which uado 30 roade a great way from vs, who droug directly upon her with all their men flowed, not a man to be seene. The Master twice hailed them, but they would not speake, whereupon they let five at them with their Bow-pieces, having no other to ply vpon them, which made them with fome loffe to depart : the Master doubting, that if hee had not shot, they would have boorded Their repulse.

can he trauerse any piece of Ordnance at them. In the after-noone Hent the Salomon to accompany the Hope, who went to the North-wards of her, and made fue or fixe that at the Frigats, who roade at anchor hard by the Hope, But we did not perceive any hurt she did them : wherefore I commanded my Gunner to shoot a Peece to warne them to give over, whereupon the Sa-

40 lomon stood in againe and came to anchor. The eight and twentieth, in the morning I went in the Pinnasse abourd the Hope and Salomon. to videritand the occasions of their shooting : and the Portugals feeing our Boates palle to and againe, removed in the after-noone, and roade a little without vs to cut of all intercourse. In Other ac-

the meane time, came the former Boat which was chaired a hoare aboord the Gift, and brought tempts. fome Letters from Mafter Elkington. The Mafter fent the Bearer with the Letters to mee in the Hope, where having answered Master Elkingtons Letter, I fent him backe agains to the Gift, to goe thence in the night to Surat: but as the Gelliwat returned, the Frigats challed her, which I perceining, caused to weave to the Gelliwat to returne, which they not seeing held on her way. But the Frigats held her fo close that they were within shot of her, and made one faire shot at 50 her, and had not the Gift let slip one Cable, and veered another, and plyed vpon them with her Ordnance, it would have gone hard with them : which made them give over the chale not without fome damage : and late in the night vpon the tyde of ebbe , I commanded the Hope and Salomen to let faile and fall neerer to the other ships, and then I went abourd the Gift.

The nine and twentieth, I perceiuing that my riding was of no availe to keepe the Frigats out of the River, because they could passe to and fro over the sands, where wanted water for my thips to fwimme; and that no Boates durft come to vs to fetch our goods for feare of the Frigats; neither could I heare from our friends ashoare how all things past; therefore I set saile for Smally.: but being but little wind and calme, it was the next day before we arrived there.

The fourteenth of Ianuarie, we heard of the approach of many Frigats, which roade at the A Fleet of 60 Barre till next day within night, and then in the darke came from thence, and roade within thot Frigats, of vs all night till the morning, when they weighed and went to the South-wards; whom I thought were the Mallabars, that the Nabob promifed formerly to fend mee : and therefore put forth a Flagge of Truce, and fent Master Spooner one of the Masters Mates towards them with the Gelliwat, and appointed him to haue an eye backe to our fignes that wee would make, if borne some stroke in the ordering of our businesse at Surat, and the rather considering the turbu-) euer ftriuing to Iway all things aclent head-throng and haughtie ipirit of ( cording to his owne will, and diffaffull to others which without private respect aymed at the common good, whose better differetion hath beene inured to more humilitie. But the estate of our businesie fo vincertaine, partly by the vincertainty of the Nabob and people here, and partly in regard of the Portugals (which we daily doe heare are arming vs) belides I understand the Nabob makes queltion of restitution of the goods taken by Sir Henrie Middleton in the Red Sea, at vnier rates as they fay, though I know they had goods for goods to a halfe pennie : yet not knowing what might come of it, I thought best to keepe my lesse neerest my charge, and referred all things ashoare to the care of such Merchants in generall as were of my Councell, and 10 in whom for most part I had constant affiance.

The two and twentieth, I finished my Letters for Persia, viz. one for the Company, one for Sir Robert Sherley, and another for advice to Richard Steele.

504

The three and twentieth, Lacandas the Banian came downe with newes of some discontent Rude dealing. or hard speeches that had past betweene the Nabob and the Merchants, but now that they were reconciled and friends; the cause was, for that Master Edwards would not let him see the Prefents, which at last he was druen to yeeld to. All the chiefe Merchants wrote vnto me fenerally that there was a certaine report that the Vice-Roy was arming against vs. It pleafed God to call to his mercie Master Ensworth and Timothy Wood, both in an houre. John Orwicke, Robert Young, and Efay But fet forwards to prouide fuch Clothes and Cotton Yarne, as wee fermerly a. 20

The fine and twentieth, Master Edwards wrote me of the comming of three great men with feuen Firmanes from the Mogore, in whose presence the Nabob bestowed on him eight hundred & fifty Mamudies: ten fine Baltas, thirtie Topleeles, and thirtie Allizaes: he further gaue to Master Elkington and Master Dodsworth ten Topleeles, and a Cloke to Master Aldworth, & another to Mafter Elkington, Master Dodsworth having had one before the promised free Trade in all places vnder his command, and good refreshing for our people aboord.

Crawther and

The feuen and twentieth, Iohn Crowther came from Surat , who aduled mee that the chiefe Merchants had chosen him to accompany Richard Steele into Persia, and therefore came to take his leaue of me, and to fetch his things from aboord. This day Mafter Edwards wrote to mee by Edmond Aspinol for fiftie Elephants teeth, and indifferently chosen in their fize and bignesse, for there was a Banian Merchant in price for them all, if they could agree, which Teeth the lame day were fent vp to him. The fixth of December, the Nabob Mocrib Chan seemed now to be ashamed, for that he had not fince my arrivall heere shewed me the least taste of courtesie; and therefore beeing desirous to excuse himselfe, intreated Master Elkington to accompany abourd the great Banian that brought our Teeth , and Lacandas the Banian Merchant of the Iuncke of the King of Cushan, whom he made choice of, and entertayned (by reason of his former samiliaritie with our people) to buy among them fuch Commodities as they had to fell, viz. Sword Blades, Kniues, Looking-glades. By them he fent me a Prefent of two Corge of course Bastas, ten fine Bastas, tenne Topleeles, ten Cuttonies and three Quilts, certifying mee that the Nabob was minded to come downe to see me within two or three dayes at the most. At their going ashoare I gaue them sue Newes of the great shot. They told me that the Nabob heard from Goa, that for certaine, the Vice-Roy was preparing to come against vs, with all the force hee could make to fight with vs: likewise that the Nabob requested me that I would wast a ship or two of his off the Coast for two or three gainst the Engdayes, being bound for the Red Sea. But I answered, that having once put off from the Coalt, the wind being aduerfe, I could not recouer it againe : but if he would further our dispatch that we might be readie in convenient time, then would I doe any thing reasonable.

Prefents to the

The ninth, the Nabobs sonne came to the water-fide, but would not come aboord; whereupon I went ashoare to him, who against my landing sent a Horse to fetch mee, hee willed meet sit 30 downe vpon the Mount with him, which I did. Then hee commanded part of his Horsemen to thew me some pleasure upon the sands, by warlike chasing each other, after the manner of Deca-Military sports mie, from whence they were : then he defired to heare some Ordnance goe off, and I gaue him eonhorse-back, leuen shot. Hee at present would drinke no wine, but being departed, hee sent for it, and for a Fowling Peece which he found in the hands of one of our people, both which I fent him with a Bowle to drinke his wine.

ð. I I.

Another fleer of Portugail Frigats,

we mistrusted any thing. I seeing the Gelliwat so neere, and no shew of friendship from them in an liver of ours, put forth my flag which before was taken in, and shot a peece of Ordnance for a figne to my Boat to come aboord, which presently upon fight thereof shee did, who was not scarce aboord, when our Centinell from top-mast head, discryed another Fleete of Frigats, who afterwards met together at the Barre, and went altogether into the River: whereby I perceived they were Portugals, and was glad that our men and Boat to well escaped their hands. I thinking thele Frigats were forerunners of greater forces, caused all the decks to be cleered, and the Ord nance freed, and all things elfefitting both for the Ordnance, Shot, and Barracadoes to bee in a

The feuenteenth in the night, the Frigats came all forth of the River, they beeing in the mor- 10 ning at the point of the Barre.

A fleet of thips The Portugall forces confifted of fixe

The eighteenth, there came to the water fide Mangie, the Banian Captaine formerly hamed. with an other great man, the sonne of Clych Caun, to whom I went ashoare : whither not long after word was brought me from aboord, that they discryed a farre off a Fleete of thips looming very bigge, which ashoare we could not see by reason of the lownesse of the place. And after leaue taken on both fides, he departed, and I returned aboord, caufing all things to be fet in a readineile, which was speedily performed. Towards night, we made them to be fixe Gallions and three leffer shippes, besides the fixtie former Frigats, the two Gallies beeing not yet come : the Gallions, and tide being spent, they anchored till the next day. three thios and The nineteenth, they plyed up to the entrance of our new Channell, where they came to an 20

fixty Friga s.

bendestwo

Gallies.

His feare and

policie. Vice-royes fabriltie. Prefumption

Difgrace at-

anchor, and the two Gallies came up to them, where one of the great ships beeing too forward, came too neare the funds, and touched, but soone got off againe. The Nabob sent the Sabandar, and divers other principall men of the Towne to the Vice-roy, with a Prelent of great provisions, they making some treaty of peace, but brake off, effecting nothing, great policie on both sides being vied. On the Nabobs fide, to the increase of my griefe : for he and all the Countrey in geto the Vice-roy nerall despaired of my being able to withiftand so great forces, and began to make preparative before-hand to claw the Vice-roy with Prefents: for I once overthrowne, his turne had come next, to endure a great affault, or to make fuch peace as the enemy defired. For peace with them was it that flood with the Vice-reys policie most to defire, for the setting trade a foote between them. On the other fide, the Vice-roy feeing the tractablenesse of the Nabob, and his feeming defire to 30 make peace, for the Prefent set light of it; supposing to have made it with great royalty and profit for his owne part, after he had ouer-throwne vs, which he made no doubt early to accomplish; which once performed, he expected greater Presents; and great submission on their parts to him being the conquerour. But it pleased God, who beheld the vniustnesse of his attempt, to turne it contrary to both their expectations for the Vice-roy failing of his purpoles in attempt against me, feeing he could not recouer fo much as a Boats thoule from me in all the time he spent, with losses and disgrace about it; afterward was forced to reviue the former neglected motion of peace with the Nabob; which Nabob beeing strengthened with a Moneths experience, notwithitanding all their bragging threats, feeing he was not able to remooue our small torces one foot out of their place, gaue answer: Since with so great an army he could not preuaile against source Mer- 40 chang ships, I wil make no peace with you; and fowas the Vice-roy trultrated of both his hopes. Yet now after some digression, returning againe to my daily businesse.

Formerly hearing of the Vice-royes forces to come, we imagined it would not bee fo great as Care and pre- now by view it fremes, therefore high time to enter into best considerations, how by Gods help uention of the to relift the same. The odds and advantages he had ouer me, put me to my shifts in casting up all things that made against me, being over-topt by his forces, whom I esteemed furnished with the principall thips and meanes of India, and people of greatest ranke and valour in these parts, in likelihood too hard for vs when we should put into the deepe water; nay, I know not how to put into deepe water, but they alwayes ready to intercept, ouer-charge, or force me a ground irrecouerable on one fide or other: my difaduantages to great in putting out, and their fmaller Veffels 50 I knew might much with fire-workes, or otherwise hazard vs within at anchor where we rode, where I had hope their great thips through the shouldnesse of water, could not or durst not put in. The things with me to give me hope was, my people (though much with death and fickenes shortned ) all from the highest to the lowest, seeme very couragious and comfortable; though (for the most ) ignorant, either of the danger, or how to preuent it, yet pleasing to me to see their willinguesse. My care is not small, how to doe my best in maintaining the Honour of my Country, nor negligent in the memory of the estates and charge of my friends, and employers in this lourney; not onely for the hazard of this at present committed to my charge, but also all hope of future times, if I should now be ouer-throwne; by reason the enemie in getting the vpper hand of me, would make his peace with these people vpon what conditions he lust, to the expelling of our Nation this Countrey for euer. And what my care was for the fafetie of my people, I referre to the confideration of fuch fathers, as are tender over the fatetie of their obediene children. All this while my whole powers so kept in action, that I found little time to converse, or almost fnew my felte femille of the dangers approaching; yea, euer as I could be folitary or free from others; very earnestly crauing aide and affishance from the Lord of hosts, and from that mightie The best help and mercifull God, who hath manifold wayes formerly deliuered me; often I fay defiring his introuble, Maiestie to to guide and direct me, that I might omit nothing which might tend to the fafety of my owne charge, nor the danger of the enemy; and that God would grant my request, I had a frong confidence; and the same againe often queld by the assembly of my manifold and grieuous offences, and but for Gods mercie sufficient to drowne the world; whereby forced afresh by prayer to pierce the heavens, and flie vnto God for aide against both inward and outward affaults. I so resolued by Gods assistance what to doe, if my assistants the Masters of the Ships would yeeld thereunto; knowing it we should receive a foile riding at our anchor, our difgrace will be greater, 10 and our enemies little abashed: but in mooning, I might moone the Vice-toy in greedinesse and pride, to doe himfelfe wrong against the fands; hoping that that might bee an occasion whereby God might draw him to shorten his owne forces, and so might open the way for our getting out among it the reit : which would rather have been for a necessitie, then any way hopefull : for at prefent our goods on the way, and daily by some and some expected to come hither, and if once gotten out, vnleffe it had pleased God to make vs conquerours, and drive the Vice-roy cleane away, I could not returne into my place, where onely (and no where elfe) I could take in my lading: I efteeming the Vice-roy to hold his honour in fo high regard, that he must have been dead before he would have given way. I also, though helplesse, remembred two great advantages the enemie had of me in this warre. Euer before my people came to fight, they are first tired, or so halfe spent with the libour of the ship, as heaving at Capstaine, and getting vp our anchors, setting of failes, and other labours, which greatly quells their courages, making them in hot Countreys both weary and faint; and then of necessitie must become fould iours: whereas the Vice-roy his fouldiours come fresh to fight, beeing troubled with no labour, which is done by slaues and inferiour fea-people, which are neuer accompted companions of Souldiours. Secondly, if the Viceroy loofe many men in his ships, he may be supplyed againe out of his fresh supplyes, to be fetcht from their neerest townes by their Frigats, whereas we could not have one man supplyed , how many focuer we should have flaine or disabled.

This present Thursday at night, I having no Merchants at all aboord, but all employed in the Countrey (besides those with Master Ethington at the house at Surat) I fent for all my Masters to supper, with some mates, where (as the time serued) I began speech of our present businesse, Consultation defiring every man to speake freely, how he thought best for vs to worke, considering to the prefent straight we seemed to be in; alleadging my confidence to be (for all the bragging of these Portugals abounding in force ) that God would not fuffer their injurious attempts upon vs. that have been tender not to wrong them in the East. I have had also a jealous conceit carried over meeby the Nabob, and principals of the Countrey, as though I had been confederate with the Portugals, for that I did not shoot at the sucy-governed bragging Frigats. I found all the Ma-fters to my hearts defire, willing and trachable to what some fewer. speeches about our promident mooring, as also of the remooning somewhat lower downe. But ere long, I let them know my conceit, defiring their free opinion therein: which was, that now our 40 thips were as fit for fight as we could make them, and our danger by night if we rode full (worke never fo providently ) to prevent is not small; therefore I thought fittelt in the morning at low water, to fend downe one ship to ride, as we might have water enough at low water for all our ships: for then none can come to annoy her, which may prepare the Vice-royes mind to some attempt at high water, and as the Flood comes, the other three should beare downe against the streame (the spring now neere the highest) to prooue what attempt the Vice-roy would give, to attend it, and worke accordingly as we shall see reason, in hope that God will put designes into the mind of the Vice-roy, that he may commit fome error, to the weakning of his owne forces; which if he doe, then will be fettest time in the darke of the night following, to put out when it shall be vnfit for them to come to faile to hinder vs. Or if we see reason, we may with so the wind worke every day to and againe without failes on the Flood, to be alwaies ready in action, when the tide is aloft, which may fomewhat the courage of the people quell and difmay, though the Gallants seeme to thinke otherwise. This no sooner propounded, but liked for the best way, and to we agreed to proceed, and for that I found M. Molineux willing at low water in the morning to fall downe with the Hope, which was accordingly performed.

The twentieth in the morning, at low water I fent downe M. Molineux with the Hope, to prepare the Enemie to some attempt, when the tide shall be vp, which beeing done, vpon the flood we also with the other three thirs stood after her. The Vice-roy and all the worthy Knights about him, supposed I had been slying, hastened also as the streame would permit them, towards the entrance to stop my comming forth; but contrariwise we all anchored short of the Hope, not co altogether of purpose to leane her destitute of our helpe, but rather doubting of depth for our fhips (so farre downe) to ride at low water. I was no sooner at anchor, and gone downe to my Cabbin, and fet downe to write, to give my friends and Merchants alhoare notice of my purpofesand resolution, howsbeuer it might please God to dispose of me, and that they might know it to be no raffinesse, but in good differetion to tend upon my best advantages to prejudice my ene-

The fight with

by flaughter,

mies; but presently I had notice, that three ships with most of the Frigats were before the wind. running stem-long abourd the Hope, and the Gallions after them, so farre as the sands gaue leave, We assayed to weigh our anchor, but time not permitting, wee cut Cable, and setfaile for the Hopes releue, but the Enemies ships were aboord her, and entred their men before we came sufficiently neare them; their men being entred with great shew of resolution, but had no quiet abode there, neither could reft in their owne ships, nor make them loofe from the Hope, for our great and fmall thot; to that when the principall were kild, the rest in great number, for quietnesse sake, leapt into the Sea, where their Frigats tooke many of them vp. But first of purpole to have burnt the Hope with them, they made preparation to fire their owne ships, which was well performed without harme to the Hope, (praifed be the Lord of heauen) for fo some as the fire was welkin. Io led, the ships of fire were let loose, and droue a ground on the sands, where they burnt till the flowing water came and quencht them; whiles day light lasted, we continued changing of shoe in all our ships with the Gallions, they being on the out-side of a spit of sand, and we on the in-fide; by which they did little harme to our Hulles, but to our ropes and failes ouer head. In this A mishance conflict besides them which were wounded, we lost fine men, by great mishance the Hopes main top, top-faile, top-mast, and shrouds came a fire, and burnt away, with a great part of the maine mast, by the fire-works that were in the faid top, the man being slaine that had the charge thereof. This milhap kept vs from going forth into deepe water to try our fortunes with the Viceroy, but were put to our shifts, not knowing how, or by what meanes to get the said Mast

The one and twentieth, I fent to weigh the anchor we had cut the day before. The two and twentieth, I vnderstood that many great men, with five or fixe hundred horse, and a Portugall Father came downe to Swalley, to lend on the morrow the Father with three or four principall Moores, to conclude a peace betwire them: and the Nabob fent me word that he fought no fuch thing, and was refolued to make none, but wherein we should be included. He also granted me what Timber we should want, which we made vie of. Likewise we were promised prouisions. The Portugals continued quiet.

The flue and twentieth, the Maccadam of Swally came to me, and told me that the former Father had fent to intice him to poison the former Well, where hence we had our water, which he would not yeeld vnto, and therefore had put into the Well fome line Tortoites, who would by their death demonstrate the poysoning thereof, if it should by them be performed. At night came part of the hundred and feuentic bales of Indico to the water fide, which was prefently fetcht aboord. Ifaac Beg fent me a Prefent of the fruits of his owne garden. This day came downe the relt of the Timber for the Hopes Maft.

The fenen and twentieth, I fent all our Boats to found the Swach at low water; chiefly to keep the Enemie alwayes ignorant of what I intended : whither was fent by the Enemy to preuent them, one Gally and five Frigats, thinking to cut off our Boats, whereof they failed, as of all other things they attempted.

The eight and twentieth, the Nabob fent to the Vice-roy great store of prouision, Goats, Bread, Plantans, &c. with a banquet of sweet meates. Cogenozan lent me a Present of five Bullocks. 40 Divers of our men died here of Fluxe and difeafes.

The one and thirtieth in the morning, we received aboord from Cambaya fiftie bales Indico.In the afternoone came Cogearfon Allee aboord, who presented me with divers things, viz. Goats, great store of Bread, Rost-meat, Plantans, and Sugar, &c. With him came an old acquaintance of mine, a Persian, he reported vinto me that there is newes come from Damon, that the Portugals carried thither three hundred and fiftie men to be buried, and that this newes is most certain; and by our estimate, there cannot be lesse then an hundred more kild and burnt in their ships, besides those drowned, which the tide did cast vp ashoare. They also related to me, that not onely here in India they found opposition, but also the Persians against Ormus, and the Malays at Malacea, are in armes against the Portugals: and whereas there had been speech of a peace to bee conclu- 50 ded betweene the Viceroy and Mocrib Can, he wisht me to affure my felfe it was broken off, and would none be. I found his love, and tooke great content in his long staying with mee, whole presence I thirsted to see, and till now he could never get leave of the Nabob to come to see mee (which without no man dare, or will be fo bold) who proceeds by the great charge he hath from the King, that all things of worth, should be procured by the Nabob for the Kings vie; which holds him in such doubt and lealousie, least any thing should passe by any other meanes to his disgrace, whereby he is inforced to vie frange and seuere courses to restraine the same. The day being farre spent, I returned him with a Present, gaue money to all his people, let him see the cast of the Bullets of some of our Great Ordnance; they tooke their leave and departed.

ð. 111.

Portugall supplyes, Fire-boates frustrated, seeke peace and refused, their departure: Enterview of the Nabob and Generall: departure of the English.

He third of Februarie, there came to the water fide twentie foure Bales Indico, leuen February;

packs white Bastas, seuen packs blacke Bastas, sixe packs Cotton-yarne, foure packs blue Baftas, three packs Caudikens, one pack Crecany, at writen were presently recent about this day also the Vice-royes slipplyes came in fight, which were two thips of Supplyes fear about this day also the Vice-royes slipplyes came in fight, which were two thips of Supplyes fear about the Vice-Roy. burthen, two Iunkes, and eight or tenne of the Countrey Boates. The Nabob fent Lacandas to the Vice-Roy. informe me, that these supplyes were not for warre, but fild full of combustible matter to fire, and fo to be let drive with the tyde voon our ships in the night; which adulfe I was glad to vinderstand, and addressed my selfe also to preuent that, and all other their attempts with smaller ships. The Spring now neere the highest, and fittest for their assaults, which every tide I expected: and to shew that I was in a readinesse to intertaine them, as also how little I cared for them ( having all the time formerly ridden without the like) I purposed and performed the setting and cleering our watch, Morning and Euening, with a Volley of fhot from euery ship, and the best Peece in 20 my thippe directed to the Prow of the Vice-roy, which I did to daunt the courage of them hee Thebrauers must employ, and to try his temper, whether it would make him angry or no: and I still thinke braued. it prooued to good end. It pleafed God this day at night, when I had leafure to mourne, to call to his mercie my onely Son George Downton, who early the next morning was buried ashoare, and the Volleyes aforefaid, appointed to try the temper of the Vice-roy, terued alto to honour his Generalls fon,

This morning also came to me on Monsa Attale 2 Malabar Captaine, (with his troope attending to vilit me, expecting some businesse this day by the Portugals to be attempted; whom I intertained with all kind respect, and by conference made the best vie of his company that I might; by drawing from him the description of the principall Ports and Harbours in his Countrey, and 30 manifesting the defire I had to be acquainted with him, and to intertaine love, league, and familiaritie between the English and them, with a mutuall trade and traffique one with another : the which with great defire he feemed to imbrace, willing me to give him some Letters of my hand, for their ships to carry to shew to my Country-men, where so euer they should meet them; which I deliuered, as also a Letter for him to mooue their King for the kind vsage of our Nation, whenfocuer any of our ships should arrive in any of his Harbours, and so after leave taken, he departed, I presenting him with a Sword blade, and three or source knives. The Master of the Hope complained, that besides those presently kild, he had many hurt, bruised , and disabled for service : wherefore I fent him for supply, three men from the Gift, foure from the Hetter, and foure from

The fifth, I received letters from M. Aldmorth from Baroch, who writes of their arrivall there, Reishatt afand that the day before, nine Courses from Baroch, they were set upon by two hundred theeues, fault, Raspoofes, with Pikes, small shot, and Bowes and Arrowes : and skirnishing a little while with them, they fled, three of them being killed, and more wounded; they having shot Humfrey Elkington thorow the thigh, and killed one of the horses that Surder Canne fent to guard our men; and Master Aldworthes horse likewise received a shot. The Nabob sent me word that the Vice-Roy would affault this day, and therefore fent Gogenozan to guard the Land; who came to the water-fide and fent his fonne Mamod lehad abourd to fee mee, with a Caueleer, caile Kemagee, the sonne of Leckdarfee, Raspoofo of Guigomir, or Castelletto (who maintained warre with the Mogore and Portugall together a long time) they entreated leave to fee and partake in the fight : 50 who feeing no attempt that day given, flayed aboord all night; and the Raspoofe leeing the back wardnelle of the enemy, went the next day alhoare: but the other defire is to tee the illie thereof, flayed two or three dayes longer aboord; and then feeing nothing would bee done by the

The eight in the fore-noone, we received more Indico aboord. In the after-noone all the Fri- Policie of the gats, with the two Iunckes and two Gallyes, came driving up with the flood, making flew of Portugalla. fome attempt at the inflant, either by fire, (which I most doubted) or otherwise: whereupon we all weighed to goe nearer to them, who no fooner perceived it, but they altogether made away as fast as they might, and we came to an anchor not farre from our former place. This deuice was nothing but to make vs think that those Fire-boats should come from the Northwards, & that we might not miltruit their comming from the Northwards : and therefore the next day against night, they assembled both Iunckes, Frigats, and Gallyes all together, a little without the fands, to take away all suspition of the North from vs : which I well perceived, and did alwayes resolue, that that way was the place of most danger for vs : And therefore gaue a speciall charge of good looking out both wayes, but chiefely that way : which accordingly fell out; for that a little within night we did difeerne them (netweenevs and a great light to the Westward, upon Fire transgement the Hand of Gogo creeping to the Northwards upon the flood, and then upon the last quarter ebbe, about ten of the clock in the dark of the night, before the rifing of the Moone, there came driving downe two Fire-boats, being towed by Frigats, whom we discovered before they came neare vs, and p'yed at them both with our Ordnance and small shot, whereby wee beat off the Frigats that towed them, who durft adjenture no further with them, but turned them off, who came driving with the tide a prettie diffunce from the other. The first droue cleere of the Gift, Hellor and Salomon, and came thwart the Hopes Haule, and presently blew vp, and with the blow much of their vingratious stuffe: but (blested be God) to no harme to the Hope, for that by blow much of their vingrations manter of the latter came likewife upon the quarter of the Hope, cutting her Cable, shee cleared her selfe. The latter came likewife upon the quarter of the Hope, and then flamed vp, but did no harme, driving downe the ebbe, and came foule of vs againe on the flood, the abundance of fewell continually burning, which our people in our Boats towed ashoare, and the former suncke downe neare vs by day-light. This day I received a letter from Mafter Aldworth, who writes of the receit of a letter from Thomas Kerridge, specifying that Nicholas Whittington is diffracted, and out of his right fences, and that he writeth fomewhat doubtfull; of Richard Steele. The tench at night, neare about the fame time as before, there came two Fire-boats together.

d. III.

Two Fireboats more.

towed by foure or fine Frigats, which bore directly upon the Hector: but as foone as we difceuered them, the Gift and the Hector let drive at them, both with great and small shot, that the Frigats which towed them, forfooke them, and forced the actors thereof to give fire fooner then 20 they would, and so turned them adrift: who comming burning directly towards her (but the wind being stiffe, droue them to leeward of her) within halfe an houre after wee perceived a great many Boats driving right with the Heiter, at whom they and we discharged, which agains made the Frigats for fake them, and also those appointed for to act it, sooner then they expected, whereby they gaue fire only vnto two of them, being foure of them chained together : but the Heltor edging to windward (and it pleafed God to fend a stiffe gale of wind at prefent, which droue them to Leeward off her) our Gunner made a thot at one of the Boats vnfired, and firsick her, whereupon shee tooke fire, and the vehemencie of the flames reached vnto the fourth. and fet her a fire alfo, and fo they droue ashoare hard by our landing place. My Pinnasse took three of the actors in a small Cannow, wherein they thought, the exploit being done, to have escaped. Two of them were brought abourd me, and the third was left abourd the Hellor: and the Gelliwat returning aboord, found another which shee brought with her; one of them had his shoulder that thorow. Thus it pleated God to disappoint all the malitious practiles of our enemies

The eleventh, the Vice-Roy feeing God croffing him in all his injurious attempts, fet faile and fell downe into the Barre, where he anchored. The cause of his anchoring there, I was desirous to vnderstand; I doubting it was for no other purpose, then to attempt the spoile of Surat : but I refolued, if he should to doe, to put out with my ships, and so to fet upon his Fleet (which would Vice Roy lee-ke h prace and he by a control of the place where wee had is great a focke, and so many of our Merchants. But the Vice-Roy would not trult mee so much, as to virman his ships, left I should come against him; and therefore sent all the Frigats at night into the River, with some to capitulate about a peace, whereof he had flat answere to the contrary, as aforefaid.

The twelfth, Lacandas came downe, informing me from the Nabob (he being fo affured by the regard, although needing no fuch admonition, suspecting such practises as well when they were Bors of State. Isfuits, with whom he alwayes kept faire weather for his better fecuritie, if wee should be put and Merchan- to the worfe) that there were fixe or eight Frigats gone to the Northwards, with foure or hue diff affires in Fire-boats to be let drive among vs in the night; and therefore wished carefully to lockeout, for the East-Indies. that it should be when we should least suspect. I allowed of his kindnesse, was glad of his carefull fruftrate.

Vice-Ray departeth.

out of tight, and furtheit from vs, as when they rode hard by vs. The thirteenth, for as much as Frigats or other veffels in the offing could not fo well differne the place of our ships, in the darke night, for the shadow of the shoare, though very low; therefore in the times of their hellish Gun-powder practifes, they had lights for ayme given them ashoare, where fittell to come in. Now night by night we law the like, in the like place as before; therefore eleeming some of their creatures agains to give ayme for their comming to like practifes, though no veffels feene by day-light. And being formerly warned, as afore faid, to looke out for like attempts, in hope to take hold of this Fire-man, at night I fent William Gurdin a-Craft and fub- floare with twentie men, flot and pike, to incompasse and take the blaser of the faid fire, fappoand men, roue fing it to be some traytor inhabiting these nearest parts: who in his passage comming nearest, it would freme prefently out, and againe at an instant at another place contrary to their partiet, 60 and to playing in and out with them to long, that in the end they gaue it over, efteening it fome delusion of the Deuill, not knowing otherwise how to coniecture thereof. This present night the Vice-Roy fet faile from the Barre, leaving in the River fome twentie of his Frigats, which continued the place, shifting to relieve each other sometimes more, and sometimes lesse, and kept in the Mallabars Frigats, which were there in service for the defence of the Towne.

The fourteenth, the Nabob lent me a great man and a Souldier (whom in amitic hee named his brother) to vitit me, who declared his opinion, that the Vice-Roy and all his Fleet were gone for Gos, but some Frigate to attend this River, and some to returne to Din and Ormun: which opinion of his I fee no reason for it, could not allow of; esteeming him rather gone some-whither to refre h his people, to strengthen them against our putting forth to sea, when no sands should hinder his greatest ships to encounter me. He also told me that the King had sent downe forces, both to take Damon, and all the Country along the Sea-fide; in which I gaue him courteous hearing, beloeuing as I faw reason: and that they were more willing to give our Nation entertainto ment and trade, then ever they did the Portugals; the which I thought he might with very good reason speake, because the Portugall hath beene injurious alwayes, and hath exercised many vile things woon them. And yet valelle we continue able to mate and withfrand the Portugals forces; they will vnfay that speech againe for their owne eafe. After he had feene the ship, and viewed our Ordnance, and all our defencible preparations, hee defired leave to depart with his traine, which with all courtefie and our Boars, in best fashion was performed.

Now our daily endeasour is, and long fince hath beene to the clearing and beginning to lade the Hope for England; which by the over-topping and threatning forces of the Vice-Roy formerly, with realon I could not resolue to doe, though time and libertie would for present haue allowed the same : but by hastie snatches, as it came, ever we put it in confusedly (some into one to thip, and fome into another) not thinking fit in to casuall a time, to hazard all our Cargaion in one ship. Besides, it was long before the Hopes burne Mast was newly cured : and that I resolued to fend home the Hope, it was not altogether for that I effeemed her fittest of burthen for the flowing of our goods prefently prouided; but withall, by the many impediments and difabilitie in the ship, in and by the Master and Carpenter daily complained of, as that the poste within the Rudder was vnsheathed (a strange and dangerous neglect, and ouer-light) and therefore fittest foonest to be returned, and the lose of our Quick-filter in her, which lyeth vpon her Keele and Billages, another important caufe.

The eighteenth, the Nabob fent Cogear fon Allee, the Sabandar, and other Merchants of Surat, to intreat my flay for fifteene dayes, which in no fort I would grant: then they importuned 30 me for ten dayes, which yet by no meanes would I yeeld vnto, shewing how great prejudice to my Voyage my stay heere fo long might be. The cause of their request, was their feare left the Vice-Roy after my departure should come against Surat with all his forces. Wherefore I consi- Feare for Sedering the weight of this businesse, and the prejudice it might be to our felues, and also being vn. tat. willing to fend them backe with deniall, feeing them much discontented thereat as a disgrace vnto them, and being loath at my departure to give the Nabob any distaft therein, that have done to my vnttermost hitherto to giue him all content possible; and knowing what future hindrance it might be to our bulineffe ashoare; and last of all, seeing there was fix dayes worke of the ten to be done in the Hope, before we could be possibly ready; I at length (when they were altogether out of hope thereof, and vpon departure) condescended to their request, whereat they were an exceeding joyfull, and departed. The two and twentieth at night, I received a Letter from Surat, informing me of the Nabobs comming to see me the next day.

The three and twentieth, in the morning came downe two Elephants and fix Camels, bring ing his Tents and other provisions.

The foure and twentieth, Master Aldworth came downe with the rest of the Merchants to finish all businesse with me.

The five and twentieth in the morning, the Nabob came downe with a very great traine, and fixe Elephants more, and had beene two houres ashoare before I knew thereof: which when it Was told me, being fory for my neglect of him, I fent Mafter Aldworth, Mafter Elkington, and M. Dodfworth ashoare vnto him, to hold him in discourse vntill I came vnto him, which was not Entended of long after; I purposed to go vnto him (as a sonne vnto his father) in my doublet and hose, with- the Naboh and out any armes or great traines, according to custome, thereby to shew my trust and confidence Gen, that I reposed in him : but my friends perswaded me to the contrary, that I should rather goe well appointed and attended on with a fufficient guard, to continue the custome. Whereunto I confented (though in conclusion, it repented me that I had not taken mine own course) and went ashoare with about one hundred and forty men, of pike and shot, who at my entrance into the Nabobs Tent gaue me a Volly of thot. The Nabob entertained me very kindly, feeming very joyfull of my comming afhoare to him : we fitting a while under a very faire Tent, open on all fides round about, enuironed with many people, as well of mine, as of his attendants. At length hee 6c brought me into a more prinate roome neare adjoyning, having on his fide onely Alle Canne, a great Persian Captaine, and the Banian Henie for his Interpreter ; and on my tide, Master Aldworth, Malter Elkington, and Malter Dodfworth . where hee conterred both of the estate of this

Countrey at prefent, and also of our affaires. At length I demanded of him if he would go abourd with me to fee the shippe; whereunto he very willingly consented. Then he presented me with his owne fivord (accompanyed with many good words, telling mee that it was the custome of their Countrey, to honour Captaines with armes, that had deferued well) which as he told mee was made in his owne house, the hilts thereof being of massie gold, and in liew thereof I reprened him my fute, being Sword, Dagger, Girdle and Hangers, by mee much effeemed of, and which made a great deale better shew, though of lesse value. We came both forth of the private Tent, and I walked downe to the water-fide, there flaying his comming; whither he fent mee a present of ten Cuttonee quilts, and twentie Topseells; and not long after came the Nabob himselfe, and then we tooke boat together and went aboord, where having shewed him the lying of our Ordnance, and all our war-like preparation for defence, I presented him with a very faire flanding guilt cup with a couer, and certaine very faire kniues, and a Rundlet of Muskadine, with some other toyes. Then he desired to see our Ordnance shoote off, and how farre they would carry their shot vpon the water, and I gaue him three. Then he would have taken leave. but I accompanied him to the shoare, and gaue him at his departure eleuen great shot. At our parting at the water-fide, the Nabob gave me foure baskets of Grapes; he likewife gave the Gunners and Trumpeters between them two hundred Mamudies, and among the faips company five hundred Mamudies, and one hundred books of white Bastas, of two Mamudies a peece : and then after iome complements we tooke leave one of the other, and departed. I rowed along the shoare for my better getting aboord, the tide running to fwiftly, and faw Lacandas the Bonias come running towards the Boat, being fent of the Nabob to know of me, if he should erect a Tombe out my fonne: I returned him many thanks, and willed Lacandas to tell him that I had alreadie begun 20 and went after him with the rest of his carriages. The fix and twentieth, the Nabobs sonne and sonne in law (a very ingenious yong man) came aboord to take their leaues of me: vpon whom I bestowed some kniues, and other things which I had left, which could not be much, having still had one great man or other to visite me, who seldome or neuer went away without fome one prefent or other: fo they viewed the shippe and it:then I returned aboord, and he went to Surat; and not long after his Tents were taken downe.

He goeth a-boerd.

The feuenteenth, there came abourd vinto me the three fonnes of Allee Canne, the two yongel first, and after them came the eldest, called Gnger Canne, who as yet had neuer been abord: He
Two Antelops: presented me with two Antelops, male and female, whereat I was glad, since I had sent to en-30 quire for fome to fend home to Sir Thomas Smith, but could not procure any. I presented him with foure Spanish pikes with heads, and fome other things of my owne, and shewed him all the thip, with our warlike preparation for defence, as also all our Ordnance; and a little while after he tooke his leave, and at his departure I gave him eleven shot.

The third of March in the after-noone, vpon the tide of ebbe, and a small gale came vp Northerly, to give steering way to our ships, we seeing our friends the Mallabars (which had defired to go with vs) not attempting to come forth, we haftened to get vp our anchors, and to fet faile to proceed on our journey : yet feeing comming in from the Westward another Fleet of Portugall Frigats, I was willing to shew my best, in the view of the Countrey people, to hinder their comming into the river of Surat; which was nothing, for that there was roome enough for them 40 to palle by vs every way out of the reach of our flot; yet we flot at the nearest of them, without hope to shoote neare them, but only to shew our good willes, and for encouragement to our friends on land; as also for those which went alongst the Coast (as I esteemed) to give knowledge to the Gallions of our comming, that they might report also that we shot at their fellowes going to Surar: that they might also expect that wee cared the lelle for their greater itrength. In our passage this night, we had divers slawes of vnconstant winds, for which we came to anchor for a while. Afterwards feeing it blew fleadie, though faint, wee fet faile, continuing our The enemics course South by East alongst the shoare. At that time the day-light began to discouer to vs all things neare vs : we descried betweene vs and the shoare our enemies forces of Gallions, and two Gallyes, all comming to faile prefently after they faw vs, and stood after vs with a faint gale, we 50 flanding fomwhat without our courie with all our failes, partly to gaine time to make our felues in perfect readinelle to fight, partly to refresh my people that had taken much paines the night palt; as also the further I draw them off the Coait, the further they will be from fresh supplyes to be fent them. But ere long, the tide of flood being come, and little wind to hold our owne, we came to an anchor, while the enemie refting his hopes in the wind, kept longer under faile to his greater disaduantage. But I not taking it for an error in them, but of purpose to doe vs more harme, it brought mee into a new and great doubt, which drew all my powers to deuife how to prevent. This was, that now we were at ica, they meant to return to Smat with al their strength, and there to worke their wills on our friends and goods, which I had no meanes to preuent, but fight of them. But the time now grew so late, that I doubted by the most half that I could make,

I should hardly get off the Coast before the foule weather came; which put me into some hope, that the Vice-Roy being fo great a Souldier, and fo different a Gentleman, would not expole himself, his people and ships to such great perils as the hastning winter did threaten. While their

by following them; knowing they durft not vnarme, nor vnfurnish their shippes while I was in 60

March 3.

Their depar-

things floted in my mind, the tide of flood was spent, and time to worke if we make vie of the the, we (to my great content) law the Vice-Roy his Fleete standing towards vs with a fresh gale of wind. Wee likewife fet faile, and stood away our owne course before him all that tide, and to fpent the night to the best aduantage, partly by failing, and partly by stopping.

The firth in the morning, wee law the enemie had gotten but little ground of vs : This day also we spent, as before, in riding and failing, as time served to our best advantage: and for that the Hellor went beit, and the Hope (logloaden) worlt, I fent to the Hellor to take in her Boat, and to prepare for the Hope. I sent to the Hope to give directions to hasten to the Hector, to be towed, and to the end she should have nothing to hinder her, I had her Boat to tow at my sterne, to and so spent the night working for the best, the wind fresh wee had no cause to anchor. This night the Vice-royes ships got much ground of vs: by this I was gotten well off from the shoare, and allo an ende to the Southwards, and by his working I recourred some affurance to my conceit, that these forces would not this yeare annoy Surat: and for my businesse for encountring the enemie, I had by good leafure well confidered how to contriue it, and withall I had confidered of the cases of either, and the difference betweene the Vice-roy and me, I meane in our seuerall satisfactions and contents: My comming hither was by the authoritie of my King, and to follow Wife and fober the defignes of my Imployers, which was in Merchants ships fitted for defence, and to endea- course. uour by honest commerce, without striuing to iniury any, which God hath of his tender mercleand bount if Il bleffing to affifted me, that we have performed beyond my former conceit, and o in most things hitherto God hath graunted me my hearts desire: and am now in a good way vpon my way with the fame: with which without further tempting of God, or prefuming of Gods continuing mercies in further deliuerances, if I by pride fwarue from what is just, and before him to be allowed, whose mercies have been free, and without any cause in mee for his owne Name Take: therefore I hold it fit to proceede foberly, and attend upon the Enemies attempt, yet not in base manner, but in a warlike sort. On the other fide, the vnhappy Vice-roy a famous valiant man, therefore now fent by his Thankfull cond Mafter the King of Spaine with Ships (the principall of India) with men (all the Gallants and fideration of principall Braggards of those neerer parts of India ) what to doe! Not onely to disturbe or in- Gods affitting principall Braggards of those neerer parts or that we what to do. The state of the Mogal, a great King our equitie, tercept the peaceable and quiet trade of the English with the subjects of the Mogal, a great King our equitie, and punishing in his owne Countrey, but to take or burne them: fo little regard is had to the estution of Christine Portugal

513

flian blood; neuer looking towards the judgements of God, nor remembring that as men doe to pride, others, they must expect to be done to. This Captaine was furnished with abundance of all things the Countrey might yeeld, and wanted nothing but an vpright cause, fit for God to fayour. He came to the place where he found what he fought, foure poore Merchants ships, a fewe men, and many of them ficke and dead; and those Braggards measured our minds by their owne, thought we would never stand out against to powerfull a force, as they esteemed they had; and the conceit of that, fet those Coxcombs a madding to be doing mischiefe, to encrease their pride, which they intitle honour. I feeing the difference, and the cause I had to pray to God my onely refuge, whom it pleased to grant the request of me his poore and vinworthy feruant : in confidefen: ly ranne thereat as aforefaid. They came three Ships, and thirtie or fortie Frigats, as I imagined; with a yeaze laid the Hope abourd with the flowre of all their Gallants, where by the hand of God in their amazed carriage, they received fuch a blow, as few ( and they by their extraordinary chance ) escaped with fafetie, and the three ships burnt. Thus it pleased God to crosse their first attempt, and neuer after, though they beleaguered vs round about by fea, with all their forts of shippes for many dayes together, our people Hill in action, and halfe tired with continual labour, fome receiving in goods; yet, Bleffed be God, they could never get the advantage to winne from visthe vallewe of a loufe, valeffe our Bullets which we lent them, his fire-boats failing, and nothing prospering; 50 and once in foure and twentie houres, I fent him a defiance for many dayes together, to try his tempersall which must needs lie heavie on the stomacke of a Gentleman of so great courage. Itfleeme now he will hazard much to recouer fome of his honour formerly lost (but crauing pardon for this my digretton, I will now returne and proceed with my former bufineffe.)

oration whereof, I put forward the bulinesse, and as it were, baited my hooke, and the Fish pre-

Wherefore the fixt in the morning betimes, I tent for my Mafter, and let him know that my purpose was, that when the Vice-roy should come up neere with vs, that we would all at once cast about with him, and charge him first on the studien, to strike an vnexpected terror in the hearts of his people, who now are bragge, feeing vs going away before them. And to that end I now went abourd every flip, to give them all directions; and more, that I would cause the Hefor, with her Pinnaffe and mine, to take in an hundred fardels of the Hopes goods to lighten her, 60 and mend her going; which businesse (by reasons of my Pinnasse to helpe) I stayed to see it done; to that it grew to be mid-day, neere which time, my thip which I left facre afterne for my better comming aboord, flooke faile, whereat (as wee imagined) the Vice-roy feeing the Admirall ffrike her failes to fall a sterne, might take it of purpose to flay for him in contempt, he with his Conforts bore up with the shoare, and gaue our the hope of their fortunes by further following mourthen ho-

* Since this was wainten, I M Eleiegtens fame. Iournall, wherein you may proceed wi h this wor-Bantam, and Graue: his Hiftory fue.

of vs: which courle I like very well, fince he is so patient; for there is nothing under his foot of vs: which control has very well, and the worst mans finger I have. Besides, I wish no occasion to fight; for that which I have alreadie paid for, I am already possest on, and I am so farre from the humour to fight for honour, valelle for the Honour of my King or Countrey, that I had rather faur the life or lives of one of my poorest people, then kill a thousand Enemies. Having now fanifhed with the Vice-roy, I fet my felfe to write Letters for the difpatch of the Hope, yet full thinking to have haled into the Bar of Gos, to proone if I could have left some Commendations thinking to have hared med the curve this was my great defire that Ilong promifed, yet folong hous obsayned triffed in dispatch of the Hope, that wee were shot farre past it before wee had finished the

The rest of this Iournall is wanting; for hee is also wanting which should have perfected it. But alas, this is the imperfection of Mans best perfections, Death lying in ambush to intrap thy Captain to whom by open force (you see ) he could not denoure. He dying in this Voyage, and following his sonne, hath left this glorious act, Memoria Sacrum, the Memorable Epitaph of his worth, fauouring of a true Heroike disposition; Pietie and Valour being in him seasoned with Grauitie and Modeflie. We will not with heathen Poets cry out of cruell immature Fates: for Death History succeeding this, as hath prevented vnto him possibilitie of disafrous events (which as shadowes follow the bodies in bimicite did a greatest light) and leaving his living Memory here, hath lifted his lively part, and vertious Spihmicke die o greatest tight, and reading us trong the Generals rit, to receive the applaule, and prairie, and reward of God and with God, to whom be glory for

CHAP. XII.

Relations of Master ELKINGTON and Master DODSWORTH touching the former Voyage.

Collections taken out of the Iournall of Captaine THOMAS ELKINGTON, Successour to Captaine NICHOLA'S DOWNTON in the Voyage aforesaid, written by himselfe.

Soldania

He first of Ianuary 1613, the new ship built at Deeford, was lanched and called the New-Teares-Gift. The third of March, we came to an anchor in the Downer. The thirtieth of June, we let faile from the Bay of Soldania. Heere at this time which is their dead of Winter, it was temperate, rather inclining to cold then 40 heate. We had little refreshing but water and fish. The people are wretched, neither fow nor plant, dwell in small Cottages made of Hides, and so ioyne many of them in a round Circle, having their Cattle in the middeft. They are browne, but by greafing themselves become almost blacke, and in the wind vasauourie a doozen yards off, filching, trecherous, vinworthy fo good a Land, which in likelihood with culture would be very fertile.

The fixth of August wee had fight of Saint Laurence. This night Robert Waters departed, 2 man long difeafed in bodie, diffurbed in minde by torment of confeience, for a man by him killed in Orginia, (cowardly comming behind him, and knocking him on the head) for which hee obtayned his pardon in the Court of men, but in the inward and spirituall was thus pursued to his death. Here in the Bay of Saint Augustine we wooded and watered: Some went vp theriuer and came to their houses or sheads, which were small things set up with Canes, and couered with a thing like a hurdle, made of the leaves of the Palme Tree. The people fled and left all, that is, nothing but a little Cotton founne, or on the Diffaues, with a few necessaries. The eleleventh and twelfth, we bought Cattell in exchange of Silver Chaines, they taking the value of twentie pence, or two shellings in a Chaine for an Oxe, which in money would coll fine or fixe shillings. They are very good, fed (it feemes) within the land, for we saw nothing but fund and wood without any graffe at all.

The minth of September, we had fight of Socatora, and paffing by Tamarind Bay, came to anchor in Delilba.

The one and twentieth of October, we came into the Road of * Smally. After the fight on 60 rents here read the twentieth of Ianuary, in which three Portugall thips were burnt, and two Frigats funke, and the former and Timber procured for the Hopes maine Matt, which the Nabob cauled to be done to warrly, that in accollowing Imper procured for the Hopes maine Mail, which the reason cannot cobe done to be don Issuite with another fellow from the Vice-roy to intreate of peace with Magribeau, who on the feuen and twentieth, fent the Vice-Roy one hundred and fiftie Maunds Meale, one hundred theepe, twentie fine Maunds Conferues with Hens, &c. In the after-noone the Sabardar requeited me to read a Letter from the Vice-Roy, which fignified that whereas by the Padre hee was informed that the Nabob defired to make peace in his Mafters name, and had appointed for treatie thereof the Sabandar, I Jane Beg, and Abduram, hee also had hearkened thereto and appointed three others to that businesse binding himselfe to performe their agreements.

On the one and thirtieth, The Sabandar came vito mee and told mee, that no peace could bee with the Portugals, they refuling to make any relitution for damages or goods taken, but rather to required money of them: and that the Vice-roy had fent to all parts thereabouts for more forces. After their fire deuices frustrated, they all set faile, both Ships, Junckes, Gallies and Frigats, and roade at the Barre of Surat. The Hellor had taken one of their Frigats which was imployed to tow the fire-boats and in her feuen men; three flaine, foure liuing. Soone after they departed: and we also weighed the second of March.

On the fourth, we described the Portugall Fleet, which presently gaue vs chase, and the next day also. On the fixth, the Generall came aboord vs, to with vs to make readie, he purpoting to turne and give the on-fet on them : but about noone the Portugals bore vp the Helme, and stood in for the shoare, and within three houres after we lost fight of them. The tenth, at night the Hope departed from vs. The fifteenth, we faw three Spouts of water not farre from vs , one whereof very bigge continuing halfe an house. The nineteenth, we doubled Cape Comorine.

The tenth of May, the wind and current against vs, the Generall went to a greene Hand to A.D. 1615. the North of the Salt-hill, and there came to an anchor in twentie fathome good ground fandie. Wee fought fresh-water but found none: wee faw Pigges and Hogs on the Iland, and gathered good flore of Coco Nuts. About this Iland is good riding, beeing twelve fathomes within a ftones throw of the shoare. The Pinnaile fetched water at an Iland foure leagues off, which was brackish. We found water in the Hand beyond the burning one. The second of June, wee came to an anchor in Bantam Road.

The third of July, we weighed Mace and received Silke for the furnishing of the Salomon, for Majulpatan. Massidipatan, Wherein we concluded to fend for Merchants, George Chancie, Ralph Preston, Hum. phery Elkington, Timothy Mallory, George Sauage, and Robert Sauage.

The eighth of July, we laded Porcelane in her: and then came newes by a Juncke from the Moluccas, of the Thomasine being there, and of twelve faile of Hollanders at Ternate, which hindered all men they could from Trade. The eleventh, our old house escaped great danger of a fire on the twentieth, Master Iordan received Letters from Master Ball at Macassar, of the violent couries which the Flemmings vied with him, beating him from thence, as also that they of vsat MApurposed with their whole force to come to take Bantam, and to place the King of Motran in cafar, the Gouernment.

The one and twentieth, Mafter Bennet fet faile in the Salomon. The fine and twentieth, the Advice and Attendance came into the Roal, having beene out of England eight moneths. At the 40 Cape they met with the Globe and Iames, to whom they spared eighteene men. They departed towards England, July the feuenteenth, and they hither, the eighteenth, meeting with a hippe neere the Cape, which we indge to be the Samaritan or Hope from England, The fifth of August, I was aboord with the Generall then very ill, and the next day had word General Description of his departure; whom followed on the eighth. Mafter Enans the Preacher, and Mafter Hamb-ton his death. this departure, in the learning they both being well a little before. On the eleuenth, By order in the the Aduice was dispeeded for Lapan, with twentie two persons brought out of England, fine Box M. Eleng

Blackes and Fernands the Spaniard. The fourteenth, returned the Concord from Socodunna, and Macafar. That night was much additegorth Raine, Thunder and Lightning, the Church or Meskit of Bantam Iplic in two with a Thunder Temper. bolt, and the chiefe Priest almost slaine, which the King and people tooke as an ill prefage, and therefore determined to make peace with lacatra.

The fixteenth, the Thomas press of the into Bantam, with twentie two English, and five Thomas loss. Blacker, which told of the casting away of the Thomasine on certaine flats, twentie two leagues from Macaffar the night before, Wilfon the Mafter being careleffe, and all the company affected, iauing he which was at the Helme. The money they faued and brought with them. Mafter Baily fignified also that the wracked company there enforced him to pay them their wages, which we caused them to restore.

The nineteenth, the Flemmings put into the Bilbomes three Blacker, that Master Baily brought Hollanders with him from Celoso, pretending they tooke them climbing over their pales, also that they were quirels and 60 taken form a place which they protected, and therefore would keepe them. We are many wayes abuses, most vily abused by them, nor is any way to right vs except wee should goe together by the more vity applied by them and willing wrought of purpole, and the Blacker intifed by them and willing M. Belas into it, as being taken by force : which after that I knew, I was offended with Matter Baily, being indice, a meanes that whereas heretofore wee have beene in all places well intreated, that wee should be hated as Men-robbers, which the Flemmings to difgrace vs will not let to blaze abroad

The thirteenth of September, the watch cloyed a fire in the thatch over Master Ierdans lodg. ing, which was foone quenched: it was throwne there purpolely; we found the Cane wherein it was done, for which we fafpected Francisco the Spaniard turned Jauan. The same night the like happened in two or three places of the Towne, but all preuented.

The found of October, Sophonee Coffock, Merchant, came in a small Pinnasse from Puloway one of the Hands of Banda, with an Orancaya, to conferre of trade.

The two and twentieth, I with Mafter Pring and Malter Boile, went alhoare to conferre with The two and twentieth, I with Mailer 11mg and the Flemmille Generall, touching certaine idle complaints made by them of our Mariners: whom the Flemmille Generall, touching certaine idle complaints made by them of our Mariners: whom the Flemmille Generally, touching the same of the and the Prelident I found very impatient, calling vs infolent * English, and with threats, telling * Duistalerit vs our pride would have a fall, with many other difgracefull words; this being the entertainment of that borish Generall, Garrat Repnes, in his owne house; shewing the like or worse to Master

B.t. comming abourd him at Bands, and foure of our men entreating passage with him thence fift, Dutch po. B.t., comming about him at Baras, and four of our men chicked like. Is it fuch to Cambello, vpon no cause he carried them thither in the Bilbowes.

a cr.me to be Englift? Letter from Banda, with offer of Trade, Pulcwar.

The third of Nouember, I went ashoare : Captaine Iordan called together the Merchants, and fent for the Orancays of Banda, having had his Letter translated, the effect whereof was, that in regard of the ancient friendship betweene the English and them, and especially with Captaine Keel ng, withall being proasked by the cruelty of the Hollanders, their earnest delire was to trade only with the English for the Spices of Puloway, Pulerons and Nera : conditionally that the Enghib would furnish them with Victuals, Munition and Ordnance, and helpe them to recouer the 20 Caffle of Nera, and that fome might bee fent to Banda, to conferre hereof with the Orancayas. To which was answered, that for helpe to recouer Nera, we could not doe it without order from England; for Ordnance at prefent we were unprouded: what we could, we would, which was to furnish them with Victuals, and what other provisions we could, till further order out of Eng-Lord, and to trade with them for Spices, purposing to fend a ship, and some to conferre with the Orineagas, how we should be secured, and whether they would permit vs a Fort on shoare.

The two and twentieth, were fine Hollanders riding without : foure of which came from Massritius Hand (having come out of Holland nineteene moneths past) where they found Generall Butt cast away with three ships, two vtterly lost, the third men and goods faued, the fourth went home with a Tury Mast, in company of a small Pinnalle that came thither by chance. One of these shippes that was at the Mauritius came away before the rest, whom they found driving to and againe before the Straights mouth, having loft one hundred and fixty men, and left in her but eicht.

The five and twentieth, by a letter from Priaman, we bad newes of the death of Master Oxewike and Samuel Negus.

II.

A Briefe of Memorialls observed and written by M. Ed vv ARD Dods vv ORTH. Merchant in the former Voyage, which returned in the Hope.

* This Com-

He fixteenth of October, in the Bay of Surst, came aboord vs Mafter Aldworth and Mafter Steele: and the next day in confultation it was demanded of Mafter Aldwirth according to the Companies . Commission, concerning Taul Canning, of his with according to the Companies Committee, the carriage and respect with the King: to which he answered, That was well, and this carriage and respect with the King: queftions, of good, till the feltits had made knowned that he was a Mirchant, and on immediatly fent from which I sale our Kings after that, needed, tince which be about 416-42. that which is to Nation, of good respect, should remaine at Court, to right vs in those wrongs which might bee 10 offer al. To this function Mafter Edwards was chosen as a man most answerable to the Compa-Of his death nies Commission to go for Agra, some question being made whether he should proceed in name you believe and protestion of a Merchant (according to the strictnesseof the Commission) which Master Aldin N. W. hisre- worth conceited would procure him difrespect with the K. ng. After much contesting, some way I tions by poi- was given to Mafter Edwards, left they flould feeme contrary to each other in their proceedings, thought, from it being before by fome ginen out, that he was the Kings Mellenger.

All this while wee heard not from the Cheefe at Surat, nor had any encouragement, or fo much as refreihing, whereupon I was fent with a letter to the Nabob, and doubting to get into the Citie, was forced to flay by the way, and lye in a poore Gonge, and the next day was courteoutly entertained; but having Nicholas Vpbler with me for Interpreter, a man knowne and hat have be N. had been some and have the N. had been some and had ted by the Nabob, for employment in Captaine Hankins debts and affaires; he departed discontent, ha sing Courses an with others, to receive my letter: I refused to deliver it to them ; in the afternoon: I was admitted, and he feemed much diffcontent at our want of refreshments, as not knowing it, promiting reformation; and the next day went to talke with the Generall at Swal-

b, who had come into that Road on the one and twentieth. Neuertheleffe, we had found nothing but delayes : and the nine and twentieth, hee fent the Sabander to acquaint vs, that wee should looke for no trade or kindnesse, except wee would affift them against the Portugall: Which the Generall refuting, further then his Commission gaue leave, he also defired leave by his letter, that his Merchants might come aboord with their goods, so to depart to some other place, where with fafetie he might deliuer his Maiesties Letters and Present to the Mogoll. Master Elkinoton and Master Aldmorth went with this Letter. * But Magro Can would not so much as looke on * These words vs, but tooke it very formefully, and went his way, and fent the Sabandar with answere as following and

The second of November, we had sowre entertainment of him, telling vs, if we would stay, seem than the secretary the second of November, we had sowre entertainment of him, telling vs, if we would stay, seem to see the secretary terms of the second of November, we had sowre entertainment of him, telling vs, if we would stay, seem to see the second of November, we had sowre entertainment of him, telling vs, if we would stay, seem to see the second of November, we had sowre entertainment of him, telling vs, if we would stay, seem to see the second of November, we had sowre entertainment of him, telling vs, if we would stay, see the second of November, we had sowre entertainment of him, telling vs, if we would stay, see the second of November, we had sowre entertainment of him, telling vs, if we would stay, see the second of the secon we might; if we would go, we might go, either in Gods, or the Deuills name; for our other demands referring vs to Jack Big and the Sahandar, who would yeeld vs nothing. The common institutable people feemed well affected to vs, the greater to defire our roome rather then our company, but to that we thought none of them durft gaine-stand the Kings Farma: whereupon it was concluded that the goods should be landed, which accordingly was done. But in the Alfandica wee could find no reasonable ratements on the goods, nor I age to carry away any thing, till the Nabob had feene them, and taken what he pleased (as hee had done in opening mens chebs, neither Mariner nor Merchant escaping without trifles taken from them, no reason after guen for it) fearching to the very pillowes and pockets, not sparing Mailer Edwards himselfe: Customing the ling. 20 Cases, Bottels, Apparell, or what we brought for necessary vie, as if they sought by foule viage to weary vs.

Harft and han-

The fifteenth, Magro Can himfelfe came to the Alphandica, and fealed up the Kings Presents. which he was delirous to fee, although he had promited that they should passe without opening. He defired to have all the Pictures and Combe-cases, which we said were to go for Agra, that the King might have his choife. Whereupon (notwithstanding he was offered part of them) he fell into great choler, and object d Sir Henry Middleton his proceedings in the Red-fea, withing Mafter Aldworsh to Write to the King for facistaction : which was answered to have been already ended by Captaine Beft, as the Articles manifeit. He concluded yet with faire promifes, but the effect was (defect and) delay, wee being not permitted to carry away the Kings Prefents. The Pictures by lying in the Sunne, were broken and warped in vile manner, wee also in danger to lose the Monson, and the Kings Present, with Muskets and Fowling-peeces taken from our men, were carried to his house: any nothing permuted vs. except he might hird fee the Kings Present, which we at last yeelded vnto, and Magro Con as much as he could diffraced, boasting of his refpeet with the King. And thus had we leave to remove them.

The foureand twentieth, came a Firms from the Mogoll, which the Nabeb (according to their custome) met in state two miles out of the Citie, with fixe hundred horse. And the next day we were kindly entertained, and he gaue Master Edwards eight husdred and fiftie Mamu lies, thirty peeces of Topleell, ten of fine Calicoes, &c. the money to carry up the Prefents, (the King not willing to charge them that bring them) the Stuffes and Calicoes for fuch as should accom-40 pany them. To the Merchants also he gaue fifteene peeces of Topseels (fitte to each) with his chop for our departure, and kind promiles; all in the ight of him which brought the Farma. The thirtieth, Master Edwards and we set forwards towards Amadauar.

The second of December, we came to Baroche: from whence the Gouernour sent a guard of Souldiers with vs to Demylode, and there had a new conuoy of fittle horse and tooc to Charmondo: whence we deported on the feuenth, with fine and twentie foolliers, all notorious theenes (as we after found) With these we went 10 c. and pitched in a plaine, where wee baracadoed our felues, as formerly we vied, with our carts; at supper time wee had beene affaulted with fiftie horse-men, which came close vpon vs, had they not found vs well prouded, the charge wee carried being certainly knowne thorow all the Countrey as we trauelled.

The eight, we came to Brodera, and gaue the Gouernour a Prefent, which he accepted kindly, but requested a further kindnesse to see our Mattiffe dogge. This Citie stands in a plaine which A Mastiffe feemed fertile, and is well watered, a thing not so common in those parts. Wee departed hence doggein rewith one hundred horse and foot, which voluntarily offered that service (in regard especially of the Kings Present, employed by the Governour) not without charge to vs, and came to Arras, Arras a Towne a Townse inhabited for the most part with Bariaus, where their superstition of not killing any otherwise, Anadeus, ang, caused vesses entertainment.

On the thirteenth, we came to Amadana. Hence we gave commission to Richard Steel, and the heit lour-Lobn Crowther for their Persian journey. And hence the second of Ianuary, Master Edwards deparail following.

All this while finding the Merchants heere, in hope of Peace with the Portugals, to inhaunce the prices of their Indico, we resolved to go to Surgues to make triall with the Countrie people, Surgues, who are the makers of it: which on the feuenth wedid, and found good employment, in foure dayes packing up four ehundred fardles; and Maiter Aldworth returning to Amadamas, found them now more tractable. Sarques is thence 3 c. distant, the Towne not bigge, but counted the best

CHAP. 126

Monuments

foile for Indico in those parts, the triall thereof chiefly by water, as at Amadauas lambro acreb by fire, all of them ready to put trickes on vs by mingling or otherwife. At Sarques are two of the most auncient Monuments in those parts; one of a chiefe Prophet there intombed, to which ma-& Pilgrimage. ny Pilgrims refort from farre; the other of their ancient Kings. To the North of the Towne is the place, where Can Canna first put the Guzerates ( the auncient inhabitants ) to flight, the reft of the Kingdome being shortly after conquered by Echar this Kings Father. This place of the victory is ilrongly walled with bricke, fome mile and halfe in circuit , planted with fruits and watered pleafantly, and a coffly house called Dictory erected, in which he resided for a time, but now in Bramport,

The foure and twentieth, we went to the Gouernour for his leave to depart, which he gran- to ted; but hearing of divers robbed and murthered that night close by the Citie, order was given that we should stay till a sufficient guard were made readie for vs. The next morning we had Letters from M. Elkington of the arrivall of the Portugal Vice-roy, with a strong force to drive vs out

The fight betwist the Eigbiband Portugals. See of it more in my Pilgrimage, 1.5.6.7. 5.4. out of the relation of diuers of the Hopes compamy at that time: as alio Captaine Downtons owne Voyage. tur & nos mu-

The Generall to procure some weakening of their strength, caused the Hope to fall downe to the Southermost fand, thinking in eager pursuit some of them would be driven aground. Prefently three of the smallest ships, and thirtie live Frigats were fent to boord her, hoping to towe her away. Thrice the enemie entred, and was thrice repulsed, and forced at last to leape ouer-boord. thinking in their Frigats to faue themselves, who received such hot discourse from the other fhips, that they could not releeve them, to that many were fwallowed by the Sea, others flaine a- 20 boord, to the number, as is reported, of three hundred at least. The Shippes which had boorded the Hope, were now (in defpaire, and out of all hope) cut from her, and feized inftantly by the two desperate, hopeleste, mercileste Elements, Fire and the Sea, recommending some bones orathes of their burnt Carkalles to the ground and thoare.

The fixe and twentieth, we departed with fortie cart-loads of Indico and other goods, and came the feuen and twentieth to Mundenas, where the Gates were shut vpon vs by Sarder Cans command, which putting vs in much doubt, we procured one to speake with the Gouernour, who told him of Letters that he had received from Mocrib Can, of our Generalls proceedings at Smally, and the fafetie of Surat by the English, wishing him by no meanes to fuffer vs to returne without a fufficient guard, which the next day should be ready for our fafe departure. The twentie ninth, we departed. At Brodera, Sarder Cans men took vp more fouldiours to affift them, many robberies and murthers beeing daily committed, and divers companies of Rashbootes lying in the way to intercept.

The fecond of February, aboue three hundred Rafhboots affaulted vs in a narrow lane, inclosed on both fides with thicke hedges, where we could not hurt them, as they did our Caffila, with their arrowes and Shot. We therefore made what hafte we could for the Plaine : meane while, they cut off two of our Coaches. But having gotten the Plane, we made a fland, where they betooke them to their hedges againe, and left vs to looke to their prey, least one thiefe might rob another. Many of our company were hurt, whereof Humphrey Elkinton for one. The next day we got to Baroche, and on the lifth to Surat, and thanked Mocrib Can for his care; and hearing of 40 an affault the Portugals would next day give vs, with his protefied love and leave went the next day to Swally, and came aboord: but the Portugals deceived our expectation.

The ninth, the poore inhabitants of Swally brought vs word of two fire-boats, to bee fent with the next Ebbe to fire our thips, which endangered more then endamaged the Hope. The night following they attempted the like with foure other chained together, which with the advantage of the Tyde, and attendance of smaller boats came, but frustrate in their successe saucto themselves, foure of their Companie taken, and their Boats burned to the Keele. The Captines confessed this the last of the Vice-royes designes for this yeare, hee beeing enforced for want of water and victualls to returne for Goa.

The Examination of Domingo Francisco, taken in Swally Roade, aboord the Gift. February 20. 1614.

HE faith, That he was borne in Lifton, beeing the sonne of a Marriner, and sensed Nuna d'Acuna in the fight against Captaine Best, in one of the source Gallions, and afterwards went for Macao vpon the borders of China, and returned agains to Goa, where hee hath remained ten Moneths, and was two Moneths fince commanded to come in a Gallion called the S. Anthonie, in this Expedition for the Port of Swally, where the eighth of this Moneth hee was taken. The Vice-roy Don Ieronimo de Sauedo, came (as this Examinate further faith) to the destruction of the English at Surat with these forces. His owne ship called the All-Saints, of eight hundred 60 Gallions fixe. Tunnes burthen, had three hundred men, and twenty eight pieces of Ordnance. Michael de Soozo Captaine of the S. Bennet of feuen hundred Tunnes, had one hundred and fiftie men, and then, men, and twenty Pecces. John Cayatho, Captaine of the S. Laurence of fixe hundred Tunnes, had one hundred and fixtie men, eighteene Peeces. Francisco Henriques Captaine of the S. Christopher, fo

and purpofe. Their Cap-

much burthen, had one hundred and fiftie nine men, and Ordnance as the former. Francisco de Marande, Captaine of the S. leronymo of fine hundred Tunnes, had one hundred and eightie men. fixteene Perces. Gafpar de Meall Captaine of the S. Anthonio of foure hundred Tunnes, had an hundred and fortie men, foureteene Peeces.

The Ship called the Hope, returneth for England.

The thips were the S. Peter of two hundred Tunnes, Captaine Francisco Causco, men one hun- Three thips, dred and fittie, Peeces eight. The S. Paul of two hundred Tunnes, Captaine Don Iohn de Mefcarena, one hundred fiftie men, eight Peeces. The Pinnaile one hundred twenty Tunnes, Captaine Andrea de Quellio, eightie men, foure Peeces. Lewes de Bruto, Captaine of one Gally, Di- Two Gallies.

10 coo de Suro, of the other, in each fiftie men. Of the Frigats there were fixtie, having twentie Frigats fouldiours a piece, and eighteene cares on a fide. The fupply which cam after, was two ships of two hundred Tunnes a piece, two India Iunkes, and eight small Boates imployed to fire vs. The Admirals Ordnance were all of Braile; of the other fine Gallions, halfe of Braile, halfe of Yron; against all which, the Almightie ( blessed be his Name ) protected vs.

The fine and twentieth, the Nabob visited the Generall both ashoare and aboord. And the Generall thought fit with confent of the reft, that I should returne with the Hope for England. The third of March, we weighed from Swally road, the next day had fight of the Portugall fleete. The fixth, we expected they would have fought, and prepared our fights; but at noone they have vp for Goa. On the eleuenth, we parted from the Generall, they bound for Achen and Bantam. we for England. On the twelfth, we held our course by the North end of the Maldinas, where 20 by experience we found many thoalds and Ilands, laid in the plats most falfly, as may feeme of purpose, that these Seas might seeme more dangerous then they are.

The fenenteenth of June, 1615, we arrived at Saldania Bay, where wee found a fleet of foure The teterhocation of laws 1, vinder the command of Captaine Keeling, which after confultation holden, and newes of the state there, departed. On the twentieth, I met with Crosse and his shor Company Companie, there left to make a diffeourry, and intreated fome of them to acquaint Coree with of condemned my comming, which by the way were fet upon by the Sausges and wounded, and thereupon perforsieton foure Muskers delivered Croffe at his request, who procured Corce to come downe with his whole thousehere, family, and effect hat some Cattell. He told of the discords amongst the Sauages, whereby the sense to the same to Mountainers sometimes robbed them. The fixe and twentieth wee departed, leaving our long Boat to Croffe, with powder, fhot, and provision.

In twenty nine degrees North, we met with a Holland ship come from the Mauritius, set forth thither to cut wood, which feemed a Baffard Ebony; where contrary to their expectation, they found the lamentable wracke of fourethips come from Bantam and the Moluccas, broken on the rockes, the goods and men of two of them lost; of the third most of the goods faued, and with part thereof this ship laden; the fourth driven to sea by a storme, returned with a jury maine mast. The Master promited vs company, but finding vs a hinderance, after tenne dayes left vs, without to much kindnesse as a farewell, or carriage of a letter, which I imputed to their inbred boorish disposition. Ill weather followed, and we were much weakened, yet I thank God without the lofte of any, till my arrivall in Ireland, thwart of the River of Limerike. The feuen and 40 twentieth of October, 1615, there also entertained with a storme, till a Scottish Barke crossed with contrary winds, was hired to pilot vs into Harbour: where also a remainder of Captaine M. his vogodly crue, which lately had obtained their pardon, put mee in feare, till Sir Henrie Foliot fecured vs with a supply of men; and I dispeeded Letters to London.

CHAP. XIII.

50 Alournall of the lourney of RICHARD STEEL and IOHN CROVETHER, from Azmere in India, the place of the Great Mogols residence, to Spahan the Royall Seat of the King of Perlia, in the affaires of the East-Indian Society. Ann. 1615. 1616.

He leuenteenth of March, 1614. after we had been detained in Azmere from Fe- March 17: bruary, M. Edwards having received a Letter from the Mogol vinto our Kingstelivered a Copy thereof together with his Letters vnto Richard Steele, and tooke Richard Still or leave, promiting to procure the Kings Firman for our fafetie and speed, and to fend Steele. it after vs to Agra, where he willed vs to flay for it. Wee went that night two courses to Mardell; we had foure servants, two horses, and a Camel. The eighteenth, to Bander fandree a small Aldea twelue course. The nineteenth, ten course to Mosebade. A course is a The twentie: h, to Pipele 13 c. The one and twentieth, to Chadfoole a Towne 7 c. The two & twen-mile and halfe, tieth, to Lalleatte 12 c. The three and twentieth to Monal Street 23 c. The town and twentieth and in iome tieth, to Lalforte, 13 c. The three and twentieth, to Mogol Serae, 12 c. The foure and twentieth, to place we Hendowne, 14 c. The flac and twentieth, to Bramobad, 12 c. The fixe and twentieth, to Feispore, miles English, Vuu 3

12c. This hath beene a faire Citie, built by Echabar, and hath within it a goodly house belonging to the King. It is walled round with a faire wall, and both within and round about, hath many spacious Gardens and places of pleasure. Now it goes to ruine, and much ground within the walls is fowne with come, the King carrying much of the fairest stone to Agrahis new

The feuen and twentieth, to Agra, 12 c. In the English house at Agra, we found one Richard Barber an Apothecary, which came ouer with Sir Robert Sherley. Hee was fent by M. Kerridge. to looke to Nichelas Withington. ziane, the place Within two dayes journey of Agra, we passed by the Country and Citie of Biana, where the of meft Indico fineft Indico is made. The best was then worth fixe and thirtie Rupias the Maun at Agra; but in 10

Pampette.

the Countrey much cheaper. The third of Aprill, perceiuing the Firman came not, and the hear of the yeare comming on, we departed, leaving order with Richard Barber to fend it after vs. We came that night to a Serae called Boutta, 6 c. The fourth, to a Towne called Multra, 14c, and lav built by great in a faire Serae : there we received the Firman. The fifth, to a Serae called Chatta, 12 c. The fixth menfaire built by Chatta, 12 c. The fixth men, tare will to a Serae built by Chan Azam, 9 c. The fewenth to a Sera built by Shee Ferreede called Purnell. dings o enter. tage troublers 11 c. The eighth, to another goodly Sera by the fame Founder, 10 c. The ninth, to Dillee a Citie, Dely or Dillee oc. which is great and ancient, in times past the Seat of the Kings, where many of them lie buried. At this time many great men haue their Gardens, and houses of pleasure there, and there are buried, whereby it is beautified with goodly buildings; the inhabitants (for the most part Banians ) poore and beggerly, by reason of the Kings long absence. The tenth, to Bunita, 10 c. The 20 eleventh to Cullumer 12 c. The twelfth, to Pampette, 12 c. a prety fmall Citie, where are made divers forts of Girdles, Shashes, and great store of linnen cloth, and they have store of handicrafts. The thirteenth, to Carnall, 12 c. The foureteenth, to Tanifera, 14 c. The fifteenth, to Shamade, 10 c. The fixteenth, to Mogoll Sera, or Gangur, 15 c. The feuenteenth, to Sinan an auncient Citie, where is made ftore of linnen, 14 c. The eighteenth, to Duratia, 15 c. The nineteenth, to Pullower, 11c. We passed this day a great River by Boat, called Sietmege, very broad, but full of shoalds, and runneth West into Si. da. The twentieth to Niconder a small Towne, 11 c. Theone and twentieth, to Sultanpoare an old Towne, having a River running to the North, and a bridge with fixe arches: here is store of linnen cleath made: foure course from it we passed another small River. The two and twentieth, to Chiarmal, 11 c. This day by Boat we passed a River as broad 30 as the Thames at Grave fend, called Vian, running Westward into Sinda: vpon the bankes whereof was pitched Chan Allom, the Kings Embaffadour into Persia, whose Campe seemed a little Citie. The three and twentieth, to Chan Channa Sera, 17 c. The foure and twentieth, to Laboure, 7.c. All the Countrey betwixt Agra and Lahore, is exceeding well tilled and manured, being the best of India, and plentifull of all things. It yeelds great store of poudred Sugar, the best being the Country, worth betwire two Rupias three quarters, and two and an halfe, the great Maund of fortie. Here all the way is fet on both fides with trees, the most of them bearing a kind of Mulbery. It is dangerous in the night for Theeues, but in the day fecure. Every five or fixe Courfe, there are Seraes built by the King or some great men, very faire for the beautifying of the way, memory of their names, and entertainment of Trauellers. In these you shall have a Chamber 40 and place to tye your Horses, also store of Horsemeat. But in many of them but little good to be had for men, by reason of the Banians. When a man hath taken vp his lodging, no other may difootfeste him.

Serate What,

In the morning about day breake, all men make readie to depart together, and then are the gates opened. Before, no man is furfered to depart for feare of Theeues. This was a tedious trauaile: for within two houres after the Sunne-rifing, wee were fearcely able to endure the Labore is a goodly great Citie, and one of the fairest and ancientest of India. It stands on the River Indus or Sinda; and from this place came the Treasure of the Portugals Trade when they had peace, as being the Centre of all Indian Traffique. And here they embarqued the fame downe 50 the River for Tatta, whence they were transported for Ormus and Persia. The Merchants also paring that way betwixt Persia and India, payd them fraight. They did likewise drive a great Trade up this River for Pepper and Spices, furnishing these parts of India therewith. At this present the Merchants of India affemble at Lahore, and inueft a great part of their monies in Commedities, and iowne themselves in Carauans to passe the Mountaines of Candabar into Perfit, by which way is generally reported to passe twelve or fourteene thousand Camels lading, Whereas heretoforefeerfly passed three thousand, the rest going by the way of Ormus. These M reliants are put to great charges betwixt Labore and Spahan, (befides great cold in Winter and state it Summer, and the badnesse of the way, spending six or seven moneths betweet those two places) they are said to reckon every Camels lading to stand them in one hundred and twentie, or one hundred and thirtie Rupias. Persia is that way furnished with Pepper and Spices from M. Julipatas over land. In Labore wee flayed from the four and twentieth of Aprill, vntill the chateenth of May, to refresh our selves and our tyred beasts, and to prouide Servants and numeliaries for the way. Wee also here procured Letters from an Embassadour of the Per-

I -here.

The thirteenth of May, we departed with intent to ouertake a Carauan which was gone two moneths before, and went that day to Chack under a small Towne 11 c. The fourteentn, to Nonferae, 15 c. The fifteenth, to Mutteray, 8 c. The fixteenth, to Quemal Chan, 19 c. The feuenteenth, to Herpae, 16 c. The eighteenth, to Alicafuna, 12 c. The nineteenth, to Trumba, 12 c. This day we ouertooke a small Carauan which went from Labor eight dayes before vs. The twentieth, to Sedonfehall, 14 c. The one and twentieth, to Callineckehands, 15 c. The two and twentieth, to Multan, 12 c. This is a great and ancient Citie. Within three Course of it Indus runneth. It yeeldeth white Linnen and Diaper. All Carauans are conftrayned to flay at this River eight, ten, or twelve dayes before they can get leave of the Governour to passe, to the 10 end that the Citie being poore may get some-what. We were stayed fine dayes, and then were faine to make way with a Present.

Снар. 13.

The eight and twentieth, we passed the River and went to Pettoallee a finall Village 20 c. The nine and twentieth, we passed another great River by Boate, and the same night came to a small River called Lacca, where we found the Caravan aforefaid: we presented the Caravan Basha with a Looking-glasse and Knise, who wished vs to pitch our Tent neere to his, that wee might have no wrong offered vs. The Carauan had beene heere ten dayes, and stayed till the second of June, to procure a Conuoy of Horsemen to conduct them to Chatcana small Fort in the Mountaines, having heard of the Mountainers injury to a former Caravan.

The second of Iune, we dislodged and entred that night into the Mountaines 12 c. where wee 20 were diffressed for want of fresh water, the water being brackssh. The third and fourth, we trauelled all night climbing high Mountaines, and following water Courses with divers windings twelve Course, but in direct Line not above fixe. The fits, we followed the Course of a River ful of great Pebles 8c. The fixth we rested. The seventh, we went 4c. still crossing the land River. The eight, 8 c. The ninth, twelve. The tenth, three, and came to Chateza, which is a little Fort, chateza the wals built of mud, enclosed with a Ditch, where the Mogoli maintayneth eightie, or one hundred Horsemen to secure the way from Theenes. But they themselues are as very Theenes asany, where they find opportunitie.

The Captain of the Cattle exacted upon enery Camel of the Carauan two Abacees, although nothing be due by reason, he & his have wages of the King. In all this way betwixt Lacca & Chat-30 eza, we found not any fustenance for man or beast, except in some places a little graffe: & therfore we were constrained at Lacca to make proussion, hyring an Oxe for that purpose to carrie Barley for our Horses. The Aguans (so they call the Mountaine-people) came downe to vs enery day where we lodged, rather to espy what they could steale, then to buy, as they presended.

The twelth, in the evening having made provision for three dayes, we went thence 14 s. that night. The thirteenth, 10 c. The fourteenth, 10 c. This day the people came downe to vs and brought sheepe, Goates, Meale, Butter and Barley in great abun iance, sufficient for our selues and our Cattle, at reasonable prices. And from this place forwards the people daily did the like, fometimes also bringing Felts and course Carpets streped. The fifteenth, we went 6c. The fixteenth, 4c. The seu-nteenth, tenne. The eighteenth, 9c. The nineteenth, 9c. to a little 40 Towne of the Agmans, called Duckee, where the Mogore maintayneth a Garrison, with a little square Fort, the wals built of mula good height, dillant a mile from the Towne. Heere wee stayed three dayes, because the Caranan could not agree with the Captaine of the Castle, who pretended a dutie on every Camell : which at last they payd, one Abacee and a halfe on each. The three and twentieth, we went 6 c. The foure and twentieth, wee past by a place called Secota, or three Castles, because of three Villages triangle-wise scituate on the side of a hill neere together.

Wee went 8 c. The fine and twentieth, wee rested by reason of soule weather. The sixe and twentieth, 10c. The feuen and twentieth, 14c. This day wee paffed the Durues, or Gates of Durues of the Mountaines, being narrow straits, having Rockes on both fides very high, whence with straits of the stones a few may stop the passage of a multitude and divers Caravans have beene in these pla- bils. so ces cut off. This night where we lodged we suffered divers infolencies from the Agwans, and on the morrow they exacted of vs as wee palled by a small Village called Coasta, two Acacees and a halfe on each Camell. The eight and twentieth, 5 c. The nine and twentieth, by Abdun a Village 8 c. The thirtieth, 6 c.

The first of July, 7 c. to a place called Pesinga, a small Fort much like vnto Duckee, where are Pesinga, flore of Souldiers for fecuring the way. The Captaine exacted halfe an Abacee vpon a Camell, The third we left the Caravan and went forwards 6 c. The fourth , wee past a mightie Mountaine, and descended into the Plaines 14 c. The fifth, 20 c. we were distressed for want of graine for our Cartell. The fixth, in the like diffresse for them and our selves, 12 c. The seventh, to 60 Thele Mountaines of Candahar, are inhabited by a fierce people called Agmans or Potans, very candahar, the ftrong of bodie, somewhat whiter then the Indians, great Robbers, accustomed to cut of whole Mantagnes. Carauans. But at prefent partly for feare of the Mogoll, and partly through sweet found by commerce (in venting their graine, theepe and Goats, of which they have great flore, and buying of course Linnen and other necessaries) they are become more civill. Yet if they can take any stragling by themselves or staying behind, they will sell them about in the Mountaines, and hove them to precent running away, and put them to grind graine with Hand-mils, and other femile drudgeric.

The Citie.

The Citie of Candabar is ancient, the Inhabitants anciently Banians : there now refideth the Gouernour of the Countrey, and a Garrison maintayned by the Mogoll, of twelve or fifteene thouland Fierlemen, in regard of the Persians neighborhood to the North. And West-ward it is enuroned with a mightie, freepe, craggie Rocke; and to the South and to the East with a frong wall. By reason of frequent passage of Caramans it is much enlarged lately, that the Suburbs are bigger then the Citie. For within this two years, that the way of Ormus is stopped up by the wars betwirt the Persians and Portugals, all Caranans which posse betwirt India and Persia, must 10 of necesi tiegoe by this place. And here they doe hire Camels to go into India, and at their returne for Perfis. They cannot return e also without the Gouernours leave, which causeth them to flav a moneth, and when least, fixteene or twentie dayes: whereby it is much inhabited with least people, as all fuch places of refort commonly are. Prouision of victuals is there in great abundance for man and beaft, yet deare by fo great concourfe. Trade it yeelds not of it felfe, but accidentally by the meeting of Indian, Persian and Turkie Merchants, which are not willing to trauell further at twentie per Cento profit. At this place the Carauans which goe to India, do joyne for greater firength in paffing the Mountaines of Candahar : and those which come from thence heere breake into imaller Companies: for in many places greater would not find prouision.

For all Persia, especially between this and Spahan, is barren, where sometime in two or three 20 the borders of dayes trauell, there is no greene thing to be feene; only fome water, and that also often brackish. the Megalland flinking and naught. Wee flayed here toureteene dayes, partly to refresh our bodies weakened with heate and trasaile (John Crowther being to weake that hee feared hee should not bee able to trauell further) and partly for company.

The three and twentieth of July, wee departed Candahar in company of three Armenians. and a doozen Perfian Merchants, and went 10 c. to a Village called Seriabe. The four and twentieth, 12 c.to Deabage a small Dea or Village. The fine and twentieth, Sc. to Cuspecunna 2 small Castle, where the Mozor hath a Garison in the vemost confines of his Dominions. The fixe and twentieth, 17 c. and lay by a Rivers fide in the open fields. The feuen and twentieth, 4 c. to a Castle called Greece the nist of the King of Persias. Here we delivered the Embassa- 20 dours Letter received at Labore, to the Governour, and prefented him with a Looking-glasse and three Kniues. He would take nothing of vs for our Camels, whereas others paid fine Abacees upon a Camell. He promifed to fafe-conduct vs, and to fend a company of Horfe to carrie vs to the next Government. But we faw none, neither were we forrie for it : for that hee is little better then a Rebell, and all his people Theeues. The eight and twentieth, at night wee deparrafinge of 60, ted and lodged neere vinto a Dea cailed Malgee; two farlings. Euery farling is two Indian Courfes and a halfe. The nine and twentieth, ten farlings, and lodged in the open fields, where was nothing to be had but water. The thirtie h, five farlings to Gazichan a small Callle. The one and thirrieth, fine fartings to an olderwined Fort, where was nothing to bee had but water, and that

The Persians

The first of August, fine farsings to an old Fort called De Laram, where weep aid an Abacee and halfe on a Camell, and frayed one day to refresh our cattell, which is called making of Mochosee. The third, to Bucon, an old Cattle, feuen farlings. The fourth, in the open fields, nothing but water, foure farlings. The nith, foure farlings. The fixth to Farra fine farlings: This is a little Towns willed with a high wall of brickes about, dried in the Sunne (as are all the Castles, and most of the buildings of those parts) foure square, a mile about; having a pretty Bazar vaulted ouer-head to keepe from raine, wherein all necessare fold. It stands in a good soile, and hath plenty of water, without which in this Countrey nothing is to be had : and it is ilrange to ice, where there is any good fpot of ground (which is heere but little) with what labour and incu-

Farra. Sun-áryed

> ftry they bring water to it, in some places three or foure miles together by trenches winder ground. 50 At this Towne all Merchants which go into Perfia, are forced to flay feuen, or eight, or ten daies together, where the Kings Treasurer feeth the weight of all their packes, and eleemes themat fo much the Maune, as he thinkes fit, and takes three per cento custome. At their comming into Perfia, they are vied with great fanour: for they feare left complaints should be made to the King, which will have Merchants kindly entreated.

But at their going into India they vie all extremitie, fearthing them to the skinne for gold, which to transport, or any coyne of filter out of Perfia, but the Kings, is death. Likewife they looke parrowly for horfes and flaues, which the King will not have transported. Heere we flayed two dayes for certaine Armenians, with whom we went, leaning our former company. The ninth, one faring to a Riust The tenth, in the open fields, feuen farings. The 60 eleuenth, foure farlings to a finall Village, where we had flore of prouision. The twelfth, foure farfings, where we digged for witer. The thirteenth, eight farlings. The fourteenth, to Draw, 2 Village, fine fartings, where we flayed a day, which is the custome once in foure dayes, for such as travell with Liden Camels, to reft. The fixteenth, three farings. The fenenteenth, to are far-fings. The eighteenth, to Zaidebasha, fine farlings, where are good flore of Carpets to be bought. The nineteenth, to Mude a Village, where are also Carpets. The twentieth, to Birchen, fine farfings, where are store of fine Felt, Carpets of Camels haire, made, from two to fine Abacees the Maune, heere we stayed a day. The two and twentieth, to Deazaide, where they pretend all to be religious, and have store of Carpets to fell at cheape rates. The three and twentieth, three farfings. The foure and twentieth, fine farfings to Choore, an old ruined towne. The fine and twentieth, three farlings. The fix and twentieth, feuen farlings, the water brackish and stinking. The senen and twentieth, to Debuge, where is a prettie streame of hot water, which being put into any veffell, becomes coole and health-fome. The eight and twentieth, feuen farfings to Dea Curto ms. The nine and twentieth, to Tobaz free farings, we payed halfe an Abacee a Camell. At To- Toba baz all Caravans doe rest at least foure or five dayes, the better to be able to passe the falt Desert Salt Desert.

CHAP. 13. The English after long and tedious travell arrive in Persia.

adioyning, being foure long dayes journey, wherein many miscary. We found there a small Carauan of one hundred Camels, which went the next day. Heere, and in the former Village, are flore of Dates, and three thousand Maune yearely of the finest Silke in Persia, which is carried to Tades, a faire Citie, where they have the like, and is made into Taffatas, Sattens and Damaskes, Yades, The King will not fuffer it to be transported, especially into Turkie, but the Portugalls carried it into Portugall. Tades is about twelue dayes journey from Spahan, and twelue farfings out of the way of India. The thirtieth, we went nine farlings over the Defert, lay in the fields, and fent our beafts three miles out of the way for water, it being exceeding falt. The one and thirtieth, ten 10 farfings, where the water was not all io brackish.

The first of September, fine farfings, where we went two miles for water. The second, to a small Castle nine fartings, little prouision. The third, fine fartings, lay in the fields, sent farre for water. The fourth, to Seagan ten farlings. The fifth, foure farlings. The fixt, to Irabad, a Caffle, ten farlings, where we payed halfe an Abacee on a Camell. The feuenth, fix farlings. The eight, to Ardecan eight farlings, where we stayed till the tenth. Then went to Sellef foure farlings. The eleuenth, to Agea Gaurume, a small Castle, three farlings. The twelfth, nine farlings to a spring in the fields. The thirteenth, to Beauas three farlings. The fourteenth, to Goolabad foure farlings. from whence Richard Steele rode before to Spahan. The fifteenth, to Morea Shauade fine farlings. The fixteenth, to Coops five farfings. The fewenteenth, to Dea Sabs five farfings. The eighteenth, 30 foure farfings, and lay in the fields. The nineteenth, three farfings, and came to Spahan. Richard Steele reached thither the fitteenth at noone, and found Sir Robert Sherley dispatched from the Persian King, in Embailage to the King of Spaine, with him his Lady, and for his Chaplaine, a Frier of the Bare-foot Order, with fine and fiftie Portugall prisoners, and his owne followers, both Persians and Armenians, speeding for Ormus, to imbarke for Lisbon. The purpose is, that seeing the Portugalls are not able to stand, the Spaniards may be brought in, fix Friers remaining in hollage till his returne, at Spahan, whom otherwise the King hath vowed to cut in pieces; which he is likely enough to doe, who hath done to death his owne fonne, and committed a thousand other feuerities. Richard Steele deliucred his Letters to Sir Robert, who durit fearfely reade them, but now and then by stealth, fearing the Portugalls should know of them. Hee after faid it was Of Sir Robert too late to look after that bulinefle for our Nation, and feemed diffeontent with the company, and Steeley his lanthe Malter and Merchants which landed him. But at last faid he was an Englishman, and promi-ding, reade fed to effect our defires, and (the Friers being ablent) caried both on the nineteeth to the Mafter

Potent first of the Ceremonies or Manual decorate out took to which him to the Green Walk Const. Conf. The Yoyage; and Yoyage; and of the Ceremonies or Maimondare, and took vs with him to the Great Visier, Sarek Hogea, who of the rest of prefently called his Scriuans, & made draughts of what we defired viz, three Formans, one which his lourney, bis John (rowther hath for Surat, one for Richard Steele, to carry into England; the third fent to Laf. fecond. ques, to the Gouernour. All are sealed with the Kings great Seale, and to this effect, That all Gouernours of Sea-ports within his Maiesties Dominions, shall kindly entertaine the English shipping, &c. The same day that these Firmans were ended, departed Sir Robert Sherley, being the last of September, towards Siras, with great pompe and much honour, &c.

Your Worships at Command,

RICHARD STRELE

Your Worships fernant ener to be Commended

IOHN CROWTHER.

The chiefe Commodities of Persia are Raw-filke, of which it yeelds, according to the Kings Commodities 60 bookes, yearely feuen thousand and feuen hundred Batmans. Rubarb growes in Corasian, where of Persa Worme-feed growes also: Carpets of all forts, Silke and Gold, Silke and Silter, halte Silke halte Cotton, &c. Their moneyes in Persia of Silver, are the Abacee, the Mahomedee, Shahee and Biftee: the reft of Copper, like the Tangas and Pifos of India. The Abacce weigheth two Their Mo-Meticails; the Mahomedee is halfe an Abacee; the Shahee halfe a Mahomedee! in the Rull of neyes.

eight are thirteene Shahees. In a Shahee are two Biftees and a halfe, or ten Casbegs. One Bif. tee is foure Casbegs or two Tangs. The weights differ in divers places: two Mahans of Tank make one of Spahan, and likewise the Batman. The measure of Silkes, &c. is the same with the Pike of Aleppo, which we judge feuen and twenty inches. John Crowther returned into India. Richard Steele to England by the way of Turkie. From

Richard Steeles iourney by

Spahan the second of December, five farfings to a Sarail. The third, eight farfings to another Sa. rail. The fourth, to a Village fixe farlings. The fifth, to Dreag feuen farlings. The fixt, to a Sa-Frida and Tor- rail leuen farfings. The feuenth, to Golphan eight farings. The eight, to Gerrous feuen farings.
The ninth, to Showget feuen farings. The centh, to Saro fix farfings. The eleuenth, to Diffabrd The minth, to soower teachianings.

The twelfth, two Manfields to a faire Towne Toffarkhan, twelur farfings, and rested that day, because of the deepe Snow. The fifteenth, to Kindanor fix f rings. The fixteenth. to Sano eight farlings. The feuenteenth, to Shar Nuone, where I was staye by the Daiga, but shewing Letters from the Vizier, hee bade me depart in the name of God and Alle. The eighteenth, passed by a bridge, where all men are to give account what they are, and pay two Sha. hees a Camell. The nineteenth, to Kaffamkhan, the last of the Persian Gouer ments, and gaue a Present to the Gouernour for a guard against the Turke-men: which hee not onely did, but gaue mee licence to feed on his Villages without paying, which yet I would not. The one and twentieth, I began my journey ouer the high mountaines, which part the two Countries, being dangerous, and the two and twentieth arrived at a Village, eight far. ags. The three and twentieth, feuen farfings, lay vnder a rocke. The foure and twentieth, to Mando, a 20 Towne under the Turkes, eight fartings. The fire and twentieth, to Emomester eight tartings. The fixe and twentieth, to Borob, paffed ouer a River by Boat, and that night arrived at bagdat, eight farrings, where I was fearched and examined for letters, which I had hid under my famile, whither one also was prying, but by a figne which I made, gaue ouer, and fellowed mee to my lodging for his expected reward. I escaped better then an clu Spaniard, which a fortnight before was impresoned and chained in the Castle, his letters read by a Malteza Renegado. I met with a Portugall which arrived heere (from Goa and Ormus) two daies before mee. The Basha made vs flav heere twenty dayes, to flav for a Sabandar of his.

The fixteenth of Ianuary, we passed Tygris, and lay on the Defert fide. The f-uenteenth, we went fine Agatza (leagues or farings) the eighteenth, met with Euphraies at Tinique, where Merchants difembarcke for Bagdat, or (after fine per Cento custome pand) pesse the Tigris for the Persian Gulfe. And after a tedious passage, partly by the River, partly by Deferts, partly by Sea, the fifteenth of Aprill 1616. he arrived at Marfiles, and the tenth of May at Doner, &c.

Your Worships to command in all obedience,

RICHARD STRELS

The Copie of the King of Persias Firman, Translated out of the Perlian.

Franke a name giuen in the Eaft to all Wefterne Chriftiens, fince the to the Holy Land the French being chiefe therein, and a French Councell at cause thereof

* The lournall

Authorsname,

Lu: I find him

thus named by

Captaine Par-

ten, as Chiefe

Soldania in thir y three degrees, frie

had not the

FORMAN or Command given unto all our Subjects, from the greatest, unto what degree seven, who the Sout-basha or Constable of our Country, to kindly receive and enter: aim the English Franks or Nation, at what time any of their ships or shipping shall arrive at lasques, or any other of the Ports in our Kingdome: to condust them and their Merchandize to what place or places they themselves diffre: Expedition in- and that you shall see them safely defended about our Coasts, from any other Frank or Franks what source Thus I will and command you fo to doe, as you shall answere to the contrary. Given at our Royall Citie, the twelfih of this Mon Ramalian (October) in the yeare of Our Tareag 1024. A.D. 1615.

CHAP. XIIII.

Memorials of a Voyage, wherein were employed three shippes, the Samaritan, Thomas and Thomasine 1614. written by * IOHN MILWARD Merchant, who went in the Thomas.

He tenth of May 1614. we anchored at Gore-end. The third of October in the Bay of Soldania, where we bought one hundred and fortie sheep, and ten Oxen, and more might haue done. There people are most miserable, destitute of Reli- 60 gion in any kind, fo farre as we can perceiue, and of all civility; their ipeech a chattering rather then language; naked, faue a short cloake of skinne on their shoulders, and a Fox-skinne before their prinities : haue but one stone, natural-minuter South. If or ceremoniously I know not; eate that which dogges would hardly digeft. They demanded vnreatonally for their Cattell, which we thought proceeded from Cories, who had been in England, and (as we suppose) acquainted them with our little esteeme of Yron and Copper, asking peices as big as their cloakes, and had for their Cattell Skillets, Basons, and Scummers. One seemed to be chiefe, whom the Generall kindly entertained in his Tent, and wee after that bought more freely. Their Sheep like our Goats, with fmall hornes, their Oxen larger then ours, the fielh white like our Muttons, the fat yellow as the yoalke of an egge, wille, and of one flone mott of them like themselves. October is with them, as Aprill with vs, the weather temperate, but hot and parching at noone, the aire wholesome, our men presently recovering, some despentely ticke, they of the Scuruy ving a red Berry as big as a Goode-berry.

The twentieth of December, the Generall caused the Masters and Masters-mates to come aboard, hippoling that we were that one hundred and fittie leagues more then reckoning to the this Voyage East, in eighteene degrees fortie minutes. The nine and twentieth, we discryed land, but knew was so but not well in what height we were, resolued that it was Iana, but knew not what part of it, sup- with wei, that posed it the South-fide, and that we were fallen on it by keeping too Easterly a course. And I couldnot in though the plats make it to lie betwixt cleuen and twelue degrees, and our latitude, at that time, readit, and was but eight degrees forty minutes; yet it is questionable whether it hath been discourred. But therefore have how soeuer, or where soeuer we were, it is certaine that we were fallen to Lee-ward of the straits delinered it of Sunds, by two or three degrees, and into the North-west Montons, which blow thereabouts more imperfrom September to the laft of March. All the Mafters were of opinion, to goe backe into thir-10 teene or foureteene degrees South-ward, to fetch the South-east wind, which is a trade wind benowhere they tweene twentie eight and cleuen degrees, and io to shape our course more Northerly. Others are were of opinion, to goe round about the Hand, and to fetch Bantam, as certaine Dutch-men had Trade wind. done heretofore on like occasion, and accomplished it in fixe weekes space. But the first opinion tooke place. The land hereabouts is very high, and neere the fea full of great Trees, the airc noyfome by flinke from the shoare, subject to much lightning, thunder, and raine, with sudden guits.

The next day noone, we had a good observation in the lavitude of eight degrees thirty five minutes. The Generall was refolued to heat vp and downe, to fee if we could get any thing to the niller accused. West: he charged M. Wessen for author of the error; betwixt whom also and the Captaine, pasfed both words and blowes, which the Generall reduced into amitie the eleventh of Ianuary. On lose of the 30 the eighteenth, we had land in feuen degrees tenne minutes, being by likelihood not farre West To masses merfrom our first land, notwithstanding that we had runne from it by our course neere one hundred Strong Curleagues to the West, by reason of a violent current to the East.

The Land to the fea is low and levell, within high mountaines: wee anchored at the entry of the Bay, where we found calmes, the Current fetting itrong East South-east, that in a calme it would carry a ship foure leagues a watch. There is store of Wood, and Water from the Rocks, but brackish. We found neere to the shoare continuall calme, (the wind still blowing two or three leagues off at Sea ) be it never to great a storme. In this place, which I may well call In- Infreed Beri forced Bay, we saw no people, the shoare very thicke of Wood, Cocos, Palmes, and a hundred oher kinds of trees, some growing in a number of rootes, * which descend from the toppe of the *Indian fatters

40 branches, which are fortie or fittie foot high, and take root againe, fo that the Tree sheweth like or other a Woodstacke. I suppose that neuer Christian had been there, nor will againe, if he can auoide is, which Co oit: yet the Generall in one of the trees let vp his name and armes. We were not pash two leagues to be the tree from our anchoring place, from whence we had feant wind enough to bring vs, but there releif of Alarring. great a gust of wind and raine, that we were forced to take in all our top-failes, and firike our Seemy Por. maine faile.

On the three and twentieth, after much confultation and subscription for the Generalls discharge, we bore in with the land, and anchored in a Bay which I may terme Voluntary, where Voluntary Bay. we found a Dutch-man at anchor, whom we had formerly met at Seftor. The next day we went ashoare, and found a Towne and people, not blacke, but tawney, their houses built of Canes, so cloathed some from the Waste, other wholly; they respected nothing that wee had, nor afficarded vs any thing to speake of; their weapons pikes and crystes. The Dutch-man named this place Middleton Bay: it is a good Harbour, hath a River and an Hand, and heth some fittle leagues to Middleton Ear. the East of the North end of Iana, as the Dutch-man informed vs, who coasted it all along. It is in feuen degrees thatte fine minutes.

The second of February, we were in tenne degrees twelue minutes. We saw the next day a small Hand, fortie leagues to the South of lana major, in tenne degrees, about fine leagues broad, An Hand: eight long. The fourth at Sun-letting, we had three degrees tenne minutes to the Weil variation. It is an intallible rule, that from the Cape of Good Hope to land, the variation increaleth Rule of variato the West, the further East we runne, till it come to about seuenteene degrees, and then as we trong

60 runne to the East decreaseth, till we come to the straights of Sunda, where it is three degrees and a halfe variation, and is holden the best guide for Easting and Westing, though not observing exact proportion. On the fifth, we had nine degrees fixteen minutes, and three degrees forty eight minutes variation West. The declination of the Crossers istwenty eight degrees and a halte. On the thirteenth, we were in the straights of Sunda, having on our Larboard Sumaira, and Lana on our Starboard. The fouretzenth at night, we anchored within three leagues of Bantam Road. The next morning came to vs, M. Baily Merchant, and M. Samon Mafter of the Globe, who told vs that the Globe was then laden for England, and that the Trades-increase beeing brought on ground on Pulo peniobn, all her men died in the carcening of her; and afterwards it stood them in the hundred syalls of eight a day to hire langus, of whom fine hundred died in the worke, before they could sheath one side; so that they could hire no more men, and therefore were inforced to leaue her imperfect, where thee was funke in the Sea, and after let on fire by the Jauans. The Chirefer also reported, that the Deuill appeared on Pulo peniobn Hand, fignifying his offence, that the Chinefes would vindertake such a businesse on his ground, and give him nothing (for they were the workemen) whereupon one of the chiefe Chinese Carpenters came to Sir Heary Middleton, and 10 reported it, defiring to have a Buffolo tor facrince, who denyed, yea forbad him when hee would have done it at his owne charge, efterning the want thereof cause of their cuills.

Bantam. The Tradicin-

Losse of the Trade: Deuils Ambition. King of Achens Nauie, LIB. IIII.

The Globe departed from Bantam the one and twentieth of February. The foure and twentieth, the Thomsfine departed for the Molluccas, M. Baily Cape Merchant, and M. Wilson Mafter. Our Generall fent word to the King of Bantam, that the Spaniards would intade him, and take away his Towne; who answered, that if all the Cassars (so they call all not Mahumetans) in the world should come against him, he had a god that would defend him.

*Where is the

No trade without the King of Athens L tier g cat wind. dehen.

The foureteenth of March, we departed in the Thomas for the Coast of Sumatra. The twelfth of May, we arrived at Prinners, but were denied trade. The next day, we rode to Tecoo, along b. the Sca-file, which I thinke in this place, hath the greatest source of any in the world, occa-20 fione by the many thoales and breaches on this coast, whereby the dangers of failing are vnat riamound knowne. On the fenenteenth, we weighed for Achen, where the twentieth of lune we arrived. On all this coast when there is no raine, although it bee calme, the Sea goeth very high; and in Smooth feath tame though the wind blow much, the Sea is smooth. The King fent vs his Chop. On the eight and twentieth, he fent an Elephant to carry the Kings Letter in State. We carried for a Prefent, a great piece of Ordnaace, with the carriages, twenty Bullets, a Ladle, Skowrer, and two barrels of Powder, twelue fowling preces, tenne Swords, fixe fine Baftas, all wrapped in the Kings colours. He fate in great Sate with the King of lor, and gaue to my felfe, M. Nicols, and M. Tate three Vefts (contrary to his cultome) and was very merry.

The Kines Womanand Pompe.

The second of July, he came by the waters fide vpon an Elephant in great flate, with diners 20 Elephants before him, and twelue other Elephants having Callles (as they tearmethem) on their backs, fell of his Women, having multitudes of Women and Eunuches attending, all other people being beaten out of the way, and not daring to be feen; our felues having our house neere the Waters aide, were commanded to flut our doores and windowes. The Sabandar by a Parable taught we to know him, telling vs, That if a man will fow a piece of Cloth, let the Needle go through, and the thred will follow of it felfe; infinuating that a Bribe must wiher our designes. The King of-Figure at de fered vs to fettle a Factory here, paying cultome as other Nations did, which was feuen in the hundred, and we accepted it, whereat the Dutch were angry.

Death by di-

The fixth, the Hell or let faile for Teco, having loft at Achen twenty fixe men, principally occasioned by diffemper in Aracke houses. The eleventh, the Captaine of the Dutch house prote- 40 ifted he had not a Maie to buy victualls, and befides was indebted; whereupon I lent him feuenty fled he had not a Maie to only victuans, and counces was more to the place bale, I refuled to full but taile of Geld, to be paid at Bantam. Perceiving the Gold of this place bale, I refuled to full but for Silver. On the fixteenth, we went to the Court ( without a Prefent, prefence is not tolerated there) to fee a Cock-fighting, but the King spake nothing of any businesse, and except he begivine, no man elfe may. They next day, I attended all day in vaine, whiles he was foliating himfelfe with his Women. On the eighteenth, his Gallies came from Malacca. On the nineteenth, King of Abons he fent them for Peder, and fo for Malacca. Twelve of them were very faire, with twenty eight and thirtie oares on a fide. The Admirall had a Turret built in the Poope, couered with Mailie plate of Gold, and curiously wrought. It is reported, that in each of his great Gallies he would carry one thousand men, and in his fleet (beeing three hundred great and little ) one hundred thou- so find. He forced a Guzerate Iunke of four hundred Tannes, with the Commander, to goe with him: yet it was though; he meant not to goe himfelie, but gaue it out to further his bufineffe; an i that Orencey Maraga should be Generall, a man whom he most feareth, as of auncient Nobilitie, a good Souldiour, and popular, yet circumfpect. The King beeing going, word was brought that for the reft of his debt, I must take pepper at eight tayle the Bahar, which I refuled; yet was it weighed, choose whether I would take it, or nothing. Orencay Laxaman demanded for better conditions, a Cable, Anchor, great piece, barrell of powder, twentie shot; and for himfelte fixty tayles of Gold, for other Others thirtie: to thould we fettle at Teco, and Priaman for two yeares. At length, for so much Gold, and twentie taile more, he undertooke to procure our difpatch, but at laif the other also were demaunded.

On the thirtieth, came in two Dutch thips from Masulparan, the Admirall the White Lyon, Dutch sin Chel. Wherein was the Vifador and the Ragufa. The Vifador fent the King a great peece, with other things for a Prefent, which were rejected as of too little value. They demanded St. Isaac, Captaine of the Datch house at Achen, as indebted to the Company, whom the King had sp-pointed for Malacca, and held as his flave, and faid, That if the Durch tooke him, they found haue no trade in his Countrey. He demanded one of their ships with him to Malucor, alleadging an ancient promife of fich a kindnesse by a former Embassadour some twentie yeares agoe, but they excused, and he said, They were an vinit Nation, and denied them his Chiop, that they might not goe on thouse for feuen or eight dayes, to much as to fill water and three or foure dais s after, they turned their Admirall alhoare, and gaue her to the King, willing to give him content, and withall to avoid that desperate Voyage.

I the feuenteenth of August, the Thomas let faile from Achen. The twentie minth of September, Currentee. we had a Spout. At our first comming from Achen, we frood or to the West, for audiding of rocks 10 and shoules about fixtie leagues, wherein being deceited in the Current; we were off one hundred and fittle leagues, whereby we brought our felues open to the Bay of Bengala, and so into a strong Current, which kept vs very long from our Port. The seuen and twentieth of October, we anchored in Teco road, and the next day prefented the King of Achens letters for two yeeres Facto- Tec. rv. The thirteenth of Nouember, the Thomas departed for Bantam, I, George Piborne, John Perce, and my man Peter flaying. We had much adoe with their rude people, but bare our felius shiftely on the King of Achens Letters. The minth of May, 1616. a man of Achen being resuled by a Woman, did beat her, and thereupon grew a great aproare; for the Tecoans having fined him Harredbe. at foure Tailes, he denyed to pay any, and the next day an hundred men came to take him, but twist the Teesall the Acheners toyning, they were repulfed, one flaine, and fixe hurtland they beeing two hun-20 dred, fortified the neather Towne, intending to fland it out to the vemoft, affirming that if they should suffer themselves to be over-borne by the Country people, the King of Achen would cut of their legs. The King by this policie ( his Officers being all Acheners which will fuffer no aabuse) holding them in awe. But the matter was ended, Lose Gee the Achener paying a summe of Money. Three moneths before this time the small pockes were rifeliere, whereof many died. Vaholome-This moneth alto was very unholesome and faint, many dying with a swelling; our felues were nesseof Terror. ficke round about the house.

The eleventh of Iune, arrived the Expedition at Prizman. The second of July, there was a Malem that loft both his hands for flealing, who in the execution was not feene once to flirre. The thirteenth, Captaine Payton lent me word, that he feared his men would mutiny, and runne a- Knot of knaues

30 way with the ship, as they had formerly attempted at Bastam, and therefore defired me to receiue some of them ashoare, so to disperse their knot. The fixe and twentieth, the Dragon and Peppercorne anchored at the Offing, Captaine Will. Keeling Generall in the Dragon, and Captaine Harris in the other. They had been with the King, who had graunted them trade at Teco for two yeares, after which time he would have no Nation to trade but at Achen. Hee left M. Nichols principall at Achen.

The eight and twentieth of August, arrived Addicke Raia Pongols Corcon from Achen, who had the Kings goods to fell, and power to receive all the Kings customes past and to come. Hee came in nature of an Informer, and therefore all men flood in feare of him. The first of September began their Ramdam, at the first of fight of the new Moone; all the Moneth following, they cate Ramdam or 40 nothing but in the night, and that temperately. The fifteenth, wee begunne to buy Pepper, but Lent. were forced to promife Addicke Rais one hundred Royals, before we could have any trade. The were forced to promise **constant one minutes to propagation of the propagation of the waight, whereup on Rata took et away to examine it, whereat next day I excepted against the waight, whereat the propagation of the prop the Polimo was much atrait, having in that kind much abufed our Nation. The Pongelo came to Officers by the English house to reforme the weights, but beeing prefently to weigh, gaue vs a weight leffe corrustion then that we had. The next day, I fent him fiftie Ryals for a Present, which he returned, saying, onely to be a-He formed to be fed like a Boy. The one and twentieth, Captaine Harris being ashoare, teemed manled. to take so much upon him, that Raia Addick fent to him to borrow three hundred Rialls of eight to buy him a Wench, and preft the matter to inflantly, that I was forced afterward to fend him an

50 The third of October, I spoke at his instance also vnto Captaine Harris, to spare his Carpenters two or three dates to mend his Prow, which he refuted to doe. The fixth, came the Speedwell fent by the Generall from Bantam, in the charge of John Clare, Botefivaine of the Hellor, funke at Bantam in the Carining, Newes of fue thips from England, foure for Sunat, & the Sman Hellor funke? for Bantam. The Thomas gone for Iapan, the Concord for Socodania, the Attendant for Iamber from Maccaffer alto, that the Spaniards are there bound for the Molnecas, twenty feuen faile of Stanff fleet Ships, Gallies, and Friga's, that we doubted much their comming to Bantam. On the foureteenth, arrived a Lina limke with five Hollanders, which had been cast away in the Lolin, five degrees South, and defired our relecte. We graunted them the Speedwell to goe to the Hand Engar Duchreleevel. no, where they had laid their goods and money afficare, whether they fet faile on the three and

The people complaine, that when they fell their Pepper to the King, they loofe a fourth part, by reason they take so much more then when they dealt with the English. Relique desiderantur.

Xxx

CHAP.

CHAP. XV.

The second Voyage of Captaine WALTER PETTON into the East-Indies, in the Expedition, which was set forth by the East-India Company, together with the Dragon, Lyon, and Pepper-Come, in January 1 6 1 4. gathered out of his large Journall.

Occurents at Soldania, Mohelia, Socotora, Surat, with divers other Intelligences.

Sir T. Roe.

Anuary the foure and twentieth, 1614. wee fet faile from Granefend. The fecond of February, Sir Thomas Roe Embaffalour from his Maiefte to the Great Mo- 20 goll, repayred abourd the Lyon with fifteene followers. And Mafter Humpherer Boughton abourd the Pepper-corne, (recommended to the Company by his Maieflie) to passe into India. Wee carryed with vs in the Fleete eleuen Japonezas brought into England by the Clone, divided proportionably among it the shippes:

Japaneres Guze- Newaste, to be left for discourse of visknowne places, the Company having obtayined the Kings demned per-

Pardon for them to this purpofe. On the twentieth, some of the Dragons men, the Newgate-Birds amongst, attempted to run away with their Pinnaile, which then was preuented. But one of those condemned with two of the Pepper-cornes company carryed away her Pinnasie next night; two of my ships company 30 having conspired to carrie away the Boate, but were discourred. The three and twentieth, wee fet faile out of the Downes.

Lkewife fourteene Guzera's brought by the Dragon: also mineteene condemned persons out of

On the fixe of March, loft fight of the Lizard. And on the fixe and twentieth, had fight of Anno 1615. land which we supposed the Westermost part of Fortenentura, and proued part of Barbarie, one Cape Boyadore, of the land points entering the River Margequena, beeing milgraduated one whole degree more and Margeque. Northern thould be. Likewile Cape Boyadore is mifgraded one degree as we then found by experience, escaping great danger caused by that errour in our plats. The fixe and twentieth, the Generall wind be an.

The tenth of May, being by reckoning diffant from the Cape of Good Hope, bearing Easta quarter South, fixe hundred and twentie leagues, wee faw many Pintados, Mangareludu and 0-40 ther fowles; whereof I have not heard the like.

The fit of 'une, we anchored in the Bay of Soldania, having not buried above three or foure Coreya Sausge in the whole Ficere, about thirtie being now ficke. Wee built fine Tents. Corey came downer which had bin and welcommed vs after his manner, by whose meanes the people were nothing so fearefull as at other times, nor so theeuish. They brought vs cattell in great abundance, which wee bought for Copper flireds. Corey shewed some of our people his house, wife and children, at a Towne thence diffant fine English miles, contayining about one hundred houses. Most of them can fay Sir Thomas Smith, English ships, which they often with great glorie repeat. Their wives and children came often downe to vs, to whom we gave great content with Bugles and the like. And two or three defired to goe for England, feeing Corey had sped to well, and returned forich so with his Copper Sute, which he yet keepeth in his house very charily. Corey also determined to returne, and to carry one of his fonnes when our ships are thence bound home-wards. On the East-side of the Table is another Cottage of ten small houses, built round like Bee-hiues, conered with Mats made of Bents wouen together.

on thoure.

Ningin, a medi-cin ibl: 100; much perzed

The fixteenth, we fet on shoare by consultation tenne condemned persons, to remayne at the Their houses. Cape, viz. Ioh. r Croffe, Henry Cocket, Clerke, Brand, Bouth, Hunnyard, Brigs, Pets, Metcalfe, Skilligall. We gaue each man tomething for his owne defence against wild beasts and men, weapons nedpersons fet and victuals. They conferred Croffe thould be their head; The people delire Braffe, and fer not fo much by Copper; they defire pieces of a foot or more square. Iron hoops they care little for. We caught feuen or eight hundred fishes in the River with Saynes.

The Countrey reople brought vs downe of the Root Ningin, whereof wee bought one handin infam, forme. foll for a piece or Copper an inch and halfe broad, and two inches and halfe in length. Our men got fome, but not fo full, nor ripe, this being not the feafon, which in the full perfection is as tender and fweet as Anni-leeds. On the twentieth, wee fet faile. On the fue and twentieth, we had fight of land in thirtie foure degrees twentie eight minutes. It is the land to the West of Cape de Arecife milgraduated twentie ieuen minutes in Daniels Plats more Northerly then it should be.

Likewise, on the fixt of July, we should have seene land of Saint Laurence, by most of our FalePlate. reckonings according to the Plats of Daniel, (of Mercators projection) which prooued falle about feuentie leagues in distance of longitude betwix: the land of Lithopia, Cape Bona Speranza, and the He of Saint Laurence, as the fame protracted into Plane of Tottens making doe ma-

The two and twentieth, all foure ships anchored at Mobelia. Wee had water out of Wels we Mobelia. digged a little about the high water, marke close by the rootes of Trees, eight or nine foote Plentifullredeepe. Doman is the chiefe Towne where the Sultan abides, to whom we gave a double locked frething. piece and a Sword. Wee had plentifull prouision for little Money, Hennes, Guates, Bullockes, Limons, Oranges, Limes, Tamera, Coco-nuts, Pines, Sugar-Canes, with other truits. There are among it them Arabians, Turkes, Moores, many of which speake reasonable Porteguse. Their told me of a strange courte of the Current which ranne fifteene dayes Westerly, fifteene dayes Strange Cur-Easterly, and fifteene dayes no way : of which somewhat I observed.

For at our first comming the Current set Westerly: and on the eight and twentieth, it set Eafterly, and so continued while we stayed (fixe day es) but we went away before perfect triall could be made. Hearned of them that the King of Inanni was here King, and gaue the Gouernment to this Sultan.

Fruits, &c.

CHAP. 15. S.I.

The nine and twentieth, a ship arrived at Doman from Gangamora, in Saint Laurence, and I Tree-cloth. was wished by the Generall to see their Commodities, which were Rice and a kind of cloth made of Barkes of Trees whence they make coole garments. I enquired of the Pilot who spake Portuguse well, touching Captaine Rowles and the Englishmen betrayed in that Hand, of whom c. Rowleslost they could fay nothing, but that two or three yeares past, an English Boy was at Gangamora in out of the Vthe custodie of Portugals, whom they thought now to be dead, neither knew how he came this milie. ther. This Towne of Damon hath in it one hundred houses of lime and stone strong built, the Inhabitants orderly and civill. They have traffique on the Coaft of Melinde, Magadoxo, Mombaffa, Arabia and Saint Laurence: they carrie Slaves taken in warres, which they fell for nine or ten Rials of eight, and are fold againe in Portugall for one hundred. At Momboza and Magadoxo I vnderstood of great Trade for Elephants Teeth and Drugges, and it was concluded to aduise the Honourable Companie thereof touching sending a Pinnasse yearely thither. Wee bought in Mobelia two or three Bullockes for a Barre of Iron weighing betwixt twentie and five and twentie pound. Wee bought there two hundred head of cattell, fortie Goates, Hennes,

The second of August, wee set faile from Mobelia: The seventeenth, wee had sight of Cape Guardafui, where the Countrey people were fearefull of vs. The twentieth, wee anchored in the Road of Galencia in Socotora, where the fiercenesse of the wind made the Sea in a breach round about vs, and with the Sprie of the Sea, which the winde blew about vs like raine, our Ship white thip and tackling were allouer white like a hoarie Frost or white Salt.

The three and twentieth, we anchored at Tamarine the Kings Towne, and the foure and twentieth at Delisha. Here, we were demanded thirtie Rials of eight the Kintall of Aloes So- Aloes Socatines catrina, which made vs buy the leffe : (for Captaine Downton, the Faiking faid, had bought one hundred Kintals) it was liquid by reason of the newnesse or heat of the Sunne, and readie to run out of the skinnes. Each Kinvall contayned by our Beame one hundred, three pounds and a halfe. It is made of the leaves of Semperaine, the tops and roots cut away, and the inice of the rest pressed out and boiled to a certain height, after put vp in earthen Pots, stopped closed, so standing eight monethes, and lastly, put in small skinnes to fell.

The North part of Socotora or Socatra, lyeth in twelve degrees thirtie minutes, and the bodie in one hundred and twentie degrees, twentie five minutes. It is fourteene leagues thence to Abadeleuria, and as much from thence to Cape Guardafui. And I should wish those that faile to Socatra to touch at the Cape, thence to faile the next morning a little before breake of day, to lote carra. no day-light, which is precious there by reason of the thicke and obscure night, with boysterous winds (and fogges) this moneth and a part of September: from thence to Abadeleuria, and anchor on the West side thereof in seven or eight sathome water under the low land, or if they get no anchorage, to keepe close by a winde to the Southward in the night, left the winder and Northerly current put them too much to lee-ward before day-light. The winds blow not iteddie, notwithstanding the Monson, sometimes South by West, and South South-west, but feldome to the East of the South. On the one and thirtieth, we fet faile from Socatra. The tenth of September, we had Quales, Hernes and other Land-fowles blowne from land vnable to returne.

On the fourteenth, we had fight of Din, and on the fixteenth of Damon, inhabited with Portugals, and strongly fortified.

On the eighteenth, we palled by the Barre of Surat, and anchored against Swally Barre. The Articeae

Vile prices,

Embaffador

The two and twentieth day, Master Barber and other Merchants were sent to Surat, to prouide furniture for Sir Thomas Roe the Lord Embassadours house, who were there narrowly learched, their pockets and other parts according to the base manner of the Country, where a man must pay custome for a Riall of eight in his Purse, or a good Knife in his pocket : and if any raritie appeare, the Gouernour under pretence of buying, takes it away.

ritic appears, the Gouernour vince presented and anded, accompanied with the Generall, Captaine and Merchants, and eightie men in Armes with thot and Pike in order, forcie eight Pieces of Ordnance discharged from the Fleet, the shippes also fitted in their hole-day Sutes of waste clothes, Streamers, Enfignes, Flagges, Pendants. The chiefe men of Surat attended in their Tent, and there welcommed him. Much adoe there was about the barbarous fearch, which they would have executed on his followers, which the Embassador wholly disclaymed, till at the last he and three or foure of his chiefe Followers were exempted, the rest they would onely imbrace for fashions sake. Much passed also betwixt the Gouernour and Him about like barbarous exa-Ctions, he inftly challenging the honour and immunitie of an Embassadour from a free King; they willing to make no difference betwixt him and others of that ranke in those parts, and of our owne also which had affumed that name. Once their barbarous viage not only then perplexed him, and detayned him long till from the Court he had order, but all his time (as hereafter out of his owne Journall shall tollow) held him busic more then enough. Neither did they easily acknowledge difference betwixt this Embassadour and Matter Edwards, who was so stilled among st

Fugitiues.

The first of October, Master Barnickes man (which beeing inneigledbya Fugitiue from Captaine Best, and fince turned Moore, had runne away) was brought backe from Surat Others after did the like, and wrote from Damen to periwade others. The fecond, came abourd two Hollanders which had come thither by land from Petapoli. The tenth, the Gouernours brother came boord with faire words and had a Prefent given him : also we had newes of Master Aldworths death. The Gouernour impudently vrgeth Presents, having had three alreadie, but findeth fault with them, and nominates what he would, begger and chooser both.

The fifth of November, we had newes from Brampore of the Lord Embassadors falling ficke there, and of Matter Boughtons death.

County and

The current Coine at Surat is Rials of eight, whereof the old with the plaine croffe is effecmed best, worth fine Mamudies a piece, the new with Flower-delices at the ends of the crosse at foure Mamudies three quarters, if they be not light. The Mamudie is a filuer Coyne, course, contayring thirtie Pice, which is a Copper Coyne; twelve drammes make one Pice. The Exclifb shilling, if weight, will yeeld thirtie three Pice and halfe. Larines are much about the worth of Mamudies. Rupies are of fundry forts; some worth halfe a Riall of eight, other leffe, by which a man may eafily be deceived,

Their trading is by Banian Brokers, who are subtile and deceitfull both to the buyer and seller, if not preuented. In their Weights each Citie differeth from other. The Commodities are infinite : the chiefe, Indicoes of two fores, Checques the courier, and Labor the finer; Cloth made of Cotton-wooll, as Callicoes white and coloured, contaying fourteene yards the Booke, from two to one hundred Mamudies the piece, Pintados, Chines and Chadors, Shalhes and Girdles, Cannakens, Treckenees, Serrabaifs, Aleiaes, Patellas, Sellas, Quilts, Carpets; Greene Ginger, Suckets, Lignum Alocs, Opium, Sadarmoniacke and abundance of other Drugs. Commodities vendicle are Knines, Glades, Pictures and fuch like toyes; English cloth; China wares, Silke and Porcelane; all manner of Spices. The Guzerats lade their great ships of nine, twelve or fifteene hundred tunnes at Goga, and steale out vnknowne to the Portugals.

Chiefe Cities for Trade on the River Sinde or Indus, are Tatta, (on a River which fals into it) 50

Robert Sherley the Persian Embassadour, of whom I thought good to adde this (which I learned by inquiry of some of his Followers to Agra) as an appendix to that relation in my former lour-

Indus fally [ct in Muss. Chiefe Cities for Trade on the Kruer amae or train, are turns, constructed and delinered bit in Muss. Distillated, Mustam, Labore. At Duslinde the Expedition in her former Yoyage had delinered bit in Muss. The Art Duslinde the Expedition in her former Yoyage had delinered bit in Muss. The Art Duslinde and Control of the Art nall. Being weary of Duilfinde by the Governours cuill intreate and infering the Portugals to molest him, feeking also to cut him off, for which purpose twelve Portugals came from Orms; He fought libertie to goe to Tatta, but the Governour not permitting (as was thought of cuill purpose) he went without leave, and was by the way to passe a River, where none durst carrie him or his, being prohibited on paine or death by the faid Governour. They therefore made raits of boards and Timbers, on which the Emistladour shipped himselfe with Nazerbeg one of his 60 Followers to helpe him ouer: and were no fooner put off, but twentie or thirtie Horfemen came from the Gonernour in great hafte to stay them. Thus were they brought backe, men swimming to the raft, which Nazerbeg was not able to guide against the tyde, and they narrowly escaped drowning. His Followers diffaining this rude dealing, one Mafter John Ward that off his Pattell in their faces, and was inflantly flaine by another thot, and the reft carryed away Prifoners to Duilfinde, being pillaged by the way of the Souldiers. After some time of imprisonment, the Gouernour permitted their departure to Tacta, where they were friendly entertained of the Governous being a Perfian. Sir Thomas Powell, an Maiter Francis Bub, were then dead before in Sir T. Powels Duilfinde. Heremayned at Tatta till fit opportunitie icr Agra, the way long and in danger of death and his Theeues : whither he went in company or a great man which had a firing Conney, for whom Ladies. he waited alfo two moneths.

Ward flaine.

Tatea

The Ladie Powell in this space was delivered of a Sonne, but shee and it together with Master Michael Powell, Brother to Sir Thomas, loft their lives in this tedious expectation, in Boats, for 10 that great man aforefaid. At his comming to Agra the Mogoll gaue him fauourable entertainment, and vpon his complaint fent for the Banian Gouernour of Duilfinde, to answere at the Court, promiting him his owne revenge, if he would flay, But hee hafting to the Perfian, after many Presents from the Mogoll, with a Conuoy and necessaries for his journey, departed for Persia, not having one Englishman with him. Matter Richard Barber his Apothecarie returned to Surat, and John Heriot dyed at Agra. There remayned with him of his old Followers only his Ladie, and her Woman, two Persians, the old Armenian and the Chircassian: His Dutch leweller came from Agra to Surat, with Malter Edwards.

ò. II.

Prizes taken, Factorie at Callicut, Observations of divers places of Suma. tra : the English Shippes miscarrie. Dutch abuses. Factories in India.

He nine and twentieth of February, we tooke a Portugall prize. The third of March, we riding at an anchor in the Road of Callient. The Great Samorines Deputie came aboord many Boats attending him, fignifying his Masters ioy of our comming, and his earnest delire to have conference wish our Nation, and therefore carnestly per-30 fwaded vs to flav a day or two, till he might fend to the Samorine, then at Crangalor, belieging a Castle of the Portugals. We had here store of prouision brought abourd at reasonable rates. Callient hath latitude eleuen degrees ten minutes, variation fifteene degrees fortie minutes. The fame euening came a Pilothy order from the Samorine to increase vs to ride two or three dayes before Crangaler.

931

The fifth, we anchored all four flips before Crangalor, two leagues from the shoare. About crangalor in 16. noone the Samorine lent to the Generall to request his company alhoare, which was not thought degas min, fit without a pledge, and Matter George Barkley went. But the Samorine refuled to reueale his minde to any but the Generall, and feemed discontent at his stay.

The eight, he went and frake with the Samorine, whose businesse was to stablish a Factorie in Offers of the 40 his Dominion, profering a faire house rent-free, freedome from Customes or any other Taxati- Samerinesso ons, for what leeuer goods brought thither or carryed thence, with protestation of his affecti- the English. on to our Nation. Answere was made of our present disabilitie, having left most of our goods at Surat, and now going to Bantam. He replyed, that for prefent leaving goods it was no matter, only that we would leave two or three English there which should want nothing, and the next yeere we might make supply of men, and goods, hereby he being affured of our returne : otherwife his care and hopes thould be frustrated. He told also of a shippes lading of Pepper there to be had yearely, and of the vent of our Commodities. Whereupon it was concluded to leaue a Factorie there, which with Merchandife were fertashoure on the ninth. The men were George Factory at Woolman chiefe, Peter Needham and Roger Hares under tactors, Edward Peake a Boy, and Richard Gangeler. 50 Stansford. The Boy was to learne the Language. The Kings name is Pendre Quone Samorine. A Minion and a Barrell of Powder was given him for a Prefent, He promited that if hee recovered the Fort of Crangalor from the Portugals, the English should postelle it. The fenti, the King fent his Letter of agreement touching the faid Priviledges with many protestations of lone. This day we fet faile. We came hefore Cochin and might behold the forme Cochin. of it. The next day we had fight of Coulan Caitle, and Towne, and a fhip riding at anchor vn. Codas, afcood der the Caille which we boorded and brought foorth, the people being fled without hurt of fhot Prizethen. from the Catile. It was a Portugal ship of foure or fine hundred Tunnes lately arrived from Bengala and Pegu, laden with Rice, Graine, Bengala clothing, Butter, Sugar, Gummelacke, hard Waxe, Drugges and other promitions.

The twenth, we copyed another thip which by mid-night we fetched up; thee yeelded at the in part of latin frit flot. I fent for her chiefe men aboutd my thip (the rell being three or foure miles off, and fation for fer fome of name abourd charging them to hur; no person. There were eighteene of twentie their vaust Portugal, and ascent eightie flates, men, women and children; her chiefe lading Rice, Butter, buriat Saret, Sugar, Gummelacke, Drugges, Bengala Stuffe. Wee offered these our first price with victuals to &c.

The Aduice &

Hoffender at

carrie them alhoare, which they refused fearing to become a prey to the Malabars, a Fixete of whom consisting of fourteene faile they lately had with difficultie escaped. The next day wee landed them where they defired and fuffered them to depart vnfearched for Plate, lewels, Money and the like. We had three English theps, and three prices. The fourteenth, we arrived at Brinion where we took out of the first prize what we pleased and fet her a drift. Brinion is in latitule eight degrees thirtie minutes, variation fifteen. It hatha fmall Brinian. Town in a little round Bay, is to be known by a long white beach to the North, and to the South is all high land : and two leagues to the South, a red Cliffe neere the Sea. From thence to Cape Comorine is fixteene leagues: the courfe South-east by South bold and free Coast. The Inhabitants of Brinion are no way fubiect to the Portugals. The first of Aprill, the bodie of Zeilon did beare East by South seuen leagues off.

The tenth, the Pike Adam bare North. I tooke my leave of the Generall, the Dragen and Note for Cape Pepper-Corne they being bound for Achen, and I in the Expedition for Prisman, Tecoo, and Bantam. It is good to ride till the end of March in Brinion, and not to double the Cape by reason of calmes, the Southerly Current fetting off to the Maldine : but then the Eafterly Monfon ends. I would wish all that come from the West to Priaman or Tecoo, to dispose that they may have day-light enough for the comming in betwixt Nimptan and the other Ilands adiacent. The best is on the North-fide. On the thirtieth, I met the Advice going for Tecoo, but at my request flee returned to Bantam whence the was fent for I apon. The first of May, I arrived at Bantam, where I found the Hosander newly returned from la- 20 pon, and the Attendance from lambe, most of the men ficke or dead. Here I heard of the death of Captaine Downton, and of the arrivall of Captaine Samuel Castleton with the Clone and Defence. which with the Thomas and Concord were gone for the Moluccas: The Thomas appointed to proceed from thence to Iapon. The nineteenth, I fet faile for Tecoo. The tenth of Iune , I put into Priamen, and the eighteentharrised at Tecoo. The third of July, I brought my ship on Careene to sheath her. The double sheathing of thips which goe for Surat is of great purpose : for though the outermost sheathing be eaten like a Honey-combe with wormes, yet the inner is nothing perished. It were alfo requifite that the Rudders were sheathed with thinne Copper, to preuent the Wormes eating off the edges thereof; which causeth great defect in the steering, not easily to bee remedied 10 being so deepe vnder water. The Inhabitants here are barbarous, deceitfull, expecting bribes, and sometimes I have beene in danger to be murthered, one hundred of them drawing their Cri-

fes voon vs, because they might not have their will to take our goods voon trust or otherwise at their pleatures. The twentieth, Thomas Bonner Mafter of the Expedition dyed, lobn Row fuccesded, the third Master in this ship this Voyage. The fixe and twentieth, arrived the Dragon and Popper-Corne from Achen. They had bought there Pepper carryed thither from Tosoo in great Iunckes and Prawes which faile to and fro, but neuer out of fight of land.

The King of Achen commands those of Tecoo to bring thither their Pepper, which more may buy but he, who puts off his Surat Commodities in trucke at what rates he pleafeth. Oft times 40 his playing the he fends his Commodities to Priaman and Tecoo, enforcing them to buy them at his rates, none being fuffered to buy or fell withother till his bee vented. This makes our Trade with them > lambe is on the East-fide of Sumatra. It yeel leth like great-grained Pepper as Priaman, but is not lubicet to the King of Achen, as are Barufe, Paffaman, Tecoo, Priaman, Cottatings, and other places on the West-fide. Baruse is to the North of Passaman, and yeelds store of Beniamin, Cattating a Gold, the other places Pepper. The Generall brought the King of Achens Letter to them which the great men received with great submission, each kissing and laying it on his head, promiting vs to performe the contents, but failed. And it were fit in these Letters of the King, to procure him to expresse the manner and particulars of our Trade. The eleventh of Sep- 50 tember, I fet faile from Tecoo for Bantam. The best Gold and most plenty is had at the great high hill of Passaman, where also is greatest

Pafemen best quantitie of Pepper, the fairest and best cheape : but the euill constitution of the aire is to peti-Goldand Pep- lent and infectious, that there is no going thither for our Nation without mortalitie of menincither needs for the Pepper, Surat Commodities at Tecoo being sufficient attractive. Many of the Condiand good

Natives I have observed full of contagious difference have been ready to droppe off with

confliction of bodie or mind, rottennelle, others hauing huge swellings (Wennes) vinder the throat as bigge as a two peny nos are mine, lots, which they impute to the bal water. They are very ignorant to cure their disciss. The people of Teeo are bale, theough, should be the people of Teeo are bale, theough, should be the people of the tree are bale. people of Tecoo are base, theeush, subtill, embracing guine at any price by fraud, or (as farre as they dare) by force, mil-reckoning, falle weights, yea attempting to poison our meates and 60 drinkes as they are dreffing, creefing also our horses. Better order may be hoped by the King of companies, the rest for our employers, &c.

Achens procurement. There were but fine left in the Factory. Our two Portugall prizes wee made away at Achen, sharing (according to the custome of the sea) one fixt part to the shippes

Betwixt Priaman and Tecoo there lyeth a dangerous should North-west by West, from the Observations Betwitt Framma and several properties of the several participation of the being white Corall, are easily differned. When the South-west He doth beare South South-east neth many on from you, then are you past danger, prouided the Northermost He of the foure by Priaman shoare there had a beare East by North, so may you steere in for the Road, East, and East by South, and East South- no heere exeart, leaving two Hands on the Statboord, and two on the Larboord fide. Latitude of Tecos is prefled, but South thirtie minutes, variation Well foure degrees, thirty minutes: Lititude of Priaman is allo Country men South bet wixt eight and forty degrees, fifty minutes. Many of our men were ficke, whereof the cause seemeth their immoderate drinking of Arack and strong drinkes. At Bantam were at my last being there (October 1616. ) foure English thips there and at lackatra, and fine Flemmift ships, which raised the price of Pepper, and the rather by the Hollanders boafts of bringing this yeare fixteene hundred thouland Rialls of eight, readie Huge summes money, which it is likely they reported to out-braue our Nation. The last Fleet of theirs, fixe transported by in number, tooke two or three Portugall ships, whereof they made great brauado's. They fecke Hollanders. by all abuses to depresse our Nation, in vnchristian manner through the Indies: even in Bantam and abuses of (where they acknowledge our equall right) they threaten to pull our people out of the Factory the Eagly le. by the eares; sometime quarrell with them in the streets, other times imprison them; and when themselves have caused an vproare, they complaine to the King of Bantam of our vnquietnesse, and bribe him to command vs to be quiet, who receiveth their money, and tells vs of their dealing, himfelfe taking advantage to pole both parts, by this difagreement. Alfoat Puloway, an Iland freely given His Maieltie, they abuted our people, putting halters 2- Infolencies as bout their neckes, and leading them thorow the Towne with an hours-glaffe before them, pub- Pulmap. lishing that they should be hanged so some as the glasse was runne : and although they did not effect that honorable deligne, yet did they imprilon them, and keepe them three or foure dayes in irons, afterwards fending them aboord the Concord and Thomasine vpon a counterfeit compofition neuer to returne (these things are reported to bee very true.) Likewise at the returne of the Hosiander from !apin, hee brought thirtie tunnes of wood, free of fraight and charges, for the Hollanders; who not withil anding reported that shee had returned empty but for their wood:

to which they might have faid as well of my bringing one and thirtie Churles of Indico, and a Chilt of Piltolls fraight-free for them from Surat to Bantam. Captaine Castleton went to the Moluccus with foure ships, the Clouve, Defence, Thomas and Captaine Ch. Concord, to be better able to defend themselves against the Hollanders : but being threatned by Aleion to the eleuen faile of theirs, they returned without doing any great matter, onely a few Cloaues laded Molanu with in the Cloane; the Captaine himfelfe dying there of the fluxe, to whom the fault is imputed foure thips.

with other things laid to him. The Trades-Incresse was fired twice by the I anans, and by our people quenched : but the third, Decay or losse time fired in fo many places at once, that industry could not faue her. me fired in to many places at once, that industry could not laue her.

The Darling (that Imay adde such ships as were lost and laid up at my departure from Ban-Treats Incress.

tans) was laid up at Patania, in lune 1615, by Mafter Larkine and the Factory, and could not be Dailing. repaired : Herrold the Master was reported to have intended to runne away with her to the Portugals, which being presented, he yet went himf-lie.

The Thomasine was call away, comming from the Moluceas, vpon a should in the night, in Sep. Thomesing. tember 1615, they loft their goods, which were not much, but faued their money, two thousand Rialls of eight, with their prouisions, living fourteene dayes in a defolate lland, where they fitted their Boat, which brought them and their money to Bantam, leaving the rest behind; the King of Macaffer feizing on them, who would not make relitution. This shoald lyeth eighteene leagues West from Macasser. The He'lor failed at lacatra in careening, the vpper workes not fitted (as is reported) and the Hillor.

feames opening, and receiuing fo much water, that shee funcke in three fathom, the keele exceedingly worme-eaten. The Concord is there also laid up, rotten and leake, that they were forced to take out her pro- concord. uifions, and let her finke close to the shoare. The Hosander was appointed to fet faile for the Coast of Coromandel, the fifteenth of Octo-

The Factories which I could heare of fetled for the Company in the East-Indies are thele: English Factories

Bantam (wherein were George Barkley Chiefe, John Jordan, George Ball, Ralph Copendale, with ties, divers others both Factors and Attendants) Incarra, Surat, Amadauas, Agra and Azmiro, Brampore, Calcout, Ol. Salyanan, l'etapoli, Patania, Siam, Benix masse, Socodania, Macasser, Achen, lambe, Tecoo, Fe and in Japan, Japan, Banda.

The commodity which arifeth from the Pactory at Aches is to follicite for our our better statica wing proceeding at Printed and Tecos, the place is valid from, especially for such as stuffe themselves with hot and hery drinker at Angle and Angle which believes the stuffe themselves are steely and Angle and with hot and fiery drinkes, as Aracke and Aracape, which bring many voto votimely ends; liquot taken whence arrieth an imputation to the Voyage. How viruly the common fort are abread, cannot out of the ce-

Quilant Tuc.

Ginges.

guft betwixt

534

be imagined at home, many neuer thinking the ofelues well, longer then whiles their braines are Ming of Achen, a crowing with drinke, The King of Achen is said to have a firange straine of drinking drunke, when the English refore to him, thereby to shew his love; to whom it seemeth dish nor, not to conforme in fitting in the water with him, and other his rites. He is very criell to his fubicots. daily cutting off their hands, armes or legges, vpon finall or no occasions; causing them to bee throwne before El-phants, himfelfe commanding the (vnderstanding) Elephant to toffe the partie fo oft and fo high, either to bruife or kill him, as he fancieth. He hath prohibited any, which arrive at his Port, without his Chop to come on thoare, which a Dweb Merclant neglecting, arrive at his Port, without his Chop to come on hand proteining his great fauour with the King; cauled a Datch G. neral there arriving to come on land proteining his great fauour with the King; who comming to the Court-gate, where they must demand another Chep : the King anding the chieefe Leeger caule of that prefumption, fent for him, and laid him before the Elephant, which toffed him three times (without much bruifing) to teach him how to neglife the commands of Kings another time; the Dutch Generall standing by, and fearing his owne share, whom yet the King cleared as ignorant of his Law. The King after fent for the Merchant to prie into his patience, who for feare of worfe, foothed him, and acknowledged it a fatherly chaftilement, yet cloiely fled at the departure of the ships; the rest following were brought backe, and the King hath placed vs in their house.

d. III.

A briefe Declaration of the Ports, Cities and Townes, inhabited and traded unto by the Portugall, betwirt the Cape of Good Hope and Iapan, as I could learne by diligent enquiry.

Places of Porzugall trade. Quemeor CKA Mofumbique.

He River Quame in South latitude one and twenty degrees, fifty minutes, heere is reported to be Gold, Elephants-teeth, Ambergreefe and Slaues, for which they trade year: ly. Most imbique is an Iland where they trade for Gold, Ambergreese and Slaves.

Momballa in Sou in latitude three degrees, thirty minutes, where they yearely trade for Gold, Ambergreefe, Elephants-teeth, and Slates, in trucke of Iron, Lead, Tinne, and Cambaya Com-

Magadoxo, The Monfors

Magadoxo nath two degrees, fine and twenty minutes, store of Elephants-teeth, some Ambergreeie, and divers forts of Drugges. From these places they drive their annual trade into Cambaya, the Red-fea, and other places, observing the Monsons, which blow West in Aprill, May, June, July, August, and part of September, and the East Monson the rest of the yeare, the space betwin: both, being various or calme, but in few dayes hold course, except to the East of Sumatra, where they keepe fine moneths East, and fine West, two variable.

Ormus in the Gulfe of Persia, whence they trade into Persia, Arabia, Dinlfinde, &c. they fetch 40 much Pearle from Balfora, and with Persian Commodities lade a shippe or two for Dislinde, where in the end of Aug at, or middle of September they arrive; they bring with them also great store of Rialls of eight. O mus is their best place, but Gon, which they have in the Musket: they have finall trade heere, and a Fort, where they awe the Natines by land and fea, not fuffering them to trade but by their licence, what, and how much, under paine of confiscation, which they practise thorow all the Indies, where they are strong. Sinde or Dialfinae, in the Mogoll: Dominion, in four and twenty degrees, eight and thirty minutes : variation Well, fixe degrees, fiue and forty minutes. Din, where they have a firong Dunen

Danon is a Citie inhabited by them, where they have a Castle, and by report one hundred Villages.

Serra de Bazien, is a little South from Damon, and bordereth upon the Decans Countrey, betwixt which and Chaul they have three Ports, Gazien, Banda and Mais. Chaul is a great Citie with a Caille. Dobal hath a Factory but no Fort. Goa is their Metropolitan Ci ie or India, built on a fmall Iland, the anchoring place of their Carickes, the Seat of their Vic. - Roy.

Oner hath a finall Fore. Barcolor hath a Castle and Towne, it yeeldeth Pepper, Ginger, and many forts of Drugges. Mangetor hating fowne and Caffle. Cananor is a Civic, and hatha Caffle, Merchandize as 60 before. From Calieut they are should out by the Samorine, as he feeketh alfo at Crangalor, where 2fanzalor,Cana-Cranzilor.

Cechin hath a firong City and Castle, pleasantly situated by the Sea side in a good ayre, with a faire River for thips to ride.

they have a Fort.

Comlan, heere they have a Towns and strong Castle. Saint Laurence is a small Village, in- Comlan. habited by Friers and Iefuits.

Quilann, is a small Citie with a Castle. Tuckaira, a Towne with a Castle, the people most Maner, is on the Hand Zelon, betwint Cape Comorine and Punto de Galle, a Towne inhabited Maner.

by Portugals. There also they have Columbo, and many other small habitations, having almost Columbo. conquered the Hand: it yeelds Sinamom and Drugges.

Negapatan, is a City of great trade : heere they have only a Factory. Saint Thomas, alias Ma- Negaptan. lupor, is a walled City, inhabited with Portugalls, in thirteene degrees, twenty minutes. Vp the 10 River Ganges, they have many small habitations, some Factories, and a Towne at Bengala. In Pegn, they have a Factory, and likewise in Aracon, and in the River of Martaban.

Pegu. At Innfalas, they have a great Factory, from whence they lade much Tinne for the Coaft of Araon.

Malacea, is a strong city and castle, the Centre of a great trade in those parts, whence the King Malacea of Achen seekes to roote them out, having burnt and spoiled some of their ships this yeare. At Macae, an Hand upon the Coaftor China, they have a Citie with a Caftle, reported to be of great trade with the Chineles. In lapan, they have a Factory, but neither Towne nor Fort. They trade also on the Coast laran. of China, in the time of fitting Monfon to and from lapan and other parts: whereof the Hollan-

20 ders are faid to make good pillage, and of all Heathen Nations, Chinefes and others, being all fish that comes to net. The first of November, we set faile. The fifth of Ianuary, I was not able to weigh the anchor

(the wind ouer-blowing) to follow the Dragon to Penguin Hand. My adulfe for thips comming about the Cape at this time of the yeare, is, not to anchor short of Soldania Road, but rather to put romer for Pengwin Iland, and there to anchor with two at once till the wind ferue. In December, Ianuary and February, the South South-east winds are there very furious, from Note.

the new Moone to the ful. I hold it dangerous neuerthelelle to neglect this place in hope of Saint Helena (a certainty for vincertainty) the Sunnes and Moones often obscuritie and thicke mists at this time of the yeare, may frustrate the best Artists to the lose of shippe and men. Cory came 30 downe with three sheepe, and promised more: but hasted away to his wife and children, which he faid now dwelt further. It leemeth that the Hollanders have frighted them, by their going vp into the Countrey with one hundred men at a time. Our best refreshing heere was freih-fish.

The ninth of Aprill 1617. wee palled much weeds, called the Seragaffe, which lye in long Seragaffe. ridges or rankes a pretty distance one from another alongst with the wind, with which they alter and shift. It hath a leafe like Samper, but not so thicke, and a yellow berry very small. It reacheth from two and twenty degrees, three minutes North latitude, vnto two and thirty degrees North latitude. The nine and twentieth of May we anchored in the Downes.

CHAP. XVI.

Observations collected out of the Iournall of Sir THOMAS ROE, Knight, Lord Embassadour from His MAIESTIE of Great Britaine, to the Great Mogol: Of matters occurring worthy memory in the way, and in the Mogols Court. His Customes, Cities, Countryes, Subiects, and other Indian Affaires,

ð. I.

Occurrents and observations, in, and touching the Voyage to Surat.

He fifth of June, we anchored in the roade of Soldania. Though the Variation be Vaccertainty of an excellent enidence in the whole course of veering land, yet it delivereth no o- the Variation, ther certaintie, but warning to look out; for it lesions not in the same proportion neere land, but by a much flower: for which I could give a perfpicuous reason, but too large for this place, nor can any judgement at all be made to twenty leagues thereby (that shall be infallible) the magneticall amplitude beeing so difficult to 60 of ferue truely by the Ships motion, and the Needles quicknesse, that a degree is fearer an error, This confideration made me confident, that we flould see no land untill the fifth day early in the

Soldaria, is as I suppose, an Iland in the South end whereof is the Cape of Good Hope, divided Soldaria

from the maine by a deepe Bay on the South-East fide, and due East by a River, which weedifeerne vpon the table. The land is fruitfull, bearing short thicke graffe, the maine is divided with most high and steepe rocky Mountaines couered with show, and vnaccessible, except it be fearched by the River of Dulce, which doubtleffe is very great, falling into the Bay on the East fide. there is on the Iland fine or fixe hundred people, the most barbarous in the world, eating Carrion, wearing the guts of sheepe about their necks for health, and rubbing their heads (curled like Ne. groes ) with dung of beafts and durt : they have no other clothing then beafts skinnes wrapt on their shoulders, the skin next the body in heat, in cold the hairy side; their houses are but one mat, concaued like an Ouen, into which they creepe, and turne them about as the wind changes: for they have no doores to keepe it out. They have left their flealing by trading with vs, and by 1a fignes make shew their heart is good: they know no kind of God or Religion. The aire, and water is very good and wholesome, and both of them subtile and searching. There is on the lland, Buls, Cowes, Antelops, Baboones, Moules of great bigneffe, Fealants, Patridges, Larks, Wild-Penrois Hand, geefe, Ducks, Pafferfiannugos, and many others. On Pengwyn there is a fowle fo called, that gees vpright, his wings without feathers, hanging downe like fleenes faced with white: they fly not, but walke in pathes and keep their divisions and quarters orderly; they are a strange fowle, or rather a miscellaneous creature, of Beast, Bird, and Fish, but most of Bird, confuting that definition of man to be Animal bipes implume, which is nearer to a description of this creature. The commodities here are, first reasonable refreshing with Cattell ( so that a season be chosen when they are not leane, a Moneth after the Sunne is departed from them Northward) Maugin rootes, Arras, 20

if our Merchants be not deceived; and I doe trongly suppose, that I found out a Rocke yeelding Quick-filuer and Vermillion, the itone being sported all without, with a most pure red colour, equall to any painting, and that will come of vpon Paper, or other fit matter: by the description of Ichn Acofta it cannot faile to be the fame; it is also very heavy, full of Marquilat and minerall appearances. The Table, or high Rocke so called, by a straight line from the water side, is 118es foot high; the Bay is full of Whalesand Seales. The Dutch have fished on Pengwin for them : the latitude is, thirtie three degrees fortie fine minutes: the longitude twentie eight degrees thirtie minutes from the Lifard, the variation doubtfull, whether to the East or West; but my opinion is, that the variation is West thirty minutes: the cause of variation beeing in the maine, as appeares euidently by the many lines, and changes towards the Cape F. and after Welterly: if any shipping, having time enough, fall but one hundred leagues more to the North with the maine, which may be done with fafety, no winds forbidding it, I affure my felfe they shall have good trade for Cattell, and other Commodities, and may by leaving some men, discouer the land, and perhaps get knowledge of the people that trade with the Spaniards on the East side in one and twenty degrees for Gold, after the manner of the Moores in Barbary to Gago. Thefeleft at the Cape will goe no further, but attend opportunity of passage, and there can doe no great good being among the bafeft banished people, that know nothing favouring of man, nor are no other way men, but as they speake and walke like men.

Molalia,

Molalia is one of the foure Hands of Comory, Angazesia, luanny, and Mayotta beeing the other three. They lie East and West neere in a parallel one off another, except Angazesia, which lieth 40 somewhat more North. Molalia is in twelue degrees twentie minutes South latitude, in the fame Meridian with Cape Augustine, the variation being fixteene degrees fortie minutes.

Angazesia.

Angazesia beares from it by the Compasse North by West, seuen leagues off, the further-most end in eleuen degrees fiftie fue minutes, extending it felfe North eleuen degrees fixe minutes, as I observed within five leagues thereof, bearing South from me; it is the highest land I ever law, inhabited by Moores trading with the Maine, and the other three Easterne Hands with their Catteland fruits, for Callicoes, or other linnen to couer them. It is governed by tenne petty Kings, and is fufficiently fruitfull of Kine, faire Goates, Cocos, Orenges and Limons: they made vs fires as we paffed by, being defirous of trade at the first hand which now they fetch by Canoes at Molalia where our ships ride. They are held a falle and an vnfaithfull people, having betraied 50 fome of S. lames Lancasters men long fince; but now having experience of vs at other llands, I doubt not they would regaine their credits.

Issanty, and

Inanny lies from Molalia East, and Mayotta in the same course, the coast betweene them is euery way bold. These three Islands are very full of very good refreshings, but principally Mayotta, as I was informed by the Arabs trading in Molalia, and the Datch itop there. The next in goodnesse is Inanny, where lives an old Woman Sultannesse of them all, to whom they repaire for Justice, both in Civill and Criminall causes.

The governe-

Molalia hath in it three Sub-Sultans, children of the old woman, two men one daughter, ment of Mole who governe feuerall parts of the Hand. The Sultan in whose quarter we anchored hath such autheritie, that his subjects dare not fell a Nut vntill leave obtained: to which end, Captaine Kee- 60 ling fent foure boats to his Towne defiring libertie to trade, where they were received by a Gouernoar, or rather an Admirall or Commander of the port, lying fome four leagues to the Eastward of our Road, where having obtained leave to come alhoare, we landed some fortie men with Captaine Nemport: the Gouernour they found fitting vpon a Mat of fraw, vnder the fide of a

Iunke which was a building, accompanied with about fiftie men, his apparrell was a Mantle of blue and red linnen, wrape about him to his knees, his legges and feet bare, on his head a close Cap of checker worke, the Interpreters were certaine Magadoxians, that spake Arabique and broken Portuguife. Captain Nemport presenting him with a Peece and a Sword blade from Capt. Keeling, receiueda welcome, and commanded toure Bullocks to be returned in requitall, and with grauine enough intertained them, gining free libertie to buy and fell, and fignifying so much by a Messenger to the Inhabitants round about, and promised to fend downe his owne Cattell, but professed he had no power to compell or make price for others, but left the trade open to every 10 mans will. He fent for Coco Nuts to give the Company, himselfe chewing Bitcle, and lime of Burnt Oyster-shels with a kernell of a Nut called Arracca, like an akorne, it bites in the mouth, auoids rheume, cooles the head, strengthens the teeth, and is all their Philickiit makes one vnused to it giddie, and makes a mans spittle red, and in time colours the teeth, which is esteemed a peautie: this is vied by all men hourely. From the Gouernour they were led to a Carpenters house, a chiefe man of that towne; the house built of lime and stone, plaistered with mortar or white lime, low and little Rooft, with Rafters of wood couered with leaues, the out-fides walled with Canes: they are kept cleanely, and their poore houshold-stuffe still neate, their Gardens paled with Canes, inclofing some Tobacco, and Plantan trees. For Dinner, a boord was set upon Tresfels couered with a fine new Mat, benches of stone about it likewise couered, on which they fat: first water was brought to every man in a Coco-shell poured out into a wooden platter, and in-20 stead of a Towell, the rinds of Cocos. Then was fet boyld Rice, and routed Plantans upon the Rice, quarters of Hennes, and pieces of Goat broild. After grace faid, they fell to their meat, with bread made of Cufcus beaten, and mingled with honey, and fo fryed, and Palmet wine, and Coco milke for drinke. I fent a Gentleman and my Chaplin to fee the Sultan himfelte, who lives three miles up in the land from Fambone the towne of the Gouernour, but they found him by chance there; he vied them courteoully, and made them dine with him, differing little from the former intertainement, onely the Gouernour and all other gaue him much respect, killing his hand, his name is Sultan Amar-Adel, a kinne to Mahomet, not vnlike to be descended of Lich an imposterous race, his clothes not valike the Governour, but somewhat better stuffe, his manners differing much, beeing with leffe grauitie and State, somewhat a light foole, and very hastie to 30 be dranke with wine carried by the English. The other Vice-Sultan his brother, in whose quarter we were not, I faw beeing come downe to our Road with three flaues to trade : he brought a Certificate from Captaine Sayers, that he had vied the English well in his Dominions, he is as well Keriffe as Sultan, which is high Priest: he kept a kind of State in place, but otherwise a poore bare-footed roague: he offered to trade for Quick-filter, and beeing asked what quantitie hee would buy, replyed to foure or fine Rialls of eight; when this merchandize failed him, hee fell to begging of shooes. Then I left him. All the people are frict Mahometans, observing much of the old law, and at this time being the preparation to their Ramdam or Lent, vinwilling to drinke wine: they are very isolous to let the Women or Moscheer to be seene, of which we had experience by an alarme of one of their 40 Priests, who espied one of ours comming to a Village, who that vp all the Women, and cryed out if we came neere them or their Church, they would kill vs; but by the authoritie of the Xeriffe, the Priest was appealed, and suffered it with more patience. Many of them speake and write the Arabique in a faire Character, and some few Portiguife, trading to Mosambique in lunkes of fortie Tunnes made of Cocos fowed, in iteal of Phines caucked, tackled, and wholly fitted, victualed, and fraughted with that vniuerfall tree.

Here our fleet refreshed with Oxen and Cowes, small as two yeereling, but good flesh, with Goats very fat and large, Arabian fleepe, Henne-, Cocos, Oranges, Limons, Limes in great abundance, which we bought for Callicoes, Hollands, or other linnens, Sword-blades, and Rialls of eight, and their fruits for Glasses, Kniues and trisles: what societ is bought for money is bought

Here was in trade a lunke of Madagascar with slaves : the Pilote of the lunke called Maline Abrinne Spake Portuguife, and told me on the South-fide of S. Laurence, there was store of Amber-greece, and Cocos of the Sea; hee was skillall in the coast, and in the lying and bearing of lands, both in course and distance. He had a great parchment Cord, lined and graduated orderly, which I fent to fee: he found fault with many things in my Card at hight, which I mented by his direction, and with reason, as the distance from Socatra from the Maine, and rating quite out certaine Hands to the Southward of Mslalia, affirming there are none such : his countrey lyes from one degree fiftie minutes, to foure degrees, the Port in two degrees tenne minutes North latitude, governed by one King; he affured me of trade enough at his port to load one thip with 60 Marfill, Amber, and Tinta Roxa: he promifed to bring me his Plot and foundings, and a fample of Tinta Roxa, but some other cause discreted him, that he would come no more at me, not withfranding I dealt liberally with him in prefent and in promifes. To the South of Magadoxa, all the Ports are governed by Moorish petty Kings, even to Mosambique: he perswaded me that wee might in many places trade for Gold and Silver; that in Magadoxa the houles roofes were gilt, that they had gold in fand, and mingled with earth, which they effeeme not : of the Inland hee knew little, onely naming fome places or Regions betweene Magadoxa and Prester John, as Odnla Mabefa, Rehamy and Gala, of which Odela and Gala, are Chaphares which fignifieth mif-beleeuers; I know not whether he meanes Gentiles or Christians, vising the fame promisesously alwel to Prester John as to other Gentiles. Of Prester John, he knoweth no more, then that hee is a great Prince and a Caphar: from Magadoxo to Cambaya, hee was expert, his brother who came with him to me, was in fight against the Hope in a Portugail ship, pressed from Damon, in which fortie fine were flaine, more he knew not, but that three thips were burned, and the reff run away: Coast, Damon, he faid the King of Dabul tooke courage on this victorie and furprifed Chaul, Damon, & other the Portugals Port Townes, was marching to Goa, that the Portugal was in great diffreste of victuals. 10 I hoped to have flored my felfe with more discourse from him, but I was , I know not how preuented: it were time well bestowed to see this Coast, and I spake to some of it, but it fared the

538

> The Road of Molalia lyes in twelve degrees ten minutes, and for the first fixe dayes the Current lets two leagues a watch South-west, the Moone increasing at the ful, we woond vo Northeast the other way but very easily, for the most part riding upon the Current. The Magadoxian made fome abfurdly beleeue, that the Current fet fifteene dayes one way, and fifteene another, and fifteene dayes thill: which because of the first fixe dayes it set South-west, and after wee woond up North-east, it begot the opinion of a wonder, but the Current sets constantly Southweil, and before the full of the Moone, it had fuch power on the ebbe and floud that wee neuer 20 woond, but at the full Moone and Spring-tydes we roade upon the floud against the Current it ranning under, and the tyde aboue, highing fixteene foote water, and the ebbe winding backe with the Current, fo that the supposed chance of the Current, was on the strong tydes, at the full Moone ouercomming it aboue: for at Sea when the fpring was past, I found the same Current, and though we were fet to the Eastward the first day we weighed, vnto the Westward the next, the cause was the Eddies of Inanny one day, and Angazesia the other, but being cleere of them it fet his due courfe, that I raifed little, and did West-ward much.

The fourteenth of August, in the morning we saw the Coast of Magadoxia in four degrees of North latitude foure leagues off founding, had eighteene fathome of low land, white fandie bankes. Then wee flood off East North-east, the difference of longitude betweene the Maine 30 and Molalia in Mercators protection, agreeing with our account. And also by course having found the longitude of Cape Saint Augustine and Molalia to be one : I conclude that Saint Laurence ought to be laid to the East thirtie nine or fortie leagues according to my first opinion, and all the Coast of the Maine being broader then it is land in the Card, must be also set in proportion to the East-ward, because the distance of longitude is right from one to the other, though all their longitude false in themselves : from Malalia, to fall with Cape de Busos, North North-east one quarter East way is the best course, it being necessary to see the Mayne about the latitude in this course since we lost the Westerly Current at Angazesia, I found none or very little contrary to all Icurnals, our Mariners in this courle are of as many opinions as points in the Compelle, both for Currents, diffances and bearings according to Compaffe or Variation; but I observed the 40 truth in the latter and of this South-well Monton, which, I confelle, may alter in the heart of a contrary Monton, the fetlednesse of the wind causing much change in the Currents, of which no rule can be sinen.

Abdelators or Abbadelcuria. They loft di-Anchors.

The two and twentieth, at Abdalacora and the high lands of Socatra, the windes powred downe with fuch impetuos fielde, and the ground for oekie, that I adulte all to forbeare to anchor vnder them, for if they be put from their anchors in the night, they shall fall so farre to leeward, that they cannot recover the Hand, but must lose company but if night or weather force them to anchor, let them chuse to ride where some lower land breakes the violence of the wind from the hils. Wee rode in the second quarter of the increasing Moone, which rose then about the Horizon about twelue at noone, and fet at midmight, at which time these winds begun to rage so long. as she is under the earth, and riting agains it becomes temperate, the Moone is a great Ladie of weather in these parts and requires much observation.

Tamera.

Delicia.

The three and twentieth, we weighed together and came to anchor afore Tamara, the Kings Towne, bringing the low point to the East of the high fundre bill without it East by North in ten fathome water a mile from the Towne: here the Saltan fent vs word, the winds were from the hils fo forcible that we should hardly ride, but adulfed vs to goe to Baia Delicia, two leagues to the East where he would meete vs: it is a very good Road deferring the name of delightfull for the peaceablenelle thereof in respect of others: it is a Valley of much lower hils; betweene the water and the raggie Mountaines of Tamera, you may bring the two little Homocks that lye on the low point without the high land to the East-ward South-east, and the low land that was East by North in Tamera Road North-west by West, and ride in centathome within three quarters of a mile of the moare, latitude is thirteene degrees fine minutes, the variation eighteene degrees twentie minutes, the ground is white land, but rockie folthat you must coatch or hov your Gables.

Socatra is an Hand in the mouth of the Red Sea, called anciently Diofeoria or Diofeorida, fran- Swara, or ding in twelve degrees fiftie five minutes, governed by a Sultan called Amar-Ben-Seid borne in Sociona, the Hand, the Sonne of the King Farteque in Arabia Falix called Sultan-Seid-Ben-Seid, who was Sultan of Socatra, in the time of his Grand-father, as this shall be King after his Father of Farraque, and his sonne left at Socatra (the Kingdome of Fartaque lyes from fifteene degrees to eighteene degrees along the Coast of Arabia, and to the North to the Mountaines, he is at peace with the Turke, (who holds all Arabia in Tribute, except this Countrey) on this condition to fend fine thousand men in ayd of the Turke, if he require it to bee paid by the Turke, without otheracknowledgement. There lyes neere the Sea a pettie King about Dofar, with whom he dares to not meddle, being in the Grand Seigniors protection. This is the relation of Amar-Ben-Seid of Socatra. The Sultan of Socatra met our Fleet with three hundred or thereabouts, having fet vp a Tent at Baia Delecia: he rode vpon a Horse, and three of his chiefe Seruants on two Horses and one Camell, the people marching before and behind him, shouting after the Turkish manner, with two Guards, one of Souldiers, which are his Countreymen, and twelue of private Guard, hired Guzerats, some with Turkib Bowes, some with Pistols, some with Muskets, all with good Swords, he had a few Kettle Drummes, and one Trumpet. When the Generall went ashoare, he received him with flate and courtefie: he is a fubtile man of good understanding, as appeares by his Gouernment and divers Answeres; hee raignes so absolutely that no man can fell any thing but himfelfe, his people fit about him with great respect, his Officers standing by, who take account of Trade, and receive and pay : his clothes are of Surat Stuffes , after the Arabs manner with a Caffock of wrought Veluet red and white, and another the ground Gold, a very good Turbant, but bare-footed, every night at Sun-fet they fland or kneele all towards the Sunne and pray, the Xeriff throwing water on their heads : their Religion is Mahometan: the Kings Towne of Tamara, is built of lime and flone whited ouer, battelled and pinnacled, the houses being flat at the top it shewes faire in the Road, but when one is there is but poore : Mafter Boughton berrowed the Kings horse, and obtayned leave to see his house, the King fending a Sheck with him, he found it not answerable to the appearances, yet such as an ordinary Gentleman might make a shift with in England, his lower roomes were vsed as Ware-houses, one as a Wardrope, where hung a long the wals some changes of Robes, and twentie fine Bookes of their Law, Religion, Storie, and Saints lives, of which I could obtayne none, but above no man may come to fee his Wines which are three, nor other women, but the ordinary are seene in the Townes, with their eares full of filuer Rings; in the Church the Priest was at feruice, but seeing Matter Boughton take out his Watch, hee foone finished and came and wondred. There was provided three Hennes for their dinner with Rice, and for drinke water and Cobu, blacke liquor taken as hot as may be en- cobii. dured: at his returne, the King in complement faid, hee had feene a poore place, but defired him to accept it. There is a Caffle foure square on a hill, a mile from Tamara, but he could not get licence to see it. The people are of foure fores, Arabs his Countrymen, who it seemes are his strength, and fuch as are not the ancient Inhabitants, but come in with the Conquest of his Ancestors, and 40 those obey him, and dare not speake without licence, as appeared, when one seemed of qualitie to speake, he asked him how hee durst open his mouth in his presence, but approching kisse his hand. A fecond fort are of Slaues, who when they come to him kiffe his foot, and thefe doe all his worke and make his Aloes. A third fort, as I suppose, the olde Inhabitants of the Countrey, but not the eldeft, called Bedwines , the same which other Historians have called Iacobits Chriflians, that have long dwelt there, with thefe he hath had a warre, as the Arabs report; and dwell in the Mountaines very populous but are now at peace, on condition to line quietly, and to breed their children Mahometans, which I perceive they doe not, having no manner of converfation with the Arabs. The reason why I take them to be the old lacobite Christians, mentioned by Maginas, Purchas and others, is because Master Boughton faw an old Church of theirs in the way to Tamara, left detolate, the doore shut, but onely eyed, being detirous to enter it, the Sheek his guide told him it was full of Spirits, yet he aduentured in and found an Altar with Images, and a croffe vponit, which he brought out, then the Shecke told him they were a people of another Religion, but very loth to have them much enquired after, as I suspect, knowing them to be a kind of Christians, doubting we would either with them better, or not fuffer them to bee opprefied. The fourth fort are a lauage people, poore, leane, naked, with long haire, eating nothing but Roots, hiding in bushes, concerfing with none, afraid of all, without houses, and almost as fauage as beafts, and by conjecture, the true ancient Naturals of this Iland.

The Hand is very mountainous and barren : having some Beeues, Goates and Sheepe, a few Dates and Oranges, a little Rice and nothing elle for fuftenance, of commoditie they have Aloes, 60 Which is the juyce of a leafe like Semperaina, they make a poore cloth of their Wooll for their

The King had Sanguis Draconis, and Indico of Labor, but held it deare : many finall Civit Cats and Ciuit : all is either the Kings, or paffes his hands and price. He hath a handsome Galley and luncke of Smat, with Mariners, that ferue him to transport his goods for wages by the yeare. The King hath some knowledge of Preser lobn; confessing him the greatest Prince in the World, about the Turke and Persian, guing faire reasons for his opinion: he hath among his slaues divers Abbassines. Hearing our hoy-boyes in the Generals boat, hee asked if they were the Plalmer of David? and being answered yes: hee replyed, it was the invention of the Devill, who did inuent it: for King Danid, who before prayled God with his lips and heart in deuction, but after it was left to fenceleffe Instruments. They bury their dead all in Tombes, and have in great reuerence the Monuments of their Saints, whereof there have been many: But of most account Serdy Hachim, buried at Tamara, who being flaine one hundred yeares fince by the Portugally once inhabiting heere, appeares to them, and warnes them of dangers to enfue. They impute the violence of winds to his walking, and haue him in wonderfull reuerence. I neuer went afficare, ie not knowing what entertainment I should find, in respect of the quality I beare, but gleanevp the most probable reports. If I had gone my telfe, and conferred with the King, or could have fpoken with any of his people of understanding, I had enquired further to fatisfie the curious: But all the Interpreters followed the Generall, that I had no oportunity.

Prester Iohn. The English arrive at Brampore. LIB. IIII.

Admice not to flay outwards

I give my aduce that the Fleet stop not at all outwards, bound at Socatra: But from Molalia hauing made Cape Guardafui, and there rested a convenient time for refreshing, or attending the latter end of the Monfon, if it be soone in the yeare, shape their course right for Surat. It it be objected, that they shall want their visuall refreshings : I answere, at Socatra the vistualls is both carrion, and as deare as in England, goodnesse considered, the water farre to fetch and dangerous, fo that every Fleet hath loit lome men in rowling it downe a streame full of deepe holes. At 22 Cape Guarda-fui you shall ride at ease, and without doubt trade plentifully and cheape, and sish at pleasure : and though we made no experience of trade, yet wee faw people in Turbants and cloathed, who affiredly, if we had flayed, might have been drawne to bring downe cattell; for not farre to the West of that place, Sir Henry Middleton, and some other ships had excellent Goats and theepe for trifles, as both his Journall, and Mafter Barret of his owne experience have enformed mee.

ð. II.

His iourney to the Court, and entertainment there, and Customes thereof.

September 26. Vification of Sultan Paruis.

He fix and twentieth of September, I landed, accompanied with the Generall and principall Merchants: Captaine Horsis was fent to make me a Court of gurd, with one hundred thought and the hips in their best equipage, giving mee their Ordance as I palled. (The pullages between the Embassador and toole of Surat domn; then bathers.) rous crestomes and actions holding foill correspondence with his honorable condition, and civill conditions, that even heere also it would be barsh to the Reader : we will therefore find him removing from them in his way toward the Court.)

The fifteenth of Nouember, I arrived at Brampore, being by my coniecture two hundred 40 twenty three miles from Surat, and the course wholly East, a miserable and barren Countrey, the Townes and Villages all built of mudde, so that there is not a house for a man to rethin. This day at Batherport, a Village two mile short of Brampore is their Store-house of Ordnance. I taw divers of braffe, but generally too short, and too wide bored. Betweene that and Brampore I was met by the Cuiwall, well accompanied, and fixteene Colours caried before them : he brought mee to the Saralia, where I was appointed to lodge, where at the gate hee tooke his leute, being a handsome front of stone: but when I entered, I had four chambers allotted me, like Ouens, no bigger, round at the top, made of bricke in a wall-file; this troubled mee, but my Tints were my refuge, and I fent the Cutwall word I would depart the Towne, forning fo meane viage : hee defired me to be content untill morning. Heere lives Sultan Permes, the Kings fecond forme, holding the State and cultome of his Father; and the Channa Channa being the greatest subject of the State and cultome of his Father; and the Channa Channa being the greatest subject of the State and cultome of his Father; and the Channa Channa being the greatest subject of the State and cultome of his Father; and the Channa Channa being the greatest subject to the state of the State and cultome of his Father; and the Channa Channa being the greatest subject to the state of the st the Mogoll, Generall of his Armies, whereof fortie thousand horse are with him: The Prince hath the name and state, but the Chan gouernes all.

The eighteenth, for many confiderations, as well to fee the falhions of the Court, as to content the Prince, who defired it, and I was loath to diffafte him, because there was some purpose of erecting a Factory in the Towne; and I found by experience Sword-blades were well fold in the Armie; I went to visite the Prince, and carryed him a Prefent. I was brought in by the Cutwall: at the outward Court were about one hundred horsemen armed, being Gentlemen that attend the Princes letting out to falute him, making a lane of each fide : in the inner Court hee fate high in a Gallery that went round, with a Canopy ouer him, and a Carpet before him, in 60 great, but burdarous State. Comming toward him thorow a lane of people, an Officer came and brought me word I must touch the ground with my head, and my hat off : I answered, I came in honour to fee the Prince, and was free from the custome of Seruants. So I passed on, till I came to a place railed in, right under him, with an afcent of three steps, where I made him reverence, and he bowed his body; and fo went within it, where flood round by the fides all the great men of the Towne, with their hands before them like Slages; the place was concred our - lead with a rich Canopie, and vnderneath, all Carpets. To describe it rightly, it was like a great Stage, and the Prince fate about as the Mock-Kings doe there. When I was entered, I knew not where to be placed, but went right, and stood before him, where there is an alcent of three steppes, vpon which frands his Secretary, to deliuer what is faid or given briefely. I told him, being an Emballador from the King of England to his father, and passing by, I could not but in honour visite him: he replyed I was very welcome, and asked me many questions of the King to which Ireplyed as I thought fit : but standing in that manner below, I demanded licence to come up and 10 Hand by him. He answered, If the King of Fersia or the Great Tarke were there, it might not be admitted. Ireplyed that I must bee excused, for I doubted not hee would come downe and meete them at his gate; but I defired no more priviledge, then the Emballadors of fuch Princes had, to whom I held my felfe equall: he protested I had that, and should in all things. Then I demanded a Chaire, but I was answered no man ever sate in that place : but I was defired, as a courtesie, to case my selfe against a pillar, couered aboue with silver, that held up his Canopie, Then I moved him for his favour for an English Factory to be refident in the Towne, which hee willingly granted, and gaue prefent order to the Buxy, to draw a Firma both for their comming vp, and for their refidence. I also defired his authoritie for cariages for the Kings Prefents, which he gaue in charge to the Cutwall. Then I gaue him my Prefents, which hee tooke in good part. 20 and after some other questions, he said to give me content, although I might not come vo where he fate, he would go into another place, where I should come vnto him; but one of my Prefents was a Cafe of Bottells, which tooke him up by the way, and after I had flayed a while I heard he was drunke, and one of his Officers came to mee in his name, with an excuse, defiring mee to goe home, and to take some other time to returne to visite him : this night I tooke my feauer. The fixt of December, we lodged in a wood, not farre from the Kings famous Caftle of Mandoa which stands on a steepe hill, walled round in circuit fourteene Course: the Cattle is faire, and of wonderfull greatnesse.

The two and twentieth, Master Edwards met me, accompanied with Thomas Coryat, who had Moster Ed-The two and twentiern, manet Lemma and the state of the rest of th 30 peares a Tombeof wonderfull magnificence: there flands about one hundred Churches, all of Gire. carned stone, many faire Towers and Lanthornes cut thorow many pillars, and innumerable houfes, but no one Inhabitant : there is but one afcent to the hill, it being precipitious, floaping vp. cut out of the Rocke, having foure gates in the afcent, before one arrive at the City gate, which is magnificent: the hill is incompassed at the top about eight Course, and at the South-west end a goodly old cattle: I lodged by a poore Village at the foot of the hill. This Citie flands in the countrey of one Ranna, a Prince newly subdued by this King, or rather bought to confesse Tribute. Ranna, The Citie was wonne by Echarsha, father to this Mogoll. Rama is rightly descended from Porus. that valiant Indian, ouercome by Alexander : so that I take this Citie to have been one of the ancient Seats of Porus, though Dely much further North be reported to have been the chiefell, fa-40 mous now only in ruines. Neare that stands a pillar, erected by Alexander the Conqueror, with a great inscription. The present Mogolland his Ancestors, descendants of Tamberlane, have brought all the ancient Cities to ruine, having dispeopled them, and forbidden reparation, ! know not out of what reason, valesse they would have nothing remembred of greatnesse beyond their beginnings, as if their Family and the world were equalls.

The three and twentieth, I arrived at Adsmeere, two hundred and nine Courses from Brampare, foure hundred and eighteene English miles, the Courses being longer then toward the Sea. I kept my bed.

The tenth of Ianuary, I went to Court at foure in the evening to the Durbar, which is the Ianuary 104 place where the Mogoil firs out daily, to entertaine strangers, to receive Petitions and Pre-10 lents, to give commands, to lee and to be feene. To digreffe a little from my reception, and declire the customes of the Court, will enlighten my future discourte. The King bath no man but Eu- Eunucher only nuches that comes within the lodgings or retyring roomes of his houle: his women watch with, and women in, and guard him with manly weapons, they doe milice one upon another for offences. Hee his boulhold comes every morning to a window called the Jarrneo, looking into a Plane before his gate, and Courier. shewes himselfe to the common people. At moone he returnes thither, and fits some houses to fee the fight of Elephants and wilde beafts. Vnder him within a raile attend the men of rancke: from whence he retyres to fleep among his women. At after-noone he returnes to the Darbar hefore mentioned. At eight after supper he comes downe to the Guzelcan, a faire Court, whrein in the middelt is a Throne creeted of free-stone, wherein near any formetimes below in a chaire, to which are none admitted but of great quality, and for or these without leave, where hee discourses of all matters with much affabilitie. There is no rulance done with him concerning the State, Gouernment, disposition of War or peace, but at one of these two last places where it is publishely propounded and refolued, and to regulared, which it is were worth the curioficie, might be feene for two shillings: but the common base people knew as much as the Councell, and the newes every day, is the Kings new refolutions, toffed and cenfured by every rakall. This course is vnchangeable, except ficknesse or drinke preuent it, which must be knowne: for as all the Kings pre- his Subjects are flaues, fo is hee in a kind of reciprocall bondage, for hee is tyed to observe these houres and cultoms fo precifely, that if he were volcene one day, and no fufficient reason rendred. the people would mutinie; two dayes no reason can excuse, but that he must consent to open his docres, and be feene by fome, to fatisfie others. On Tuesday at the Iarrneo he lits in Iudgement, neuer refusing the poorest mans complaint: where he heares with patience both parts, and sometimes fees, with too much delight in blood, the execution done by his Elephants. Illimerure. fed quid tu vt adeffes?

543

Hiscomming

At the Durbar I was led right before him: at the entrance of an outward raile, where met 10 mee two principall Noble Slaues to conduct me nearer. I had required before my going leaue to vie the cultomes of my Countrey, which was freely granted, so that I would performe them pun-Stully. When I entered within the first raile, I made a reuerence; entring in the inward raile. another; and when I came vnder the King, a third. The place is a great Court, whither refortall forts of people. The King fits in a little Gallery ouer-head; Ambassadors, the great men and strangers of quality within the inner-most rate vnder him, raised from the ground, coursed with Canopies of Veluet and Silke; under-foote laid with good Carpets: the meaner men reprefenting Genery, within the first raile: the people without, in a bale Court, but so that all may see the King. This fitting out hath so much affinity with a Theatre, the manner of the King in Lis Face of the Prefence like a Gallery; the great men lifted on a Stage, as Actors; the Vulgar below gazing on, that an easie 20 description will enforme of the place and fathion. The King preuented my dull Interpreter hidding me welcome, as to the Brother of my Mafter. I delinered his Maieflies Letter translated; and after, my Commission, whereon he looked curiously; after, my Presents, which were well receiued. He asked some questions; and with a feeming care of my health, offered me his Physitions, and adulfing me to keepe my house till I had reconered strength, and if in the interim I necded any thing, I should freely lend to him, and obtains my delires. He dismissed me with more fauour and outward grace, if by the Christians I were not flattered, then euer was showen to any Ambassador either of the Turke or Persian, or other whatsoever. The fourteenth, I fent to the Prince Sultan Coronne, his third fonne by birth, but first in fall uour, that I determined to visite him, not doubting he would vie me with due respect : for I was 30 enformed he was enemie to all Christians, and therefore feared some affront. Hee answered I should be welcome, and receive the same content I had from his father. He is Lord of Surat our chiefe residence, and his fauour important for vs.

The two and twentieth, I visited the Prince, who at nine in the morning sits out in the same His conditions, manner (as his Father) to dispatch his businesse, and to be seene of his followers. He is proud naturally, and I feared my entertainment. But on tome occasion henot resoluting to come out, when he heard of my arrivall, fent a principall Officer to meete me, who conducted mee into a good roome (neuer before done to any) and entertaine mee with discourse of our owne businesse halfe an houre, vntill the Prince was ready, who came abroad on purpose, and vied mee better then his promife. I deliuered him a Prefent, such as I had, but not in the name of his Maieslie, itbe-40 ing too meane; but excufed it, that the King could not take knowledge of his being Lord of Surat fo lately conferred on him, but hereafter I doubted not his Maiefly would fend to him according to his worth. This was the respect of the Merchants, who humbly commended themfelues to his fauour and protection. He received all in very good part and after opening of some grievances and miuries suffered at Swat by vs from his Governours, of which for respect to him I had forborne to complaine to the King', hee promifed mee speedie and effectuall lustice, and to confirme our securitie by any propositions I should offer, professing to be ignorant of any thing past, but what he had received by Asaph Chan, delivered by mee; especially of any command to difmiffe vs. which the Governour had fallely coyned, and for which hee should dearely answere. So he dismiffed me, full of hope to rectifie the decayed estate of our recutation, with 50 promise of a Firman for Surat effectually.

His fecond

The foure and twentieth, I went to the Durbar to visite the King, who seeing me a farre off, beckned with his hand, giving figne I should not stay the ceremony of asking leave, but come vp to him, where he appointed me a place aboue all other men, which I after thought fit to maintaine : I gaue him a small Present ; it being the cultome, when any body hath businesse, to give fomewhat, and those that cannot come neare to speake, fend in, or hold up their gift; which he excepts, be it but a Rupie, and demands their businesse. The same course he held with mee, hauing looked curroully, and asked many questions of my Present, he demanded what I required of him : I answered lustice ; that on the affurance of his Maiesties Firman sent into England, the King my Mafter had not only given leave to many of his Subjects to come a dangerous Voyage 60 with their goods, but had fent me to congratulate the amity fo happily becam betweene two to mighty Nations, and to confirme the fame : but that I found the English, leated at Amadamus, miured by the Gouernour in their persons and goods, fined, exacted upon, and kept as prisoners, that at every Towne ne w Cultomes were taken of our goods, pailing to the Port, contrary to all

Juffice and the former Articles of Trade. To which he answered he was fory, it should be amended, and presently gave order for two Firmans, very effectually, according to my defire to be fig- Two rimans ned, one to the Gouernour of Amadanas, to restore money exacted from Master Kerridge, and to granted to the vie the English with all fanour : the other to release all customes required on any pretence on the 4.16%. way : or it any had been taken, to repay it of his owne accord : withing mee, that if thefe gaue not freedy remedy, I should renue my complaint against the disobeye;, and he should be sent for to aniwere there: and fo he difmifled me.

The first of March, I rode to see a house of pleasure of the Kings, given him by Asaph Chan, March to two miles from Adfmeere, but betweene two mightie Rockes, fo defended from the Sunne, that to it learce any way fees it; the foundation cut out of them, and some roomes, the rest of free-stone. a handsome little Garden with fine fountaines, two great Tankes, one thirty steps about another; the way to it is inacceffable, but for one or two in front, and that very steepe and stony, a place of much melancholy delight and fecuritie, onely beeing accompanied with wild Peacocks, Turtles, fowle, and Munkeyes, that inhabite the Rockes hanging every way over it. The second, the Norose began in the Evening. It is a custome of solemnizing the new yeare, The Norosea yet the Ceremonie begins the first new Moone after it, which this yeare fell together : it is kept folemne Feath in imitation of the Persians feast, and signifies in that language Nine dayer, for that anciently it and Rives endured no longer, but now it is doubled. The manner is, there is erected a throne foure foote thereof. from the ground, in the Durbar Court, from the backe whereof, to the place where the King to comes out a square of fiftie fixe paces long, and fortie three broad was rayled in, and couered ouer with faire Semianes or Canopies of Cloth of Gold, Silke, or Veluet ioyned together, and fullained with Canes fo couered: at the upper end West, were set out the Pictures of the King of England, the Queene, the Lady Elizabeth, the Countesses of Somer set and Salisbury, and of a Citizens wife of London; below them an other of Sir Thomas Smith, Gouernour of the East-India Companie: wnder foot it is laid with good Persian Carpets of great largeness; into which place come all the men of qualitie to attend the King, except some few that are within a little ralle right before the Throne, to receive his Commands, within this square there were set out for shew many little houses, one of Silver, and some other curiotities of price. The Prince, Sultan Corome had at the left file a Paulion, the supporters whereof were couered with Silier, as were some of those also 30 neere the Kings Throne: the former thereof was fquare, the matter wood, inlayed with mother of Pearle, borne vp with foure pille, and couered with cloth of Gold: about the edge ouer-head like a valence, was a net fringe of good Pearle, voon which hung downe Pomgranats, Apples, Peares, and fuch fruits of Gold, but hollow; within that the King fate on Cushions, very rich in Pearles, in lewels round about the Court; before the Throne the Principall men had erected Tents, which encompassed the Court, and lined them with Veluet, Damaske, and Taffatae ordinarily, some few with cloth of Gold, wherein they retired, and set to shew all their wealth: for anciently the Kings were vied to goe to every Tent, and there take what pleased them; but now it is changed, the King fitting to receive what New-yeeres gifts are brought to him. Hee comes abroad at the viual houre of the Durbar, and retires with the samethere are offered to him by all 40 forts great gifts, though not equall to report, yet incredible enough : and at the end of this Feaft the King in recompence of the Prefents received, advanceth fome, and addeth to their entertainment some horse at his pleasure.

The twelfth, I went to visit the King, and was brought right before him, expecting a prefent which I deliuered to his extraordinary content; so he appointed I should be directed within the raile to stand by him, but I beeing not suffered to step vp vpon the riling, on which the Throne stood, could see little, the rayle beeing high, and doubled with Carpets, but I had lessure to view the inward roome, and the beauty thereof, which I confesse was rich, but of so divers pieces, and fo vnfutable, that it was rather patched then glorious, as if it feemed to ffrine to fliewe all, like a Lady that with her Plate, fet on a Cupboord her imbroydered Slippers. This Euening was the fonne of Ranna his new Tributory brought before him with much ceremonie, kneeling three times, and knocking his head on the ground : he was fent by his Father with a Prefent, and was brought within the little raile, the King embracing him by the head; his gift was an Indian voy. der full of Silver, upon that a carved Silver dish full of Gold; so he was lead toward the Prince. Some Elephants were shewed, and some Whoores did sing and dance; Sic transit gloria Mundi.

The thirteenth at night, I went to the Guffell Chan, where is belt opportunitie to doe buffneffe, and tooke with me the Italian, determining to walke no longer in darkneffe, but to produce the King, being in all other wayes delayed and refused; I was sent for in with my old Broaker, markeable. but my Int. referer was kept out: Afaph Chan miltrusting I would vtter more then he was willing to heare. When I came to the King, he appointed me a place to fland inft before him, and fent to aske mee many questions about the King of England, and of the Prefent I gaue the day Lefore: to some of which I answered; but at last I faid, my Interpretor was kept out, I could fprake no Porturall, and to wanted meanes to fatisfie his Maieflie, whereat (much against Afaph Characteristic was a mitted. I had him tell the King, I defired to speake to him; he answered, Venlingly: whereat Afaph Chans fonne in law, pulled him by force away, and that faction hedged the King fo, that I could fearce fee him, nor the other approach him. So I commanded the Italian to speake aloud, that I craued audience of the King, whereat the King called me, and they made me way. Asaph Chan flood on one fide of my Interpreter, and I on the other: I to enforme him in mine owne caute, he to awe him with winking and logging. I bad him fay, that I now had been here two Moneths, whereof more then one was passed in sickenesse, the other in Complements, and nothing effected toward the ende for which my Mafter had employed mee, which was to conclude a firme and constant love and peace betweene their Maiestier, and to establish a was to continue a name and command of the faire and fecure Trade and refidence for my Countrey-men. He answered, that was already granted. I replyed it was true, but it depended yet on so light a thred, on so weake conditions, that being of luch importance, it required an agreement cleare in all points, and a more formall and authentique confirmation, then it had by ordinary Firmans, which were temporary commands, and respected accordingly. He asked me what Presents we would bring him. I answered, the League was yet new, and very weake: that many Curiofities were to bee found in our Countrey of rare price and estimation, which the King would send, and the Merchants seeke out in all parts of the world, if they were once made secure of a quiet trade and protection on honourable Conditions, having been heretofore many wayes wronged.

He asked what kind of curiofities those were I mentioned, whether I meant Iewels and rich ftones. I answered, No: that we did not thinke them fit Presents to fend backe, which were brought first from these parts, whereof he was chiefe Lord; that we eftermed them common here, and of much more price with vs: but that we fought to finde fuch things for his Maiestie, as were rate here, and volcene, as excellent artifices in painting, carving, cutting, enamelling, figures in Braffe, Copper, or Stone, rich embroyderies, stuffes of Gold and Siluer. He said it was very well: but that hee desired an English horse: I answered, it was impossible by Sea, and by Land the Turke would not suffer passage. He replyed, that hee thought it not impossible by Sea. Itold him, the dangers of flormes, and varietie of weather would prooue it. Hee answered, if fixe were put into a ship, one might liue; and though it came leane, he would fat it. I replied, I was confident it could not be in folong a Voyage, but that for his Maiesties satisfaction, I would write to aduife of his request. So he asked, what was it then I demanded! I faid, that hee would bee pleased to signe certains reasonable conditions, which I had conceived for the confirmation of the League, and for the fecuritie of our Nation, and their quiet trade, for that they had beene often wronged, and could not continue on such tearmes, which I feebeare to complaine of, hoping by 30 faire meanes to procure amendment. At this word, Asaph Chan offered to pull my Interpreter; but I held him, fuffering him onely to winke and make unprofitable figues.

The King hereat grew fuddenly into choller, preffing to know who had wronged vs, with fuch shew of fury, that I was loath to follow it, and speaking in broken Spanish to my Interpreter, to answer, That with what was past I would not trouble his Maiestie, but would seeke Iuflice of his Sonne, the Prince, of whose favour I doubted not. The King not attending my Interpreter, but hearing his Sonnes name, conceiued I had accufed him, faying, Mio Filio, Mio Filio, Mio Filio, and called for him; who came in greatfeare, humbling himfelfe: Afapb Chao trembled, and all of them were amazed. The King chid the Prince roundly, and he excused himselfe, but I perceiuing the Kings error, made him (by meanes of a Persian Prince, offering himselfe to interpret, becaule my Italian spake better Turkish then Persian ) and the Prince both vinderstand the mistaking, and to appealed him, faying, I did no way accuse the Prince, but would in causes part in his Gouernement, appeale to him for Iustice, which the King commanded hee should doe effectually. The Prince for his instification, told the King he had offered me a Firman, and that I had refused they were found reasonable, the King would firme them; to which the King replyed, yes; and 1 defired his Sonne would doe the like, who answered he would: so the King role. But Icalling

it: demanding the reason: I answered, I humbly thanked him, but he knew it contained a condition which I would not accept of; and that further I did defire to propound our owne demands, wherein I would containe all the defires of my Mafter at once, that I might not daily trouble them with complaints, and wherein I would reciprocally bind my Soueraigne to mutuall offices of friendship; and his Subiects to any fuch conditions, as his Majetly would reasonably propound, 50 whereof I would make an offer, which beeing drawne Tripartite, his Majetly (I hoped) would figne the one, the Prince the other, and in my Masters behalfe I would firme the third. The King pressed to know the Conditions I refused in the Princes Firman, which I recited, and so we fell into earnest dispute, and some heate. Mocrib Chan enterposing, said, he was the Portugals adback-friend to uocate; speaking slightly of vs, that the King should never signe any Article against them. I anfwered, I propound none against them, but in our owne just desence; and I did not take him for fach a friend to them: the lefuite and all the Portugals fide fell in, in fo much that I explained my felfe fully concerning them; and as I offered a conditionall peace, fo I fet their friendship at a mean rate, and their hatred or force at lesse. The King answered, my demands were just, resolution noble, and bad me propound. Afaph Chan that flood mute all this discourse, and defired to end it, 60 least it breake out againe ( for we were very warme) enterpoled, that if wee talked all night it would come to this iffue, that I should draw my demands in writing, and present them, and if

to him, he turned about, and I bad my Interpreter fay, That I came the day before to fee his Maiestie, and his greatnesse, and the Ceremonies of this Feast, that I was placed behind him, I confeffed with honour, but I could not fee abroad; and that therefore I defired his Maiestie to licence me to frand up by his Throne; whereat he commanded Afaph Chan to let mee choose my owne

The foureteenth in the morning, I fent a Messenger to Asaph Chan, least hee or the Prince might mistake me by the Kings mistakings, that I had complained against them, which as I did not, to it was not yet in my purpole: onely I was willing to let them fee, I did not fo depend on Asaph Chan, by whose mouth I vied to doe my bufinesse; but that if he continued his manner of neuer delivering what I faid, but what he pleafed; I would find another way. My meffage was to cleare any such doubt, if it remained; or if not, to entreat him that he would foften the Prince in my demands concerning Surat. He answered, Neither the Prince nor hee had any reason to fulpect, my purpole was to complaine of them: that the error was enident enough, for his part he had ever had the love of the English, and would endeauour to continue it.

The fixe and twentieth of Aprill, I received intelligence, that the Prince caused one of his Seruants at the Durbar, to aske the King why he vied io good countenance to the English, that for their cause the Portugals were barred the Port of Surat, who brought more profit to the King, as many Ballaces, Pearles, and Iewels, whereas the English came onely to feeke profit, with Cloth, Swords, and Kniues of little estimation. The King answered onely, it was true, but who 20 could mend it. Hereby the Princes good affection was manifest, and I had faire warning to bee watchfull, and to fludy to preserue our selues in the Kings grace, in which onely wee were fafe; but I resolued to take notice of this, and to make proofe if I could settle a better opinion in the Prince of our Nation.

The two and twentieth of May, I went to the Durbar to visit the King, and to defire his authoritie to have one lones a youth, that was runne away from mee to an Italian, and protected himselfe under the name of the King to the infamy of our Nation. The King gaue order for his deliuerie, but the Prince who euer waited opportunitie to difgrace our Nation for the cause of his Fauorite Zulpheckarcon with whom I was newly broken off from conference, and had fent the Prince word I would no longer forbeare opening my cause to the King, mooued the King in pri-30 uate to fend for the youth first, which at the Gufel Chan hee did : and the Prince giving him countenance, he railed to my face with most virulent malice, desiring the King to faue his life, fo. the King resolued not to deliuer him to me, but to fend him Prisoner to Surat, but the Prince to braue me, begged him for his feruant, the fellow having quite renounced his Countrey, the King gaue him to the Prince, notwithstanding any reasons I could alledge: so the Prince presently gaue him one hundred and fiftie Rupias, and the pay of two Horse, and forbade mee to meddle

The three and twentieth, at night my man came and fell at my feet, asking pardon for his lying and madnesse, and offered to submit himselfe in any kind. I told him I would not now keepe him Prisoner he was the Princes seruant, but that before I could give him any answere he should 40 make me publike fatisfaction as farre as he was able.

The foure and twentieth, lones made meanes to come to the Gufel Chan, and there asked pardon of the King for his lyes, denying every word hee had spoken, and to have been done to protect himselfe from me, whom he had offended, desiring the King to fend for me that he might there aske my pardon the King was well pleased. But the Prince fell into a great rage.

The flue and twentieth, I went to the Guzelean, where after many protestations of the King, that he neuer beleeved him, that he was a Villaine, yet that hee could doe no leffe but protect him, having cast himselfe into his mercy: the youth was sent for, who on his knees asked mee forguenesse, and on his oath swore to the King, that he had in every particular belyed me, which he professed to doe voluntarie, for that he durit neuer returne to his countrey. The King chid him a little, and told me, he nor any good man ever beleeved him : but the Prince grew fo angry that mouing him with many questions to stand to his first word, which he refusing was bid be gone: and the Prince publikely calling for him againe, bad him most basely returne him the one hundred and fiftie Rupias, deliuered him for that he gaue it to maintayne him against me, which seeing he went from, he would have his money : which the fellow promifed but he should have it presently, and so sent an under Treasurer with him to the house, where hee was lodged, for into mine, I would not fuffer him to come.

The fenen and twentieth, thus I was enforced to feeme content, because I had no way to feeke remedie, for Presents I had none, and the King neuer takes any request to heart, except it come accompanied, and will in plaine tearmes demand it, which advantage the Prince takes, vrging the Portugals bringing of Iewels, Ballests and Pearles with much difgrace to our English com-

The nine and twentieth, the Portugals went before the King with a Present, and a Ballas Rubie, to fell as was reported, weighing thirteene Tole, two Tole and a halfe being an ounce: they demanded fine Leckes of Rupies, but the King offered but one. Afaph Chan is also their Sollicitor, to whom they gaue a Present of Stones, they had divers Rubies Ballaces, Emeralds and Iewels jet to iell, which fo much contented the King and his great men, that we were for a time eclipfed.

The Prince and the Issuite fell out about presenting them, which the Prince desired; but it was promified to Afaph Chan before concerning the Portugals credit, here I cuer made my indgemene by report, but now experience shewes me the difference made betweene vs and them, for they were fought after by euery bodie, whereas they feeme to buy our commodities for almes, befides their Neighour-hood and advantage to hinder that Trade into the Red Sea, is euermore readier then ours to doe harme, because they are setled, so that onely for a little feare wee were entertain ned, but for our trade or any thing we being not at all respected.

III.

Occurrents happening in Iune, Iuly, August 1616. and divers passages of speech and action, whence the Nature, Arts, and disposition of the King and his Subjects may bee obferned.

Sultan Cotoone. to be emploied in the Decar

He twelfth of Iune, there is a refolution taken that Sultan Corone shall goe to the Decan warres, and the day prefixed having confulted all the Bramans. Prince Parase is called home, whom (it is reported) wrote to his father, that if hee would fend his elder brother, he would obey, but to dishonour him by imploying this, hee would first fall on him, and after finish the warre. All the Captaines, as Channa Chana, Mahobet Chan, Chan Iohn, refuse to stay if this Tyrant come to command, so well is he beloued: it is true, all men awe him more then the King, now that hee is to receive the Armie; the King cannot beeremooued from his resolution, so that his sudden departure two and twentie dayes from this present, must haften me to finish this businesse, and to know a resolution : for after his departure with his Minion Zulpheckearcon, there is no hope to recourt a penny, nor any Iustice against him.

Scuere com-

The eighteenth, the King commanded one of his brothers fonnes (who was made a Christian in policie, to bring him into hatred with the people) to go strike a Lyon on the head, which was 30 brought before the King , but he being atraid, refused it : fo the King bade his yongest sonne to go touch the Lyon, who did so without any harme, whereat the King tooke occasion to send his Nephew away to a prison, where hee is neuer like to see day-light.

The foure and twentieth, the Prince had a sonne borne, and now being preparing for this warre, all mens eves were on him, either for flattery, gaine, or enuy, none for loue. He received twenty Lecks of Rupies towards his charges, (two hundred thouland pound sterling) and began to deale money liberally : but notwithflanding his show of his Fathers affection and greatnesse, a Chan perswaded the King that the Voyage would bee dangerous, in respect of the Prince Parus, whose honour was so wounded, that he would not returne without reaenge. The King replyed, let them fight, I am well contented, and he that proues himlelfe the better Captaine shall purfue the warre.

Abdala Haffan is Captaine of all the fouldiers, entertained at Court, and Treasurer to all the Abdala Haffan. Armies: he entertained me courteoufly, with few complements, but much civility, wee fate to Exquise mark- fee his fouldiers shoote in bowes and peeces, most of them with single bullet did hit the marke, being a hand-breath in a butt, wee had some discourse of our vie of weapons, and so I departed. The thirteenth of July in the morning, I fent Sultan Carronne three bottles of Alligant, and a Letter concerning the Portugalls, the differences betweene our Trade and theirs, and to procure all the customs in and out to farme for the Companies vie (the copy is regulared,) The Prince caufed (as is his barbarous custome in all businesse passing in publike) the Letter to be twice read by his Secretary, and often interrupted it with speech to him : in the end fent word, that at night when he came downe, he would reade it himselfe, and consider it, and that I should receive anfwere from Merze Sorocalla.

Iuly 13.

At night I went to the Durbar to visite the King : So soone as I came in, he sent Asoph Chan The kings de to me, that he heard I had in my house an excellent Painter, and desired me he might see some of his worke : I replyed, according to truth, that there was none, but a yong man, a Merchant, that for his exercise did with a pen draw some figures, but very meanely, farre from the arte of Painting. The King replyed, that I should not feare that hee would take any man from mee by force, that he would neither doe mee imury, nor fuffer any other; and prayed that he might fee 60 that man and his worke, howfoeuer it was. I replyed, I had no fuch do bt of his Maiefty, and for his fatisfaction I would bring him to the Guzell Chan with fuch toyes as he had, which perhaps was an Elephant, or a Deare, or fuch like in paper. At this answere the King bowed himfelfe, and returned, that it I defired an Elephant, or the figure, or any other thing in his CounCHAP. 16. S. 3. The kind Vage of the English by the Great Mogoll.

trey, I should not buy it, nor seeke any other way but to him, that what socuer I had a mind to. he would give me, and that I should freely speake to him, for he was my friend. I made a Reverence, and answered that I humbly thanked his Maiesty, Elephants were of no such vie to mee. neither was it the cultome of my Nation, especially of my place, to aske any thing, if his Maieflie gaue me but the worth of a Rupie, I would receive it, and efteeme it as a marke of his favour. He replyed, he knew not what I defired, that there were some things in his Countrey, rare in mine, and that I should not make dainty to speake to him, for he would give mee such things as should be most welcome, and that I should bee cheerefull, for that he was a friend to our Nation to and to mee, and would protect vs from any injury, but defired that I would that night come to the Guzell Chan, with the youth that painted, with his Pictures. So Afaph Chan wished me to fend home to fetch him to his house; whither if I would go and stay with him vntill the King came abroad, I should be very welcome; which I promifed. I neuer received so much grace and fauour from the King, as at this time, which all men tooke notice of, and accordingly altered their fashions towards mee; specially it happened well that the Iesuit was made Interpreter of all this

This day a Gentle-woman of Normalls was taken in the Kings house in some action with an Story of an Eunuch; another Capon that loued her, killed him: the poore woman was fet vp to the arme- Eunuch and pits in the earth, hard rammed, her feet tied to a flake, to abide three dayes and two nights withKings women. out any fuftenance, her head and armes exposed to the Sunnes violence : if shee dyed not in that 20 time, thee should be pardoned: the Eunuch was condemned to the Elephants. This Damfell yeelded in Pearle, Jewels, and ready money, fixteene hundred thousand Rupies.

The two and twentieth, I received Letters from Bramport : in answere of those to Mahobet Mahobet Chan Chan, who at first granted my defire, making his Firman to Barooch most effectuall, to receive our his grant to Nation, and to give them a house neare the Governour, strictly commanding no man to molest the English for them by fea or land, or to take any custome of them, or any way trouble them vnder colour ther. Borock of. Finally, that they might buy, fell, and transport any commoditie at their pleasures, without any molestation, concluding, that they should expect to heare no other from him, and therefore they should be carefull in execution. I received with it a Letter from himselfe (which was more His Civilies civility then all the Indies yeelded me) full of courtefie and humanity, and great respect, prote- and goodparts ting his defire to give me content, and that what I had demanded, I should make no doubt of nerformance : and if I had any other occasion to vie him, hee defired mee to write, and it should be performed. The Copies are worthy the feeing for the rarenesse of the phrase. The Firman I caufed to be fent to Surat: fo that Borooch is prouided for a good retrait from the Princes injuries, and the cultome given, whereby fifteene hundred pound, per aunum, will bee faued, befides all manner of fearches and extortions. For the performance of this no man maketh any doubt, for that all men confesse, that he neither careth for the Prince, and so feareth not, nor needeth any man, being the only beloued man of the King, and fecond person in his Dominions; and in all his life to liberall of his purfe, and honorable of his word, that he hath ingroffed good reports from all others : and concerning Custome, the King takes none, the Gouernours make it their 40 profit, which he professeth to fcorne that he should abuse the liberty of the Kings Ports.

The fixt of August, I was fent for to the Durbar; the businesse was about a Picture I had late- August &. ly given to the King, and was confident that no man in India could equall it. So foone as I came, The Kings cuhe asked mee what I would give the Painter that had made a copy to like it, that I thould not riolity in paine know my owne: I answered, a Painters reward, fifty Rupies. The King replyed, his Painter was Indian worka Caueleer, and that too small a gift; to which I answered, I gaue my Picture with a good heart, manshap, for effeeming it rare, and meant not to make comparison or wagers: if his feruant had done as well, which coule, and would not accept of my gift, his Maiefty was most fit to reward him. So with many passages and for notice of iefts, mirth, and bragges concerning the Arts of his Countrey, hee tell to aske mee questions, disposition, how often I dranke a day, and how much, and what? what in England? what Beere was? how is here added-

50 made? and whether I could make it heere? In all which I fatisfied his great demands of State. He concluded that I should come to the Guzel Chan, and then I should see my Pictures. At night he fent for me, being hafty to triumph in his work-man, and shewed me fixe Pictures, five made by his man, all pasted in one table to like, that I was by candle-light troubled to differne which was which, I confesse, beyond all expectation: yet I shewed mine owne, and the differences, which were inarte apparant, but not to be judged by a common eye. But for that at first fight I knew it not, he was very merry and joyfull, and craked like a Northerne man : I game him way and content, praifing his mans art. Now, faith he, what fay you! I replyed, I faw his Maieflie needed no Picture from our Countrey; but faith he, what will you give the Painter! I answered, feeing he had to farre excelled in my opinion of him, I would double my liberality, and that if

6c he came to my house, I would gue him one hundred Rupies to buy a Nagge, which the King tooke kindly, but answered, he should accept no money, but some other gift : which I promised: the King asked what? I fail it was referrable to my differetion : fo he answered it was true, yet defired I would name it. I replyed, a good Sword, a Piffall, a Picture; whereas the King answered, You confesse hee is a good work-man : fend for him home, and shew him such toyes as you

547

haue, and let him choose one, in requitall whereof you shall choose any of these Copies to thew in England. We are not to vinskilfull, as you effective vs: to her preffed me to choose one. which I did; the King wrapping it vp in a paper, and putting it vp in a little booke of mine, delinered it, with much joy and exultation of his mans supposed victory, whereat I shewed him a Different, with mach by an Admiration to the worke I now faw, which caused me to indee of all other by that which he deliuered me as the best. He asked me where I had it ; I told him. Why, faid he, doe you buy any fuch things? have not I the best and have not I told you, I would gine you whatfoeuer you defired ! I thanked his Maiesty, but that I held it not civility to trouble him in fach trifles, especially as a begger: he replyed, it was no shame to aske of him, and had me speake at all times freely, prelling me to aske somewhat : I answered, I would not choose my to gift, whatfoeuer came from his Maiesties hands I would receive as a marke of honour: hee replyed, if you defire my Picture, I will give you one for your felfe, or for your King. I answered if his Maiestie would fend the King one, I would gladly cary it, and knew his Maiestie would take it friendly, and esteeme it much. But that since his Maiestie had emboldened mee, I would defire one for my felfe, which I would keepe and leave to my Posteritie, as an ensigne of his Maiesties fauour. He replyed, your King doth not desire one, but you doe, therefore you shall have it, and to he gaue present order for the making; then he turned to reft, and wee were blind-fold of the King.

The twelfth of August, Gemal-dm-vsfin, a man of seventie yeares, Vice-roy of Patan, and Lord of foure Cities in Bengala, one that hath beene often Embassadour, and of more understanding 20 and courtelle then all lus Countrimen, and to be esteemed hospitable, and a receiuer of strangers not fecretly ambitious, he often made meanes that I would come to his house, which at last I did, and was receised with extraordinary familiaritie and kindnesse, offering me a Lecke of Rupias, and fuch other curtefles to great, that they belipake their owne refutall. His fauour with the King, his credit, his counfell, all was offered that could fulfill complements. And this I must contelle, that from a person reuerent in yeares it seemed more cordials, and for in some Discourse speaking so plainly of his fellowes in Court, truthes in mine owne experience, I resolved hee was a good natured and right hearted old man. He told me much of the Customes of this Countrey, of their fernitude, of their want of Lawes, of the increase of this Empire, wherein hee had ferued three Princes in grace and fanour, of which times hee shewed me a Booke or Annall of all 30 A History write memorable Actions which he had daily committed to record, and had composed them into a History ftorie, the Copie whereof he offered me if I could procure it translated. Concerning the Kings reuenue and the manner of railing it, befides confications, gifts, and cuttings upon great men; that the Gouernment of every Province did yearely pay a Rent : as for his Gouernment of Pa-Eleuen Leckes tan onely, he gaue the King eleuen Leckes of Rupias, (the Rupias sterling is two shillings two for Patanco the pence) all other profits were his, wherein he had Regall authoritie to take what he lift, which was effeemed at fine thousand horse, the pay of enery one at two hundred Rupias by the yeare, whereof he kept fitteene hundred, and was allowed the Surpluffe as dead pay: betides the King gaue him a Pention of one thousand Rupias a day, and some smaller governments. Yet heassured me there were divers had double his entertainment, and aboue twentie equall.

He prayfed the good Prophet Ielus and his Lawes, and was full of very delightfull and fruit

Manner of

Mogoll Go.

full Discourfe. This Visit was past some few dayes, and I thought that his courtesse had been at an end; but this day he had borrowed of the King his house and Garden of pleasure: Hanar Gemall, a mile out of Towne to feath me in; and our night earnestly inuiting me, I promised to come. Entertainment At midnight he went himfelfe and carryed his Tents and all furniture, and fitted up a place by the Tanke fide very handfomely. In the morning I went. At my comming he came to meet mee and with extraordinary ciulitie carryed me into his roome prepared where hee had some company and one hundred fernants attending, two of his fonnes, being a father to thirtie. He entertayned me with shewing me the Kings little closets and retyring roomes which were painted with Antiques, and in some panes Copies of the French Kings and other Christian Princes; wanting 50 no Court-ship. That he was a poore man, flaue to the King, that he defired I should receive some content, and that therefore he haddrawne me to a flight Banquet to eate bread and falt together, Censure of his to seale a friendship which he defired me to accept: that there were many great men able to fellow Nobles. thew me more courteile, but they were proud & falle withing me to trust to none, for that if I had busines to the King of any weight, either cocerning the Portugals or any other, they would never deliner truth who were my Interpreters, but only what either pleafe themselves or would content in the relation. That therefore I should never be rightly vinderstood, nor effect my businesse without abide, nor neuer cleerely know my estate untill I had an Englishman that could speake Perfian, and that might deliver my minde without passing the tongue of another, which the King would grane me if I could find any : for that hee had conceived a good opinion of me, and 60 the last night at the Guffel Chan, having brought before him the Iewels of Sheck Ferid, Governour of Labor lately dead, he remmbred me of himselfe, and seeing a Picture of his owne that pleated lam, he delivered it to Afaph Chan, commanding him to fend it me to weare for his lake, with many words of fauout towards me, which would make all the great men refueft me.

In this time came in Dinner. So fitting on Carpetting, a cloth was layd and diners banquetting Rices of enterfet before vs, and the like a little a part for the Gentlemen that companied him, to whom hee tainment went to eat, they holding it a kind of vncleanenesse to mingle with vs. Whereat I told him, hee promifed we should eate bread and falt together, that without his company I had little appetite to he role and fate by me, and we fell roundly to our victuals. The fubitance was made diffus of The proufion. divers forts, Raifons, Almonds, Pittachees and Fruit. Dinner ended, he played at Cheffe, and 1 Cheffe-play, walked, returning after tome discourse I offered to take my leave, he answered he had intreated me to come to este, that what was passed was but a collation, that I must not depart till I had supped, which I eatily granted to.

About an houre after came to visit him the Ambassadour of one of the Decan Kings whom he prefented to me, vfing him with civilitie, but in a much inferiour manner, in respect of his fathion toward me : he asked me if his Maiestie my Master would not take in korne the offer of Purpose to fathion toward me; he asked me is managed in the state of firanger, for that he would fend a Gentleman with me to kiffe his Maiesties hands, and to see our Countrey. I answered him as became civilitie and good manners; so hee sent for one presently, and questioned him if he would venture the journey, who seeming willing hee presented to mee, and faid he would prouide some Toyes of the Countrey for his Maiestie, and fend min my companie. By the manner, this feemed to me to be earnest.

While we thus spent time, our Supper came, two clothes being spread, as in the morning and Supper serued 20 before me and my Chaplaine, and one Merchant were fet divers dithes of Sallets and meate rott, fryed, boyled, and divers Rices: he defired to be excused, that it was their manner to eate among themselves, his Countrimen would take it ill, if he eate not with them; so hee and his guests, I and my Company folaced our felues with a good refreshing. Thmeate was not amisse, but the attendance and order much better, his feruants being very diligent and respectfull. He gaue mee Prefe for a prefent, as is the manner, when one is inuited, fine cases of Sugar Candie dreffed with Muske, their Gheste and one Loafe of most fine Sugar white as Snow, about fiftie pound weight, defiring me to accept of one hundred fuch against my going, which faid he, you refuse of me thinking I am poore, but it cofts me nothing, it is made in my Gouernment, and comes gratis to me. I answered, hee had too farre alreadie obliged me, that I would not refuse his courtesie when I was readie to depart. 30 He replyed, he might bee then unfurnished, and therefore desired I would now speake, that hee might not lofe his offer and labour too. Thus profetting him felfe my father and I his fonne, with complements I tooke my leaue. The fixteenth, I went to vifit the King, who affoone as I came in, call d to his women and The Kings reached out a Picture of himselfe set in Gold, hanging at a Wire Gold Chaine with one pendant fauour. foule Pearle, which he deliuered to Asaph Chan, warning him not to demand any reverence of me, other then fuch as I would willingly give; it bring the custome when soeuer hee bestowes any thing, the receiver kneeles downe and puts his head to the ground, which hath beene exacted of the Ambaffadors of Persia. So Asaph Chan came to mee, and I offered to take it in my hand, but he made signe to put off my hat, and then put it about my necke, leading me right before the 40 King. I understood not his purpose, but doubted he would require the custome of the Countrey. called Sizeda. But I was resolved rather to deliver vp my Present: Hee made signe to give the King thankes, which I did after my owne custome, whereat some Officers called mee to Sizeda: but the King answered no, no, in Persian; so with many gracious words fent me, I returned to my place, you may now judge the Kings liberalitie; this gift was not worth in all thirtie pound, yet it was fine times as good as any he gines in that kind, and held for an especiall fanour, for that all the great men that weare the Kings Image, which none may doe but to whom it is given, receiue no other then a meddall of Gold as bigge as fixe pence, with a little Chaine of foure inches to faften it on their heads, which at their owne proper charge, fome fet with flones, or garnish with pendant Pearles.

The nineteenth, Gemal-din-viffin, who invited me to Hanaz Gemall, being newly made Gouernour of Sindu, came to me to dinner with two formes and two other Gentlemen, and about one hundred feruants : hee ate some Banqueting shuffe made in my house by a Moore Cooke, but Superflitious would not touch such meate as I had provided of my owne fashion, though his appetite was very castle. good, a kind of superstition forbidding him. But heedsfired me that foure or five dishes might be fent to his house, fuch as he would choose, being all baked meates which hee had never feene, and that he would dine on them in prinate, which was accordingly done, and so offering visite Towns of Sindu, and all other courtefies in his power, he made hatte to fill his belly. I gave him a small Present according to custome. This day suddenly dyed to my great griefe, and discomfort my Minister Master Hall, a man of most gentle and milde nature, religious, and of vnspotted life.

The twentieth day, and the night past fell a storme of raine called the Oliphant, visuall at go. Huge raine ing out of the raines, but for the greatnesse very extraordinary, whereby there ran such streames called the Olinto the Tanke whose head is made of stone, in shew extremely strong, but the water was so phane. growne that it brake over in one place, and there came an alarme and fudden feare, that it would give way and drowne all that part of the Towne where I dwelt, infomuch that the Prince and all his women forlooke their house; my next Neighbour carryed away his goods and his wife on his Elephants and Camels to flye to the hils fide. All men had their Horles ready at their doores to faue their lives, so that we were much trighted and fat vp till mid-night for that we had no help, but to flye our felues and loofe all our goods, for it was reported that it would run higher then the top of my house by three foot, and carry all away being poore muddy buildings, foureteene veeres past, a terrible experience having hewed the violence, the foot of the Tanke being leuell with our dwelling, and the water extreame great and deepe, fo that the top was much higher then my house which stood in the bottome in the course of the water, every ordinary rain higher then my notice which note in the trunne not fwifter in the Arches of London Bridge, making fush a Currentatmy doore, that it runne not fwifter in the Arches of London Bridge, 10 and is for some houres impassible by Horse or man. But God otherwise disposed it in his mercy. the King caused a sluce to be cut in the night to ease the water another way, yet the very raine had washed downe a great part of the wals of my house, and so weakened it by divers breaches, in that I feared the fall more then the floud: and was so moyled with dirt and water, that I could fearce lye dry or fafe, for that I must be enforced to bee at new charge in reparation. Thus were we enery way afflicted; fires, Imokes, flouds, flormes, heats, duft, flyes, and no temperate or quiet feafon.

The nine and twentieth, the King went to Hauaz Iemal and fo to hunting, there was taken a resolution to remouse to Mandoe, a Caitle neere Brampors where is no Towne, for that Sultan Parsis being come from the warre in difgrace, and being with his traine neere Afmere, the King 20 commanded him to Bergala, excuring himselfe to be seene, and so having dispatched him without fuch incommoditie as was feared would arife if the two brothers met, her intended himfelfe to fettle Sultan Caronne in the warres of Decan, to which all the chiefelt were fo contrary, that the King feared to fend him downe as was the resolution some monethes past, and therefore diffembled it, until the other Prince were withdrawne & he established by his owne countenance.comming to neere as Mandoa, which remoue if it proceed will put vs to extreame trouble and coft. for that we must build a new house both for our selves and goods, the Castle standing on a hill without any other buildings neere it.

A wild Bore fent by the

The thirtieth, the King returned in the night, and about eleuen a clocke fent meea very fat wild Boare, and to great, that he defired the Tusks backe, with this meffage, that he kild it with his owne hand, and that therefore I should eat it merrily, and make good cheare. This occasion 30 laddowe that was fent for to the King to bring it, tooke to tell Afaph Chan, that I defired to visit him on the morrow, and hoped to receive from his hands the Priviledges granted by the King. He answered, hee could not dispatch them so soone, but that they should on Sunday bee sealed, and that he was loth to fee me, vntill he had given me content.

d. IIII.

The Kings birth day, and manner of the observation, with other accidents in September.

Kings Birth-

He fecond of September, was the birth day of the King, and folemnized as a great Feafl, wherein the King is weighed against fome Iewels, Gold, Siluer, stuffes of Gold, Featf, wherein the King is weigned against the Silver, missed the fight, but being there before the King came out, as soone as he espyed me, hee sent to know the reason why I came not in, he having given order : I answered according to the error; The Kings ribut he was extreame angry, and child Afaph Chan publiquely. He was fo rich in Iewels, that I must confesse I neuer faw together so vnuallewable wealth. The time was spent in bringing of his greateft Elephants before him, fome of which being lord-El-phants, had their chaines, bels, and furniture of Gold and Silver, attended with many gilt banners and flags, and eight or tenne Elephants waiting on him, clothed in Gold, Silke, and Silver. Thus passed about twelve Companies most richly furnished, the first having all the Plates on his head and breast set with Rubies and Emeraulds, being a beaft of a wonderfull flature and beautie. They all bowed downe before the King, making a reuerence very handsomely, and was ashew as worthy as ever I taw any of beafts onely. The Keepers of every chiefe Elephant gaue a Prefent. So with force gracious complements to me, he role and went in.

Another cu-

At night about tenne of the clocke, he fent for me, I was a bed. The Medage was , her heard I had a picture which I had not shewed him, defiring me to come to him and bring it, & if I would not give it him, yet that he might fee it, and take copies for his Wines. I role and carryed it with me: when I came in, I found him fitting crofte-legd on a little Throne, all clad in Diamonds, Pearles, and Rubies, before him a table of Gold, in it about fiftie pieces of Gold plate, fet all with itones, some very great and extreamely rich, some of lesse value, but all of them almost coursed with small stones, his Nobilitie about him in their best equipage, whom he commanded to drinke froliquely, feuerall wines standing by in great flagons. When I came neere him he asked for the Picture: I shewed him two; le seemed astonished at one of them, and demanded whose it was! I answered, a friends of mine that was dead. He asked me if I would give it him. I replyed, that I esteemed it more then any thing I possessed, because it was the image of one that I loued dearely, and could neuer recouer; but that if his Maiestie would pardon me my fancie, and accept of the other, which was a French Picture, but excellent worke, I would most willingly give it him. 10 He fent me thankes, but that it was that onely Picture he defired, and loued as well as I, and that if I would give it him, he would better efteeme of it, then the richeft Iewell in his house. I answered, I was not fo in love with any thing, that I would refuse to content his Maieltie; I was extreame glad to doe him feruice, and if I could give him a better demonstration of my affection, which was my heart to doe him feruice, I was ready to prefent it to him. At which he bowed to me, and replyed, it was fufficient that I had given it, that hee confessed hee never saw so much Art, so much Beauty; and conjured me to tell him truely, whether ever such a woman lived? I anfwered, there did one live that this did refemble in all things but perfection, and was now dead. He returned me, that he tooke my willingnesse very kindly; but seeing I had so freely given him that that I effeemed so much, he would not rob me of it, onely he would shew it his Ladies, and 20 cause his Workemen to make him fine Copies, and if I knew my owne I should have it. I answered, I had freely and willingly given it, and was extreamely glad of his Maiefties acceptance. He replyed, that he would not take it, that he loued me the better for louing the remembrance of my friend, and knew what an injury it was to take it from me, by no meanes hee would not keep it, but onely take Copies, and with his owne hand he would returne it, and his Wiues should weare them: for indeed in that art of limming his Painters worke miracles, the other beein in oyle he liked not.

Then he fent me word, it was his birth day, and that all men did make merry, and to aske if I would drinke with them. I answered, what soeuer his Maiestie commanded; I wished him many prosperous dayes, and that this Ceremonie might be renewed an hundred yeeres: he asked mee what wine, whether of the Grape, or made; whether frong or small ! I replied, what he commanded, hoping he would not command too much, nor too strong: so hee called for a Cuppe of Gold of mingled Wine, halfe of the Grape, halfe artificiall, and dranke, cauting it to bee filled. and fent by one of his Nobles to me with this Mellage, I hat I should drinke it, twice, thrice, foure The King gaue or five times off for his take, and accept of the Cup and appurtenances as a Prefent. I dranke a lit - Sir Thom. Rec a tle, but it was more strong then ever I tasted, so that it made me sneeze, whereat he laughed, and sup of Gold. called for Raifons, Almonds, and fliced Limons, which were brought mee on a Plate of Gold. and he bad me cat and drinke what I would, and no more. So then I made reuerence for my Prefent after mine owne manner, though Afaph (ban would have caused me to kneele, and knocke my head against the ground, but his Maiestie best accepted what I did. The cup was of Gold, set to all ouer with small Turkies and Rubyes, the Couer of the same set with great Turkies, Rubies, and Emeralds in workes; and a dish surable to fet the Cup vpon: the value I know not, because the stones are many of them small, and the greater (which are also many, are not all cleane, but they are in number about two thousand, and in gold about twenty Ounces. Thus hee made frolieke, and fent me word, he more efteemed me then ever any Franke; and demanded if I were France a name merry at eating the wild Boare fent me a few daies before; how I dreft ir, what I dranke, and common to fuch complements; That I should want nothing in his land: which his publique, and many graces figure.

Then he threw about to those that stood below, two Chardgers of new Rubies, and among Scrambling vstwo Chardgers of hollow Almonds of Gold and Silver mingled; but I could not scramble as of the Noble; 50 did his great men: for I faw his fonne take vp none; then he gaue Shashes of Gold, and Girdles to for Golded all the Mulitians and Wayters, and to many others. So drinking, and commanding others, his Almonds, Maiestie; and all his Lords became the finest men I euer faw, of a thousand humors; but his sonne Afaph Chan, and two old men, and the late King of Candahar, and my felfe forbare. When hee could not hold up his head, he lay downe to fleepe, and we all departed. At going out, I mooued Afaph Chan for diffritch of my priviledges; affuring him his Maiefly could give me no Present so acceptable; if he pleased not to dispatch me, which I doubted not, if it lay in his power, but that some other hinderance was in my way, I would on the morrow moone the King, he defired mee not to doe to : for the King loued mee, and had given order for it, that the preparation of this

I found presently in the fashion of all his Nobilitie.

Feast had hindered him, but that now hee would fend it me, and doe me all sernice. The fourth of September, I found it easie to judge what vexation it is to traffique with those faithlessepender, round it came to mage exception, but finding I had fo drawne them, that I should not much need the Prince, and if we diffiked, we might resulchis gouernement. He etterly renounced his word in choller and rage. Faithletis I durft not yet leane him, nor take notice of his fallhood. He that first tooke him for our Solicitor, Prople, engaged vs into this miferie, knowing him to bee the Protector of our enemies, and a Slaveto engaged vs into this multiply upon him. But now I had a Wolfe by the cares: I feemed onely to apprehend his diflike of the length and phrase, and fent him a Letter to interpret me, and a Briefe of the substance of all required on their parts, contained in generall words, touching onely such particulars as he liked, and left out quite all the Conditions demanded formerly by him of mee, defiring him to put it in forme, and procure the Seale, or to give me leave to receive mine owne deniall from the King, and so to depart the Countrey. These I finished in Persian the same day, and fent them to him, they are recorded in their order.

The eighth, Afaph Chan fent to me that answer, That absolutely, he would procure nothing The eighth, Japan Comming felled, that any way concerned the Princes government; that I should onely expect from him what we defired, whose Farmans were sufficient. And so reuealed that purpose which he had one 10 in practife, to make vs wholly depend on the Prince. Now I had just cause to looke out, and wat blameleffe if I fought new friends when he had forfaken me. I refolued to trie the Prince, and to feeme to depend wholly on him, having fent formerly to his Secretary foure clauses, to which I demanded his Firmar for our present vse at Surat, for the Fleete expected, which his Highnesse

The tenth, I went to the Prince, who cast downe to the Secretary his Firman by mee defired and promifed, fo that I hoped I had been at reft. The eleventh, I received it, but when I read it. it was in two of the foure claufes demanded and promifed, much different, and one whole branch left out; fo I returned it with a round answer, I would not accept it, nor suffer any goods to come ashoare. Neuer any man had to doe with so much Pride, Couetousnelle, and falshood. At night, 20 I rode to Merze Socorolla, the Princes Secretary, to expostulate the businesse, and to declare my resolution of departure, but I found the Firman not such as I was enformed, but containing all the clauses required by me, though in phrase, to my judgement, somewhat restrained, which he expounded in the best sence, declaring that it was the Princes intent to satisfie my defire fully, and that it was fufficient. I veged the obliquity of some points; desiring him as he had cleared his Highneffe meaning to me, so he would by his Letter to the Governour of Surat, which hee grannted, principally commanding that the Customer should pay for fiftie clothes, which hee had many moneths bought, and now would returne them vnto the Factors, to their extreame loffe. In the ende, he opened the old point of the Princes defire, that I should rely on him, and not crosse him in businesses of his Government with the King, and I should find him a better friend then I expected: and finally gaue me fuch fatisfaction in all points, that I was both pleafed, and in fome hope of good fuccesse, the rather because he is no briber, reputed honest, and did vadertake on his credit, to whom the Prince had referred all butineffes, that we should not sustaine the losse of one piece, nor any the least iniury: fo I accepted the Firman, which upon translating I found verie

The fixteenth, I visited the Prince, purposing yet to runne on in a way of seeming dependance on him, viitill I heard from our flips, and what entertainment they were like to receive this yeare. I found him fad, fearing the comming of Sultan Parais to Court, being within eight courfe, and importanted to kille his Fathers hands; who had graunted him, but by the power of Normall was after difficulted, and a command fent, that the Prince should take his ionrney right to Benga, 40 yea although the King had fallen downe, and taken his Mother by the feet to obtaine her leaue to see his Sonne. The Kings remoone continued, but whether, no man could certainely resolut-

The broiles about Abdala Chan, and Chan Channa; Sultan Caroones ambition, his policies to subuert his elder Brother: fight with a Portugall Carricke: distast about the Prince: Persian Embassage, Prefents and entertainement.

Oftober 10.

552

He tenth of October, Abdala Chan the great Governour of Amadasas, beeing fent to Court in distract for many infolencies and mod-2 for to Court in diffrace for many infolencies and neglects of the Kings authority, and thought he would stand on his guard, and refule; yet the Prince Sultan Coronne (whole ambition wrought on every advantage) defirous to oblige fo great a man (beeing one of the chiefe Captaines in these Kingdomes) prevailed with him on his word to submit; to that Manner of bu- comming in Pilgrims Clothes with fortie feruants on foote, about fixtie mile in counterfeit humiliation, finished the rest in his Palankee, vntill he arrived neere the Court, but one dayes journey behind he had two thousand horse attending. This day he was brought to the Jarruco (the 60 publike fitting of the King to fee Games, and to heare complaints ) chained by the feete , birefoot between two Noble men, he puld his Turbant in his eyes, before hee had the happinelle to behold the King stace. After reuerence made, and some fewe questions, the King torgane him, caused his yrons to be loosed, and clothed in a new Vest of Cloth of Gold. Turbant and Girdle

according to the cultome. The Prince who intended to build his honour on the warres of Decan. which his elder brother had left with difgrace, and the great Commander Chan Channa did not prosper in (which doubt lesse was a practiser with the Decans, from whom he received pension) caused his Father to recall Chan Channa, who refusing to come, defired the King not to fend Saltan Caronne to that warre, but one of his yongest sonnes about fifteene yeares of age. This Co- Salian coronne ronne tooke to heart, but profecuting his purpole of the warre, promifed to Abdela Chan the his purpose.

Command of the armie under him, by displacing Chan Channa.

The King fearing troubles, and knowing all the ambitions and factions of this fonne, the ditcontent of his two elder, the power of Chan Channa, was desirous to accommodate all by accepto ting a prace, and confirming Chan Channa in the Gouernment hee held, and closely to that end wrote a letter of fauour, and purpoied to fenda Veit, according to the Ceremony of reconciliation, to Chan Channa; but before he dispatched it, he acquainted a kinswoman of his living in the Zereglia, of his purpole. Shee, whether falle to her friend (wrought by Sultan Caronne) or ou. of Zereglia ot sa. greatnesse of heart, to see the top of her family so dealt with, after so many merits; answered ratio the piece plainly, that thee did not believe Chan Channa would weare any thing fent from the King, know- we re the ing his Maiesty hated him, and had once or twice offered him poylon, which hee putting in his King women ing his statety haced mind cut had made triall of. Therefore thee was confident hee would not The Kn sees. dare to put on his body any thing that came from his Maiefty. The King offered to weare it him- ling with Char felfe betere her an houre, and that thee should write to testifie it : shee replyed, hee would trust change neither of them both with his life, but if he might line quietly in his command, would doe his Maiefly true fernice. Whereupon the King altered his purpofe, and refolued to proceed in the fending of Sultan Caronne, and to countenance his reception, would follow after with another Chan Channa that discourred the storme, practised with the Decans, who were at his fernice.

to offer termes of peace for a featen, finding no other way to diffolue this cloud that hung ouer them both, vntill the King and Prince were departed and fetled further off. To this end came two Ambassalers this day from the Princes of Decar. They brought horses bard, richly furnished Decar offer for Prefents. At first the King refused to heare them and their gift, but turned them ouer to his Peace. forme with this answere : If he would have peace or warre, it was in his breft. The Prince adan uanced by this fauour, and fivelling with pride, refolied (chough I was informed the conditions were very honorable, and fuch as the King would have accepted) to goe on the journey, answering he would treat of no peace, vntill he were in the field with his Armie; Chan Channa should not so beguile him of the honor of finishing that warre.

The ambitions of this yong Princeare open, the common talke of the people, yet his Father fuffers all, but intends him not the King lome. For Sultan Corfornine, the eldeft brother, is both extreamely beloued, and honored of all men (al nort adored) and very inftly for his Noble parts, and this the King knowes and lones, but thinkes his I berry would diminish his owne glory, and fees not that this the youth doth more darken him by ambitious practifes, then the other could by vertuous actions.

Thus he nourisheth division and emulation betweene the brethren, and putteth such power Feare of suure in the hand of the yonger ( fuppoling hee can vindoe it at his pleasure) that the wifelf forefee a troiles. rending and tearing of thefe Kingdomes by duction, when the King stall pay the debt to Nature, and that all parts will be torne and deflroved by a citall warre.

The history of this Countrey, for the variety of thiset, and the many practifes in the time of Echarfha, Father of this King, by him then Prince; and these later troubles, were not vnworthy committing to writing; but because they are of so remote parts, many will despise them : and because the people are esteemed barbarous, few will believe them. Therefore I content my file with the contemplation, but I could deliver as many rare and cunning passages of State, fubtill enafions, policies, answeres, and adages, as I beleeve, for one age would not be easi-

Only one that passed lately I cannot omit, to shew willome and patience in a father, faith in a fer:ant, fal hood in a brother, impudent boldneile in a faction that dare attempt any thing. when the highest Maiesty gives them liberty, either beyond the law of their owne condition, or the limits of policie and reason.

The Prince Sultan Carronne, Narmabel the deare Queene, Aunt to his wife, Afaph Chan his Theparties of father in law, brother to the Queene, and Etiman Dowlet, father to them both (being they this thefaction, now gouerneall, and dare attempt any thing) refolued it was not possible for them to ftand, if the Prince Sultan Conference lived, whom the Nobility loved, and whose delivery or life would punish their ambitions in time; therefore practifed how to bring him into their power, that poy-60 fon might end him. Narmahel attempts the King with the falle teares of womens hewitching Drifts to take flattery, that Sultan Corferonne was not fafe, nor his afpiring thoughts deposed : the King heares away sultan her fay it, but would not understand more then shee delivered plainly. This failing, they tooke opportunity of the Kings being drunke, the Prince, Etimen Dowlet and Asaph Chan, moved the King, that for the latety of Sultan Corference, and for his honour, it were fitter he were in the company of his brother, whose companies would be pleasing one to the other, and his fafetie more regarded, then in the hands of a Rashboote Gentile, to whom the King had committed him. Therefore they humbly defired his Maiesty, that he might be delivered in to the hands of his deare brother, which the King granted, and fo fell afleepe. They thought their owne greatnesse fuch, as bringing the Kings authority no man durst refuse and being once in their polletion, they would dispute the redelinery : fo the same night Chen in the name of the King, fent by the Prince, came with a guard to demand and receive Sale tan Corferonne, at the hand of Anna Rah, a Raigh Rafhboote, to whom the King had intrifled him. He refused to deliver his charge, with this answere, That he was Sulean Caronnes humfled him. He returns to denuer in solars, the Prince his brother from the hands of the King, and to no other would deliver him, but he should have patience till the morning, when he would discharge humselfe to his Maiesty, and leave it to his pleasure to dispose. This answere cooled all. In the morning Anna Rah came to the King, and acquainted him with the demand of the Prince, his refulall and answere, and added his Maiesty had given him the charge of his sonne, and made him the Commander of foure thousand horse, with all which hee would dye at the gate, rather then deliuer his Prince into the hands of his enemes : If his Maiefly required him, hee was ready to The Kings an- obey his will, but he would prouide for his owne innocency. The King replyed, You have done honestly, faithfully, you have answered discreetly: continue your purpose, and take no knowledge of any commands: I will not feeme to know this, neither do you stirre further; hold your faith, and let vs fee how farre they will profecute it.

The Prince and the Faction, the next day finding the King filent, hoping hee might forget 20

fubrill, falfe, and barbaroufly tyrannous. There is daily expected an Ambassadour from the Sha- 30

The thirteenth of October at night, the King returned and fent me a wilde Pigge. I recei-

The twelich of June 1616, the other flue came fafely to the Bay of Soldania, where the Lyon dayes at the Road, without newes of the small ship. They dispeeded the Swan to Bantam, for efficting the businesse, and see faile for Surat the nine and twentieth with source shippes, and fixt of August, neare the Ilands of Comora, about twelve degrees, fiftie minutes, they had fight of a Carrick burthen fifteene hundred tunne, manned with fixe hundred, being Admirall of the Fleet sent for Gon, bearing the Flagge: the Globe fetcht her up to wind-ward, and after falutation ons of the Sea, the Carricke commanded her to Lee-ward, and feconded it with five that tho-row her Hull, which sheer equited with eighteene, and so fell off. The Admirall and English Fleet comming up, demanded fatisfaction for the iniury; which was replied to with forme: fo began a fresh fight in few shot, the Commander Beniamin Tofeph was tlaine, and the new establi-thed continued it : at the evening thee ranne her felte afhoare among the rockes of Angazefia.

The Fleet anchored fhort of her, to attend the iffie, and ient a Boat to offer faire warres : but about midnight flee fired her felfe, and burned all the next morning. The English fending their bable : the new Vice-Roy for Goa was in this shippe, whose resolution was the death of all the came to anchor to their Port, the foure and twentieth of September 1616. In their pallage the homeward bound, was ready for a wind; her Commanders and people in health, flaying what passed in wine, tooke no notice of the grant, nor of the refutall, but it fell (not without ful-pition) on both parts. This I infere to this end, that you may beware feattering your goods in divers parts, and engaging your stocke and feruants farre into the Countrey : for the time will come, when all in these Kingdomes will be in combustion, and a few yeares warre will not decide the inueterate malice Lud vp on all parts against a day of vengeance, wherein if Sultan Corferonne preuaile in his right, this Kingdome will be a Sanctuary for Christians, whom he loves Sultan Corfoand honours, fauouring learning, valour, the discipline of warre, and abhorring all couetousnesses, and differning the bale cultomes of taking, vied by his Ancestors and the Nobility. If the other winne, we shall be lefers: for he is most earnest in his Superstition, a hater of all Christians, proud, of the Rose about the North Cape by foule weather.

Anna Rabhis

bas King of Persia.

of Christians.

October 13. The thirteenth of October as mignion and many the period of Swally, with Letters from Engagement and addice of the arrivall of four thippes fare at the Port of Swally, with Letters from Engagement and the Conflict the might of March 161e, with fixe thips, loting company the ps arriue at land, that they departed the Coast the ninth of March 1615, with fixe thips, loting company swally.

Of this fight, fee more in M:Rer Childs Iournall fol-

Afer it was to ne towefea- Boats could not approach, but believe that not one man was faued, by circumfiances very proped with life and pouerty.

The next day, I imparted the King, with his Maiesties remembred falutations, which were with much courteie received : but he began with the Presents. I first mentioned our late fight and victory, which he feemed to rejoyce in, and to applaud the valour of our Nation : but tell off to What hath the King fent me ! I answered, Many tokens of his love and affection: That my Mafter knew he was Lord of the best part of Afia, the richest Prince of the East. That to fend his Maiethe rich Prefents, were to cast Pearles into the Sea, the mother and store-house of them, 60 that therefore his Maiesty thought it vnnecessary; but had presented him with his loue, with many curious toyes, which I hoped would give him content. He vrged mee to some particulars, which I named : he asked me for French Muffe or Veluet. I answered, my letters were not arriued: fome other was come, which he defired. He enquired for Dogges: I told him, fome had their fortune in the fight, some dyed, two were preserved for him, at which hee rejoyced, and continued if I could procure him a Horfe of our great fize, fuch as I deferibed, being a Rone or His define of Dutch Horle, he would accept it better then a Crowne. I replyed, I would doe my endeauour Doggeranda for his Maiesties satisfaction, but I feared it could not be effected : he answered, if I would pro- Horse. cure one, he would give me a Leck of Rupias. I defired his Maiefties Letter for the comming of these Prefents without fearch, and for the good viage of our people; he replyed, the Port was A Horse prihis Sonnes, but fent for him and publikely gaue expresse order for what I would require, and take 2 cdaboue on me, that it should not be fearched, nor pay custome, but be dispeeded with expedition fafe to 10000 pounds my hands, that I might diffribute it at my differetion, that he should command the good reception of our people, and finally, that he should give me content in all my defires. This generally extended not to the grant of a Fort, for that clause Asaph Chan refused to deliuer. This charge was very round and hearty in the King, and a grace to me. The Prince called Afaph Chan to me, and there professed and promised before his Father and all the Court, to give mee all reasonable content. This is the strength of new Presents.

The fifteenth, I received from Majulipatan, that Captaine Keeling had taken two Portugall Barkes and a ship, one on the Coast of Cochin, laden with Tinne, the other fraighted from Bengala, which he carried to Bantam: that Sir Robert Sherley was dismist with disgrace from Goa, and that he was on his way oner land to Masuliparan to leeke pallage; unprobable, and I believe

The feuenteenth, the Prince pursuing his purpose of finishing the Decan Warres by his owne person, and undertaking to give answere to the Ambassadors, gives none; but detaines them vntill his approach. But being to depart, he and his partie thought not themselves secure if Sultan Corference remained in the hands of Annarah, that in his ablence the King might bee reconciled, and by his libertie all the glory and hopes of their faction would vanish, and the iniurie and ambition hardly be pardoned. They newly affaile the Kings conftancie to deliuer vp his fonne into the hands of Afaph Chan, as his Guard under Sultan Coronne. They pretend that it will fright Chan Channa, and the Decans, when they shal heare that this Prince is so favoured, who now comes to make warre vpon them, that the King hath delivered vp his eldelt fonne; in that as it were his whole Kingdome, and hope of fuccession, and the present power thereof.

This day he was delinered up, the Souldiers of Anna Rab discharged, and the Souldiers of A-Saph Chan planted about him with affiftance of two hundred of the Princes Horse. His Sifter Anna Rah dif and divers women in the Seraglia mourne, refuse their meate, cry out of the Kings dotage and s. cor delicrueltie, and professe, that if he dye, there will an hundred of his Kindred burne for him in me- ucred to the morie of the Kings bloudinesse to his worthiest fonne. The King gives faire words, protesteth no faction to the intent of ill towards the Prince, and promifeth his deliuery, and fends Normahell to appeale griefe of the thele enraged Ladies : but they curie, threaten, and refuse to see her. The common people all murmure, they fay the King hath not deliuered his fonnes, but his owne life into the hands of an ambitious Prince, and a treacherous faction, that Corforonne cannot perish without scandall to the Father, or reuenge from him; therefore he must goe first, and after him his Sonne, and fo through their blouds this youth must mount the Royall seat. New hopes are spread of his redeliverie, and soone allaid, every man tels newes according to his feares or defires. But the poore Prince remaynes in the Tygres power, refuseth meate, and requires his Father to take his life. and not to let it be the triumph and delight of his Enemies. The whole Court is in a whilper, the Nobility fad, the multitude like it felte, full of tumour and noyfe, without head or foot; onely it rages, but bends it felfe vpon no direct ends. The iffile is very dangerous, principally for vs: for among them it matters not who winnes. Though one have right and much more honour, yet he is still a Moore, and cannot be a better Prince then his Father, who is of so good disposition that he fuffers all men to gouerne, which is worse then to be ill: for wee were better beare iniuries of Princes, then of their Ministers.

The nineteenth, the Persian Ambassadour Mahomet Rosa Beag about noone came into the Towns with a great troupe, which were partly fent out by the King to meete him with one hundred Elephants and Mutique, but no man of greater qualitie then the ordinary receivers of all Person Emftrangers: his owne traine were about fiftie Horie well fitted in Coats of cloth of Gold, their haffulour Bowes, Quivers and Targets richly garnished, fortie shot, and some two hundred ordinary Peons, and attenders on baggageshe was carried to rest in a roome within the Kings outward Court till euening. When he came to the Durbar before the King (to which Ceremony I fent my Secretary to observe the fashion) when hee approched, hee made at the first raile three Tessiloms and His submissa. one Sizeda, which is profrating himfelte and knocking his head against the ground: at the en- nesse. trance in the like, and so presented the Shahas his Letter : which the King tooke with a little 60 motion of his bodie, asking onely, How doth my Brother? Without any title of Maietty. And after some few words, he was placed in the seventh ranke, against the raie by the doore, below fo many of the Kings Scruants, on both fides; which in my judgement was amost inferiour place for his Masters Ambassador, but that he well deserved it for doing that reverence which his Pre-deceffors refused to the dishonour of his Prince, and the murmure of many of his Nation. It is faid he had order from the Sophie to give content, and thereby it is gathered, his Meffage is for faith in that order from the support of the faith of the finds liberall fuccour, though it ber pretended he comes onely to treat a peace for the Decans, whose protection the Shabas taketh to heart, enuying the increase of this Empire. The King according to custome gaue him a hand. fome Turbant, a Vest of Gold and a Girdle, for which againe hee made three Tessams, and one Sizeda or ground courtesse: he brought for Presents, three times, nine Horses of Persa and rabia, this being a ceremonious number among them. Nine Mules very faire and large, leuen Camels laden with Veluet, two Sutes of Europe Array, which I suppose was Venetian, Hangings of Welnet with Gold, and not Arras, two Chests of Persian Hangings, one Cabinet nch, source Vehict with Gods, and not orras, we cheese 1 from the property of the Gods, eight Carpets of Silke, two Rubies balaft, one and twentie Camels of Wine of the Grape, fourteene Camels of diff. 10 led Sweet Waters, seuen of Rose Waters, seuen Daggers set with stones, fiue Swords set with flones, seuen Venetian Looking Glasses, but those so faire, so rich, that I was ashamed of the relation. These Presents were not deliuered now; onely a Bill of them. His owne Furniture was rich, leading nine spare Horses, trapped in Gold and Siluer; about his Turbant was wreather a chaine of Pearles, Rubies, and Turquesses, and three Pipes of Gold, answerable for three fpridges of Feathers. Yet I caused diligent observance to be made of his reception, and compared it with mine owne, and find he had in nothing more grace, in many things not fo much, in ranke farre inferiour to that allowed me, except onely his meeting without the Towne; which ranke farre interiour to that anowed me, both and the first receive the Shabu by reason of my sicknesse was omitted to be demanded; neither did the King receive the Shabu by reason of Reason by College Williams of Reason with the Reason of Reason with the Reason of his Letter with fuch respect as my Masters, whom he called the King of England his Brother, the Persian barely Brother without any addition, which was an observation of the Issuite, that understood the Language.

Megels affi-Perfes against Perfan Pre-

). VI.

The Princes brauerie; the Persian Ambassadours behausour, the manner and effects of Drinking, of the King and his Nobles; the Kings remoue, his Super-exceeding pompe, wealth, magnificence therein: Portugall fray: relations of Sultan Corsoroone: Persian newes.

He one and twentieth of October, I went to the Prince and opened my defire, to have a certaine * clause in his Letter expounded, at which his highnesse stucke a little, and

I perceiued his Highnesse to be as hollow as I imagined, Hee demanded then how hee should have his Presents, or see such toyes as came vp, and moved mee to goe with

A certaine clause in his Letter to Su rat an bigu. ous like the

him. I replyed, I could not doe fo vntill I had deliuered my Mafters Meffage, and Tokens to the King, but that finished, I would my selfe attend his Highnesse with his Presents, and all such ra-40 ritie as came to my hands, should be sent after him: he prest me to passe my word, and so I obtayned order for the Firman to my content. His Highnesse looking on a white Feather in my Hat, demanded if I would give it him, I replyed, I would not offer that I had worne, but if he please to command it, that or any thing in my power was to serue him. He asked if I had any more, I answered three or foure of other colours; hee replyed, if I would give them all, for that hee was to shew his Horses and Servants to the King within two dayes, and that he wanted some, being very rare in those parts. I promised to bring all I had on the morrow that his Highnesse might take his pleasure.

A rich Present,

Pompous bra- Boots imbrothered, and all other ingredients of brauery. I confelle, the expence is wonderfull, and the riches daily feene inualiable. This night past, it is reported fixe of the Princes Servants came to murther Sultan Conference, but were refuled the Key by the Porter; that the Queene Mother is gone to the King with an ouerture of all the practice, the truth is vincertaine, and it is dangerous to aske.

Abdala Chan in a gallant Equipage both of his person and Attendants, in apparell, strange and antike, but in these parts Alla Soldado presented the Prince a white Horse, the Saddle and 50 Furniture of Gold enamelled, a Beast of delicate shape, life and courage, who returnd him a Sword plaine with a belt of Leather. There were brought before him many others, the Hilts of Siluer, Chapes fet with small Stones, and Targets couered with Gold Veluets, some painted and boffed with Gold and Silver, which he gaue to his Servants. Against this Muster many Saddles and Furniture of Gold, rich set with stones, of his owne, were shewed for spare Horses, his

At evening, I went to the Durbar to visit the King, where I met the Persian Ambassador with the first Muster of his Presents, he appeared, rather a lester or lugler, then a person of any graui-Behaniour of tv, running vp and downe and acting all his words like a Mimicke Player (now indeed the Aischikanne, was become a right Stagge) hee deliuered the Presents with his owne hands ; which the King with smiles and cheerefull countenance, and many words of contentment received; his tongue was a great advantage to deliver his owne bufineffe, which he did with fo much flattery and obsequious nesses, that it pleased a smuch as his gift, euer calling his Maiesty King and Commander of the World (forgetting his owne Mafter had a share in it) and on enery little occasion of good acceptation hee made his Tefflims. When all was deliuered for that day, hee profitated himselfe on the ground, and knocked with his head, as if hee would enter in. The gifts were a faire Quiver for Bow and Arrowes delicately imbroydered, all forts of European Fruits artificiall in dilhes, many other folding Puries and Knackes of Leather wrought with Needle-worke to in coloured Silkes, Shooes imbroydered and flicht, great Glasses in-layed in frames, one square piece of Veluet, imbroydered high with Gold in paynes, bet weene which were Italian Pictures wrought in the stuffe, which he said was the King and Queene of Venice, (which, as I suppose, was the Hangings called Arras) of these fixe were given, one onely shewed; many other Tricanados of small value. After, the three Nines of Horses and Mules, which were faire ones, the Horses either had lost their slesh or beauty, for except one or two I judged them white for to bee fent or taken by Princes. So he returned with many antike trickes to his place farre inferiour to number. that allowed me, which was alone and aboue all Subjects which at first Asaph Chan would have put me by, but I maintayned it as my due. This is but the first act of his prefenting, the Play will not be finished in ten dayes. At night I sent to the Princes Secretary for my promised writing:but his Highnesse was loth tolet the Presents passe without ransacking, and had changed 20 his mind refuling to feale the Letter.

The two and twentieth, at my comming, I deliuered him two Planaes, and two Birds of Paradice; he accepted them easily, and my businesse being moued, and my resolution made knowne not to consent to open, nor to send them vp, but by the hands of my Struants, at last he yeelded and gaue command to the Secretary to dispatch me.

At night I went to the Durbar to observe the Ambassadour of Persia, I found him standing in hisranke, and often remoued and fet lower as great men came in. The King once spake to him, and he danced to the tune thereof, but gaue no present: onely the King commanded that hee should be feasted by the Nobles; The time was spent in seeing Saddles and Furniture for the remoue, of which his Maietie gaue some to his Followers, it beeing daily expected to rile: the Kings Tents were out foure dayes fince. I fent to the Secretary for my Firma, but hee delayed it

The foure and twentieth, the King removed to Hanaz Gemall, and called the Perfian Ambalfadour, where at night hee ate and dranke before the King with the Nobilities, in the same fathion that I did the Birth-day; the difference onely was, the King gaue him for expence twen- The Kings gift ty thousand Rupias, for which he made innumerable Tessisms and Sizedaes, not rising from the tothe Persian. ground a good space, which extreamely pleased the King, and was bate, but profitable Idolatry. The Prince attending his Father, I could get no dispatch in my businesse.

The fine and twentieth, the King returned at Euening, having been over-night farre gone in Wine: some by chance or malice spake of the merry night past, and that many of the Nobilitie 40 dranke wine, which none may doe but by leaue. The King forgetting his order, demaunded who gaue it? It was answered the Buxie (for no man dares say it was the King, when he would onely doubtit.) The Custome is, that when the King drinkes (which is alone) sometime hee will command, that the Nobilitie shall drinke after, which if they doe not, it is an offence too, and so euery man that takes the Cup of wine of the Officer, his name is written, and he makes Tefelem, Strange deathough perhaps the Kings eies are mystie. The King not remembring his owne command, called lingwith No. the Buxie; and demanded if he gaue the order ! He replyed, No, (falfly: for he received it, and by name called fuch as did drinke with the Embassadour) whereat the King called for the list, and the Persons, and fined some one, some two, some three thousand Rupias, some lesse, and some and the retroins and made one carled to be whipped before him, receiving one hundred and thir-that were neerer his person, he carled to be whipped before him, receiving one hundred and thirthat were never his perion, ne cause a cose winippea oerore min, recening one more like Sport-50 tie firipes with a most terrible inflrment. I having at each end of foure cords, irons like Sport-puse. rowels, so that every stroke made foure wounds. When they lay for dead on the ground, he commanded the standers by to foot them, and after the Porters to breake their states upon them. Thus most cruelly mangled and bruised, they were carryed out, of which one dyed in the place. Some would have excused it on the Embassadour; but the King replyed, hee onely bad give him a Cup or two. Though drunkenneile be a common and a glorious vice, and an exercise of the Drunkenneile

Kings, yet it is fo strictly forbidden, that no man can enter into the Gufel-Chan, where the King presented,

King once take offence, the Father will not speake for the Sonne. So the King made the ComKing.

The eight and twentieth, the Kings day of remoone at hand, I fent to Afaph Chan for a war-fits, but the Porters smell his breath: and if hee have but tasted wine, is not suffered to come in and if the reason be knowne of his absence, he shall with difficultie escape the whip : for if the

The fixe and twentieth, I fent to Sorocolla for the Firman. He fent mea copy as ambiguous and fraudulent as the former, which I refused, and drew the milliked clause my selfe, which I sent backe, and was promited that on the morrow it should be fealed.

60 pany pay the Persian Embassadours reward.

rant for carriages: the Merchants having fought all the Towne to removue their goods to Agra.

could find none, fo I received order being enrolled by his Maiesty vpon my offer for twenty Ca-mels, foure Carts, and two Coaches at the Kings price: whereof I diposed as many as the Factors needed to their vie. But it were an extreame errour to omit a passage, either of wonderfull baseneffe in this great Monarch, or a tryall of me. The King had condemned divers Theeves, among which were some boyes: there was no way to faue their lines, but to fell them for slaves : his Maiefly commanded A fash Chan to offer two of them for money, which hee appointed the Chiwall (that is the Marshall) to doe. My Interpreter made answere without my knowledge, that Christians keepe no flaues, that those the King had given I had freed, and that it was in vaine to money to faue the lines of two children's or elie I supposed, if it were in earnest, it were no great loffe to do a good deed. And to try the basenesse or scope of this offer, I commanded my Interpreter to returne to Alaph Chan, to tell him that he had acquainted me with the motion and hisanfivere : that I reprehended him for prefuming in any case to give my resolution, that my owne reply was, if there were any money to faue the life of two Children, to those whom they had robbed, or to redeeme them from the Law; both for respect of the Kings command, and for charitie I was ready to give it, but I would not buy them as flaves, onely pay their ranfome and free them; that if he pleased to know the Kings pleasure that I might give them libertie without offence, I was very willing to doe it. Afaph Chan replyed, I might at my owne will dispose them, to fend it to the Cuttwall, and to vie my discretion to the boyes, not once offering to informe the King, which was one end of my liberality. I was loth to be coozened, and knew not whether this might be the profit of Officers or no, refolued to pay the money, but fo as the King should not be ignorant I had more mercy then he, and that a Christian effeemed the life of a Moore aboue money. So I fent a Factor and my Interpreter to the Cutwall, to acquaint him with the communication with Afaph Chan, and to let him know, if at night he would enforme the King, that I had offered to redeeme the Prifoners for charities lake, if after his Maiesty would consent to their liberty, I was ready to fend him money; but to buy them as flaues, though for an houre, I would not, they should never come nor be manumised by mee, but that I defired his Maiefly to Cuttwall returned antwere, hee would know the Kings pleasure, and accordingly adulfe mee.

Some would perswade me this is one of the Mogols signal fauours to choose out such great men, as he will gue occasion to doe good and honourable workes, to redeeme Prisoners, and that the money gives fatisfaction to the Plaintiffe robbed, and that those so appointed by the King to rantome others, make Sizeda as for tome benefit received. Yet I find not any honour in a Prince to impose it on a thranger, to whom hee gives neither maintenance nor liberality; I went to the Durbar to fee if his Maielty would of himfelfe speake to me, that I might deliuer my owne offer. The Cutwall made many motions, brought in the Executioner who received some com-man !, but I vaderstood it not, but expected my answere.

that it was an extraordinary goodnesse; with many prayles accepted the money, deliring mee 20

their Diamonds and Pearles had fufficed to flew them: when I looked up they retyred and were fo merry, that I supposed they laughed at me. Suddenly the King rose, and wee retyred to the Durbar, and fate on the Carpets attending his comming out: not long after he came and fate about halfe an houre, vntill his Ladies at their doore were afcended their Elephanes, which were about fifty, all most richly furnished, principally three with Turrets of Gold, grates of Goldwyre enery way to looke out, and Canopies outr of cloath of Siluer. Then the King defected the flaires with fuch an acclamation of Health to the King, as would have out-cryed Cannons. At the staires foote, where I met him, and shuffled to be next, one brought a mighty Carpe, another a dish of white stuffe like Starch, into which he put his finger, and touched the fish, and to Superstitious propound it to me. But after I suspected it might be a tryall of me, whether I would gue a little 10 10 rubbed it on his fore-head; a ceremony vied prefaging good fortune. Then another came and i.e. buckled on his fword and buckler, fet all ouer with great Diamonds and Rubies, the belts of gold futable: another hung on his quiver with thirty arrowes, and his bow in a cafe ( the same that was presented by the Persian Ambassadour) on his head he wore a rich Turbant, with a Plumbe of horne tops, not many, but long : on one fide hung a Rubie vnset, as bigge as a Walnut; on Huge Geme the other fide a Diamond as great; in the middle an Emerald like a heart, much bigger. His Shash was wreathed about with a chaine of great Pearle, Rubies and Diamonds drild : about his necke he caryed a chaine of most excellent Pearle thrice double, so great as I neuer law: at his elbowesarmelets fet with Diamonds; and on his wrifts three rowes of Diamonds of feuerall forts: his hands bare, but almost on every finger a Ring; his gloves were English, thucke vnder his 20 girdle; his coat of cloath of Gold, without fleenes, ypon a fine Semian as thinne as Lawne; on his feet a paire of embroydered buskins with Pearle, the toes sharpe and turning vp. I husarmed and accommodated he went to the Coach, which attended him with his new English feruant, who was cloathed as rich as any Player, and more gaudy, and has trained foure hories, which were trapped and harmished in Gold Veluets. This was the first he euer fate in, and was made by that fent from England, fo like, that I knew it not but by the couer, which was a Gold Perfian Veluet. He got into the end, on each fide went two Eunuches, that carried fmall Maces of Gold, fet all ouer with Rubies, with a long bunch of white-horfe-taile to drive away flyes: before him went Drummes, ill Trumpets, and loud muficke, and many Canopies, Quittufols and other ftrange enfignes of Maiefly of cloath of Gold let in many places with great Rubies : nine spare hories, 30 the furniture fome garnished with Rubies, some with Pearles and Emeralds, some onely with pardon them vpon my redemption, so I put them to the test of their base offer. This money exceeded not ten pound, a poore fumme to impose on a stranger, or to bee gained by a King. The studs enamelled.

The Persian Ambassadour presented him a horse; next behind him came three Palankees, the carriages, and feet of one plated with Gold, fet at the ends with Pearle, and a fringe of great Pearle hanging in ropes a foot deepe: a border about, fet with Rubies and Emeralds. A tootman caryed a foot-stoole of Gold, set with stones, the other two were covered and lined with cloath of Gold. Next followed the English Coach, new couered and trimmed rich, which hee had given the Queene Normahell, who rode in it : after them a third of this Countrey fathion, which me thought was out of countenance : in it fate his yonger fonnes : after followed about twenty Elephants Royall, spare, for his owne ascendings, so rich, that in stones and surniture 40 they braued the Sunne. Euery Elephant had divers flagges of cloath of Silver, gilt Satin and taffata. His Noble-men hee furfered to walke a foote, which I did to the gate, and left him. His wines on their Elephants were carryed like Parakitoes halfe a mile behind him. When he came before the doore where his eldeft fonne is prifoner, hee stayed the Coach, and called for him : hee came and made reuerence with a fword and buckler in his hand, his beard growne to his middle, a figne of dif-fauour. The King commanded him to afcend one of the spare Elephants, and so rode next to him, to the extreame applause and toy of all men, who now are hilled with new roome dehucte? hopes. The King gaue him one thousand Rupias to cast to the people, his Gaoler Asiph Chan and all the Moniters yet a foot.

I tooke horse to awayd presse and other inconvenience, and crossed out of the Leskar before in, and attended untill he came neare his Tents. He pasted all the way betweene a guard of Elephants, having every one a Turret on his backe; on the foure corners foure banners of yellow Taffaty; right before a fling mounted, that carried a bullet as big as a great tennis ball the Ganner behind it; in number about three hundred: other Elephants of honor that went before and after about fixe hundred, all which were coursed with Veluet or cleath of Gold, and had two or Elephans. three gilded banners carried: in the way ranne divers foot-men with skinnes of water that made a continuall showre before him:no horse nor man might be suffered to approach the Coach by two furlongs, except those that walked a foot by, so that I hasted to his Tents, to attend his

They were walled halfe a mile in compatie, in forme of a fort, with divers Coynes and Bul- Stately Tents 60 warkes, with high Cannats of a course stuffe made like Arras, red on the out-side, within which figures in panes with a handsome gate-house. Every post that bare vp these, was headed with a top of braffe. The throng was great: I defired to go in, but no man was fuffered, the greatest of the Land fate at the doore; but I made an offer, and they admitted me, but refused the Persian Embassador and all the Noble men. Heere first the Persian Embassador faluted mee with a filent

phants and other brauery

The first of November, Sultan Corronne tooke his leave and went to his Tents. The Kingat noone fat out at the Durbar, where the Prince brought his Elephants about fixe hundred richly trapped and furnished, and his fellowes by estimation ten thousand Horle, many in cloth of gold, with Hearne top-feathers in their Turbants, all in gallantry; Himfelfe in cloth of Silver imbroydered with great Pearle and shining in Diamonds like a Firmament. The King imbraced of the Printe. him and kiffed him, and thewed much affection: at his depature he gaue him a Sword, the Seab-Rick Sword. berd all of Gold fet with stones, valued at an hundred thouland Rupias: a Dagger at forty thousand, an Elephant and two Horses with all the Furniture of Gold set with stones, and for a close one of the new Caroches (made in imitation, of that sent by his Maiesty my Master) and commanded the English Coachman to drive him to his Tents, into which he alcended and fate in 50 the middle, the fides open, his chiefest Nobles a foot walking by him to his Tents about foure mile. All the way he threw quarters of Rupias being followed with a multitude of people, he reached his hand to the Coachman, and put into his Hat about one hundred Rupias. The second, the King removed to his Tents with his women, and all the Court about three mile. I went to attend him comming to the Pallace, I found him at the Farraco window, and went vp on the Scaffold under lum; which place not bauing feene before, I was glad of the occasion. On two Tressels stood two Ennuches with long Poles headed with Feathers, fanning him; hee gaue many favours and received many Prefents, what hee bestowed hee let downe by a Silke, rould on a turning Instrument; what was given him, a venerable fatte determed olde Matrone hung with Gymbals like an Image pluckt vp at a hole with fach another 60 Clue; at one fide in a window were his two principall Wines, whose curiositie made them breaks little holes in a grate of Reed that hung before it, to gaze on me. I faw first their fingers, and after Lying their faces close, now one eye now another sometime I could discerne the full propertion, they were indifferently white, blacke haire smooth vp , but if I had had no other light.

complement only. In the middelt of this Court was a throne of mother of Pearle, borne on The feuenteenth, I received from Gos for truth, that Don Emanuell de Meneffes, with about Newes from two pillars raised on earth, couered ouer with an high Tent, the pole headed with a knob of gold. three handred of there faued alhoare from out the Admirall, were arrived poore, rold and rined Goz. vnder it Canopies of Cloath of gold, vnder-foot Carpets. When the King came neare the doore, by the Inhabitants of Augazefia, who had flaine many, and forced fome to Circumcifion, On fome Noble-men came in, and the Persian Embassador: we stood one of the one side, the other the foure and twentieth of October, not one of the Fleet fent out from Lifton arrived, to their of the other, making a little lane; the King entring cast his eye on me, and I made a reserence he great wonder. The Gallion of Mosambique was fought with by the Hollander that lately delaid his hand on his breft and bowed, and turning to the other fide, no ded to the Perfian I folparted from Surat, who lay off and on before Goa as thee came in to meet the Ships expected she lowed at his heeles till he afcended, and enery man cryed good, toy, and forcune, and to tooke was rich in Gold and other Commodities, but she escaped by meanes of the Port. Observe the our places. He called for water, washed his hands and departed. His women entred some other boldnesse of the Hollanders, to attempt with one ship, and to braue the head of the Indies. Ire-Port to their quarter: and his fonne I faw not. Within this whole raile was about thirty digitons with Tents. All the Noble-men retired to theirs, which were in excellent formes, some all 10 white, fome greene, fome mingled, all incompalled as orderly as any house, one of the greatest rarities and magnificences I ever faw. The whole vale shewed like a beautiful Citie, for that the ragges nor baggage were not mingled. I was vnfitted with carriage, and alhamed of my promision.

to ceiued a promise for Camels to remoue. The eighteenth, I could not procure carriages, but was fo daily delaied, that I feared to flay. Two Cares I was inforced to buy, and Camels I was confrantly premiled. M. Biddolph remained in the Princes Leskar to get mony, the King was yet but tivelue course from Adfinere. The lefuite tooke his leave of me, being forced to buy carriage, not withit anding his order for it out of the Kings store, but scarcitie punished all men. This emptie time offering no discourse of my Relations of owne affaires, I thall digreffe conveniently to mention the state of Sultan Conference, of whole Sultan Conference new deliuery into the hands of his enemies, eucry mans heart and mouth was full. The King notwithstanding he had so farre agreed to satisfic his proud sonne at his departure, yet it seemes meant not to winke at an injurie offered to the Elder, and partly to fecure him in the hands of A-(aph Chan, partly to fatisfie the people that murmured, and feared the practife of some treachery gainst him, he tooke occasion to declare himselfe publiquely. A suph Char had visited his newe Prisoner, and in his fashion did not acknowledge him as his Prince, but rudely prest upon him against his will, and with no reuerence. Some are of opinion, he picke a quarrell, and knowing the brane nature of the Prince, that would not beare indignitie, tempted him to draw his Sword, or to vie fome violence, which the guard should fuddenly reuenge; or elfe it should bee declared to the King, as an attempt to kill his Keeper, and to escape: but the Prince was patienter; onely he got a friend to acquaint the King with the manners of his Laylor. The King called A faph Chan at the Durbar, and asked when he law his charge; he answered two dayes past : his Majestie replyed, what did you with him? he fayes, onely wifit him: but the King preffed to knowe what reuerence and fathion he carried towards him? Afaph Chan found his Maiestie knew what had 30 palled, and confessed he went to see him in affection, and offer his service; but that the Prince refused him admittance into his Chamber; which because he had charge of his safetie, hee thought it both necessary for him to doe, and discourtesse for the other to deny, therefore he prest in. The King returnes quicke, When you were in, what faid you, and what did you? what duty shewed you toward my Sonne ! He stands blancke, and confesseth he did not any reuerence : whereat the King told him, he would make his proud heart know him to bee his eldeft and beloued Heire, his Prince and Lord, and if he once heare of any the leaft want of reueronce, or dutie toward him, he would command his fonne to let his feet on his necke, and trample on him: that he loued Sultan Coronne well, but he would make the world know, he did not intruit his Sonne among them

This ruine.

The three and twentieth, and foure and twentieth, I flayed for the Merchants, and received an Newes from answer from Spalm that my Letters were dispeeded for Aleppo, that our comming into Persia, Persia was expected, but on conditions to fit the Shabas, fo that it might advance his defigne of diverting his Silkes from the way of Turkie: that the Generall of the Grand-fignier lay with a mighty army at Argerone fixe dayes march fhort of Tauris, vncertaine, whether to allaile the Citie, or to enter Gorgeston and Gilan ( the Countreys of Silks) to win that by conquest which he was prohibited by commerce. To meet both attempts, the Shabas was incamped at Salmas, a Village indifferently feated in the way; but if in two moneths the armies incounter not, winter approaching, and the wants which attend fuch multitudes, will diffolus them both, without any honourable action: or if they meete, the Persian though by report one hundred and eightie 50 thousand, will not a luenture battell, but beeing light and able to march casily, without Cannon and Baggage, will fall on and off on every fide to on the Turkes armie, as he will breake, and waft him without hazard.

è. VII.

Sir Thomas Roes following the Court in this Progresse, description of the Kings Leskar, and some places which they passed: the Kings Superstition, drinke, and dealing about the Present.

He first of December, I removed four course to Ramfor where the King had left the bodies of an hundred naked men, flaine in the fields for robbery, and the Caratan at midnight departed Adsmere.

The fourth fine course, I ouertooke in the way a Camell laden with three hundred house.

The fift of Nouember, the Prince fate in the fame magnificence, order and greatnesse that I mentioned of the King . his throne being plated ouer with filter, inlaid with flowers of gold. and the Campie ouer it fq are, borne on foure pillars courted with filter; his armes, fword, buck- 10 ler, bowes, arrowes, and lamce on a table before him. The witch was fet, for it was evening when he came abroad. I observed now he was absolute and curious in his fashion and actions ; he received two letters, read them thanding, before he aftended his Throne. I never faw to fetled 2 countenance, nor any man keepe to constant a granitie, never fmiling, nor in face shewing any respect or difference of men; but mingled with extreame pride and contempt of all, yet I found some inward crouble now and then affaile him, and a kind of brokennesse and distraction in his thoughts, vnprouidedly and amazedly and wering futors, or not hearing. If I can judge any thing, he hath left his heart among his Fathers women, with whom hee hath liberty of convertation. Normabell in the English Coach the day before vilited him and tooke leave, thee gave him a cloak all imbroydered with Pearle, Diamonds and Rubies, and carried away, if I erre not, his attenti- 30 on to all other bufineffe, but five yeeres allowance could not have furnished me with one indifferent fute fortable to o. thers; and which addes to the greatnesse, every man hath a double, for that one goes afore to the next Remoue, and is fet a day before the King refeth from thele. So I returned to my poore Fray betwite and English.

The fixt, I received a letter from Master Browne, from Amadauxs, who certified me of a fray begun by the Portugalls: fine of them fetting on an Englife Boy in Cambaya, and difarming him, upon rumours whereof Ioh : Browne and Iames Bickeford went to his reloce, and were affailed by feuen of them. One shooting a Patoll, burt fobs Browne in the hand, but his heart lay not there: they defended themselves honestly, branely, like Englishmen, killed one, burt some others, and chafed them vp and downe the Towne like beatle, to the great flume of tuch villaines, and reputation of our Nation. To revenge this, the Portugally being arriven in their Frigats, divers came ashoare, no more English in Towne but the three mentioned. The Governour understood the occafron, and fent the Cut wall with a guard to our house, and shut the water ports, expelling the Por- 40 tugalls, by commanding upon pains of chastifement not to meddle with the English: and so delinered them fafe out of Towne, who are returned to Amadauas.

The ninth, I found the Prince earnest at Cards, but he excused himselfe of forgerfulnesse, and blamed the Officers formally; but in thew yfed me with more courtefie then ordinary, call ngme to fee his Cards, and asking many questions. I expected he would speake of my going with him; but finding no fuch discourse, I told him I was come only to obey him and to take my leaut, that I defired his pardon, that I hasted away, for that I was to returne to Adfinere, being unprounded to flay all night. He answered, he fent for me to fee me b. fore his going, that I should prefently be dispatched. Then he fent in an Eunuch, and divers of his Cartaines came smiling, saying the Prince would give me a great Prefent, and if I feared to ride late, I should have ten horie to 50 guard me, and made fich a butinesse, as if I should have rece ued his bift chaine of Pearle. By and by came a Cloath of gold Cloake of his owne, once or twice worne, which hee citied to be put on my backe, and I made retterence very vinwillingly. When his Ancestor Tamerlane was reprefented at the Theater, the garment would well have become: but it is heere reputed the highest fauour to give a garment worne by a Prince, or being new, once laid on his shoulder.

Order to fire the Leskar at

The fixteenth, the King gave order to fire all the Leskar at Admere to compell the prople to follow, which was daily executed. I was left almost defolate, and the Persan Embasia four (who had fought, chid, brauld, complained, but could not get remedy) in the lame eithte, wee leat to bemone one another, and by his example I began to refolue to buy (for many wold fell, which at the Kings price could not hire) and I cast it at the best hand I could, almost to face the hire, 60 though the carts were deare, for in three moneths the price was eaten; nece try inforced me, for the Towne was burnt and defolate. I was in danger of theenes, that from the armic came and robbed in the night. I could not find bread to eate, yet I fent anew to Court, and refelued to abide all the inconveniences of a hard fiege.

Description of The fixth, four course, where I ouertooke the King at a walled Towne called Godah, in the best Countrey I saw since my landing being a faire Champion, ar every course a Village, the foula fruitfull in Corne, Cotton, and Cattell.

The fenenth, the King paffed onely from one fide of the Towne to the other, which was one of the best built I ener faw in India, for that there were some houses two stories high, and most such as a Pedler might not scorne to keepe shop in, all conered with tyle. It had beene the feat of a Raza Ralhboote, before the Conquest of Echariha, and stood at the foot of a great Rocke very ftrong, had many excellent workes of hewed stone about it, excellently cut, many Tankes ar- 10 ched, vaulted, and descents made large, and of great depths. By it stood a delicate Groue of two mile large, a quarter broad, planted by industry, with Manges, Tamerins, and other fruits, divided with walkes, and full of little Temples and Altars of Pagods, and Gentilitial Idolatry, many Fountaines, Wels, Tankes, and Summer-houses of carued stone curiously arched, fo that I must confesse, a banished Englishman might have been content to dwell there, but this observation on is generall, that ruine and deftruction eates vp all: for fince the proprietie of all is come to the King, no man takes care for particulars; so that in every place appeares the vastations and shoiles of warre, without reparation.

ence which followeth the flaucay of Subiccts and the Kings onely proprietie. Leicar admi-

Inconueni-

The ninth, returning, I viewed the Lescar, which is one of the wonders of my little experience, that I had feene it finished, and fet vp in foure houres, except some of great men that have 20 a double prouision, the circuit being little lelle then twenty English miles, the length some waies three courfe, comprehending the skirts, and the middle, wherein the ffreets are orderly, and Tents joyned; there are all forts of shops, distinguished so by rule, that every man knowes readily where to feeke his wants, every man of qualitie, and every trade being limited how farre from the Kings Tents he shall pitch, what ground he shall vie, and on what fide without alteration, which as it lies together, may equall almost any Towne in Europe for greatnesse; onely a Musket that every way no man approacheth the Atafikanha royall, which is now kept to first, that none are admitted but by name, and the time of the Durbar in the Euening is omitted and spent in hunting or hawking on Tanks by Boat, in which the King takes wonderfull delight, and his Barges are removed on Carts with him, and he fits not but on the fide of one, which are many times a mile or two ouer. At the Iarruco in the morning he is feene, but bufinesse or speech prohibited: all is concluded at night at the Guzelchan, when often the time is preuented by a drowfinesse which possesset the King from the fumes of Bacchus. There is now a gre t whisper in Court, about a new affinitie of Sultan Corforoone and Afaph Chan, and great hope of his libertie. I will finde occasion to discourse it, for that the passages are very worthy, and the wissome and goodnesse of the K ng appeares, about the malice of others, and Noomabel fulfill the observation, that in all actions of confequence in Court, a woman is not onely alwaies an ingredient, but commonly a principall drug of most vertue, and she shewes that they are not incapable of condu-Cting bufinetle, nor her telfe void of wit and fubtiltie. It will discouer a Noble Prince, an excellent Wife, a faithfull Counfeilour, a craftie Step-mother, an ambitious Sonne, a cunning Fauou- 40 rite, all reconciled by a patient King, whose heart was not understood by any of all these. But this will require a place alone, and not to be mingled among bufineffe.

The fixteenth, I visited the King, who having been at his sports, and his quarry of sowle and fish lying before him, he defired me to take my choice, and so distributed the remainder to his Nobilitie. I found him fitting on his Throne, and a Begger at his feet, a poore filly old man all asht, ragd, and patcht, with a young roague attending on him. With these kind of professed poore holy men, the Countrey abounds, and are held in great reuerence, but for workes of chafittious, and thicement of their bodies, and voluntary fufferings, they exceed the brags of all heretiques or Idelaters. This milerable wretch cloathed in rags, crowned with feathers, coursed with alhes, his Maiestie talked with about an houre, with such familiaritie and shew of kindnesse, that it must so needs argue an hamilitie not found eafily among Kings. The Begger fate, which his fonne dares not doe: he gaue the King a Prefent, a Cake, asht, burnt on the coales, made by himselfe of course graine, which the King accepted most willingly, and brake one bit and eate it, which a daintie mouth could fearce have done. After he tooke the clout, and wrapt it vp, and put in the poore mans bolome, and fent for one hundred Rupias, and with his owne hands powred them into the poore mans lap, and what fell befides, gathered up for him; when his collation of languetting and drinke came, whatfoeuer he tooke to eate, he brake and gaue the Begger halfe, and after many thrange humiliations and charities, rifing, the old Wretch not being nimble, he tooke him vp in his armes, which no cleanly body durit have touched, imbracing him, and three times laying his hand on his heart, calling him father, he left him, and all vs and me in admiration of such a 60

vertue in a heathen Prince.

The fixe and twentieth, we paffed through Woods, and over Mountaines, torne with bushes, tired with the incommodioulneffe of an impatible way, where many Camels perifhed, many departed for Agra, and all complained. Host my Tents and Carts, but by midnig is we met, the

The Princes incinility to the English. CHAP. 16. S.7.

King refled two dayes, for that the Leiker could not in leffe time recouer their order, many of the kings women, and thousands of Coaches, Carts, and Camels, lying in the woody mountaines, without meat and water, himfelfe got by on a fmall Elephant, which beaft will climbe up rockes and passe fuch firaits, as no horse nor beast that I know can follow him.

The twenty fourth of lanuary, newes arrued at Court, that the Decans would not be frighted Innuary 24. out of their Dominion, which Afath Chan and Normahal had pretended, to procure this Voyage, the Mood's but that they had fent their impediments into the heart, and attended in the borders, with htty thousand horse, resolved to fight, and that Sultan Caronne was yet advanced no further then Man- Masses. doa, atraid both of the enemie and Chan Channa. These Counsellers changed their advice, and

10 declaring to the King that they conceined the Decan, before his pallage over the last hills, would haue yeelded by the terrour of his approach, but finding the contrary, perfivaded him to convert it to a hunting journey, and to turne his face toward Agra, for that the other was not an enemie worthy his perion. He replied this confideration came too late, his honour was ingaged feeing he had so farre past, hee would profecute their first counsells and his purpose, and aduenture the hazard of both. But hee daily dispeeded fresh troopes towards his sonne, partly from his owne, the rest commanded from governments, according to reports, thirty thousand horse, but not by

The third of February, departing out out of the Roade of the Leskar for ease and shade, and re- February; fling vnder a tree for the same commodities, came vpon me Sultan Corforone, the Kings eldest Conference ao refrained fonne, riding vpon an Elephant, with no great guard nor attendance; his people defired me to give him roome, which I did hur attended to him under all the Conference. fired me to give him roome, which I did, but attended to fee him, who called for mee, and with some gentle and familiar questions, full of courtesse and affabilitie hee departed : his person is good, and countenance chearefull, his beard growne to his girale; this only I noted, that his quethons shewed ignorance of all passages in Court, in so much hee neuer heard of any Amballadour

The fixt at night, we came to a little Tower newly repaired, where the King pitched in a plealant place upon the Riuer of Sepra, thort of Vgen, the chiefe City of Mulma, one Courle. This Senz. place called Callenda, was anciently a Seat of the Gentile Kings of Mandon, one whereof was there Mulma. place called Calleda, was anciently a Sea to the Genute Kings or Mannay, one whereou was once drowned in his druke, having once before fallen into the Ruser, and was taken up by the hire database which is the same and the same arowned in his urine, manny, and being come to him elle it was related to him to procure a drowned. reward; he called for the instrument of his safety, and demanding how he durst put his hands on his Soueraignes head, caused them to be strucke off. Not long after, sitting alone with his wife in drunkennesse, hee had the same mischance to slip into the water, but so that shee might easily haue (aued him, which shee did not: and being demanded why, shee replyed, shee knew not whether he would also cut off her hands for her recompence.

The elementh, the King rode to Ugen to speake with a Deruis or Saint, liming on a hill, who Old Deruis is reported to be three hundred years old: I thought this miracle not worth my examination. At noone by a foot-polt I received a letter, that the Prince, notwithstanding all Firmans and Commands of his Father, had intercepted the Presents and goods sent vp, to fulfill his base and 40 greedie delire, and that notwithstanding any gift nor entreaty, or perswasions of Master Terry, to whole charge they were committed, would not part with them, but by force compelled them to returne with him toward Brampore: yet did he forbeare to breake any thing open, but preffed the English to content, which they refuling by my order, he thought to winne them by vexations; such is the custome to see all Merchants goods even before the King, that he may first choose, but I refolued to breake that in our behalfe.

The Prince to satisfie his desire, before I could have knowledge, he sent a Post to the King to certifichim, that such goods he had slayed without mention of Presents, and prayed leave to open them, and to buy what he fancied. So foone as I heard of this faithleffe vnciuill viage, I refolged I was infilifiable before all the world, if I vsed the extremitie of complaints, that I had 50 practifed all meanes to win and purchate fauour, and had fuffered beyond the patience of a freeman, my former courses will witnesse, and leave me without blame in ill successes, though I found it in a rougher way, seeing I could find no better in the smoothest. Briefely I resoluted to appeale to Inflice by complaint, but as calmely and warily as I could, to express my whole griefe, extreame insuries, and long patience. To go to Asaph Chan (though to neglect him would displease him) et to trie him I feared would preuent my purpose: to send to him that I desired to visite the King at the Glutel-chand, I doubted what I intended might be suspected, if hee had heard of the injury: fo I proctifed first to preuent, and avoid preuention.

The Proplet, whom the King vnited, offered me occasion, and my new Linguist was readie. I rode and met his Maiestie on his Elephant, and alighted making figne to speake; he turned his 60 monfler to mee, and presented mee. My some lash taken your goods and my Presents bee not fair, he final not couch nor open a feale, nor locke; at night I will fend him a command to free them, with other very gracious speeches, that he knew I came full of complaint, to eale mee he beginne he't. Vpon the way I could doe no more, but at night, without further feeking to A. figh Coan, I went to the Guze! Chan, refolued to profecute the complaint of forcing backe our goods, in respect of the charge and trouble, of the abuses of Surat, and all our other grievances. So soone as I came in, the King called my Interpreter, and delivered by his, that he had written and fent his command very effectually, that not a haire should be diminished : I replyed, the iniury was fuch, and the charge and abules of our liberty by the Princes officers, that I defired redresse, for that we could not longer surfer. It was answered, what was past I must remit to his fonne but by Alaph Chans mediation I could procure nothing but very good words, for he fmoothed on both fides; fo that I was forced to feeme content, and to feeke an opportunitie in the ablence of my falle friend and procurator. The good King fell to diffute of the Lawes of Mo. fes, lefus and Mahomet, and in drinke was fo kind, that he turned to me, and faid: I am a King, you shall be welcome Christians, Moores, Iewes, he medled not with their faith; they came all to The Morell in in love, and he would protect them from wrong, they lived wnder his fatety, and none should oppresse them; and this often repeated, but in extreame drunkennesse he fell to weeping, and to di-uers paffions, and to kept vs till midnight. Judge all men what trauell I endured, by reason the Factors kept my Presents soure moneths. and fent them even in the mouth of the Prince, arrived within two dayes of Brampore, and hereby enery way our charge doubled, that I refted not fatisfied; but feeing I had begun, and that the Prince was, as I feared, enough exasperated with a little, I thought as good lose him to some purpose, as to none, at least to trie the King what hee would doe. So I waited aduantage, but sent backe the messenger to Master Terry, to stand out and actend the Kings answere, which I would speedily fend him. And so resolved to dislemble that I hope to repay, when I came, with base 20 flattery worse then the theft, or at least to give me some satisfaction, because trouble was in my face, for otherwise it is no injury heere to bee so vied : he beganne to tell me he had taken divers things, that please him extreamely well, naming two Culhions embroydered, a folding Glasse. and the Dogges, and defired mee not to bee discontent, for whatsoeuer I would not give him, I should receive backe : I answered, there were few things that I entended not to present him, but that I tooke it a great discourtese to my Soueraigne, which I could not answere, to have that was freely given feazed, and not delivered by my hands to whom they were directed and that fome of them were entended for the Prince and Normahall, some to lye by me, on occasions, to prepare his Maiesties fauour to protect vs from injuries that strangers were daily offered, and some for my friends or private vie, and fome that were the Merchants, which I had not to doe withall he 30 answered, that I should not be sad nor grieued, that hee had his choyce, for that hee had not patience to for hear feeing them, hee did mee no wrong in it, for hee thought I wished him first ferued, and to my Lord the King of England hee would make fatisfaction, and my excufe: the Prince, Normahall and he were all one; and tor any to bring with me to procure his fauour, it was a ceremony, and vnneceffary, for he would at all times heare methat I should be welcome emptie handed, for that was not my fault, and I should receive right from him; and to go to his fonne, he would returne me fomewhat for him, and for the Merchants goods pay to their content: concluding I should not be angry for this freedome; he entended well: I made no reply. Then hee pressed me whether I was pleased or no. I answered his Maiesties content pleased me : so seeing Matter Terry, whom I brought in with me, he called to him, Padre you are very welcome, and 40 this house is yours, esteeme it so, when some you delire to come to me, it shall bee free for you, and whatbeuer you will require of mee, I will grant you.

blin d

Mafter Terry the Minister

the Picture o

nary, for whom came they ! I replyed, I entended one for his Maiestie, the other to Normaball. Why then, faid hee, you will not aske that I have, being contented with one ? I was forced to yeeld. Next he demanded whose the Hats were, for that his women liked them. I answered, three were fent to his Maiesty, the fourth was mine to weare. Then said he, you will not take them from me, for I like them, and yours I will returne if you need it, and will not bestow that 50 on me, which I could not refuse. Then next he demanded whose the Pictures were. I answered, fent to me to yie on occasions, and dispose as my businesse required : so hee called for them, and caused them to be opened, examined me of the women, and other little questions, requiring ma-Notable que- ny judgements of them, of the third Picture of Venus and a Satyre : he commanded my Interpreter not to tell me what he faid: But asked his Lords what they conceived should be the interpretation or morall of that, he shewed the Satyres hornes, his skinne which was swart, and pointed to many particulars: every man replyed according to his fancie; but in the end hee concluded they were all deceived : and feeing they could judge no better, hee would keepe his conceit to himfelfe, iterating his command to conceale this pallage from me : But hade him aske me what it meant: I answered, an Invention of the Painter to shew his arte, which was Poeti- 60 call, but the interpretation was New to mee that had not feene it. Then he called Mafter Terry, to give his indgement, who replying, hee knew not. The King demanded why hee brought vp to him an invention wherein hee was ignorant; at which I enterpoled that he Dogges, Cushions, Barbers case, you will not desire to have backe, for that I am delighted in them: I answered no. Then said he there were two Glasse chestes, for they were very meane and ordiwas a Preacher, and medled not with fuch matters, nor had charge of them, onely com-

Then he converted himfelte with this cunning vnto me, naming all particulars in order: The ming in their company, hee was more noted, and so named as their conductor.

CHAP. 16. $.7.

This I repeate for instruction, to warne the company and him that shall succeed me to be very wary what they fend, may be subject to ill Interpretation : for in that point this King and prople are very pregnant and ferupulous, fell of iealousie and trickes, for that notwithit anding the King concerted himselfe, yet by the paffages I will deliner my opinion of this conceit, which (knowing, I had never leene the Picture, and by Ignorance was guiltleffe) hee would not preffe hard vponme. But, I suppose, he understood the Morall to be a scorne of Asatiques whom the naked Satyre represented, and was of the fame complexion and not valike; who being held by Umm a white woman by the Nofe, it feemed that thee led him Captine. Yet he renealed no difto consent, but rould them vp, and told me he would accept him alio as a Prefent. For the Saddle and some other small Toyes, he would fit me with a gift to his Sonne, to whom he would write according to promife, to effectually that I should need no Sollicitor, in many businesses with as many complements, excuses; professions & protestations as could come from any very Noble, or very base minde in either extreame. Yet he left not, but enquired what meant the figures of the healts, and whether they were fent me to give to him: I had underflood they were very ridiculous and ill fraped ordinary creatures, the varnish off, and no beauty other then a lumpe of wood; I was really ashamed and answered, it was not my fault, those that seized them must beare the affront, but that they were not entended to him, but fent to flew the formes of certaine beafts with vs. Hereplyed quickly, did you thinke in England that a Horfe and a Bull was frange to mee! I re-20 plyed, I thought not of fo meane a matter, The fender was an ordinary man in good will to mee for Toyes, and what he thought, I knew not well faid the King, I will keepe them, and onely male of Mastiffes, and the tall Irib Grey-hounds, and such other Dogges as hunt in your lands, The Kingsreand if you will promife me this, I will give you the word of a King, I will fully recompence quefts.

you, and grant you all your defires. I answered, I would promise to provide them, but could not warrant their lines, and if they dyed by the way, onely for my discharge, their skinnes and bones should bee preferued, hee gaue extraordinary Bowes, layd his hand on his heart, and fich kind of gestures as all men will witnesse, he neuer vsed to any man, nor such familiarity, nor freedome, nor profession of loue. 30 This was all my recompence, that he often defired my content to be merry, that the wrong he had done me, he would royally requite, and fend me home to my Countrey with grace and reward like a Gentleman. But feeing nothing returned of what was feized, but words, I defired his Maiesty to deliuer backe the Veluets and Silkes being Merchants goods, that they were sent vp among mine by his Maiesties command, for that by that pretence, they escaped the rauine of the Princes Officers: fo hee gaue order to call Mafter Biddolph to agree with him, and to pay for them to content. Then I deliacred a Letter I had ready written contaying my defire for Pri-uiledges and Iustice otherwise I should returne as a Fayzneane and diffraced to my Soucraigne, defire you to helpe me to a horse of the greatest fize. It is all I will expect, and a Male and Fe-and defired some Iustice for Sulpheckarkons Debt lätely dead; he replyed he would take such order with his Sonne for Surat, as I should have no cause to complaine, and that he should cleere it for 40 which he gaue instant order. For other places, he would give me his commands, and every way thew how much he loued me, and to the end I might returne to my Mafter with honour. Hee would fend by me a rich and worthy Prefent with his Letter of my behaviour filled with many prayfes, and commanded me to name what I thought would be most acceptable. I answered, I durst not craue, it was not our custome, nor stood with my Masters honour, but what soener he fent, I doubted not, would be acceptable from fo potent a King, and fo much loved of my Lord. He replyed, that I thought he asked in iest, to please mee, and that he saw I was yet discontent, but he consured me to believe he was my friend, and would at conclusion prove to, and vowed by his head hee spake heartily concerning Presents , but I must not refuse for his instruction to name somewhat. This earnestnesse enforced mee to say, if his Maiesty pleased, I thought large

30 Persian Carpets, would be fittelt; for gifts of cost and value, my Matter expected not. He answered, he would provide of all forts and fizes, and added to them what hee thought was fit, that your King may know I respect him next, having Venison of divers forts before him, he gaue me halfe a Stagge, with thefe words, hee killed it himfelfe, and the other halfe I' should see bestowed on his wives, which was presently cut out, in small pieces of foure pound and fent in by his third fonne, and two women that were called out to divers fuch Mammockes, as if it had beene a dole to the poore, and carryed by the Prince bare in his hands. Now I had as much fatisfaction, and so abundant grace as might have flattered me into content, but the injury was aboue words, though I were glad of thefe and of colour to diffemble, for hee fenc as a conclufrom to know if I were pleased, and did not depart discontent. I answered his Maiesties fauour

60 was fufficient to make mee any amends. Then, faid he, I have onely one question to a ke you; which is, I wonder much now I have feene your Prefents two yeares, what was the reason why your King fent a Merchant, a meane man before you with fine times as many, and more curious Toyes that contented all, and after to fend you his Ambaffadour with a Commilton and his Letter mentioning Presents, and yet what you brought was little, meane and interiour to the other.

I acknowledge you an Ambassadour, I haue found you a Gentleman in your viage, and I am a mazed why you were fo flightly fet out.

I would have replyed, but he cut me off, I know it is not the Kings fault, nor yours, but I will let you see I esteeme you better then they employed you. At your returne, I will fend you home with honour, with reward, and according to your qualitie; and not respecting what you brought me, will like a King present your Lord and Master : onely this I will require from you, and not expect it from the Merchants, to take with your patterne of a Quiner, and Cale for my Bow. a Coat to weare, a Cushion to sleepe on of my fashion, which was at his head, and a paire of Boots, which you shall cause to bee embroydered in England, of the richest manner, and I will expect and receive them from you, for I know in your Countrey they can worke better then to any I have seene, and if you send them mee, I am a King, you shall not lose by it, which I most thankfully undertooke, and he commanded Afaph Chan to fend me the patternes. Then he de manded if I had any Grape Wine . I could not denie it; he defired a tafte next night, and if heeliked it he would be bold, if not, he defired me to make merrie with it. So spending this night onely on me, he rofe.

The third of March, wee came to Mandon, into which the King entred in state, but no man was fuffered to goe in before hee was let, by the aduice of his Aftrologers, fo that wee all fare without, attending a good houre.

The fixth, I came into Mandoa, having fent before, and found a faire Court well walled and in that a good Church, one great Tombe: it was taken vp by one of the Kings Seruants, but I 20 got possession and kept it, being the best within all the wall, but two mile from the Kings hous, yet so sufficient that a little charge would make it defensible against raines, and suc one thousand Rupias, and for Aire very pleasant upon the edge of the hill.

The eleventh, at night I went toward the Court, but the King vpon newes of a Lion that had killed some Horses, was gone to hunt, so that I had leisure to seeke some water: for we were brought to a hill with a multitude of people (so great is the forelight, and so good the Policie) where was no water, that men and Caltle were like to perish, that little that was in Pooles some great men possessed, and kept by force, I could get none, the poore forsooke the Citie, and by Proclamation many were commanded away, all Horses and Cattel forbid, and so those who were now in hope to rest, were forced to seeke new Dwellings, who departed some two, three and 20 foure Course off, to the extreame trouble of all men, and the terrible rising of prouisions. I knew not what to doe: my Roome and House was good, and though I were farre from Markets, yet it was a leffe inconvenience then to fit in the fields without house or shelter, onely I wanted water. fo I rode my felfe to feeke some, and found a great Poole possessed by Chan, which was given by the King. I fent to defire him leave to draw, who granted me foure load a day, which fatisfied me in such fort, that with felling away some of those lades that were put voon me from Surat, and putting off my Cattell, I had hope to live, to which purpose I sent two with them to Iye out of Towne. There was not a mifery, nor punishment, which either the want of Gouernment, or the naturall disposition of the Clime gaue vs not.

d. VIII

The New-yeares Feast: Suspicions of the English: Trade of Dabul, distaste of the Persian, English-men of Warre in the Indian Seas.

He twelfth, I went to the King, and carried a New-yeares gift, a paire of very faire Kniues of my owne, and fixe Glaffes of yours; the excuse I made was well received, 50 and the King vied mee with all grace, this onely was my comfort. He faid whatloeand the King vied mee with augrace, unbounds making to the king vied mee with augrace fulficient, he accepted my loue, and it was his uer came from my hands was prefent fulficient, he accepted my loue, and it was his uncomplete that I part now to give me. I found a gainer by him, who had so farre performed his promite that I perceiued the King instructed in my defire, and gaue present order to an Officer to send for Mafter Bidolph to pay him to his content for fuch things as he claymed, and all the others were acknowledged to be received by name, and that when I went to the Prince, the King would write; but was loth to part with any thing, of which the best sweet bagge lay before him. I replyed, I was as loth to goe emptie handed: to it rested, the King commanded I should come up and stand within, on the degrees of his Throne by him, where I found on one fide the Persian Ambassadour, on the other the old King Candabar with whom I ranked, and he prefently fell to begge a 60 Knife which next day I fent. The King called for the Perfian to come downe, to whom he gaue a Iewell, and a young Elephant, for which he kneeled and faluted the ground with his head. The Throne was the same vsed the last yeare, and all the other furniture : at the vpper end was set the King my Soueraignes Picture, the Queenes, my Lady Elizabeths, Sir Thomas Smiths and some others, two pieces of good and fine Tapiftrie below them, that came from Persia, a Throne of Gold fet all ouer with Rubies, Emeralds and Turqueis, and the old Musicke of singing Whores. This day I dispatched to Surat my aduice of the Persian businesse and the new Ambastadour, and fome remembrance to Abram Chan the Gouernour from whom I received a Letter, that in his absence our Nation had beene wronged against his knowledge, but that his power being augmented by the Prince, he defired me to be confident in him, that while he lived in authoritie we fhould never fuffer any fuch abuses, but we should live in all freedome.

The thirteenth, I fent a Complement to Afaph Chan, a faire wrought Night-cap of mine owne, and a rich paire of Gloues which he returned as vieleffe in this Countrey; the Cap he reto cerued and defired fome Alegant Wine, which I fent the next day at night. Aganor (whose diligence now gaue me great hope and eafe) fent a Bannian his Secretary to tell mee hee had order for the dispatch of the Merchants goods, and that his man should attend Master Biddolph to fimish it, that the patternes should be sent me home, and that the King would give me a Coat and money to beare my charges to the Prince. I returned answere, that I had no vie of a Babylonish Garment, nor needed money ; if his Maiestie were pleased to consider the injuries offered, of which the Paper testified remayned in his hands, and to give me his Letter to the Prince with some Presents or else to write in my excuse, it was all I would defire, but for his gifts I expected

The one and twentieth: I yet could not at instant presse it further, only I discouered the Suritions of 20 Kings doubts, for he suspected my stealing out of his Countrey, and breach with our Nation for the Bathh. the Prince, either out of guiltinelle or feare, or perhaps cunning to make vs the pretence of his owne defignes, had newly enformed the King, that next yeare, the English purposed the taking of Surat, and keeping it, of which our owne folly gaue some colour; for lately upon one of their ordinary brabbles they caufed two hundred Musketers to land and march toward Surat, and being met by divers the loyfull Mariners gaue out, they went to take it. This abforde brauado for a a handful of men to passe twelve mile to a walled Towne, able to put out a thousand horse armed, and as many shot, a River to passe which a few men would defend against a good Armie, gave inft occasion of scorne and offence : and which the Prince apprehended for some other his owne ends, to refortifie the Cattleand Towne, and to fend downe Ordnance for the defence: a good 30 prouision to keepe a doore open to flie out, if his Brother live to correct his ambition. But this information occurring with my discontents heere, and some free language, my pressure to goe to Brampore, and flying newes that we had taken Gon, and were preparing a great Fleet in England, did canse lome suspition in the King, which though he concealed it, yet hee thought to discouer by the former Discourse, with which hee rested fully satisfied , but I did not : I had beene long fed with words, and knew as well as the heart that trembled, that feare of vs only preferued

The mine and twentieth of March: this complaining of Officers is a tune fo new, fo odious in A.D. 1617. Court, that it troubleth all great men, it beeing their owne case, who living vpon farming Go-Tyranny of uernments in which they vic all tyrannie to the Naturals, are loth to fuffer a way open to the Officers, 40 Kings vnderstanding of their practice, who ordinarily hang men by the heeles, to confesse money, or to ransome themselves from no fault: this made all men entire my imployment, and avoid me as an Informer. The five and twentieth of April, I received from Dabull road from Cap. Pepmell, that according Letter from to admife he had flaved the Juncke bound for Meche, but weighing the caution given by mee to Captaine Proconfider well what correspondence were betweene that Prince and Mozolapatan, in whose Ter- well at Dabuilis ritorie the Solomon was and could not get to Sea, finding both alliance and friendship, he freed her without sporle, alleaging the refusal of Trade to Middleton , which courtesse procured him, so good entertainment as the Indies affoords feldome, free Trade and promife to take three hundred Clothes yearely: a good quantitie of Lead fold for money, and some Ordnance (which I like not to arme the Indians, and the Portugals friends, enemies to the Mogoll) and all other courtefies, which it this kindnesse proceeded not, for that the Juncke was yet under command, gives me good hope of some Trade in fale yearsly at the Port, however the freeing of the Iuncke affures me the Commander will doe nothing by catching, prejudiciall to the Company, and deliver himselfe honeftly from the jealousies cast vpon him from Dabul, hee signifies his intent to proceed to Callierne, and if that Factoriebe not worth implyes to transmit it to Dabul. The fenen and twentieth by the Foot-post I received from Mefolapatan, that the Salomon was got to Sea, and the Hossander from Bantamarriued, who brought the ill newes of the losse of the Hellor and Concord, careening in the Roade of Incatra, on Inna, in recompence that the Dragon, Cloue and Defence, were homeward laden from Banum. I tooke this occasion to conney a letter to the Gouernour of Dabul over-land, to apprehend the overture newly made by him of the Overture of trade: though I had little opinion of the place, yet I would not neglect that, nor encourage the Trade at Denext Fleet to proceed, but vpon betteraffurance then a forced friendship, and offers made while bull. their Iuncke was in our power. The effect was to fignific the causes of our staying their goods for refuting trade to Sir Henry Middleton, but now finding in him a better inclination and a defire to receive vs, & to establish a friendship and league, a promise to take cloth in good quantitie. I required if these motions were hearty, and such as besitted a man of honour, that he would write to the King his Mafter, to procure his Firman with fuch priniledges as were fit for Merchants, and his promife to buy our goods, and to fulfill all the friendly offers made by him, his Officer, vnder his Seale, and with expedition to fend it mee to the Court of the great Mogoll r whereby I might receive afturance and encouragement that they entended faith, and on fuch reception I did vndertake on the behalfe of the King of England, a good and firme Peace toward his Master, his subjects free passage in the seas, from any oppression by our Fleets: and that yeare. ly I would either send a ship to his Port for trade, or if it to required, leaue & establish a residence in his Government. I doubt not, but yearely for feare or love, some good trade by sales may bee made, but for enuestments, it will not be worth it: only I proceeded as I would have wished all Io men, not with too feeming eager a defire, nor to swallow any offers and conditions hungerly, for frist care in the first feeling is the best advantage : and for misery of ensuing times, it being agenerall rule neuer to mend your first estate, often to empaire it, euery mans best houre is when he is new, a stranger, and at first seene; after, the natural lenitie of these Barbarians, finds all that brings not change, fastidious. This dispatch I committed to Master Bangham, and defired him to make diligent enquiry of the commodities, advantages, inconveniences, humours and affections of these Decannies towards vs.

CHAP. 16. S.8.

Distaste of the Perfen Am.

The thirtieth, the time that he brought me the excuses of the Persian Ambassadour, for failing in taking his leaue of me, which he would not fend by a fernant, but ettered the truth that the Ambassadour was not ficke, as he pretended, but receiving no content from the King in his busnesse he suddenly tooke leave, and having given thirty faire horses at his departure: the King gaue in recompence three thousand Rupias which he tooke in great scorne; whereupon the King prized all that the Ambassadour had given him at meane rates, and likewise all that the Kine had returned fince his arrivall, euen to flaues, Drinke, Mellons, Pines, Plantanes, Hawkes, Plumes, the Eliphant and what locuer at extreme high rates, and fending both Bils made it up in money. This base viage and scorne caused him to excuse his not seeing Asaph Chan and Etimon Dowles on a Feuer, which having done hee could not come through the Towne to mee without discourie, but defired him to acquaint me with the truth, and to make all excuse and protession that hee would recompence this discourtesse by double friendship to my Countrimen in Persia: with fome bitternesse against the King, which Aganor as freely delivered, and I feemed as vinwilling 30 to heare. I prefented them with some Aligant and Kniues, and we parted,

The twelfth of May, I received newes of a great blow given the Perfian by the Turkes Army, fo that Tanrie was rafed, and the Shabas not able to keepe the field.

The fine and twentieth, a Lion and a Woolfe vied my house, and nightly put vs in alarume, fetching away Sheepe'and Goats out of my Court, and leaping a high wall with them. I fent to aske leave to kill it, for that no man may meddle with Lions but the King, and it was granted: I ranne out into the Court vpon the noyle, and the beast missing his prey, seized on a little Island Dogge before me, that I had long kept, but the Woolfe one of my Seruants killed, and I fent it

The fourteenth of Iune, certaine goods of the Issuites were sent from Cambaya in a Cabinet, 40 Philicke and necessaries, and a Letter, which were betrayed by the bringer, and delinered the King : which he opened and fent for the Padre to reade the Letter, and to fee all in the Boxes, of which nothing liking him, he returned all; which I observe as a warning to all that deale in this Kingdome, to bee wary of what they write or fend, for fuch is the cultome and humour of the King, that he will feize and fee all, left any Toy should escape his appetite.

The eighteenth, I received Letters from Amadauar of the Hope of the fall of Indico, by the failing of the Goa Caffila, and that there was plentie to be bought but deare. That the Vnicornes Morne was returned as without vertue, concerning which I gaue him new aduice; many complaints against Surat and others, which I meddle not with. I received from Brampoore two Letters, how doubtfull the Debt of Ralph flood, and newes of the returne of Spragge from the Lefhar of Decan. The Generall Meliekamber with much shew of honour, gave instant order for privie fearch in all his Campe, for the Persian fled, and by me remanded; but finding him departed to Vizempore, by testimony that bufinelle was pursued no further, but by a Letter to a Duich there resident. The Generall desired Spragge to be a meanes to bring him English cloth and swords to his Campe for the supply of his Souldiers which lye within sixe dayes of Brampoore. In my opinion, that had beene a good employment of fome idle men, and a way to yent our dead com-

The thirtieth of Iuly, I received from Sarat, of the casting away of two Dutch thips on the Coast of Damen, that having come from the Southward with Spices and China Silkes, were 60 bound for the Red Sea , but losing their season with much extremitie of weather beating many weekes about the entrance for harbour, attempted the like at Socatra, and upon the Coaft of Arabia, but being not able to get in any way, they resolved for Surae, hoping by the last yeares good successe to be able to ride safely : but the yeares differ, and beeing forced to anchor in extremitie their greater ship cut her Masts by boord, and after her Cables breaking, shee went ashore won the Coast Ozie ground within Musket shot. The ship kept vpright, but having lost their long Boat, and their Skiffe not able to line by rafters, foure men got alhoare, and the Tydes heauing her in upon the Spring, they faued much goods and all their people : her Pinnaffe of fixtie Tunne was beaten to pieces.

The one and twentieth of August, the King of Candahor, came to visit me, and brought wine an I fruit, fate halfe an houre, and for one Iest of his begged a bottle of wine.

The Prince Sultan Conference had his first day of hoped libertie, and came to take avre and pleafure at the Banquetting house by me. The Prince at Brampoore had made a Marriage without 10 the Kings confent, and gotten displeasure : besides some practice of his was discouered against his Brothers life, but this as a fecret; he was called for to Court. Normahal and Afaph Chan by their Fathers aduice, came about to make a peace with Corforone and Alliance, and with infinite ioy his libertie is expected.

The two and twentieth, the King feafted at Afaph Chans. I received from Aleppo and Perfia. passages of the Warre, the Turkes retrait, but no word of our English only, that the Captaine of Grinins, had written to practife their difgrace.

The five and twentieth, I aduised to Agra my proceeding in the Armenians businesse backe to Surat, and Brampoore of all occurrents. This day Asaph Chanfeasted Normahall, the Prince Sultan Corforome, as is reported, to make a firme alliance, and that he will bring away a Wife by his Fathers importunitie, this will beget his full libertie, and our proud Masters ruine.

The first of September, was the Kings Birth-day, and the solemnitie of his weighing, to which I went, and was carryed into a very large and beautifull Garden, the fquare within all water, on the fides flowres and trees, in the midft a Pinacle, where was prepared the fcales, being hung in large treffels, and a croffe beame plated on with Gold thinne : the feales of maifie Gold, the borders fet with small stones, Rubies and Turkey, the Chaines of Gold large and masfie, but strengthened with sike Cords. Here attended the Nobilitie all sitting about it on Carpets untill the King came; who at last appeared clothed, or rather loden with Diamonds, Rubies, Pearles, and other precious vanities, fo great, fo glorious! his Sword, Target, Throne to reft en correspondent; his head, necke, breast, armes, aboue the elbowes at the wrists, his fingers every so one, with at least two or three Rings; fettered with chaines, or dyalled Diamonds; Rubies as great as Wal-nuts, some greater; and Pearles, such as mine eyes were amazed at. Suddenly hee entered into the scales, sate like a woman on his legges, and there was put in against him, many bagges to fit his weight which were changed fixe times, and they fay was filter, and that I vnderstood his weight to be nine thousand Rupias, which are almost one thousand pound sterling: after with Gold and lewels, and precious stones, but I saw none, it beeing in bagges might bee Pibles; then against Cloth of Gold, Silke, Stuffes, Linnen, Spices, and all forts of goods, but I must beleeue, for they were in fardles. Lastly, against Meale, Butter, Corne, which is said to be given to the Baniani, and all the rest of the Stuffe; but I saw it carefully carryed in and none distributed. Onely the filter is referred for the poore, and serves the ensuing yeare, the King v-40 fing in the night to call for some before him, and with his owne hands in great familiaritie and humilitie to distribute that money. The scale he sate in by one side, he gazed on me, and turned me his stones and wealth, and smiled, but spake nothing, for my Enterpreter could not be admitted in. After he was weighed, he afcended his Throne, and had Balons of Nuts, Almonds, Fruits, Spices, of all fort made in thinne filuer, which he cast about, and his great men scrambled prostrate upon their bellies, which feeing I did not, hee reached one Bason almost full, and powred into my Cloke, his Noblemen were so bold as to put in their hands, so thicke, that they had left me none, if I had not put a remayner vp. I heard he threw Gold till I came in , but found it filuer fo thinne, that all I had at first being thousands of seuerall pieces had not weighed sixtie Rupias. I saued about twentie Rupias weight, yet a good dishfull, which I keepe to shew the ostentation, for by my proportion he could not that day cast away about one hundred pound sterling. At night he drinketh with all his Nobilitie in rich Plate. I was inuited to that, but told, I must not refuse to drinke, and their waters are fire. I was sicke and in a little fluxe of bloud, and durst not stay to venture my health.

The ninth of September, the King rode to the River of Darbadath, five course on pleasure, and comming by my house I rode out to meete him. The custome is, that all men by whom hee paffeth neere their gate, make him fome Present, which is taken as a good signe, and is called Mombareck, good Newes, or good Successe. I had nothing to give, nor might fitly goe with nothing, nor stay at home without discourtese, which made mee venture vpon a faire Booke well bound filleted and gilt, Mercators laft Edition of the Maps of the world, which I prefented with Mercators Alles an excuse that I had nothing worthy, but to a great King I offered the World in which he had so presented to great and rich a part. The King tooke it in great courtefie, often laying his hand on his breaft, the Mogol. and answering enery thing that came from mee was welcome. Hee asked after the ships arrivall, which I told him I daily expected: hee told me hee had some fat wild Hogges sent him from Gos, and if I would eate any at his returne he would fend me fome. I made him due reuerence, and an-fivered any thing from his Maiestie was a feast to me : he rode on his Eliphant, and the way was flonie, and I offering to bring him toward the gate, hee bade God keepe mee, and returne to my house, demanding which it was, and prayling it : indeed it was one of the best in the Lesker, yes but an old Church and large Tombe inclosed : iterating his fare-well, he faid the way was ill and defired me to goe home, and with much shew of courtesie tooke leave.

The fixteenth, I rode to repay the vifit of Marre Rustam the Prince of Candabor, who atmy arrival fene word he durft not fee mee, except hee asked leave of the King or acq ainted Etimon Dowlet or Asaph Chan, which at the Durbar he would. I answered he should not need, for I neuer meant to trouble my felfe with a man fo vnciuill, nor to come a fecond time. I knew well it was a first out of ill manners; that the King would bee no more angry for his bidding mee welcome to his house, then for his comming to mine, but that I cared not to fee him, but came in ciuslitie to requite, that I took fo in him. His man defired me to flay vntill he told his Mafter my answere, but I would not, and returned : at night, I rode to Court to visit the King, who question ned about the Booke of Maps, but I did forbeare any speech of my debts.

The fine and twentieth, I rode to the Court very weake, to make triall of the King about our debts, for that Muchfoud had also newly answered he had mith his Prigany, and knew not how to pay, but by his house. I delivered the King the Merchants Petition, which hee caused to bee read aloud, and the names of the debtors, and fureties, and fummes diffinctly, by Alaph Chan: which done, he called Araddat Chan, the chiefe of his officers of Houshold, and the Cumall, and gaue them order, but what I valerstood not; reading the names, hee questioned their abilities 20 and qualities, and what goods they received, finding some dead, some strangers: concerning Rulph, Afaph Chan offered to speake to the Prince at his arrivall to finish it. My Interpreter was now called in, and the King converted to mee, giving this answere : That the Merchants had made debts at their owne wills, and not brought a note of their goods to him, therefore if the men were infufficient, it was at their perill, for that it was no reason to expect the money from him, which, I suppose, he spake of his feruant Hergonen, who being dead, his goods were feazed for the Kings vie : but feeing it was the first time, he would now affist me, and cause our money to be payed: but if hereafter the English would deliver their goods to his fervants without money or acquainting him, they should stand to the hazard; but if when their commodities came to the Court, they would bring a bill to him of all, he would first serue himselfe, and after distribute 30 the rest to such as should buy that, and if any of them failed, he would pay the money himselfe; this is indeed the custome of Persia Merchants, to bring all to the King, which I have often seene, who takes his choice, and delivers the rest to his Nobilitie, his Scrivanoes writing to whom, and his Officer cutting price; a copy of which is given the Merchant, and hee goes to their houses for money; if they pay not, there is an expresse Officer that hath order by current course to force them. Then was it told my Interpreter what command the King had given, that Arad Chan fhould call the debtors before him, and cause them to pay: but this pleased not our Merchants, I thought it both a just and gratious answere better then in such cases private men can get of great

The King hearing I had been ficke, and wished for wine, gaue me fine bottles, and commanded 40 when I had ended those, to send for fine more, and so as I wanted; and a fat Hogge, the fattest I ever faw, fent vp by Mochreb Chan, that came from Gos, which at midnight was brought home by a Haddy with this message; since it came to the King it had eaten nothing but Sugar and Butter. I tooke this as a figne of fauour, and I am fure in that Court it is a great one. Then he fent for the Map-booke, and told me he had shewed it his Mulaies, and no man could reade nor vnderstand it, therefore if I would, I should have it againe: I answered, at his pleasure, and so it

Mercator returned. A Raia with-Kings forces.

The fixe and twentieth, there being a Raia in rebellion in the hills, not past twentie Course from the Laskar, the King lately fent out two Vmbras with horse to fetch him in, but he defended his quarter, flew one of them, and twelve Mancipdares, and in all of both fides about five 50 hundred, returning fcornefull meffages to the King to fend his fonne, for he was no prey for ordinry forces.

The second of October, the Prince entered the Towne, and all the great men in wondrous triumph: the King received him, as if he had no other, contrary to our expectation. Brampere left almost emptie vnder Chan Channa. I had fent to Asaph Chan, to excuse my not meeting him, for I was not able to stirre, nor had no Pr. fent. All the great men, and the Kings Mother, received him four Course off. I fent also some of my servants with my inst excuse, which his pride only

The fifth, I received from Surat newes of our shippes arrivall, the Admirall missing, and her English shippes The attn, I receited from Suran news of the attach two English Rouers, let out by ( Prize of Mosambique; the rest well, who had taken two English Rouers, let out by ( English: which who were found in chase of the Queene Mothers ship returned from the Red-sea, which they fortunately rescued and brought safe in; if shee had bin taken, we had all bin in trouble; with these have endanger the Companies Letter, in voice, instructions for Persia, and divers other notes of aduise, that by red their coun-reason of the Admiralls absence: they knew not what course to take with the men of Warre. I dispeeded to Surat orders about all businesse, asappeares in my Letters.

The fixt, I rode to visite the Prince, at his visuall houre, to give him welcome, and to acquaint him with our bufinesse, determining to make offer of all respect to him, and to that end not to come emptie handed, and bought a fine Chaine of gold, China worke: I tent in word; he returned that I should come next morning at Sunne rife, when he fate to be worshipped, or stay till his riding to Court, which I must have done at his doore. This I tooke in extreame frome, his Fa. The Princes ther neuer denying meacceffe; and his Pride is fuch, as may teach Lucifer: which made me an Pride (were roundly, I was not his Slaue, but a free Ambassadour of a King, and that I would never to more vifite him, nor attend him, hee had retufed me Iuftice; but at night I would fee him with the King, to whom only I would addresse my felfe, and so departed.

At night I went to the King, who received me gracioully. I made a reverence to the Prince, but he would not once stirre his head. Then I acquainted the King, that according to his order, I had brought an abstract of our ladings, desiring his command : after his manner he asked what and what, and was so wonderfully satisfied, especially with Arras, that he promised mee all fanour, all primiledges, all that I would defire. He enquired for Dogges, which I could not answere, and for Iewels, which I told him they were dearer in England then in India, at which hee reflect tisfied. I durst not name the Pearles for many reasons; if I had, our people had beene wayhaid for by the Prince, and such fratching, as I could not anoyd infinite trouble; I knew I could bring them ashoare, and to Court by stealth, that the leser expected, the better welcome; but 20 my maine reason was, I would make a friend by them. Therefore when Asaph Chan pressed me to know, I defired him to make that answere of dearenesse, and that I would speake with him a-Ione ; he foone vnderstood me, and made excuse.

The King being well pleased, I thought it good time to mooue againe for the debts: and hauing my Petition ready, opened it, and offered it vp : the King not marking, others discovered what it was, and knew the King would bee enraged that his order was neglected : whereat one stept to me, and clapt downe my hand gently, defiring me not to doe so. I answered, Ara-dake (has had absolutely resuled me suffice: at which he being by, came in, in much seare, calling Afaph Chan, defiring him to hinder me from complaint. I answered, our ships were arrived, and we could not forbeare nor endure fuch delayes: fo they confulted together, and called the 30 Commall, giving order to execute the Kings command: who that night at midnight befet their Tents, and catched some of them, so that now we shall have reason.

I had great thanks of all the Vinreies for protecting the Queenes ship, and our courtefie to their paffengers, which they enformed the King, who tooke it kindly, and they all promifed that they were obliged to loue our Nation, and would doe them all leruice : but they wondered we could not governe our people, but that theeues could come out, without the Kings leave.

At the Kingsriling, Afaph Chan carryed me with him to his retyring place, and there first we translated the Abstract into Persian, to shew the King an houre after: in which I inserted the money with some addition, because the King might perceine was brought profit to his Dominions; next the cloath and forts, then the fine wates in generall : laftly the groffe commodities, 40 defiring his Maiestie to order what he would buy, and to give vs liberty for the rest. This finished, A Saph Chanrenewed the reason why I would speake alone, bad me be free, vowed and protefted fuch friendship as I neuer could expect. I replyed, The reason why I desired it, was to aske his counsell : for it was true I had somewhat, but my viage last yeare was so tiad, that I durft not trust any, but that he might see how I replyed on him, I was willing on his oath to reueale it, which he presently gaue. I told him I had a rich Pearle, and some other ropes faire: I knew nor whether it was fit to tell the King, left the Prince were displeased; I told him how in the morning I had been to visite him, and his discourtesie, and my resolution: but that I knew his favour was fonecessary for vs, that I hoped I might recouer it, by this one respect that I kept the Pearle for him. This I faid was my purpose and reason I concealed it; he was father in law to him, and 50 fauorite of the King; I was ready to pleafe both, and defired his aduice. He embraced me, and began : I had done discreetly, but I should acquaint neither : if I did, I should never want trouble; the King would vie me well, but keepe fuch a ftirre to fee it, and get it into his hand, according to custome, and then I must sue for mine owne. The Prince was rauenous and tyrannicall, and wearied all Nations. He bade mee steale all alhoare, trust none, and stewed mee many conveyances; bade me observe the viage of the Portugalls, how they were ransacked, and defired to buy it, which if I would grant it, I should have money in deposito, what I should aske and he would for this trust of him, follicite all my defires, that without him I could doe nothing. Now was an oportunitie to make a friend. Ianswered, I was willing, but I feared hee would reueale it; which having received his oath, and a ceremony of covenant by croffing thumbes, we embra-6c ced : I promifed to be directed by him, and he to doe all that I required for the comming vp of the rest; he would take order to give me Firmans, no man should touch any thing, but all come to me, to dispose of at pleasure. The Prince he would reconcile to me, and the next time he vifited him, he would take me, and make him vie me with all grace, and for other businesse it should not be in his power to croffe me; but if he did, he would alligne vs a Syndic, which was in his

Thus we role, and he carryed me in to the King, with the Note translated, who gaue mee all good vlage ; asked if the Arras were a Prelent ; Lan wered yes, left it should be fezzed, for the Prince was by. In conclusion, hee faid hee would buy all the parcell of cloath, and many other things, appointing me to fend for it speedily; Asph (ban to take order for a Firmen from the

Thus I had a good night, and I knew though they are all ( ) yet in this he would deale truely, because it was to helpe himselfe, and durk not betray me till he had the Pearle, for feare to miffe it, nor after, for having himfelfe betrayed

A s A P H CH A N feeketh to further us for bope of gaine, fo alfo N O R M A H A L : Master STEELES arrivall : Danger to the publike, by prinate trade : Stirres about a Fort.

1.5 (1903)

572

He twelfth, according to promile, Asaph Chan carryed mee to the Prince, into his priuate roome, where I presented him with a small China Gold-chaine, in a China Cup, he vied me indifferently : Afaph Chan perlwaded him to alter his course towards vs. telling him hee gained yearely by vs a Lecke of Rupias at his Port : that it appeared we yearely encreased our trade, and it would in time bring profit; that if the hard measure were continued, we would quit both that and the Countrey, of which inconvenience would enfue. That we were his Subjects (fuch words he must vie) if for defire of toyes he gave vs discontent, we would practice to conceale Alfrom him; but if hee gaue vs that libertie which was fit, wee would ftrue to bring all before him, for that I only fludyed his content and fauour for my particular; that he should receive mee, when I came to visite him with honour, and according to 30 my qualitie, it would encourage mee to dot him feruice, and content my Nation. Finally, hee moued him for a Firmer for our prefers ease, and obtained it, promiting all manner of content, and at inflant gase order to Maph Does his Secretary, to draw it in every point according to my owner defires, and to write a Letter to the Gourtmour in recommendations of it: and that I should at all times have any other Letter, we en I called for it. It is easily seene with how base and vinworthy men I traffique. Afapb Chan for a fixedid hope only of buying some toyes, was so reconciled, as to betray his fonne, and to me obsequious, even to flattery: for the ground of all this friendship was, that he might buy the Gold taken in the prize, and some other knackes to which end he defired to fend downe a fernant, which I could not deny without lofing him, I had 40 fo long laboured to get : neither was it ill for vs, for his payment is good, and it will faue vs much charge and trouble to fell aboord, especially wine and luggish that spoiles in carrage; and he obtained leave under falle colours, and wrote to the Governour in our behalfes, with all manner of kindnelle. There is a necolitie of his friendship, his word is law, and therefore I durst not see his vnworthinese, and hope by this course to winne him, at I ast to make present good vie of him. Vpon this occasion I moved for a Firman for Bengala, which he promited, and would never before hearken to and this effect of his greatnesse I found, that hee profecuted our debters, as if his owne : and parling by the Cutton Fon his Elephant, called to command dispatch, which was an vnullall fauo.: r; vpon which Gros was impriloned, and Muchfou had two dayes libertie only to pay vs; and I doubt not, but to end that in ten dayes, the famme being foure and forcy thousand 50 Rupias, and the debters most shifting falls knaues in India.

The one and twentieth, at this instant, came in to me from Afaph Chan, a fernant, in the name of Normabal, that thee had moved the Prince for another Firman, that all our goods might bee in her protection, and that thee had obtained it, and was readie to fen! down her feruant with that, to fee and take order for our good establishment, that shee would fee that wee should not bee wronged. That Asaph Chan had done this for feare of the Princes violence, and because of his delayes; that now hee was fure that his fifter had defired to bee our Protectrelle, that the Prince would not meddle, that upon his housur I should receive all things configned to mee; that shee had written such a command, and charged her servant to assist our Factors, so that we should have never more cause to complaine of Swat. Therefore hee defired of mee two or three words to the 60 Captaine and Factors to vie him kindly, and to let him buy for her fome toyes, fich as I would fpare. This I durk not deny, though I faw the greedinesse; and gaue him a note on condition to fee the Copy of the Firman which was fealed, and I could not without leave, and to he was dispeeded: but you may by this judge this place, how easie it were to raise a stock that yeare, wee were not looked after. Now because I translated the Cargazon of fine wares (yet concealed the Pearle) and gaue it the King; every one is ready to runne downe to buy: Normahall and Alaph Chan fludying to doe me good offices; many great men defiring a letter to fend their feruants downe, fo that if you had treble this flocke, it would be bought up abourd, and faue you cuftome: and carriage, and spoile : for which purpose out of this I have ordered your Factory to fell to the feruants of Normaball and her brother, what soeuer may bee spared, so that I may bee fitted at Court in any proportion. Thus I shall faue trouble and you charge, the Prince preuented, and our friends confirmed, and yet I hope fufficient for to please the King and his sonne: at the deliuery of which Asaph Chan hath vadertaken the Firman for Bengala, or any Port, and a generall to command and grant of free Priviledges in all his Dominions.

CHAP. 16. S 9. Effect of nouelties : tedious progresse ; proiects questioned.

The foure and twentieth, the King departed Mandon foure Course, and wandering in the hills, left vs irrefolute what way to take, no man knowing his purpole. The fix and twentieth, I got a warrant for ten Camels at the Kings price. The nine and twentieth, I removed after : forced away by the defolations of the place.

The one and thirtieth, I arrived at the Kings Tents, but found him gone with few company for ten dayes a hunting, no man to follow without leave, the Leiker divided and feattered into many parts, ill water, deare prouisions, sicknesse and all forts of calamitie accompanying to infinite a multitude; yet nothing remouses him from following this monftrons appetite. Heere I vnderflood the Kings purpose was vncertaine, whether for Agra or Guzerat; the latter given 20 out; the former more probable, because his Councell defired to be at reft : but that how ever for the dispatch of my businesse, seeing hee would linger heere about a moneth, I was aduised, and thought it as fit to fend for the goods and Prefents, as to deferre it vpon vncertainties, being that dispatched. I had hope of some quiet in this course : I wore out my body, being very weake, and not like to recouer vpon daily trauell in the fields, with cold raw muddle water.

The second of November, arrived Richard Steeleand Master Lackson, with the Pearle and some November a other small matters stollen athoare, according to my order, which I received and gave quittance Mast: Steeles for : t with him I had conference about his proiects, which because I would not rashly retioned.

proiects quetioned. qualitie of these people, how for the water-worke, if to bee effected, it must bee begunne at our 30 charge, and after triall, we shall not enjoy the profit, but the Naturalls taught, and our people reiected; neither our commoditie vented by it, for that the Lead will treble his price by portage ouer-land; and cannot bee delivered at Agra fo cheape as found there : yet I was content hee should make triall for satisfaction by carrying his work-men to Amadanas, to meete mee there, where by affiftance of Mocrib Chan, who only is a friend to new inuentions. I would make offer to the King of their industry, and make proofe what conditions may be obtained; but in my iudgement it is all money and labour cast away. The Company must shut their eares against these projectors, who have their owne employments more in their ends, then their Masters profits: many things hold well in discourse, and in the theorique satisfie curious imaginations, but in practite and execution are found difficult and agrie, especially to alter the constant received 40 cuitomes of Kingdomes, where some drinke only raine-water, some of a holy River, some none but what is fetched by their owne cost : his second of reducing the Caffilaes and Merchants of Labor and Agra, by the River Indus, that vied to passe by Candahor into Persia, to transport by fea in our shipping for lafques or the Gulph, is a meere dreame, some man in conference may with it, but none ever practile it. The River is indifferently navigable downe, but the mouth is the refidence of the Portugalls, returnes backe against the streame very difficult. Finally, wee must warrant their goods, which a Fleet will not doe, neither did the Portugall euer lade or noise luch goods but only for those of Sindie and Tatta, that traded by their owne Junckes, they gave a Cartas or Paffe to secure them from their Frigats, and traded with them, for which they payed a small matter, and that onely which came to the purses of the Grand of Diss, Damon and Orso mu, or if all other difficulties were taken away, yet will the Labornes neuer bee drawne downe. being that Caffile confifts most of returning Persians and Armenians that knew the passage from lafques almost as bad, as from Candahor, and for that little on the Confines of Sinde not worth mentioning. Notwithstanding for his better latisfaction, I was content hee should by experience learne his owne errours, so it were not at the Companies charge, but I suppose hee will let it fall, not knowing at which end to beginne

A third project for to joyne the Trade of the Red Sea with this, I recommended to him, for that it was alreadie in vie, and the perill for the Guzurats very apparant, therefore I doubted not fome Merchants might be drawne to lade in our thips at freight, whereby wee should make our felues necessary friends to these people, supply our owne defects, saue export of monies, and final-60 ly, for this yeare employ one thip of the olde account that thould returne in September : and re-ceine the proceed of the remaynes of this joynt flocke, which will be fufficient to re-lade a great thip, otherwise to transport it ouer will be extreame losse. This I opened and veged the confequence shewed which way to effect it, and commended by him to the Commander, the Cape Merchant, and your Factors with all earnestnesse, as by my Letters appeares. The consequence if I could not procure tomewhat towards charge by freight from the Guzurats, yet having to many emptie veffels for to fmall a stocke, and two fallen into your hands of men of watre, I and rather goe emptie, and for company with them, then to omit that there are many chances in that Sea, and in the way her returne onely of our owne remaynes, shall requite all forbearance; and be readie in time, for employed the must be if we intend to fend the rest upon this account, for that here is no harbourage at his arrivall. I found him high in his conceits, having formewhat forgotten me, Malter Kerridge and him at warres, which I endeaucured to temper on all parts but for his Wife I dealt with him cleerely, the could not thay with our fafety, nor his Matters content; that he had ruined his fortunes, if by amends hee repayred it not; that the should not trauell nor liue on the Companies Purle; I know the charge of women, that if he were content to

I will make evident in your profit, if they follow it, for were the goods and effate all my owne.

His Wife. Danger by bringing

574

line himfelfe like a Merchant, as others did frugally, and to be ordered for the Companies fernice and to fend home his Wife, he was welcome : otherwife, I must take a course with both, against my nature. Having to this perswaded him, I likewise practised the discouragement of Captaine Tower fon about his Wife, (you know not the danger, the trouble, the inconvenience of granting thefe liberties) to effect this, I perswaded, Abraham his Father in Law, here to hold fast : I wrote to them the gripings of this Court, the small hope or reliefe from his alliance, who expected great matters from him. Finally, I perswaded his returne quietly. To further this, I wrote to your chiefe Factor, that fuch things as hee had brought and were vendible, should bee brought to your vie by Bill of exchange to fuch profit for him, as both might faue; and this inconvenience you bring on your felues by liberties vnreatonable. But to take tye of his trash to live vpon your hands, vpon any condition I did prehibit. I find by your Letter your strict command in private Trade, as well for your owne Servants as others, whereby I collect, you meane not that he shall have that libertie hee expects, for he is furnished for about one thousand pound sterling, first penny here, and Steele at least two hundred pound, which he prefumes fending home his Wife, his credit and merit is fo good towards you, that you will admit in this case to be rid of such cattell, I will not buy, but order that it be marked and configned to you, that you may measure your owne hand. You discourage all your olde Seruants, some may doe all things for faire words, some nothing for good actions: I could instance fome gone home two yeares fince, that onely employed their owne flocke, did no other bufinesse, and live now at home in pleasure, others that raise their fortune vpon your monies, from 30 Port to Port, and returne rich and vinquestioned. Last yeare a Mariner had fixe and twentie Charles of Indico, others many Fardles, a third feuen thousand Mamudes, first pennie in Baroach, Bastaes, chosen apart, for hee inuested your Monies, and it is probable hee chose not the worlt for him telfe: a fourth, aboue one hundred and fiftie pound first pennie. These I mention not for spight, but to moue you to equalitie, neither by their example these may escape, for they swallow you up, but that an indifferent restraint be executed upon all.

Publike loffe by prinate Trade.

For the effecting of all these purposes, the sending home the woman and the prosecution of the Red Sea, I fend backe Richard Steele with orders to Surat , having altered my purpose of the goods and Prefents from the Leskar, it beeing declared that the King will for Guzsrat, where I have appointed Richard Steele, after having dispatched other matters, to meete with them and his Ingeniers. I also fent my aduice and directions to Captaine Pring, to take an Inuentorie of all the Monies and goods in the two men of Warre, to make it ouer to your stocke and land it, to sell or dispose of the ships, as his occasion shall require, the monies, if fold, to be put to stocke, to grant pallage to some of the Chiefes, to entertaine the rest and to referre it to you at home, whom you will deale with the Owners that fet them out. My opinion is peremptory, that their furprize is just and justifiable, all their goods forfeited: it you will restore any thing, at your courtelie; but with the more rigour you deale with thefe, the better example you will leave for fuch barbarous Piracies : for if this course be practised, take your leave of all Trade about Surat, and the Red Sea, and let the Company of Turkie stand cleere of the Grand Signors renenge, and we heere must expect cold Irons.

the goods in

The fixth, I went to Afepb Chans, having received his Palle, vnto whom I shewed the Pearle according to promife, though the forts fit not the Countrey inft as I was informed hereafter, yet their performance with him gaue him fuch content, that I am confident, I may vie Pharaohs words, The Land is before you, dwell where you will, you and your Servants: for the price wee talked not, but he vowed fuch fecrecie; and for my fake, who have shewed this confidence in him, hee will give more then their worth, and not returne on , and pay readie mony, of which hee profeffeth not to want, and to lend mee what I want : his Sifter I have promited to vifit, whom hee hath made our protectreffe, and briefly whatfocuer contentment words can bring I receive, and some good effects. When the Presents arrive, assure you I will not be liberall to your lose, little 60 shall terue. Afaph Chan admonisheth mee himselfe, fo they came with somewhat to induce them, as well accepted, bought as given: experience of others makes mee to approve of this

Finishing these complements with him in his Bed-chamber, he rose to Dinner having inuited

me and my people : but he and friends dined without, appointing mee a meffe with him apart, for they eate not willingly with vs : where I had good cheere and well attended; the reversion for my feruants.

After dinner, I moued Groot debt, told him the delayes. Hee answered, I should not open my lips, he had vindertaken it, that Groo by his meanes was minfhing accounts with a leweller; that hee had ordered, as money was paid, it should rest in the Curvalls hand for vs; which I found true : and the Curvall promised to finish it in three dayes, defiring mee to fend no more to Afaph Chan.

I cannot omit a basenelle or fauour according as you will interprete it. The King when his Prito fons are full of condemned men, tome he commands to be executed from he tends to his Vinraes to redeeme at a price : this he esteemes as a courtesie, to give meanes to exercise charitie, but he takes the money, and fo fels the vertue.

About a moneth before our remoue he sent to mee, to buy three Abassines (for fortie Rupias 2 Redeeming of man) whom they suppose all Christians. I answered, I could not buy men as Slaues, as others Prisoners. did, and to had profit for their money, but in charity I would give twenty Rupias a piece to fave their lines, and gine them libertie. The King tooke my answere well, and base them to be sent me. They expected money, and I was not hastie; hearing no more of it, I hoped it had beene Dixit & ediforgotten : but his words are written Decrees. This night the Officers feeing I fent not, deli e- aum eft : fauer red the Priloners into my Procuradors power, and tooke his Screete for fixtie Rupius, which at # of Jasum. 20 my returne I payed, and freed the Slaues.

The tenth, I vilited Asaph Chan, having received admife from Surat of a new Firman, come Coulekile ieedowne to difarrine all the English, and some other restrictions of their libertie: vpon a complaint loutes to made to the Prince, that we intended to build a Fort at Swally, and that our shippes were laden ching a Fort with Bricke and Lime for that end; which furpition arole only by bringing a few on shoure to found the ships bell: yet the Alarum came to Court so hot, that I was called to answere; which when I made it appeare how abfurd the feare was, how diffhonorable for the King, how write the place for vs, without water or harbourage : yet the icalousie was so strongly imprinted, because formerly I had demanded a River by Goya for that end, that I could hardly periwade the Prince we intended not some surprise. By this you may judge, how easie it were toget a Port for our felues, if you affected it, which I can, neither fo profitable for you, nor a place tenable. Not withflanding all remonstrances, this surnace must be demolished, and a Hadley of horse sent downe to fee it eneeded. The dilarming of our men, being all that our peopled flomacked, though it was only to leave their weapons in the Cuttome-house, and that only of the ships company, though it were quieter for vs, except they were often more ciuil : yet I teld Afaph Chin wee would not endure the slauery, nor I stay in the Countrey, that one day the Prince sent a Firman for our good viage and grant of Primledges, the next day countermanded it; that there was no faith nor honour in such proceedings, neither could I answere my residence longer. He replyed, at night hee would mooue the King, before the Prince, and give me answere.

The thirteenth, I resulted Afaph Chan : he told me wondrous matters of the Kings affection to my Souereigne, to my Nation, and to mee; that hee had ventured the Princes disfauour for our lakes, and had full promife for a new reformation : but because he feared the Princes dealing, he gaue me this affirance, that he would take the Prigary of Surat, which the Prince must leaue, being made Gouernour of Amadauas, Cambaya, and that Territorie : and to give me fatisfiction that he had not diffembled with me, he defined me to come at night to Court, and bring the King my Masters Letter and the translation, the oportunitie was faire to deliuer it : vpon the cecasion of which, he bade me perfift in my complaints, and offer to take leave; I should then see what he would fay for vs, and to I should believe my felfe. At evening I went to the King, it becing a very full Court, and prefented my Letter, which (the King fitting on the ground) was layd before him; and he bufie, tooke no great notice. Afaph Chan whit pered his Father in the care, defiring him to realt the Letter, and to all it vs, for that homight better begin that then himselfe. thing and treat the Letters, gave the English to the King, and read the translated; to Elimin Device which when the King had answered many words of complaint, to that point of procuring our lost the Exelfe quiet Trade I y his authoritie among the Portugale, he demanded it he wo. Id make peace. I an-Iwered, his Maintie knew king fince, I offered to be governed by him, and referred it to his wifdone, and had expected his pleasure: he replyed hee would vide trace absolutely to accord vs, and comake greement in his Seas, which he would by answers to my Masters Letters signifie, and therein gine him content in all other his friendly defires. Notwithstanding, I deman ed Land two year directo comadanas to meet the Kings Prefents and to p epare for my returne. Vpon which mo son, the question grew betweene the King and the Prince, who complayined that to he had no profit by vs. mathat he was content tol crid of vs. Afaph Chan tooke the turne, and very remely teld the King, that well rought both profit to the Pert, to the Kingdome, and fecarrier, that we were visit viyr d ly by the Princes ferian s, and that it was not pollible for vs to refide without amends; it were note honourable for his Maieffle collicence vs, then to intreate vs. believe the enterelly, for it wo. I be the ent. The P. meereplyed very cheleraldy, that I e

Normabal a

English.

had never done vs wrong, and had lately given mee a Firman at his entreatie. He replyes, It is true, you gaue a Firman to his content, and in ten dayes sent another, in effect, to contradict it. that he flood farety between both, had vndertaken from the Princes mouth our redreffe, but now he had the shame and dishoner of it; that he ought me nothing, nor I him; he spake for no ends, but for the Kings Honor and Inflice, in that which he faid that he did vs no wrong, he must appeale to me, who complayed that our goods were taken by force, that two yeeres past Rulph had begun it, would never pay vs, and his Officers continued every shipping; that if the Prince were weary of vs, he might turne vs out, but then he must expect we would doe our owne Iustice vpon the Seas. He demanded if the King or Prince gaue mee meanes to eate, or who did ? That I on the Seas. He demanded it the transfer, that hued and followed the King at great charge; that if our goods were forced, and after we could get neither goods nor money, how should I live and main-

This delivered with some heate, the King catched the word, Force, Force, redoubling it to his fonne, and gaue him sharpe reprehension : the Prince promised to see me paid all ; that he had taken nothing, but only caused the Presents to be sealed, because his Officers had no Custome, and defired to have them opened before him, I absolutely refuted it : also I told the King, I would only doe my dutie to my Master, in delinering his Presents free, after I would give the Prince

Etimon Dowlet, who is alway indifferent, and now by his sonne made our friend, whispered with the King, and read a clause or two in my Masters Letter; at which the King made his fon 20 rile and stand aside. A saph Chan joyned in this private conference (which they told me was for my good)and in conclusion the Prince was called, commanded to fuffer all the goods to come to my hands quietly, to give me such privaledges as were fit, which Afaph Chan should propound, The Prince would not yeeld the Presents, except Asaph Chan would stand surety that he should haue a share, which he did; and then we all agreed vpon that point. The King giving mee many good words, and two pieces of his Pawne out of his dish, to eate of the same he was eating. Then I tooke leave to goe to Amadauss, to meet the Presents, and so we parted. At night I set on my iourney, leauing my Tents, toppofing the next day to reach the Citie, but I rode two mights, a day and a halfe with one baite upon firaw, and the fifteenth at noone arrived at Amadauas.

The eight of Ianuarie, there was some question about Presents, the Prince asking for them; I 20 Words betwire answered, they were readic, if hee pleased to receive his. Then hee demanded, why I brake his the Prince and feales? I told him, it was dishonorable for me to bring a Kings gifts in bonds, and great discourtefie to fet feales voon them: I expected and attended his licence twentie daies, but feeing no hope, I was enforced to doe it. Some heate began : at which appeared a Gentleman of the Kings, who was fent to observe the passage, and to stickle, and told vs both, the King commanded wee should come before him at a Garden, where he fate, a Course out of Towne, vpon the River. So the Prince tooke his Palankee, and I a Coach, well attended by servants both of father and son. When I came to the gates the Women were entring, and then no man can but the Prince; who made within a bitter complaint against mee, that I had dared to cut his seales, and to take out what I lift. Afaph Chan was called for, who was my furetie, and the Prince laid it on him: he, 40 as the custome is, denyed it, excused himselfe, yet I had not accused him, but tooke it vpon me, as knowing my felfe better able to beare it, and that he would denie it. Then I was fent for to the water-fide, where the King fate privately, where I entered, with mee the Prefents; but the King was within among this Women. Alaph Char chared at mee, for breaking his word, told mee, the Prince had shamed him: I replyed by laddon, You know I had your content, this man is witnesse; he denyed it to vs both: I replyed, Though I would not cast it vpon him, it Kings word, if was true, for I had witnesse; laddsw would not returne the answere, but told me he might not he will not ac- tell him he lyed to his face : and this is viuall, if any command come from the King that he fordi, say, Ned, gets, he that brought the meflage will disanowit. I bore vp as high as I could; the great men told me it was a great affront, no man durit doe fuch a thing; others finited : I answered, Not so great as the Prince had done me often. Thus we spent the day, and the King appeared not, but privately stole away, leaving vs all fitting in expectance.

Custometo

At night word came the King was gone, and I offered to goe home, but was fo well attended, I could not but by force : in the way new messengers came to seeke mee, and I arrived backe at the Kings Court, not having eaten or drunke; but the King was not come in, nor could I get loofe of my attendants, but they yied me very respectfully, we sate an houre. Suddenly newes came to put out all lights, the King was come, who entred on an open Waggon, with his Normaball, drawne by Bullocks, himselfe Carter, and no man neare. When hee and his Women were Chariot drawn housed, the Prince came in a horse-backe, and entring in, called for me: I found them alone with two or three * Capons, and about mid-night the King fet on it an angrie countenance, told mee 60 I had broken my word, that he would trult me no more, (the Prince had defired him to doe to:) I answered as roundly, I held it fit to give freely, I had done nothing of offence in my owner judgement; if their customes were other, it was ignorance, and I must bee pardoned; wee had many dispates : at last, the Prince interposed, offered his friendship, and wee were all reconciled fully, and promifes too large. Then I opened the Chefts, gaue the King his Prefents, the Prince his, and fent in that for Normaball: we were aboue two houres in viewing them. The Arras he tooke well, but faid it was courfe, defired to have a Sute of fuch, as the fweet Bagge : and wee concluded that in the morning I should come to the Prince, that he should be my Protector and Procurator, the goods except. Three things more then Prefents were there returned mee: for those three the Prince told me he would pay, seeing his father tooke them.

The tenth, I went to the Prince, was received with all favour, had order for a Firman for the man murthered, a declaration of his reconcilement in publike, command to all his Officers to take knowledge, and to his chiefe Rasa to be my Procurator, and to draw what Famans to euer 10 I defired. I prefented Captaine Tower fon and some English, whom hee vsed with grace and for a figne of this peace, gaue me a Colth of filuer cloak, and promifed to be the Protector of our Nation in all things. I told him of Master Steele and his Work-men : hee defired me to bring a small Present to his father at night, hee would present them, which I did. Hee kept his word, and spake for vs to him, who was willing enough. I prefented Captaine Tower for to the King, who called for him up, and after a few questions rose. At the Gustel Choes, I presented Master Steele and his Work-men : the King fate in a Hat I gaue him all night, called for Malter Paymer, and after much Discourse, gaue him ten pounds, and promised to entertayne the rest.

The thirteenth, the Dutch came to Court with a great Present of China ware, Sanders, Parrats Present of the and Cloaues; but were not suffered to come neere the third degree : at last the Prince asked me Dutch.

who they were : I replyed, The Hollanders, refident in Surat. Hee demanded if they were our friends: I replyed, they were a Nation depending on the King of England, but not welcome in all places; their bulinesse I knew not. He said, for being our friends, I should call them vp, and so I was enforced to fend for them to deliver their Present: they were placed by our Merchants. without any speech or further conference. Finally, I had all granted I defired, Lattend the performance and money : and thus I conclude, that without this contestation I had never gotten any thing; for I told the Princes Messenger in the presence of all the English, that if he vied force to me or my goods, he might doe his pleasure, but it should cost bloud : that I would fet my Chop vpon his Matters thip, and fend her for England.

speake with him : with the same complaint of a force vsed to the Caffila vpon the way, notwithstanding the Firman fent by the Raise of the Countrey, in both which to night I will make perition to the King. My toyle with barbarous vniust people is beyond patience : at the Princes I found the Firman promised, drawne, but halfe the conditions agreed on left out, vpon

The eighteenth, I received from Surat of the imprisonment of Spragge and Howard, at Bram- spragge and Hopoore, their house and goods seized, their lines in question, for drinking with the Cutwall in their ward accused, house, that one of the Cutwalls men dyed that night; vpon which they stand accused of Poyson: and the Curvall to freee himselfe of comming into the house, pretended that he came to fetch a mans wife away from Thomas Spragge. What the truth is I know not : Information is come to the King against them : and I went to the Prince, who undertooke all my causes: but could not which I refused it, and defired nothing but leave to depart to treat with these in the Sea. The one and twentieth, a command to free the English, and their goods, and that if the Moore came into their house to drinke, if they killed him with a Dagger, hee had his just reward. The second to Raia Partapsham, to repay vs all exactions what soeuer, not to take hereafter any dutie vpon the way towards his Port; and in case of failing, that he would deliuer his sonne into my hands; he further ordered the deliuery of the Firman for Surat, the Articles by mee demanded, and to pay vs all our debts of Suras, and to cut it off vpon his Mancipdaries, that had taken that, without delay, he called to account his old Customers, charged the new to vie vs as his friends, shewed as much fauour publikely as I could require. I mooued expedition; he replyed, To morrow by nine in the morning all should be deliuered into my hands. The two and twentieth, I went my felfe to receive them; and carryed the Merchants, with fome Pearle, that the Prince had bin instant to fee, pretended to be Master Tower fons: but he had received some vincertaine information of Pearles, to the value of twentie or thirtie thousand pound, which he hoped to draw from vs. When his Secretarie faw the small forts, hee replyed, the Prince had Mands of these: if we brought no better commoditie, wee might be gone, he cared not for our custome : how basely false, and couetous are those of Iewels, you may sudge. I vndertooke reply, that I had procured those from a Gentle woman to satisfie them; if they liked them not, they could not be made better, it was inciuality to be angry with Merchants for their good will, but told him I came for my Firmans, and expected them: I was aniwered, wee had deceived their hopes, and the Prince would deceive ours; Firman I should have none, I had asked leaue to depart, I might come and take leaue when I pleased. I answered, nothing contented mee more, but that I would visit their vniustice in an indifferent place; that I would speake with the 60 King, and depend no more on them, for I faw all was controlled and vn worthinesse: fo I role and parted; but he recalled me to come to the King and Prince together the next day, I should

Bbbb 2

All now Reader, we are at a fland: fome more idle, or more buffe fprirts, willing either to take their reft, or to exchange their labour; and fome perhaps withing they had the which lournally and not thus contracted more Extracts of those things out of it, which I conceined more fit for the publike. And for the whole, my lettle could haue withed it, but neither with the Honourable Company, nor die-where could learner of it; the worthy Knight himselfle being now employed in like Honourable Embaling from his Mazellie to the Great Times, Yet to lipply the defect of the Iournall, I laue giuen thee the Choorgraphy of the Country. Certaine Letters of his, written thence to his Honourable Lords and friends in England, out of all which well wrought only an understanding liptift, may be be rewed and framed adelgutual Commentary of the Magel and his Subiselts. Take them therefore Reader, and vie themas a Prolipectiue Glaffe, by which thou maniftake eathe and never view of those remote Regions, People, Rites, Religions.

And nrft here followes a defeription of the Countrey both by Map and Writing, and after them the Letters pa ing mutually betwixe his Maiestie and the Magad, and lastly, those of Sir Thomas Rea fort-laid.

ð. X.

The seuerall Kingdomes and Provinces subject to the Great Mogoll S H A S E I I M GEHANGIER, with the Principall Cities and Rusers, the seitnation and borders, and extent in tength and breadth, as mere as by description I could gather them. The names I tooke out of the Kings Register: I begin at the North west.

1. Andahar, the chiefe Citie so called, lyes from the heart of all his Territorie North-west, confines with the Shabas, and was a Prouince of Persia.

2. Tate, the chiefe Cite to faciled, is duised by the Ruser Indus, which fals in to the Sea at Sinds, and lyes from Candabar South, from the middle of which, I furpoole Agra Weft, fome-what Southerly.

3. Bucker, the clinefe Citie fo calleft, Bucker Sucker, lyes vpon the River Sindus or Indus, to the North-ward, some-what Easterly of Tata, and West Conness vpon the Buloacher, a kinde of rule Warshike people.

4. Multan, the chiefe Citie fo called lying also vpon Indus, East from Candabar, North from Bu bar.

5. Hasgickes, the Kingdome of the Bolosches, to the West of Tata and Bacher, and confines West vpon the Kingdome of Lar, sabect to the Shahas. Indus windeth it sells into the Euler-side of it, it hat in or enowmed Citie.

 Cabull, the Citie fo called, a great Kingdome, the Northermoft of this Emperous Dominions, and confineth with Tartaria.
 Kylming, the chiefer Citie is called Siriualer, the River of Bhat paffeth through it, and findeth the See by Gages, or tope fay of it felf-in the North part of the Bay of Bengala, it bordereth Cada to the East Southerly, it is all Mountaines.

S. Barkillo, the chiefe Citre is called Barlow, and the Biner Nideb which numeth the

9. Asset, the chiefe Citie lo called, it lyeth on one fide the Riuer Nilab, which runneth the North-west into the Riuer Indus.

10. The Kingdome of the Kataries, lyes at the foot of the Mountaines: it hath principall 50 Cities, Daniely and Purhola, it bordereth North-east on Kulhimer,

11. Pen. lab, which fignifieth fine waters, for that it is leated within fine Rivers. The chiefe Cite is called Labor, it is a great Kingdome and most fruitfull, the Citie is the Mart of Indus for Traffquy, it borders North-eat ton Multan.

12. Innba, the chiefe Citte to called: it lyeth Eaft on Pen-lab, it is very mountaynous.

13. Penan, the chiefe Citte fo called, it lyeth Eaft of Ienba, and from the North-west Ben-gala it is full of Mountaines.

14. Nakayan, the carefe Citie fo called, the North Eaftermost confine of Mogor, it lyes to the North-east of the head of the B.y of Bengala, it is very mountaynous.

15. Siba, the chiefe Citie fo called, it borders with Nakerkus Southerly, it is all Moun- 60 tainous.

16. Iefuall, the chiefe Citie fo called Ragepar, it bordereth with Bengala South-east North, and with Siba and Wakarkar, it is full of Mountaines.

17. Delly, the chiefe Citie fo called, it lyeth on the North-west fide of the River Iemsie, which falleth into Ganges, and runneth through Agra : it is an ancient Citie, and the feat of the Mogols Anceffors, it is rained : fome affirme it to have beene the feat of Porms conquered by A. lexander, and that there stands a Pillar with a Greeke Inteription.

18. Menat, the chiefe Citie called Narnol, it lyeth on the East of Ganges.

19. Sanball, the chiefe Citie fo called : it lyeth between Ganges and Jemus to the North-west of their meeting.

20. Bakar, the chiefe Citie is called Bikaneer, it bordereth North-west on Ganges.

21. Agra, a principall and great Kingdome, the Citie fo called, the heart of the Mogolle Territorie, in North latitude about twentie eight degrees and an halfe : it lyeth most on the to South-well-fide of Iemui, the Citie vpon the River, where one of the Emperours Treasuries are kept. From Agra to Labor, being three bundred and twentie Course, which is not lesse then feuen hundred miles, it is all a plaine, and the high-way planted on both fides with trees like a delicate walke: it is one of the great workes and wonders of the World.

22. Ienupar, the Citie so called, upon the River of Kaul, which I suppose to bee one of the fine Rivers inclosing Labor, and the Countrey lyeth betweene it and Agra, North-west from one, South-east from the other.

23. Banda, the chiefe Citie fo called, it confineth Agra to the West.

24. Patna, the chiefe Citie fo called, it is inclosed by four great Rivers; Ganges, lemna, Serfeli, and Kanda, so that it lyeth from Agra South-east towards the Bay of Bengala, where all 20 thefe pay Tribute.

25. Gor, the chiefe Citic fo called, it lyeth toward the head of Ganges.

26. Bengala, A mightie Kingdome inclosing the West-side of the Bay on the North, and windeth South-westerly, it bordereth on Cormandell, and the chiefe Cities are Ragmehhell and Dekaka, there are many hauens, as Port Grand, Port Pequina, traded by the Portugals, Philipatan, Satigam, it contayneth divers Provinces, as that of Purp and Patan.

27. Roch, It hath no Citie of note, and bordereth on the South-west, East of Bengala and the Bay.

28. Udeza, the chiefe Citie lekanat, it is the vemost East of the Mogols Territoritie beyond the Bay, and confined with the Kingdome of Mang, a facage people lying betweene Udeza and

29. Canduana, the chiefe Citie is called Kerhakatenkah, it lyeth South-west of the South of

30. Kualiar, the chiefe Citie so called, it lyeth to the South-east of Kanduana, and bordereth on Burhampur.

31. Chandes, the chiefe Citie called Burhampur, a great Kingdome, one of the ancient feats of Decan, and conquered from them, it lyth East on Guzarat, South of Chitor, West of Decan, and it is watered with the River Tabets, which falleth West into the Bay of Cambaya, it is now

32. Malna, the chiefe Cities called Vgen, Narr, and Sering, it lyeth West of Chandes, be-duessities of 40 tweene that and the Countrey of Ranna, on the East of the River Sapra, which fals into the names trouble Bay of Cambaya, not farre from Surat.

33. Berar, the chiefe Citie is called Shahpur, it bordereth on Guzerat, and the hils of Ranna, mototongues 34. Guzerat, A goodly Kingdome inclosing the Bay of Cambaya, the chiefe Citie is Ama- and differing danar, it containes the Citie and Gouernment of Cambaya, the heautie of India, the Territorie ons: if anyon and Citie of Surat, and Baroachit is watred with many goodly Rivers, as that of Cambaya fallly ther difficulties supposed to be India, the River of Narbadab, falling into the Sea at Baroach, that of Surat, and bappenincomdivers others, it trades to the Red Sea, to Achin, and many places.

35. Soret, the chiefe Citie called Garagar, it lyeth to the North-west of Guzerat. 36. Naruar, the chiefe Citic called Ghehud, lyeth South-west from Chuor.

37. Chitor, an ancient great Kingdome, the Citie fo called on a mightie hill, walled about ten I would have English miles. There stands yet about an hundred Churches, the Palace of the King, many brane sought bester Pillers of carued from. There is but one afcent cut out of the Rocke , passing foure magnificent to faishe my gates, there remayne the ruines of an hundred thousand houses of stone. It is vn-habited, it was Rochadbin at doubtlelle one of the leats of Porus, and was wonne from Ranna, his iffue by Echarfhaw the last home. As for Mogoll. Ranna flying into the firength of his Kingdome among the Mountaines, feated himfelfe Courses they at Odepoore, who was brought to acknowledge the Mogol for his Superiour Lord, by Sultan Ca. are diverly tre ronne, third fonne of the pretent Emperour, in the yeare 1 6 1 4. This Kingdome lyeth North- ken (as Souwell from Chandes, and North-east from the North-well of Guzerat, in the way betweene A-North-me gra and Surat: Ranna himfelfe keeps the hils to the West, neere Amadauar.

The length ' is North-weit to South-east. From Chardahar to Lahor, three hundred and fiftie in some place. Courses, about eight hundred miles.

From Labor to Agra, three hundred and twentie Courses, about seuen hundred fiftie two courte with the Map or Rel. tion: I confesse.

miles with vs)

which cau este fcruple in the From computations.

From Agra to Hhagipurpatua three hundred Couries, about fixe hundred and eightic miles. From Hhagipurpatua to Kirafunder, three hundred Courses, about fixe hundred and seventie

In all, Courfes one thousand two hundred and seuentie. Miles, about two thousand, eight hundred senentie two.

The brea ith in all is North-east to South-west from Hardnar to Duars, fixe hundred and fiftie Courles, about fifteene hundred miles.

The Kings Letters fent to Selim Shagh the Great Mogor, in the yeare 1614. by Sir Thomas Roe.

AMES, by the Grace of Almightie God, the Creator of Heaven and Earth, King of Great Britaine, France and Ireland, Defendor of the Christian Faith, &c.

To the high and mightie Monarch the Great Mogor, King of the Orientall Indies, of Chandahar. of Chilmer and Corazon, &c. Greeting.

We having notice of your great fauour toward Vs and Our Subjects, by Your Great Firma to all Your Captaines of Rivers, and Officers of Your Customes, for the entertaynment of Our louing Subiells the English Nation with all kind respect, at what time soener they shall arrive at any of the Ports within Your Dominions, and that they may have quiet Trade and Commerce without any kind of 20 hinder ance or molestation, &c. As by the Articles concluded by Suc Suff Governour of the Guzerats, in Your Name, with Our louing Subsett Captaine Thomas Best appeareth : Hane thought it meete to fend with You Our Ambaffadour, which may more fully and at large handle and treate of such mutters as are sit to be considered of concerning that good and friendly correspondence, which is so lately begunne betweene Vs: and which will without doubt redound to the honour and visitite of both Nations. In which consideration, and for the furthering of such laudable Commerce, Wee have made choice of Sir Thomas Roe Knight, one of the principall Gentlemen of Our Court, to whom Weehane given Commission under Our Great Seale of England, together with directions and instructions further to treate of such matters as may be for the continuance and increase of the utilitie and profit of each o-pound tow and the establishing and enlarging of the same. And for confirmation of our good inclination, and wel-wishing toward You, We pray You to accept in good part the Present, which our said Ambassadour will deliner visto You, And fo doe commit You to the mercifull protection of Almightie God.

thers Subjects : to whom We pray You to give fanour and credit in what soener Hee Shall moone or pro- 30

A Copie of the Grand Mogher his Letter to the King.

V No a King rightly descended from his Ancestors, bred in Military Affaires , and clothed with Honour and sistince,

A Commander worthy of all command, strong and constant in Religion, which the great Prophet Christ did teach, King I A MES, whose love bath bred such impression in my thoughts, as stall never be forgotten, but as the smell of Amber, or as a Garden of fragrant flowers whose beautie and odour is still increase g so be affured my love shall grow and increase with yours.

Y Our Letter which you fent me in the behalfe of your Merchants, I have received, whereby I rest sa tisseed in Your tender lone towards me; and desire You not to take it ill, for not having wist wito Iou heretofore : for this my present Letter, I fend to renew Our loues, & herewith do certific You, that I have fent forth my Firmaunds thorow all my Countries to this effect, that if any English Ships or Merchants shallarrine in any of my Ports, my people shall permit and suffer them to doe what they will freely 30 in their Merchandizing causes, aiding and assisting them in all occasions of iniuries that shall be offered them, and that the least cause of discourtesse benot done unto them, as also that they bee as free and freer then my owne people. And as now and formerly I have received from You divers Tokens of Your loue : so I defice your mindfulnesse of me by some Nouelties from Your Countrey, as an Argument of frienthip betweene Vs : for fuch is the custome of Princes heere.

As for your Merchants, I have given expresse order through all my Countres, to suffer them to fell, bur transport, and carry away at their pleasures, without the let or hinderance of any person whatsoener, all such Goods and Merchandize, or other things, as they hall defire to buy, and let this my Letter as fully fittisfie You in the defired peace and lone, as if my owne forme had beene the Meffenger to ratific the Same. And if any in my Countrey not fearing God, nor obeging their King, or any other word of Reli- 60 gion, finald indeuour, or be an Instrument to breake this league of friendship; I would fend my sonne Sultan Coronne, a Souldier approved in the Warres, to cut him off that no Obstacle may hinder the continuance, and increasing of Our affections.

Mar Brampone, a Citie of bousfer made of mudde, where one of the Kings some keepeth bit Court. sound amongst He is called Perseys. I had need to write an Apologie for it, there being nothing of worth, nothing me. M. flet Hage He is successful the state of t

They have no written Law. The King by his onne wordruleto, and his Governours of Provinces by sectionscibed

Once a weeke he fitteth in indgement patiently, and gineth sentence for crimes Capitall and Civill. He owne Booke. it easy must have we are havely what he made how the Country for each building the Most bound of the house of the Country for each building. The great Name to the way of the true mounter raided to whom he guest him the word of the true mounterful seems to the true mounterful seems the made to the true mounterful seems the made to the mounterful seems the made to the mounterful seems t meanes. They are received by Horses: that is to say, Coronels of twelve thousand Horses; which is the things capgreatest, whereof are foure, besides his sonne; and wife: so descending to twentie Horses; not that any of time Howkins these are bound to keepe, or rasse any at all. But the King assigneth them so much land, as it bound to large relations, maintaine so many Horses as a rent, each horse at fine and twentie pounds sterling by the scere, which is an isoredible Renenne giuin away: so masy, (that is almost all, but the Ploughmen, Artisticers, and Tradesmensa Towass) line 3 upon it. But as they die, and must needs gather. So it returnes to the King like Risers to the fea, both of those he gase to, and of those that have gained by their owne industry. But for the most part he leasted the widowes and children then hor ses, stuffe, and some other stocker and then puttech them into a Signicity (if the fathers were of fixe or fewen thousand herses) perhaps of a thousand or 20 fine hundred ; and so fitteth them to begin the world anew, and advanceth them as they deserve of him.

They all rife by prefenting him, which they strine to doe both richly and rarely : some giving a hundred Presents of an thou find pounds in untels at a time. He hash one beloued wife among foure, that wholly gonerneth him. He received lately a Present from the King of Bilan pore, to obtain peace, (whose Ambassadom knocked his head three times against the ground) of fix and theretie Elephants, of two whereof the chaines and all tackles were of beaten Gold, to the weight of four chundred pounds, two of filter, of the same fashion; the rest of Copper : fiftie Horses ruble furcified, and ten Leckes of Rupius in Iewels, great Pearles, and Balaffe Rubies. Euerie Lecke is an hundred thou fand Rupias; enery Rupia two foillings fixe pence sterling; so tenne Leckes is a Million of Some say wo

30 His Territorie is farre greater then the Perians, and almost equall if not as great as the Turkes, His two findings masses of money by remense, essistance of Presents, and inheriting all mens goods, above both. His Compthe Mageli trey/perbit est to Since, and so stretchesh to Candahar, and to the Mountaines of Taurus North. To greatelle, the East as farre as the utmost parts of Bengala, and the borders of Ganges : and South to Decan , it as two thousand miles square at the least, but bath many pettie Kings within, that are Tributaries,

The true descended here of Porus, that was our come by Alexander, called Ranna, it lately conque- Heire of Porus. red, more by composition then force : the King having rather bought him then wonne him , and hereby no way augmented his Reuenue but given a great Penjion to him. His Countrey I crossed, betweene this Towns of Almere and Brampore. Cerea having been awriently the chiefe Towns, and firstly standing tetur agrees on such is, steep as a Kocke, some sistence miles about, that is all walled : the Citte withins, but with one valued Citte, afcent, and fine admirable gates in the afcent, all ruined and no person dwelling. But there stand an hunared Michieces, many Linternes, and fueb renerend and brane Keliques of Imagerie and carned norkes, Machine, or that few or hardy any where can be equalled. In generall, all the old Cities are beaten downe; by what Mahamatan policie I anderstand not : but the King seeheth the ruine of any thing not begunne by his Ancestors : so Temples. that an the Landbath not au house fit for a Cottager, but in such Cities as hee fanoureth. Surat is best builded of any and in old time they in the fe parts made mightie workes, which every day decay. At Sutatibne u a Tan'e for mater of free-stone, in a polygon firme, of aboue an bundred sides, every side eight and twenty yards : st. b sth staires on enery side for men to descend, and many stopes for horses. It is a wonderous worke, both for the bugeneffe, and for the brave building.

I have now on the Court to touch, and mine entertainment. The King neuer ofed any Ambassadour His entertain-10 with somuch respect southout and dispute giving mee leave to the mine owne customes; not requiring measus Court. that of me, which he which of the Perann. He presented me with a welcome before I pake; and faid the King and he were bothers, with many other courseous words. I having but ficke he offered me Phylitians. He took e the Prefects in good part, and was fo find of the Coach, that at wight in his Court be get into it, and made two or three of mi mon draw him a little in it. He is very affilie, and of a cheerefull countenance, without pride. Three times a daybee steeth out in three places: Once to see his Elephants and The Kings hebeath figit about nome: After from foure to fine or fixe, to entertaine all that wifit him. At night ting three from nine till mid-night, with all his great men, but none elfe, where he is below with them, in all familia- times a day; ritie. I rifited kim in the feered of these, where I found him in a Court, set about the a King in a Play, and a" his Nobles and me felfe below on a flage concred with carpets, a inst Theater : with no great flate, but the Canopies one his head, and two franding on the beads of two wooden Elephants, to beat away flies. They weare nothing but Calieres, but are our attendant. The great merride in Traines, Some two bundred, Some fine hundred Footmen following them, The Grande. and forever fine B reners carried be fire th.m.; and an hundred or two hundred Horses after them.

Thus will in pride. They keepe thin Horfes most delicately, fed with Butter and Sugar : and though

from Sir T. Rocs

fand pounds.

mouth at Sinde

thing one Observation more to make of the falsenesses our Maps, both of Mercator, and all others. and their ignerance in this Country. First, the famous River Indus doth not emptie himfelfe into the Sea and their removance in this Country to a state of the Cambaya, as his chiefe mouth, but at Sinde, My reason is, Lahor stands upon Indus : from whence to Sinde it is manigable; to Gambaya not fo. Lahor in the Maps is also falfely set downe, it lying North from Surat aboue a thousand miles: the Cute where the Kings ordinarie residence is, Agta, net described now resideth in a hase old Litie, wherein is no house but of mudde, not so great as a Cottage on Hownstoheath : only humfelfe bash one of stone. His Lords line in Tents : and I have Suddenly built to my muddle heath : only himjeste han one of front. This Towne is fort of Agra ten dates town by two hundred IC miles, which standeth from hence North North-east. This place is from Branipert North source hundred and liftie miles. Bramport from Surat East above two bundred miles. The latitude reere five and Thus, my Lord, I have faid some-what, but to little purpose, I forget not some Bookes for you : but Liad-Hones heere are none: They are in the farre East Countries: neither is there any correspondence with China. To Peria, and fo to Aleppo there goe Caranans : to Cathaya none.

No correspondence with Cina. News of Vibec Tartars.

Heere is no newes but of Perlia. The King bath taken away water and reliefe from Ormus, andba. nished the Portugals his Territories. He hash lately oner-runne the poore Georgians with fire and sword: and being of an unquiet nature intendeth the conquest of the Vsbiques, a Nation betweene Samarchand and him, which he aymet at. He lately strucke off his sonnes head with his owne hand. Hee is sausured 20 and feared of the Mogoll, as being Lord of the more warlike Nation : for these are more then halfe Bramanies, whose Religion is not to killa Louse byting them: and the Mogolls are an essentiate people. So that the Turke the last were sending on Ambassage, to entreate him not to assist the Petnan, hee gave bim very barfh entertainment, made him Salem to the ground, and as soone as he was dismissed, sent the

I shall be glad to doe your Lordship service in England; for this is the dullest, basest place, that ever I faw, and maketh me weary of speaking of it. Therefo. e if you be also weary of reading, I am glad. I hall define your Lordship to let Master Hackwell reade the lownall: for I promised him one, but I had not

And so with all respect, and little Ceremonie, I bope to returne to doe you better services : in the 30 means time to live a miserable life, though with abundance and state enough, yet I want the conversation and presence of those friends I slove and honour : in which number your Lordship hath made me presume to esteeme you, and to account my selfe

Your Lordships humble friend, to doe you fernice,

THOMAS ROE.

Asmere, the Court of the Mogoll, lanuary 17. 1615.

A Letter of Sir Thomas Roe, to &c.

M dy it please your ( ) places furre remote, having some-what of wonder in the distance, and cause much expectation in themselves of strange matters among the Vulgar. Such as I, supplies they should have subject of worthy and large discourse. But these are unlike the Starres, that seeme leffe the further off: heere the remoteriesse is the greatnesse, and to maintagne the ancient priviledge of Travellers, they have beene so farre Alchimists as multiplication; some ground, some spirit, to quicken the bodie of their monstrous Relations.

Indus fallely described by our Geographers, ) vacancies from great Affaires, 1 Where I Shall begin, what I Shall Say worth one of your ( knownot: to undertake a Cosmographicall description were a labour not unworthy of time, but not proportionall to a Letter; Ortelius, Mercator, Atlas, nor any understanding any truth herein. Tet for the maynreffe of the error, I will observe, that the famous Ruer Indus doth not power himselfe into the Sea, by the Bay of Cambaya, but farre Westward at Sinde For from Lahor standing a thousand mile North, inthe Maine upon Indus, it is nauigable to Sinde, to Cambavanot, but certaine by-freames begotten by the seasons of Raine make mightie inundations, which have cherished the error: all the rest is as false both in bearing, distance longitude and latitude, at that, but the correction heere incomprehensible; the true latitude of this place fine and twentie degrees and a halfe.

they are either ordinarie, or mingled with much Barbarifme.

Lawes they have none written: the Kings sudgement binds, who sits and gives audience with much patience, once weekely, both in capitall and criminall causes, where sometimes be sees the execution done by his Elephants, with too much delight in bloud.

CHAP. 16. S. 10. A Letter concerning the State of the Great Mogoll.

His Governours of Provinces rule by his Firmans, which is a briefe Letter authorizing them. They Governours, take life and goods at pleasure.

Many religious, and in them many Seits; Moores or Malumetans adhering to Ally, Such is the Religious and King; Banians or Pythagorians, for the transmigration (and therefore will not kill the Vermine that Sedie. bites them) who often buy many dayes respite in tharitie from hilling any slesh at all, in Such a Prounce or Citie. Geneiles of fundry Idolatries, their Wines adorning the Pile, and entring the Funerall fives with great ioy and honour.

The extent of his Territorie is West to Sinde, North-west to Chandahor, North almost to Taurus, Extent. Essist to the borders of Ganges, and South-east all Bengala, the Land bordering the Gulph South to 10 Decan, much greater then the Pertian, almost equall (if not fully) to the Turke of his Land were crash to together into a square, as this. Agra, the ordinary residence of the King, is a thousand miles from any border, farther from some. The right iffue of Porus, is heere a King in the middest of the Mogols King - Porushis iffue.

domes, neuer subdued till last yeere: and to say true, he is rather bought then conquered, wonne by gifts, not by Armes, to acknowledge a superior Lord. The Pillar erected by Alexander, is yet standing at Dely, the ancient seat of the Ancestors of Ranna Alexanders Pilo

the : fue of Ports. The buildings are all base, of mudde, one story bigh, except in Surat, where are some stone houses, but Buildings pub-I know not by what policie, the King feekes the ruine of all the ancient Cities which were brauely built, and like and prinow byedefolate and ruined. His owne houses are of stone, both in good forme and faire, but his great wate.

men build not for want of inheritance, but as farre as I have yet seene, line in Tents, or houses worse then a Cottager; yet where the King affects, as at Agra, because it is a City crected by him, the buildings are (as is reported) faste and of carned stone.

In Reverue, doubtlesse, he exceeds either Turke or Persian, or any Easterne Prince: the summes I date Region of his not name, but the reason; all the Land is his, no man hath a foot. He maintagnes by rents given of Sig-great Reuenue nories, counted by Horses, all that are not Mechanique and the Revenues given to some, are a Germane and Wealth. Princes estate. Secondly, all men rife to greater and greater Signiories as they rife in fauour, which is only gotten by frequent Profents , both rich and rare. Lastly, he heires all mens goods that dye, as well those Juhestrance, that gained by industry, as Merchants, as those that lived by him, and takes all their money; leaves the Widow and Daughters what he pleaseth; gives the some some little Signiorie, and puts them anero to 30 the World, whose Fathers die worth two or three Millions.

But I am fallen by my purpose, not to interrupt your ( ) with these, presuming of your pardon, I will only say a little of the Court, and so passe to that is more necessarie.

The King sits out in three severall places, thrice every day, except some occasion present him: an house Court Cuat noone to fee his Elephants fight; at foure till fine to entertayne all commers, to be scene and worshipped; stomes. nine tillmid-night, with his principallmen in more familiaritie, being below among them.

I went to present my selfe at the second of these: I came into a Court full of base people, and at a raile which shut them out right against the King, I was stayed in his sight to demand audience (o.ely a ceremonie) so he sent his principall Officers to bring me up : he sate in a place like a Theatre above, where the King sits in a Play, and I was conducted fouresteps up, just under him, like a stage, all on Carpets; my 40 selfe and all his great men were Actors, the common-people below gazing on. Hee presented mee with speech, calling the King his Brother, and that I must consequently be welcome for the barbarous custome of kneeling and knocking the ground with the head (which he never pardoned, neither the Turkes nor Perlian Ambassadors) he required not, but at my first motion granted me all libertie of mine owne manner, and as all fay, he never refed such respect to a living man, All the policy of his state is to keepe the greatest about him, or to pay them afaire off liberally. No Policie and

Counsell, but enery Officer answereth to the King apart, his dutie,

He is of countenance cheerefull, and not proud in nature, but by babite and customs; for at right he is Dusoficion. very affable, and full of gentle conversation. I beleue your (

) is weary of him, and would passe into Perlia, from whence wee receive for Passian newer truth, that the Sophie hath distreffed Ormus, by taking away the water and provisions of the Mame. At Ormus they are in great necessitie, so that if the Sophie had any helpe of shipping to take it, hee might be persuaded to put it into our hands, to turne his silkes from the passage of his enemie the Turke; a matter infinite consequence. For if I were to open these Trades, I would stew important differences for the Kingdime of England, but it would require large Discourse. He hath made lately a Road with fire and Sword upon the poore Georgian Christians, and Subdued them, and being of a spirit naturally impancefull, he prepares for the conquest of Samercand, as his end, but pretends the punishing of availant Race of Tartars, called V striques, betweene him and his defire. Hee smote off his eldest former head with his Visigues. owne hands, returning from Geory a, and hath by learpe Edict binished all Portugalls all his Dominions. Neuer were such oportunities to discharee the Portugall som all these Coasts. Our Trade heere, permyello,

60 and the Dutch Plantate in below Got, bath fo fhortned their returnes, that halfe their Gallions come not; the fo that doe come bring new supplies for the Garrisms, but returne so emptie, that the charge is bin defound. We have now twice beaten a great Armado with few flips, an Armado that was appointed por calligar los hereticos Ingleses (the words of one Farher to anoher) and offer to proof the Mogoll for telesticitumes. entertayning us, so that he hash lost more in reputation (which was his strength) then in substance. But if his Masestie would condescend that we should assault them, as they doe vs, it would veterly breake them. it being both the nobler and fafer part of a Warre, to which we are subject at their pleasures, then to defend alwajes: besides, they make this ofe in reports of vs, that the King of England is so affirated the King of Portugall, that he dares not warrant an assault, but only to defend: what they say of the King and one Nation is so flinderous, that perit sua mole.

583

A description of the Land, customes and manners, which are incidents, are fitter for winter-nights, 60

Lawes. Execution.

Further East, the Dutch bath taken many Townes, and playes the Mole better then he, and hath beaten him in many Sea-conflicts; he is declining on all sides, and a little weight on his head now laid, would linke him. It is a matter of great consequence for future times; and though I have no hope, I propound it ) to make what we seemes best to your wisdome. I have remard enough, if I have par-) and not presumption whosewisdome and don for my talkatiuenesse, but it is obedience to your ( sinceritie I did euer honour, to whom I shall be happy to be tyed

In all humble feruices.

THOMAS ROE.

Almere, the feuen and twentieth of lanuary 1615.

> Another Letter to the same Lord, dated the thirtieth of October, 1616.

) &c. The frailtie of passage betweene this place and England, May it please your ( ) &c. The fraitite of passage betweene this place and England, especially of my last Letter that wandred over Land, and rather went upon discovery then businesses, ) transcripts of them : not that there is contained any matter worthy aduiseth me to fend your ( your Honours leasure, but seeing you commanded mee to write, the relation of one to another, will somewhat cleare the whole discourse. For broken and undependant pieces and fragments, have little light in them, leffe pleasure and no profit: fo that he that would doe any thing in this matter should write a history, and take it somewhat high, to shew the beginning and growth of this Empire, what fortunes and what 30 impediments it bath ouercome, what friendship it hath needed and effected, the ambitions and dissistions in the present state, that like impossumes lye now hid, but threaten to break out into the rending and ruine of the whole, by bloody war. The practifes, subtilties and cariages of factions and Court-secrets, falsely called ) they are pregnant, and excell in all that arte which the Dinell wildome wherein I affare your ( can teach them, and are behind none in wicked Craft, some passages whereof were not unworthy nor un-

Craft Isfuiticall

Their Religions suffered by the King, and practifed without enuie or contention on any part; how the Portugals have crept into this Kingdome, and by what corners they got in ; the entrance of the lefuits, their intertainment, priniledges, practifes, ends, and the growth of their Church, whereof they sing in Europe so loud praises and glorious successes. Lastly, the arrival of our Nation on this Coast, their forth- 40 nate or bleffed victories over their enemies, that not only fought how to possesse these quarters by themselus, and to forbid all others that which Nature had left free, as if God had created the world for them onely, but also to abuse this people, as if they alone were the sonnes of warre; they only triumph, and that all other Europeans strucke faile to their fortune and valour, which now is brought so low in value, that it is growne into a prouer be (one Portugall to three Moores, one Englishman to three Portugalls) so that the best foundation of their greatnesse is absolutely mined and blowne up. And our reception here stands on the same ground from which we have east them downe, which is Feare, an honorable, but vucertaine Base of so great a charge. For if either the enemie once prenaile, or other missoriune happen tous, our welcome hall turne round with it, the profit and fitnesse of this trade for England, while it may stand, not only respecting the Company now intreffed, but the state, whether the Common-wealth in generall lose or 50 winne. For often in trafique prinate men profer by detriment of the Republike, as in all trades that main-

Prouerb of English and Portugal.

> This works or method were worthy some paines, and as would require a good sudgement and much time, both which are wanting to me; fo it would not be unprofitable to reade, nor without some pleasure to view and meditate the diners operations and workes of God, the variable constitutions and dispositions of min, and all things under their government : but seeing nature and convenience have denyed me ability and lea-(ure, to fet upon fo great alabour, I have chosen one branch only to treat of to your ( ther method, then by way of bare relation, which is the estate of the Church heere, as well Christians, as of all other diffused sects of Infidels.

But to continue, as in a Parenthelis, the advice I game your Honour in my list, of our constitution 60 beere, and the newes of Pertia: Briefely I stand on very sickle termes, though in extraordinary grace with the King, who is gentle, foft, and good of disposition, yet on points and disputes with an infolent and proud some of his, into whose hands he hath remitted all power, which hee is neither worthy nor able to manage. He is Lord of the Port, and by his folly gines me much travell, fo forduly ambitions, that he resuld not have me acknowledge his father King, nor make any addresses, nor deliver any Presents nor complements of honour, but to humselfe; which I will never yeeld to and so I maintaine my credit by considence on the priniledges of my quality, and the Kings goodnesse. Yet an Ambassidour in this Court that knowes himselfe, and will not wrong his Master, shall oftner winne enemies then friends. Their pride endures no termes of equality, especially where there is no other honour nor title, but what is measured by expence; so that so maixtaine one that shall in his equipage and life hold proportion with his quality, in this Court, will cost much more than the profit of the Trade can spare; and he that lines under it wrongs his degree, and sudes into contempt. I doe my vimost to hold up with little poore meanes, but my opinion is a meaner in-10 strument would better effect businesse of traffique that might creepe, and skew, and suffer some affronts, which my ranke may not endure: And I find the King of Spaine would never fend any Ambassadour hither out of Greatnesse, knowing they are not received with proportionable honour and with my small experience I could doe the Company better fernice by myreturne, in adulfe how to governe the whole. Concerning Perfia, the Turke bath only yet made a Brauado, and performed little, the paffages are Perfan and stops, and the King drawing his armies into his Borders to defend himselse, and finding no great worke, Turks wastes, tooke occasion to take in by force a renoteed Nation to the East of Babylon. The people are called Coords. How by the Ancients or the true Geographicall situation of their Country, I am yet ignorant in.

Sir Robert Sherley by an ill passage to Goa, lost the opportunitie of the Fleete for Lisbon, and is Sir Robert Sherie stayed there another yeare, so that negotiation will not be so speedily advanced, as I feared; we shall have leg. breath to worke upon it, according as it shall be requisite in the indgement of your Honours in England, 20 or at loaft of the Merchants whom it first recardeth.

Heere is arrived a Persian Ambassadour with little newes, it being nine moneths since his departure from Spilian. He brought many rich Presents, and did such oberfance, prostrating himselfe and knocking the ground with his head, that I beleeve his Master will not accept of it, except (as is supposed) hee bee commanded to vie a loblequinusnesse, and to flatter this Mon. of greatnesse, his errandbeing to procure money for ayde against the Turke: in which kind be findes often liberall supplyes and succours, which is not felt from this sea of treasure; although to mediate a peace for the Kings of Decan be the pretence. whose protection the Perlian takes to hears, icalous of the encrease of this Empire: yet I doub: not he will be satisfied with silver, and suffer his Allyes to be overcome: he is not allowed so good ranke nor presence in Court as I, which got it by dispute, and have kept it by contention to the displeasure of some; neither 30 did the King do so much honour in reception of his Masters Letter, not vouchsasting once to give the Pepfian any title of Maielty, as of my Soueraigne Lords, which not a little contented me. Other advantages he bash of language, neighbour-hood and acquaintance, which are defects, but no faults of mine. The King is now ready to march towards Decan, whose Armie is commanded by his sonne, and wee with much toyle hall hang in the skirts.

Our Fleet arriving this yeere 1616. in the way met the Admirall Carrick of Lisbon, bound for Goa, about Molalia, an Hand in twelve degrees North latititude, and haling her after the courtefte of the Sea, was required with disgracefull languages, and sine great shot: which occasion apprehended, shee was fought with three dises, at last put allowere and fired her se'se: Shee was of burthen sisteens hundred tunnes, and by pregnant circumstances, the expected Vice-Roy sent for Goa, perished in her: which is one of the 40 greatest dispraces and loss that ener happened to the Portugals in these parts: The reward of their owne insolencie in this sight. The chiefe Commander of the English was staine, and the new declared maimed, listle other loffe. Thus your ( ) hath some touch of our affaires, and I will fall upon my purpose of the Church with your favour and patience.

Before the inundation of Tamerlane the great, the ninth Ancestor of this King, these Countries were Tamerlant. gouerned by divers petty Gentile Princes not knowing any Religion, but worshipped according to their feuerall idolatries, all forts of creatures. The Descendants of him brought in the knowledge of Mahomet, but imposed it opon none, by the Law of Conquest leaving consciences at libertie. So that these Naturals Religions from the Circumcifien (which came in with the Moores) called them Mogols or chiefe of the Circum- Mogols, why so cifed. Among the Moores there are many frist Mihometants that follow Ally his Sonne-in-law, and called 50 other new rifen Prophets which have their Keriffes, Mulus and Priests, their Mosques, Religious Votariss, Valkings, Prayings, and Ceremonies infinite; and for Penetentiaries, no Herefie in the World can Show so stringe Examples, nor bring go of such voluntarie pouerties, punishments, sufferings and chastisements as these all which are effected dholy men, but of a mingled Religion , not upright with their great Prophet. The Gentiles are of more forts, some valuant, good Souldiers, drinking Wine, eating Hog felh, but worshipping the source of a Beast : some that will not touch that slish which is not holy by imputational others that will not eate any thing wherein ouer there was any bloud, nor kill the Vermine that affaulteth them, nor der the in the Cup with those that doe; Superstitious in Washing, and most earnest in their Profellion but all of them aferibe a kind of Divinitie to the Ruer of Ganges, at which at one Season of the yeare fure or fine hundred thousand meete, and cast in Gold and Silver for Oblation.

In the manner, to a Pigs head in a Church neer this Citie, and to all living Cowes, and to some other beasts and lends. These have their Synagogues, and Holy Men, Prophets, Witches, South-sayers, and all others the Douls Importures. The Molans of Mahamet know some-what in Philosophy, and the Mubemuirbes are great Astrologers, and can talke of Arittotle, Euclyde, Auerroes, and other Aubrs. The Learned Tomas is Arab .

Ecta fin.

In this Confusion they continued antill the time of Echarha Father of this King, without any noyse of Christian profession, who being a Prince by nature inst and good, inquisitive after Nouelties, curious of new Opinions, and that excelled in many vertues, especially in piette and reverence towards his Parents, called in three lefunes from Goa, whose chiefe was Ieronimo Xauter a Nauarrois. After their arrivall he heard them reason and dispute with much content on his, and hope on their parts, and caused Xauier to wire a Booke in defence of his owne profession against both Moores and Gentiles: which finished he read our nightly, causing some part to be discussed, and fina y, granted them his Letters Pattents, to build to presion tesch convert, and to use all their Rites and Ceremonies, as freely and amply as in Rome, befroming on them meanes to erect their Churches and places of Denotion: So that in some few Cities they have cotten rather Templum, then Ecclesiam. In this Grant he gave grant to all forts of people to become Io Cinjitians that would, even to his Court or owne bloud, professing that it should be no cause of dufayour from him. Heere was a faire beginning to a forward Spring of a leave and barren Haruest.

Echar- ha himselfe continued a Maliometan, yet he beganne to make a breach into the Law, considering that Mahomet was but aman, a King as he was, and therefore renerenced; hee thought hee might prone as good a Prophet himselfe. This defection of the King pread not farre, a certaine outward renerince delayned him, and fo be dyed in the formall profession of his Sect.

iein generali ten e, for one any R. ligion, otall, and there ore of

Ghe-mangier-tha, bis sonne, the present King, being the issue of this new fancie, and neuer circum-Volceftand cifed, bred ap without any Religion at all, continues fo to this houre, and is an Atheift : sometimes be will make profession of Moore, but alwayes observe the Holy-dayes, and doe all Ceremonies with the Gentiles too. He is content with all Religion, only beloues none that changeth : But failing into his Fathers 20 concert, bath daved to enter farther therein, and to prof. Je himselfe for the maine of his religion, to be a greater Prophet then Mahomet, and hathformed to himfelfe a new Law, mingled of all: which many have accepted with such superstition, that they will not eate till they have saluted him in the morning; for which purpose he comes at the Sunnes rising to a window open to a great plaine before his house, where multitudes estend him: and when the Moores about him freshe of Mahomet, hee will footh them, but is glad when any one will breake out against him. Of Christ he never viters any word unreverently, nor any of those feets, which is a wonderfull secret working of Gods truth and worthy obsernation. Concerning the new planted Christian Church be confirmed, and enlarged all their priviledges, every night for one yeare frending two houres in hearing disputation, often casting out doubtfull words of his conversion, but to wicked purpose.

Of this fee before in the Iournalls of M:fter Hawbim and Finch.

And the rather to give some hope, he delivered many Youthes into the hands of Francisco Corfie, now resident beere, to teach them to reade and write Portugall, and to instruct them in humane learning, and in the Law of Christ; and to that end he kept a Schoole some yeares, to which the King sent two Princes, his brothers formes, who being brought up in the knowledge of God and his forme our bleffed Sautour, were solemnely Baptised in the Church of Agra with great pompe, being carried first up and downe all the Citie on Elephants in triumph, and this by the Kings expresse order, who often would examine them in their progression, and seemed much contented in them: this made many bend towards the same way, doubting his Milesties intention. Others that knew him better, supposed he suffered this in policie, to reduce thefe children into hate among the Moores for their conversion, of whom consisted the strength of his estate, but all men failing of his purpose which was thus disconered. When these and some other children 40 were felled, as was thought, in Christian Religion, and had learned some principles thereof, as to marry but one wife, not to be coupled with Insidels, the King sets the boves to demand some Portugalls wines of the Islants, who thinking it only an tale motion of their owne braines, chid them, and suspected no more. But that being the end of their conversion, to get a woman for the King and no care taken : the two Prinses came to the lettits, and surrendred up their crosses and all other rights, professing that they would be no longer Christians, because the King of Portugail sent them no Presents nor wines, according as they expected. The Padre feeing this, began to doubt there was more in that then the boyes resealed, especially feeing their confidence that had exit off the awe of Pupills, and examining the muter, had a confessed the King commanded them. They refused to accept the crosses, answering they had been given by his Alawities order, and they would not take notice from boyes of any fuch furrender, but bade them defire the 50 King to fend some of those, who by a kind of order are to deliner all his Maiesties Commands, whose months are by priviledges sufficient authority, and then they would accept them, boping, and knowing the Kings nature, that he would not descouer himselfe to any of his Officers in this poore plot. The bores returned with this meffage, which inraged the King; but hee being defirous to defalue the Schoole, and to withdraw the yourbes without noise, he bade them call the Teluits to the wemens doore, where by a Little he received the order, and without taking any notice fince of any toing, his kinfmen recalled, who are now absolute Moores, without any taste of their first faith, and so the fruit of all these b per are vangued. wind I cannot find by good fearch that there is one Christian really and orderly connerted, nor makes the profession, except some few that have been baptised for money, and are maintained by the lestints; of Consens host which fore there would be more, but that they find the decent, and cannot endure the burthen. This is the 60 truth of all their bragge and labour, and the full growth of their Church heere.

) may a little more understand the fashion of the King and the Islaits pro-But that your ( ceedings, I will make you one or two merry and late relations, and either fay he is the most impossible min in the world to to be connert d, or the most easie; for he lowest o brave and half faintle religion, yet, that be can well abide to have any decided.

Not many dates fince the lefuits house and Church being burned, the Crucifix remained safe which win- Muscle. der-hard was given out for a miracle, and much talk d of . that would be content any ofe might be made of an accident to enlarge the name of Christ, held my peace : but the Ichit fulpeting I would not agree to the miracle, dissuowed it to me, and made it a mitter of reason, who it was not burned; infinuating that the Moores had caught up this opinion of miracle without his confent, or suggestion, though he confessed be was glad of the occasion.

But the King who never let slippe any opportunity of new talke or novelty, calls the Iefuit, and onestioneth with him of it, he answereth ambiguously; whereupon his Maiesty demanded, if he did not desire Disputes of reto convert him, and receiving full answere, replyed: You fleake of your great miracles, and of many done ligion and mis-

10 by you, in the name of your Prophet : if yee will east the Crucifix and Peture of Christ into a fire be- racles. foreme, if it burne not, I will become a Christian : The Ieluit refused the triall as uniust, answering, that God was not tred to the call of men, that it was a finne to tempt him, that he wrought maracles according to his owne Councell, but offered to enter the fire himfelfe for proofe of his faith, which the King refused. Heere arose a great dispute, begunne by the Prince, a most stiffe Mahometan, and ba er of all Christians, that it was reasonable to trie our Religion by this offer, but withall, if the Crucifix did burne, then that the letuit should be obliged to render Moure: he viged examples of miracles professed to be done for lesse purposes then the conversion of so mighty a King, and in case of refusall of the triall, spake scornefully of Christ letus. The King undertooke the argument, and defended our Saujour to be a Prophet by comparison of his worker with those of their absurd Saints, instancing the raising of the dead, which ne-

20 uer any of theirs did. The Prince replyed, To give fight to one naturally blind, was as great a miracle. This question being presed botly on both sides, a third man to end the controverse interposed that both the father and the some had resson for their opinions : for that to raise a dead body to life, must need be confelfed to be the greatest miracle ever done, but that to give light to an eye naturally blind, was the same worke, for that a blind eye was dead, sight being the life thereof: therefore he that gaze sight to a blind eye, did as it were raife it up from death.

Thus this discourse ended, and so in wildome should 1: But I cannot leave out an apish miracle which was alted before this King, which the letuites will not acknowledge, nor owne as their practife; onely of the truth de facto, there is no doubt. A lugler of Beng da (of which craft there are many and rare) A flrange flow brought to the King a great Ape, that could, as he professed, distine and prophesie : and to this besist by ty of an Ape.

30 Some Seits is much distinitie ascribed : The King tooke from his finger a Ring, and caused it to be hid onder the girdle of one among a dozen other boyes, and bade the Ape dinine, who went to the right child, and tooke it out. But his Maiesty (somewhat more curious) caused in twelve severall papers in Persian Jetters, to be rewritten the names of twelue Lawginers, as Moles, Christ, Mahomet, Ally, and others: and shuffing them in a bagge, bad the beast divine which was the true law : who putting in his foot tooke out the inscribed of Christ. This amazed the King, who suspecting that the Apes master could reade Pertian, and might assist him, wrote them anew in Court Caralters", and presented them the second "Court chatime: the Ape was constant, found the rioht and kissed it. Whereat a principall Officer grew angry telling racters are the King it was some imposture, desiring he might have leave to make the lots anew, and offered himselfe such as be only to punishment if the Ape could beguile him; he wrote the names putting only elenen into the bagge, and Ministers vied 40 kept the other in his hand. The beaft searched, but refused all; the King commanded to bring one, the in Mysterics beaft tore them in fury, and made signes the true Lan-givers name was not among them. The King de- of State vnmanded where it was, and he ran to the Noble-man and caught him by the hand, in which was the paper knowneto all inscribed with the name of Christ Ielus. The King was troubled, and keepes the Apeyet. This was acted in publike before thousands: But where the abuse was, or whether there were any, I indee not; only one of the Ieluits schollers ran to him with open mouth, professing the King had an Ape a good Christian. Of this accident the lefuits make great account : to me they flight it, except the truth of the fait, which is not unlike one of their owne games. ) will pardon me all this folly, to interrupt you with so much and so vselesse tattle; I Should be glad to remoue where I might learne and practife better matter: but I cannot repent my journey: to the made me learne and know my God and my selfe better then ever I should have learned either among the pleasures of England; he hath wonderfully shewed me his mercy, and taught me his indicement: his goodnesse be olorified and magnified for ever. I humbly desire your )to present my name (I dare not fay my (ernice) before his Maiestie my Lord and Master : it is enough for me if I be not forgotten; I Ball never merit nor aspire the employments of his fauous, but I will pay my vowes, and pray for his Ma-iesty that he may liue a happie and glorious long life to the comfort of his Church, and enioy the (towne of Crownes, prepared by the King of Kings for those that love him; wherein I have failed to your Hinour, or by mine owne weaknesse, your ( ) will measure by this rule, Exigit & post-lat amiertia non quod cuique dabitur, sed quod quisque essicere potest, and you will pardon the assuming so his ha word is friendship, with this interpretation, Serues oft humilis amicus, which as I am bold to profeste, I will 60 be ready to demonstrate by obedience to your command,

THOMAS ROE.

Asmere, the thirtieth of October, 1616.

Cecc

A Letter of Sir THOMAS ROE, to another Right Honorable Councellor.

I F my lait feet your Honour, by the way of Aleppo, be miscaried, this present discourse will be unde-pendant and obscure, which causeth me to send a transcript that you may command from Sir Thomas Smith, how farre that designe of bringing in the Spaniard by Sherley had proceeded, and my poore opinion, that will informe with the present estate of the warres there in preparation: what bath succeeded. your Hon ur shall receive, that Sherley was stayed at Goa, by falling short eight dayes of his passage this Jour Honsur Jose receive, some success was junger and maintenance, which makes mee sudge his offers to and negotiation is gratious. The Shabas yet so depends on that hope, that he continues the prohibition of exportation of Silzes thorow Turkie.

Some few dayes fince I received aduise from Spahan, that Sherley hath written to the King skat with much ioy and ready embracement he bath fo farre proceeded with the Vice-Roy of Goa, in a conclusion of the league, as his commission hath power, that he is ready to embarke for Spaine to accomplish it fully. If it proceed and take effect, I car make it enident, that it wi renine and strengthen all the ruines and decares of the Portugals in the Indies, and make all other wavering Princes accept them; only I will not presse the consequence where it will be so fully understood.

588

The Snabas is in the field at Salmas, a Village undifferent to the mayes to Tauris or Gordgefton, attending the Turkes Generall, who with a monstrous armse (if it be not encreased by fame) is incamped a: 20 Arm. is tending the Turkes General, who will in amount of the legin, being not about fine dayes from the out, 18 0 c. 10013. Argrom, irrefolite which of these two attempts he shall begin, being not about fine dayes from the out, and the constituent and the constitue the Turkes dou- and ten from the other. But these great armies will dissolve of themselves, and I am of opinion there nell be no great effect of them, the winter approaching : and that they will treat a peace, which the Turke will never embrace, but with the epening of the trade & liberty of ancient commerce which thengh the Perlan sceld onto , yet if the Spaniard accepts his offers, the liberty given the Turke will be vielelle, for that the Silkes Shall come downe to Ormus; but I hope your Honour will preuent it, God bath provided you

The King of Perila lately enquired anew after the English, for he is indifferent what Christian bath the trade, fo that the Grand-Signior lofe it: for his first offer to the Spaniard, will take his truce, and after we may have the leavings.

We have fent to Iniques a flip from our Port of Surat, with Cloath and English goods, to make the first offer of a residence, and to get a kind of a possession: For where it was free to resuse or accept vs, it will be now as injury to turne vs out, being come upon assurance of his Letter received by me. But though I did not confint to the going of this jump because I knew both the Port unfit, the goods unuendible, and preindiciall to the great expectation and promises, which makes me scare the Shahas will despise us, and indge vs by this beginning, and so with the more roundnesse either conclude with the Spaniard, or make peace with the Turke (for his defigne is either wholly to dinert the trade or nothing) yet I will mend it as well as I can, by the helps of an Ambassador lately arrived at this Court; who, as I suppose, is come to get ayde of money, in which hind be often findeth liberall reliefes, and this King of India may better forre then any Monarch of the East.

Thane Cent

The advantage to bee made of it in England, is (if I may give my opinion) that when Sir Robert Sherley fall arrise in Spaine and negotiate his imployment, the Ambaffadour of his Maiestie resident may craue and ence, and produce the Letters granted to us, and urge our possession of the Port; and therefore require in the name of his Maiesty, that in this new contract either the English may be comprehended, or at least that nothing passe on the part of the King of Spaine, preindiciall to the subsects of his Ma-selfie, nor contrary to the amity of the two Nations: which if the Spaniar I shall enterprise, to the expulfion of vs.,it is in my opinion (the trade being in a free Kingdome granted vs.) a suft canfe of fueb a breath, as may produce Letters of Mart and reprifell in all the Easterne parts to right our selves. I will in the meane time amaze the Perlian with as mony doubts as I can infuse into him of the (

In this Court which is now in the field towards the conquest of Decan (with an esseminate armie sitter to be a spoile, then a terror to enemies) I shall so farre effect my imployment, as to consirme our trade and people on equall conditions to the inhabitants and borne fubietts, who fuffer themselves, abuses of Gouernours which can never be remedied, but by an whole change of the regiment and forme of dominion. For the constancy I will no farther give my word, then our owne prosperitie, and the others feare, and the Portugals feeblereffe Shall confirms to vs.

The trade is profitable and fit for England, but no way understood by the Company how to effect it at best advantage, and yet we have done little but discouer errors. I have no power to meddle in that, but if I were at home ten dayes, I would doe them better feruice then heere inten yeare; To proone and demonfrate energy particular and circumstance, were rather the subject of a Booke then of a Letter but I will doe 60 my part enery way, according to my ability, & judgment faithfully and honestly. Besides (though they may think I (peat for mine own cods ) I effure your honor it is not fit to keep an Ambaffador in the Count I have Shuffled better out, and escaped and anoyded affronts and slawish customes clearer then cust an did. I am allowed ranke abone the Persan, but be out-strips me in remards this Master increeves s, but his Misiestie commanded me to doe nothing unworthy the honour of a Christian King, and no reward can bumble me to any basenesse. I see what the Perian does and suffers. I know one that would creepe and sue, might effect more businesses then I, for every little matter cannot trouble the King; and his great men are more proud, and exped that from me I cannot give them. The King of Spaine could never be drawne to fendany, and their experience bath taught them, that besides he should not be received in honour correspondent to his quality, they knew an easter way to effect their ends. I shall not returne a rich man, and then many will condemne me for want of providence or wit to get it, but they know not the Indies, it growes heere in as rough mayes as in Europe. I will trust to the Company, and to my merit. I could write your Honour many remarkeable accidents in this government and Kingdome: all the policy and wicked craft 10 of the Dinellis not practifes alone in Europe, heere is enough to be learned or to be dispifed, but you have not leasure to entertaine so forraigne discourses; that part which may be worth knowing: as the proceeding of the Isluits, the growth of their Church, and the commixture of this Kingdome with Europe by trade. and the allyes it embraces, if I find not leafure to put them into method, I will weary your Honour with them by a fire-fide in broken pieces.

The Portugall pursues us heere with virulent hatred, but God doth chastise him, and his pride sees it not. The Admirall Gallion bound for Goa, a vessell of fifteene hundred, armed with sixe hundred men falling among our Fleet, a small ship haled her after the custome of the Sea, which shee requited with silenc: except of her Ordnance: the Commander of our Fleet, Beniamin Ioleph, came up with her, and de- M.tofephslaines mandea reason, but was returned scorne, so that he began a fight, in which he lost his life. A new commission 20 on being opened, Humfrey Pepwell Succeeded him, to his place and resolution, with the loffe of his eye and other burts, fought untill the Gallion having her Masts shot, ran ashoare on Comara, an Iland inbabited by Moores, in the latitude of eleuen degrees, one and liftie minutes, where the Generall Don Emanuel de Meneles, with three hundred escaped, but fired the ship, shee was very rich, and the succour of India this yeere: her companions were lost at fea, and on the fourteenth of Octob, there was no newes of any of them which were three ships, this is the greatest disaster and disgrace over befell them, for they neuer mist their Fleet in September, nor loft any Vessell as this, which was reported intincible, and without supplies they perish viterly. The Handers rifled the Generall and all his followers, and they are since arrived at Goa, naked and bare in the Gallon of Molambiques, which had likewise beene dangered by a Hollander, but the neerenesse of the Port sauch her. All these considered, me thinkes the Heavens consisted to the fall of the Portugall in this quarter, if his Maisitie would be pleased to bend onely his Royal countenance, But I shall (I hope) returne and not expect to see it effected in my time. I will intreate your Honour to preserve my name in the Kings memorie, not for any worthinesse, but an humble desire to serve him: and that you will be pleased to accept of my endenours, and esteeme me such as I am, one that loues and honours you, and that will pray to God as the best expression of my affection, to increase you in all worthy honour, and to bleffe you with his holy forit.

Your Honours humble, faithfull Servant,

THOMAS ROE.

40 I humbly defire your Honor to do me the fauour to thanke Sir Thomas Smith, in my behalfe, that hee may find my gratitude to my Friends.

> From the Campe of the Great Mogoll, Emperour of India, Nouember 30. 1 6 1 6.

Part of a Letter to the Companie of the East-India; Dated the three and twentieth of November, 1616.

MT Honourable Friends, I received your Letter on the twelfth of October, 1616. from the Charles, safety arrived with foure ships at the barre of Surat, the six and twentieth of the former moneth, of what past at Sea. I doubt not you will receive ample Relation, onely a little difference in the report of our Fleet, and the Portugals I will mention, that we began the fight, and that no Vice-Roy being fent this pere, an ancient Souldier, Don Emanuell de Meneses, that had twice beene Generall of their Forces, Repotts of the was in the Admirall, who being beaten ranne her selfe ashore at Mosambique, and are now arrised at fight. Goa. This Tale hangs very ill together, for that I know they first made sine shot, and that it is imposfible they could paffe from Aguzetia to Molambique in a Canoa, or that the Inhabitants bauing robbed 60 them durst carrie them into their strength, or that all this could be effected, and newes of their arrivall came from Goa in so little time. So that my judgement is, they make their Relation as neere ours as they can, and are loth to confesse truth, that either all perished, or the Vice-Roy, which were the greatest losse and dishonour ener happened to them in India. I shall not need to write you any long Discourse of your Affaires, nor my opinion, for that in a continued them; as bi-

Innraal I have fet downe all passages, and fend you the Copies of my Letters to your Factories, wherein many points are disputed and opened, from both which you may make best your owne collection and indiement : for in them cafually all your bufinesse is handled and discussed at full, and it may bee co etted into fuels a method as you may fit at home, and fee it at once.

But because some points in my last Letters, I followed at my first comming at others reports, which since I find vame and frivolous, and others perhaps are unresolved in my generall Discourse, I will runne over the material points with brenitie : for I extremely desire that you once understood the constitution of this Trade, how to governe and fettlest, that by varietie of fond opinions you bee not counselled to m. necessary charge, nor fall into groffe errors and damage.

Concerning the aiding the Mogoll or coasting bu Subjects into the Red Sea, it is now ofeleffe, yet I 10 made offer of your affections : but when they need not a courtefie , they regard it as a Dogge doth dry bread when his belly is full. The King hath peace with the Portugals, and will never make a constant warre, except first we displant them. Then his greatnesse will step in for ashare of the benefit, that does marre, except the new plants when they have peace, they forme our affifiance, and speake as lowed as our Cannon: if Warre oppresse them, they have not put out under any protection, nor will pay for it. You must remone from you all thought of any other then a Trade at their Port, wherein if you can defend your sclues letue them to their fortune; you can never obline them by any benefit, and they will sooner feare you then this, solong as love you. Your residence you need not doubt so long as you tame the Portugall; therefore anoyde all other charge as onnecessary, that refists not him; he onely can presudice you. For a Fort at my first arrivall, I received it as very necessary, but experience teacheth me, we are refused it to our adustage, If he would offer 20 me ten. I would not accept one; first where the River is commodious, the Country is barren and undings and locke traded, the passages to parts better planted so full of Theenes, that the Kings authoritie anailes not, and the frength of the bils afferes them in that life, if it had beene fit for Trade, the Naturals would have chofen it; for they feele the incommoditie of a barren Hauen : and it is argument enough of some secret inconvenience, that they make not wee of it but if it were safe without the walls, yet is it not an easie worke to divert Trades, and to draw the refort of Merchants from their accustomed Marts, especially for our commoditio which is bought by parcels, and cannot be called staple. Secondly, the charge is greater then the Trade can leave, for to maintagne a Garrison will eate the profit; it is not an hundred men can keepe it. For the Portugall if he once fee you undertake that courfe, will fet his rest upon a to supplate you. Warre and Traffique are incompatible, by my confent, you shall no way inque your selves but at 30 Sea, where you are like to gaine as often as to lose: it is the beggering of the Portugall, notwithstanding his many rich Residences and Territories, thet hee keepes Souldiers that spend it; yet his Garrisons are meane. He neuer profited by the Indies, fince he defended them. Observe this well.

It hath beene also the errour of the Datch, who seeke Plantation heere by the Sword, they turne a wonderfull stocke, they proule in all places, they possesse forme of the best, yet their dead payes consume all the game. Let this bereceived as a Rule, that if you will profit, feeke it at Sea, and in quiet Trade: for without Controver sie it is an errour to affect Garrisons and Land Warres in India. If you made it onely agamst the Naturall, I would agree : to make it for them they are not worth it, and you should be very wary how to ingage your reputation in it. You cannot fo eafily make a faire retrait as as on-fet; one difacter would either diferedit you, or interresse you in a warre of extreme charge and doubtfull event. 40 Besides, an action so subject to chance as Warre, is most unfitly undertaken, and with most bazard, when the remotenesse of place for supply, succours and counsels, subject it to irrecoverable losse, for that where is most uncertaintie, remedics should be somuch the neerer to occurre to all occasions. At Sea you may take and leane, your Designes are not published; the Road of Swally, and the Port of Surat, are fittest for you in all the Mogols Territorie, I have weighed it well and deliner you that Shall never bee disproned, you need no more, it is not number of Ports, Fastories and Residences that will profit you, they will increasecharge but not recompence it; the inconveniencie of one respectively to your fales, and to the commoditie of Inuestants, and the well imployment of your Seruants is all needfull, a Port to secure your flips, and a fit place to unlade will not be found together. The Road at Swally, during the fasfor, is as fafe as a Pond; Surac, Cambaya, Barouch, and Amadauar, are better tradea then all India, and 50 feated commodiously. The incoveriences are, the Portugals at Sea, and the landing of goods, to meet with which first you must bring to passe, that your lading bee readie by the end of September at your Port; which may be effected by a stocke before-hand, or by taking up money for three monethes, and so you may discharge and lade in one, and depart for excellent season for England, and the Enemie Stall not have time with force to offend you, n ho will be newly arrived; and if the preparation be ancienter we shall know it. For the second, to land goods without danger of Frigats, and to save the carriage over land, you must Send a Pinnaffe of three Core tunne, with ten Peeces that drawes but sexen or eight foot water, 10 paffe ap the Kiner betweene Swally and Surat, and so your goods will be safe, and in your owne command to the Custome-house-Key; and it will a little awe the Towne; shee may proceed after according to your ap-

The Commodities you fill paffe leaft in that quarter, the goods you feek being principally Indico and Cloth, no one place is so fit for both, and the less incomminence are to be chosen, of thu you shall cather more at large my opinion and reasons, in my Iournall and Discourses to your Fattors, perhaps some of them will contradict it : but I am not deceived, nor have private ends, to keepe Fuctories to imploy and ad-

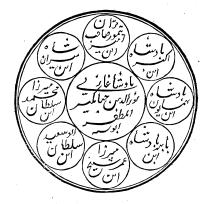

uance friends, the places and number of Seruants I have delinered my indgement in, and could manifelt the past errours, but not mend them. Sindu is possessed by the Portugals, or if it were free, were no fitter then Surat, nor fifer : as it is, it will be more subject to perill. Your Falters sent me youre or fine climfer out of your Commission, that concerned Perija, a Fort, a Plantation in Bengala, all which they lines were not of vie : with no other purposet, proposition or resolution, they will acquaint me. They council about should enderstand or direct them, if they resolve of any thing in their opinion for your profit, and send to me, I will effect the Court part, but you will find in my Letters and Tournall how they a fe mee, which doubtlesse at first was sowed by some realousie of yours which will cost you dearely.

For the setting your Traffique beere, I doubt not to effect any reasonable desire, my credit is sufficient 10 with the King and your force will alway bind him to conftancie; it will not need so much helpe at Court. as you suppose, a little countenance with the discretion of your Fastors will with easie charge returne you most profit, but you must alter your stocke, let not your seruants deceive you, Cloto, Lead, Tecth, Quickfilter, are dead Commodities, and will neuer drive this Trade, you must succour it by change, and you will find my opinion discussed in Letters. I have this yeere past many difficulties by the peruersexess of Saltan Caronne, Lord of Surat, but by Gods direction, I have overcome them; Articles of treatie on equall termes I cannot effect, want of Presents disgraced me : but yet by Peeces I have gotten as much as I defired at once. I have recovered all Bribes, Extortions, Debts made and taken before my time till this day, or ar least at honorable composition. But when I deliver the next gifts to the Mogoll, in the Prin- * That which ces absence, I will set on a new for a formall . contract, or.

followes, as other Letters alo, lhaue willingly omirred, as not

Haue heard that Sir Thomas Roe at his Returne, defiring the Great Megor or Mogoll, his foliation val-Letters of Commendation to His Maiestie, easily obtayned that request, but found him gar Readers, very fampulous where to fet his feale: left, if under, hee should disparage himfelie; it ouer, it risso Commight cause distast to the King, his resolution and prevention therefore was this, to fend the Let-merce. ter unfealed, and the great Seale it felfe, that so His Maiestie might according to his owne pleafure affixe it. The Seale is Silver; the type and forme whereof, contaying only the Mozols Genealogie from Tamerlane, in feuerall Circles, with the English Translation, I have

The Description of the Great Mogols Seale.

Cccc 3

CHAP.

Temur Saheb Quran. Ebn Miran Acbar Pad Xab. Xab. 10 E6n Almozaphar Mirza Solsan Nur din Gibangir Homaiun Pag Mohamed Pad-xab Xab. GAZI. Ebn EbnSoltan Aba S id. Ebn Xab. Mirza Amai

CHAP. XVII.

A Letter of M. THOMAS CORYAT, which travailed by Land from Ierusalem to the Court of the Great Mogol, written to M. L. WHITAKER. To which are added pieces of two other, to entertayne you with a little Indian-Odcombian mirth.

> Most deare and beloved Friend, Master L. W. Anma dimidium mea.

From the Court of the most mightie Monarch, called the Great Mogoz, resident in the Towne of Asmere, in the Orientall India. Anno 1615.

Ordiail Calutations in the Authour of Caluation, IESVS CHRIST. Where SQ I writ unto you last, I remember well; even from Zobah, as the Prophet SAMVEL calleth it (2. Booke, Chap. 8. verf. 2.) that is, Alappo, the principall Emporium of all Syria, or rather of the Orient World; but when, in truth I have forgotten , for I k-epe not Copies of my Letters , as I fee most of my Country-men doe, in what source of the World I so de them. How-beit, if my coniecture doe not much faile mee, I may offirme that it was about sife een monethissic ce, about a moneth after, I returned unto Aleppo from I rilalem, after which time, I remained there three moneths longer, and then departed therehence in a Caranan into Persia, pissing the noble River Eu hrates ( the chiefest of all the tirrigated Paradise, where-hence, as from their originall, the three other Rivers more derived) about foure dayes intones beyond Aleppo on the 60 further fide of which, I entered Meloporamia, alias Childen, for the E pirates in that place disterminate b Syria and Melopo amia. There-hence I had two dayer ioniner to Vr of the Chaldeans, where Abraham was borne, a very delicate and pleasant Citie. There I remayned some dayes, but I could see no part of the ruines of the house, where that fuithfull seruant of God was borne, though I much desired it. From thence, I had four dayes sourney to the River Tyers, which I pafsed also; but in the same place where I croffed it, I found it so shallow, that it reached no bigher th.n the calfe of my legge: for I waded over it afoote. Now I well perceive by my ocular experience, that Chal ica is named Melopotamia, for that it is inclosed with the forefand Rivers. Trancto Tigride, I entred Armenia the greater : After that, Media the lower, and refided fixe dayes in the Metropolis thereof, heretofore called Echatana, the Summer feate of Cyrus his Court, a Cuie eft soone mentioned in the Scripture, now ealled Tauris, more w fall ruines of a Citie (laung that of Troy and (yzicum in Natolia) nener did mine eyes behold. When I jeriously contemplated those 10 issinia, the dolefull restimonies of the Turkish denestrations, I called to minde Ovids Verfe:

Ludit in humanis diuina potentia rebus.

And that of HESIOD, Ta 3 waplepa supleca Dist Ceve ufichenerns.

From that , I had two dayes ioserney to a Citie that in Strabos time was called Arfacia in Media the higher, now Cashin, once the Royall foate of the Tattarian Frinces, foure dayes tourney from the Calpian Sea. From Cashin, I had three and twentie dayes to Spilian in Parchia, the place of 20 residence of the Persian King. But at my being there, he was in the Curtrey of Gurgistan, runsacking the poore Cirritians there with great hostilitie, with Fire and Sword. There I remayined two moneths, and so with a Carauan travelled into the Easterne India, passing foure moneths and odde dayes, in my trauell between that (through part of the true Perlia, and a large trait of the noble and renowned India) and the goodly Citie of Lahir in In-12, one of the largest Cities of the whole Vninerse, for it contagneth at the least fixteene miles in compesse, and exceedeth Contiantinople it selfe in greatnesse. But a dozen dayes before I came to Lahor, I passed the famous River Indus, which is as broad againe as our Thames at London, and hath his original out of the Mountayne Ca casus, so much ennobled by the ancient both Poets and Historiographers, Greeke and Latine; which Plato for curiositie sake, in his travelli of these parts went to see. It lyth not farre from that 30 upon the Confines of South a, now called Tartaria : My felfe also conceining some hope of feeing it before my finall farewell of India. I had almost forgotten one memorable matter to impart with you: About the middle of the way , betwiet Spana a d Lahor , inst about the Frontiers of Petits and India, I met Sir Robert Sherley and his Lady, travelling from the Court of the Mogol, (where they had beene very graciously received, and enriched with Presents of great value) to the King of Per a's Court; fo gallanily furnified with all necessaries for their transiles, that it was a great comfort onto ne, to fee them in such a flurishing estate. There did hee seem mee, to my singular contentment, both my Bookes nearly kept; and bath promifed mee to frew them, effectally mine Itinerarie, to the Pethan King: and to interpret vinto him some of the principall matters in the Turkith Tongue, to the end I may have the more gracious accesse vito him., after my returne 40 thither. For thorom Perila I have determined (by Gods he pe) to returne to Aleppo. Besides other rarities that they carred with them out of India, they had two Elephants and eight Antices, which were the first that ever ! faw : but fterwards , when I came to the Mogals Court , I f. great flore of them. These they meant to present to the Persian King. Both hee and his L. dy ried mee with fingular respect, especially his Lady, who bestowed fortie shillings upon mee in Persian money, and they feem d to exult for toy to fee mee, having promifed mee to bring mee in good grace with the Pertian King, and that they will induce him to bestow some Princely benefit apon mee: this I hope will be e partly occasioned bomy Broke, for her is fuen a sociard Prince, that hee will not bee meanly delighted with district my factions haveglyphicks, if they are truly and genuinely expounded

From the famous C tie of Lahor I had twentie dayes tourney to another goodly Citie called Agra, through such a delicate and even Trait of ground, as I never saw before: and doubt whether the like be to be found within the whole circumference of the hab toble World. Another thing also in this war, being in leffe memorable then the plannife of the grow d: a row of Trees on each fide of this way where people due travell, extending it fel e from the Townes-end of Labor, to the Townes-end of Agri; the most inc mparable shew of that kind, that ever my eyes lanuyed. Likewise, whereas there is a Mounsame sime ten dayes inurney betwirt La or and A gra, but very neare ten miles out of the way, on the lest hand : the people that is habite that M untayne, observe a custome very strongs, that all the brothers of any Family, have but one and the lefte-fame wife for that one woman sometimes doth serve fixe or seuen men the like where of I remember I have read in Strano, concerning the Arabians that inhabited 60 Aracia felix. Agra is a very great Citie, and the place where the Mogoll did alwayes (Janing within thefe two reares) keeps his Court but in every respect much inseriour to Lahor.

From thence to the Mogols Court, I had ten dayes tourney, at a Towne called Afmete, where I found a Cage Merchant of our English-men, with nine more of my Country-men, resident there epon termes of Negotiations for the right Worshipfull Company of Merchants in London, that trade for East-India. I spent in my inviney betwixt Ictusalem and this Mogols Court, sisteene monethes and odde dayer, all which way I transer sed a soote, but with diners paires of shooes, having beene such a Propateticke, (I will not call my selfe Peripateticke, because you know it significate one that maketh a perambulation about a place, mareny, figurif, ing to walke about ) that is a walker forward on foot, as I doubt whether you caur heard of the life in your life for the totall way between levulalem and the Mogols Court, contameth two thousand and seven hundred English miles. My whole perambulation of this Alia the greater, is like to be a P. sage of almost six thousand miles, by that time that in my returne backe thorow Perlia, afterward also by Babylon and Niniuie, I shall come to Caito in Egypt, and from that downe the Nilus to Alexalfo by Babyton and Annune, . journal andria, there to be one day (by Gods helpe) imbarqued for Christendome; a very immense dimension of 10

CHAP. 17.

Now I am at the Mogols Court, I thinke you would be glad to receive fome narration thereof from me, though succincitly handled : for I meane to be very compendious, lest I should otherwise preoccupate that pleasure, which you may hereister this reape by my personall relation thereof This present Trince is a very worthy person, by name Sciim, of which name I never read or heard of any more then one Malhometan King, which was Sultan Selim of Constantinople, that lined about eightie yeeres fince, the same that con quered Ierutalem, Damafous, Aleppo, Cairo, e. adding the fame to the Turkith Empire. He is liftie and three yeares of age, his nativitie day having bin celebrated with wonderfull pompe since my arriuallheere : for that day he weighed himselfe in a paire of golden Scales, which by great chance I saw the Same day (a custome that he observes most inuiciably energy ever) laying so much Gold in the other Scale 20 as counternaileth the weight of his bodie, and the same he afternavd distributed to the poore. He is of complexion neither white nor blacke, but of a middle betweet them : I know not how to expresse it with a more expressive and significant Epitheton then Oline: an Oline colour t is face presenteth: hee is of a seemely composition of bodie, of a stature little onequal (as I guesse not without grounds of probabilitie) to mine, but much more corpulent then my felfe. The extent of his Dominion is very specious, being in circuit little lesse then foure thousand English miles, which very neere answereth the compasse of the Turkes Territories: or if any thing be wanting in Geometricall dimension of ground, it is with a great pleonasme supplyed by the firtilitie of his foile: and in the fe two things he exceedeth the Turkes, in the fatnessed as I have faid) of his Land, no part of the World seelding a more fruitfull veine of ground, then all that which lyeth in his Empire, saving that part of Baltylonia, where the terrestriall Paradise once stood: whereas a great pare of the Turkes Land is extreame barren and sterrile, as I have observed in my peregrination thereof, especially in Syria, Mesopotamia and Armenia; many large portions thereof being so wonderfull fruitleffe, that it beareth no good thing at all, or if any thing, there Infelix Islium & iteriles dominantur

Secondly, in the conjunction and union of all his Territories, together in one and the same goodly Continent of India, no Prince having a foot of Land within him. But many parcels of the Turkes Countries are by a large distance of Seas, and otherwise, divided asunder. Againe in his Revenue he exceedeth the Tarke and the Parian his Neighbour by just halfe : for his Revenues are forty Millions of Crownes of other things of fix shillings value, by the yeare: but the Turkes are no more then sifteene Millions, as I was certainly informed in Constantinople; and the Perlians fine Millions, plus minus, as I heard in Spahan. It is faid 40 reade Captin that he is uncircumcifed, wherein hee differeth from all the Mahometan Princes that enerwere in the

He speaketh very reverently of our Sautour, calling him in the Indian Tongne, If azaret Ecfa, that is, the great Prophet, letius : and all Christians, especially vs English, he rifeth fo beneuo'ently, as no Mahometan Prince the like. He keepeth abundance of wilde Beafts, and that of dutys forts, as Lyons, Elephants, Leopards, Beares, Antlops, Unicornes; whereof two I have seene at his Cours; he strangest beasts of the World: they were brought hither cut of the Countrey of Bengala, which is a Kingdome of most singular fertilitie within the compasse of his Dominion, about foure Meneths iournes from this, the midland parts thereof being watered by divers Channels of the famous Ganges, which I have not as yet feene, but (God willing) I meane to visit it before my departure out of this Country, the necrest part of it be- 50 ing not about twelve dayes tourney from this Court. The King presenteth himselfe thrice enery day without faile to his Nobles, at the rifing of the Sunne, which he adoreth by the elevation of his hands; at noone, and at fine of the clocke in the enening : but he standeth in a roome aloft, alone by himselfe, and looketh upon them from a window that hath an embroydered sumptuous coverture, supported with two filmer Pillasters to yeeld shadowes unto him. Twice enery weeke, Elephants fight before him, the branest spectacle in the World : many of them are thirteene foot and abalfe bigh; and they frome to infile together like two little Mountaines, and were they not parted in the middest of their sighting by certaine fire-workes, they would exceedingly gove and cruentate one ancher by their murdering teeth. Of Elephants the King keepeth thirtie thousand in his whole Kingdome at an vnmeasurable charge; in seeding of whom and his Lions, and other Beasts, he spendeth an incredible masse of Money, at the least terme 60 thou fand pounds sterling a day. I have rid upon an Elephant since I came to this Court, determining one day (by Gods leave) to have my Picture expressed in my next Booke, sitting upon an Elephant. The King keepeth a thousand Women for his owne body, whereof the chiefest (which is his Queene ) is called Normal. Tou may remember to relate this onto your Friends , that I will now mention as a matter this State, Hawkins his Relations, who had better meanes and iudgement to know them. The Vnicornes are no other very memorable; I frent in my tenne Monethes travell betweet Aleppo and the Mogolls Court, but three pounds sterling, yet fared reasonable well every day; victuals being so cheape in some Countries where I trauciled, that I oftentimes lined competently for a penny sterling a day : yet of that three pound I was coozened of no leffe then tenne shillings sterling, by certaine lewd Christians of the Armenian Nation: fo that indeed I frent but fiftie Stillings in my tenne Monethes Transiles, I have bin in a Chie in this Country, called Detec, where Alexander the Great toyned Battell with Porus King of India, and conquered him; and in token of his victorie, erected a Braffe Pillar, which remayneth there to this day. At this time I have many Irons in the fire; for I learne the Persian , Turkish, and Arabian Tonques, having alreadic gotten the Italian (I thanke God) I have beene at the Mozolls 10 Court three Monethes alreadie, and am to tarrie heere (by Gods holy permission) fine Monethes longer, till I have gotten the forefaid three Tongues, and then depart here-hence to the Ganges, and after that. directly to the Perlian Court.

but the Rhi-

Your affured louing Friend till death,

THOMAS CORVATE.

From the Court of the Great Mogoll, relident at the Towne of Asmere in the Easterne India, on Michaelmas day. Anno 1615.

Doe entry at this time as pancraticall and athleticall a health, as ever I did in my life: and so have done euer fince I came out of England, fining for three dayes in Constantinople, where I had as Aque, which with a little letting blond was cleane banished, the Lord bee humbly thanked for his gracious blessing of health that he hath given unto mee. I was robbed of my money, both gold and silver (but not all, by reason of certaine clandes line corners where it was placed) in a (site called Diatheck in 30 Melopotamia, the Turkes Countrey, by a Spahee, as they call him, that is, one of the Horse-men of the Great Turke; but the occasion and circumstance of that misfortune, would bee too tedious to relate. Notwithstanding that losse, I am not destitute of money I thanke God. Since my arrivall beere. there was fent unto this King one of the richest Prefents that I have heard to bee fent to any Prince m elever was Jon van war war was allow from the same from the first three was and shrint, and allow fift into it confifted of diserr parcels, we being Elphont, whereof there were one and shrint, and of the first from the fift, now for first from the fift, now for first first from the first for the first from the first for the first from Furniture for their buttockes of pure gold: two Lions upon their heads of the like gold: the ornaments of each, amounting to the value of almost eight thou and pound sterling; and the whole Present was worth ten of their Leakes, as they call them; a Leake being ten thousand pound sterling: the whole, a hundred 40 thousand pounds sterling.

To the High Seneschall of the Right Worshipfull Fraternitie of Sireniacall Gentlemen, that meete the first Friday of every moneth, at the signe of the Meremaid in Bread-street in London, give these: From the Court of the Great Mogoll, refident at the Towne of Afmere, in the Easterne-India.

R Ight Generous, Ioniall, and Mercurial Sciencickes; I have often read this Grocke Frourie, 22th This Letter by Sign every, that is, one hand majorth another, and the Latine, Mulus Mulum (cabit, one Mule M. Fager was Scratcheth another; by which the Ancients signified, that courtesses done unto Friends, ought to beere- delivered to quited with reciprocall offices of friendship. The serious consideration hereof doth make me to call to minde my selie. that incomparable elegant safe-conduct, which a little before my departure from England, your Fraternitie with a generall suffrage game me for the securitie of my future Peregrination, concinnated by the pleasant wit of that inimitable Artizan of sweet Elegancie, the mostie of my heart, and the quondam Senefchall of the Noblest Societie, Master L. W.

Therefore since it is requisite that I should repay some-what for the same, according to the Lawes of 60 humanitie : Such a poore retribution at I fent unto jou from Aleppo, the Metrpolitan Citie of Syria. by one Master Henry Allare of Kent, my Fellow-pilgrime there-hence to Ierusalem; I meane a plaine Epistle, which I hope long since came unto your hands: I have sent unto you by a man no lesse deare unto meethen the former, one Master Peter Rogers, a Kentilh man also from the most famigerated Region of all the East, the ample and large India: affuring my felfe, that because I am not able to requite your lone with any effentiall gratulations, other then verball and ferspeall, you will as louingly entertaine my poore Letters, being the certains manifestation of an ingenuous minds, as if I should fend unto you the minerall riches or Drugges of the Noble Countrey.

595

CHAP. 17.

Thinke it no wonder I pray you, that I have made no vie in all this space since I left my native Country, of the Superexcellent Commeate; for I have bent all my time bitherto in the Mahometan Countries. and am like to frend three yeeres more in these Mullelman (as they call them) Regions of Alia, after of Europe, before I shall arrive in Christendome, For this cause I left it in Aleppo, with my Countrimen. there to receive it from them againe, after that I shall have ended my Indian and Perlian perambulation: and there-hence to carrie it once more to Constantinople, and that by the way at Iconium, Nicka, Nicomedia, and in the Countrey of Natolia, a journey of fortie dayes. From that finally thorow the heart of Greece, by the Cities of Athens, Thebes, Corinth, Lacedamon, Theffalonica, and to the Citie of Ragouze, heretofore Epidaurus, fo facred for the Image of Elculapius in the Country of Sclauonia, once called Illyricum; from thence I have three dayes journey to the inestimable Diamond fet in the Ring of the Adriatique Gulfe, (as once I faid in the first Harangue that ever I made to Prince Henrie of bleffed memorie, translated fince my departure from London, from the Terrestrial Tabernacles , to the Coelestial Habitations) venerous Venice, the Sourraigne Queene of the Mare fuperum : if the great Ichoush shall be so propitious unto me, as to grant me a prosperous arrivall in that Noble Citie, I will there beginne to shew your safe conduct, and to decantate, yea and to blazon your prayles for the same: and after in enery other place of note, until I shall arrive in glorious London, 20 communicate it to the most polite, with that the Cities will yeeld, thorough which my laborious feets shall carrie me, it would bee superuacaneous to commemorate unto you the almost incredible extent of Land, I traversed from Ierulalem to the Court of the Great Mogoll in India , where I now reside: with the variable Regions and Provinces inter-tacent between them, and the manifold occurrences and observations of speciall worke in this vaste Tract; for it would bee such a fastidious Discourse, that it could not be well comprehended in a large sheete of Paper: but Master Whitaker, I hope, I will not faile to import unto you in a sew compendious Relations, which I have acquainted him with, in a particular Letter to himselfe : of which, if I should have written againe to you, it would have proved Crambe

The Gentleman that bringeth this Letter unto you, was Pracher to the English Merchants, connersant at the Court of the aforesaid mightie Monarch, in the Towne of Alinere in this Easterne-India: and in divers lowing offices hat beene so kind onto me, that I intreat your Generosities to entertaine bim friendly for my fake, to exhibarate bim with the purest quintessence of the Spanish, French and Rheni'n Grape, which the Mermaid yeeldeth; and either one in the name of you all, or else the totall universalitie of the one after another, to thanke him heartly, according to the qualitie of his merits. Farewell, Noble Sirenaickes.

> Your Generofities most obliged Country-man, etter to be commanded by you, the Hierofolymstan-Syrian-Mesopotamian-Armenian-Median-Parthian-Persian-Indian Legge-stretcher of Odcomb in Somerfet,

THOMAS CORYATE

 ${f P}^{Raj}$  remember the recommendations of my dutifull respect; to all thosse whose names I have beere expressed, being the lowers of Uertue, and Literature; and so consequently the wel-willers (I hope) of a prosperous: sue of my designements, in my laborious pedestriall perambulations of Asia, Africa,

Written with mine owne hand, at the Court of the Great Mogoll, Shaugh Selim, resident in the Towns of Asmere, in the umbilicke of the Orientall India, the eight day of November, being Wednefdar, Anno Dom. 1615.

Nprimis, to the two Ladies Varney, the Mother and the Daughter, at Boswell House without Temple-harre,

2 Item, to that famous Antiquarie, Sir Robert Cotten, at his House in the Black-Friers. Pray tell him that I have a very curious white Marble head of an ancient Heros or Grant-like Champion, found out very casually by my diligent peruestigation amongst the ruines of the once renowmed Citicof 60 Cyzicum, mentioned by Cicero in his fecond Oration (if my memory doth not faile me) against Verres, fituate in an Peninfula of Bythinia, in the goodly Countrey of Natolia, neere the Sea Propontis : to this head will his best Antiquities what foener veile bonnet.

3 Item,

- 2 Item, to that courteous sweet, and elegant-natured and nurtured Gentleman, Master William Ford, Preacher to our Nation at Constantinople, if you nappen to meet him in any part of England; one that descrueth better of me, then any man in a thu Catalogue : for of him have I learned whatfoeuer superficiall skill I have gotten in the Italian Tongue : pray reduplicate my commendations unto him.
- 4 Item, to Master George Speake, my generous and ingenuous Countrey-man, the Sonne and heire apparant of Sir George Speake, in Somerlet-thire; him you are like to find in any Terme, either at the Middle-Temple, or in some Barbers house neere the Temple.
- 5 Item, to Mafter John Donne, the Author of two most elegant Latine Bookes, Pleudo-marter, 10 and Ignatif Conclane : of his abode either in the Strand, or elfe-where in London, I thinke you find be easily informed by the meanes of my friend, Master L. W.
- 6 Item, to Master Richard Martin, Counseller, as his Chamber in the Middle-Temple, but in the Terme-time, scarce else.
- 7 Item, to Master Christopher Brooke of the Citie of Yorke, Counseller, at his Chamber in Lincolnes Inne, or neere it.
- 8 Item, to Mafter Iohn Hoskins, alias fequino Ciall Pasticraft, of the Citie of Hereford, Counfeller, at his Chamber in the Middle-Temple.
- 9 Item, to Master George Garrat; of whose beeing you shall understand by Master Donne aforefaid.
- 10 Item, to Master William Hackwell, at his Chamber in Lincolnes Inne.
- II Item, to Mufter Beniamin lolinton the Poet, at his Chamber at the Black-Friers.
- 12 Item, to Muster John Bond my Countrey-man, chiefe Secretarie unto my Lord Chan-
- 13 Item, to Master Doctor Mocket, resident perhaps in my Lord of Canterburies house at Lambeth, where I left him.
- 14 Item, to Master Samuel Purchas, the great Collector of the Lucubrations of sundry Classicall Authors, for description of Alia, Africa, and America. Pray commend me unto him and his measures Master Cooke, by the same token, that he gaue me a description of Constantinople, and the Thracius Bolphorus, written in Latine by a French-man, called Petrus Gillius : which Booke, when I carried once in an after-noone under mine arme, in walking betwixt our English Ambassadors House in Pera, on the opposite fide to Constantinople, and the Flemish Ambassadors house, I lost it very unfortunately to my great griefe, and never found it agame, &c.

Here is another and later Letter of his to his Mother, written the last of October 1616. part of which for the Odcombian stile and Corraticall straine, I have hither transcribed. Great pitie it is that his voluminous Observations of his foot Pilgrimage, longer then perhaps of any man euer hath bin in that kind, are either loft, or at least not come to some discreet hand, which might, no doubt, diffill good instructions thence for the publike, as sweet fresh water out of the huge falt Ocean.

Some written Notes of his, it pleased Sir Thomas Roe to give me, whence (omitting such things as before you have had in Sir Thomas Roes owne Observations) I have inserted a few, following this Letter.

From Agra, the Capitall Citie of the Dominion of the Great Mogoll in the Easterne India, the last of October 16 16.

MOf deare and wel-beloued Mother, though I have Superscribed my Letter from Assurer, the Court of the greatest Monarch of the Enti-called the Great Mogoll in the Enterne India, which I did to this end, that those that have the charge of conneyance thereof, perceiving such a title, may bee the more carefull and deligent to conney it safe to your hands : yet in trush the place from which I wrote this Letter, & Agra, a Cate in the faid Eusterne In lia, which is the Metropolitan of the whole Dominion of the fore-faid King Mogoll, and ten dayes iourney from his Court at the faid Atmere. From the fame Almere I departed the twelfih day of September An. 1616 after my abode there twelve moneths and fixtie dives; which though I confesse u were a too long time to remaine in one and the selfe-same place, yet for two princip ill causes it was very requisite for me to remaine there some reasonable time: first, to learne the Languages of those Countries, through which I am to passe betweet the bounds of the Territories of this Freee and britte niome, nanely these three, the Perian, Turkish , and Arab : which I have in 60 the comprient mensure attained unto by my labour and industry at the faid Kings Court, matters as 4und alterous me as money wmy Purfe, as being the chiefest, or rather only meane to get me miney, if I Hard apport to be deflittee, a matter very me dentall to a poore Foot-man Pilorim, at my felfe, in thefe and and alone tan Com tries, thorow which I travell. Secondly, that by the helpe of one of those and west, I near eith Perian, I might both precure unions selfe accesse unio the King and be able to express my mand winto him about the matter for the which I sound have except on ta discons similar binner. These were the reasons that mound me so long to tarry at the Mogols Court, during which sime, I about in the house of the English Merchants, my dawn Countrimen, ms sending one stitle sieve of money either for dies, mathing lodging, or any other himse. And as for the Persian tongue, which I subject dury carries, the still made on Oration routes the King before many of but Nobles, in that thenguage, and after I had ended the same, alsowed with his Marcitic as los in that tongue very readily and similarly; the Copy of which speech, though the tongue it self-either than the superior of the su

The Copie of an Oration that I made in the Persian tongue to the Great Mogol, before divers of his Nobles.

HAzaret Aallum pennah falamet, fooker Daruces ve tehaungelhta haslam kemia emadam az wellagets door, ganne az mulk Inglizan : kekessanion petheen mushacas cardand ke wella lagets, mazcoor der akers magrub bood, ke mader hamma nezzaerts dunmaft. Sabebbe amadane mari mia hoofti char cheez aff auval be dedane mobarreckdeedars. Hazaret ke feete caramas ha 20 hamma Trankestan reeseedast ooba tamam mulk Musulmanan der sheenedan awsaffe. Hazaret daueeda amadam be deedane aftawne akdas mulharaf gelhtam duum bray deedane feelbay Hazaret, kin chunm ianooar der heech mulk ne dedam feu in bray deedane namwer daryaee shumma Gauga, ke Serdare hamma daryaha dumieft. Chaharum een aft, keyee fermawne alifhaion amayet fermoyand, ke betwanam der wellayetts Vzbeck raftan ba shahre San arcand, bray Zeerat cardan cabbre mobarreche Saheb crawnicah awfaffe tang oo mofachere oo der tamam aallum meshoor ast belk der wellagette Vz bec eencader meshoor neest chunan che der mulc Inglisan ast digr, bishare eshteeac daram be deedanc mobarrec mesareSaheb crawnca bray een sabeb, che awne faman che focheer de shabr Stambol boodam, ye aiaeb cohua amarat deedam dermean yecush bawg nasdec shaht mascoor coia che padshaw Eezawiawn che namesh Manuel bood che Saheb 30 crawnca cush mehmannec aseem carda bood, baad as gristane Sulten Batasetra as iange aseem che shuda bood nas dec shahre Bursa, coima che Saheb crawn Sultan Baiasetra de Zenicera tellaio befland, oo der cafes nahadond een char chees meera as mulche man ium baneed ta mia, as mulc. Room oo Arrac peeada geshta, as door der een mulc reseedam, che char hasar pharsang raw darad, beshare derd oo mohuet casheedam che heech ches der een dunnia een cader mohuet ne casheedast bray deedune mobarrec delare Haseretet awn roos che be tactte shaugh ne shaughee musha-

The English of it is this.

* This is the ordinarie title that is given him by all ftrangers.

Ord * Protector of the World, all haile to you: I am a poore Traueller and World-feer, which am 40 L come hither from a farre countrie, namely England, which ancient Historians thought to have beene situated in the farthest bounds of the West , and which is the Queene of all the Hands in the World. The cause of my comming bother is for source espects. First , to see the blessed face of your Maiestie , whose wonderfull fame hash resounded oner all Europe, and the Mahometan Countries. When I heard of the fame of your Maiestie, I hastened bither with speed, and trauelled very cheerfully to see your glorious Court. Secondly, to fee your Maiestics Elephants, which kind of beasts I have not seene in any other Countrey. Thirdly, to fee your famous River Ganges, which is the Captayne of all the Rivers of the World. The fourth is this to entreate your Maiestie that you would vouch afe to grant me your gracious Palle, that I may travell into the Country of Tartaria to the Citie of Samarcand, to vife the bliffed Se- 50 pulchre of the Lord of the Corners (this is a title that is given to Tamberlaine in this Countrie, in that Perlian language : and whereas they call him the Lord of the Corners, by that they meane, that he was Lord of the corners of the World, that is, the highest and supreme Monarch of the Vniuerse: ) whose fame, by reason of his Warres and Victories, is published oner the whole World: perhaps hee is not altogether fo famous in his owne countrey of Tartaria, as in England. Moreover, I have a great defire to fee the bleffed Tombe of the Lord of the Corners for this caufe ; for that when I was at Confibratino. ple, I saw a notable old building in a pleasant Garden neare the said Cuie, where the Civiltian Emperor that was called Emanuel, made a sumptuous great Banquet to the Lord of the Corners, after he lad taken Sultan Bajazet, in a great battell that was fought neere the Citie of Brulia, where the Lord of the Corners bound Sultan Bajazet in fetters of gold, and put him in a Cage of yron. Thefe foure causes mo- 60 ned me to come out of my native Countrey thus farre, baning travelled afoote thorow Turkie and Perlia, (o farre have I traced the World into this Country, that my Pilgrimage hath accomplified three thou fand miles, wherein I have sustained much labour and toyle, the like whereof no mortall man in this World did ener performe, to see the blessed face of your Maiestie, since the first day that you were managemented in your glorious Monarchall Throne.

After I had ended my Speech, I had some short discourse with him in the Persian Tongue, who among st other things told me, that concerning my travell to the Citie of Samarcand, he was not able to doe me any good, because there was no great amity between the Tartarian Princes and himselfe, so that his commendatory Letters would doe me no good. Also be added, that the Tartars did so deadly hate all Christians, that they would certainly kill them when they came into their Country. So that he earnestly diswaded me from the sourney, if I loued my life and well fare; at last, he concluded his discourse with me, by a summe of money, that he threw downe from a window, thorow which he looked out, into a speet tied up by the foure corners, and hanging very neere the ground, an hundred pieces of filner, each worth two shillings sterling, 10 which counternailed ten pounds of our English Money : this businesse I carried so secretly by the helpe of my Perian, that neither our English Ambaffadour, nor any other of my Countrimen ( fauing one freciall, primate, and intrinsicall friend) had the least inchling of it, till I had throughly accomplished my designe : for I well knew that our Ambassador would have stopped and barracadoed all my proceeding therein, if he might have had any notice thereof, as indeed hee signified unto me, after I had effected my prorect, alleag ng this, for footh, for his reason, why hee would have hindred me, because it would redound somewhat to the dishonour of our Nation, that one of our Courrey (hould present himse fe in that beggerly and poore fashion to the King, out of an insumating humour, to crave Money of him: But I answered, our Ambassadour in that stout and resolute manner, after I had ended my businesse, that he was contented to cease nibling at me, neuer had I more need of Money in all my life, then at that time : for in truth I had but twentie shillings sterling left in my Purse, by reason of a mischance I had in one of the Turkes 20 Cities called Emert, in the Countrey of Mesopotamia, where a Miscreant Turke stripped me of almost all my Monies, according as I wrote vnto you in a very large Letter the last yeare, which I fent from the Court of this mightie Motarch, by one of my Countrimen that went home by Sea in an English ship, Liden with the Commodities of this India, which Letter, I hope , came to your hands long fince. After I had beene with the King, I went to a certaine Noble and Generous Christian of the Armenian Race, two dayes iourney from the Mogolls Court, to the end to observe certaine remarkeable matters in the same place, to whom, by meanes of my Perlian Tongue, I was so welcome, that he entertayned me with very ciwill and courteous complement; and at my departure gave mes very bountifully twenty pieces of such kind of Money as the King had done before, counternailing fortie shillings sterling. About tenne dayes after that, I departed from Almere, the Court of the Mogoll Prince, to the end to begin my Pilgrimage, after 30 my long rest of fourteene Moneths, backe againe into Persa, at what time our Ambassadour gaue mee a my long rest of justicese Adouctio, back, againe mis yetti, at what time on Amerijaaans gaine mee a piece of Golds the Kingt Copy worth four and prentiss fallings, which will faue (if it bee puffille) sill my arrival in England: so that I have received for bornelences, since I came into this Country; revents markes strong, sawing two shillings eight peuce, and by the way, your the consines of Pettia, a title before I came into this Country, three and thirth sillings four peace in Pettia, a Mong, of my Ladde Shirtley sat this present lower in the Country. pounds sterling, which according to my manner of living upon the way, at two pence sterling a day, (for with that proportion I can line pretty well, such is the cheapnesse of all eatable things in Alia, drinkable things costing nothing, for seldome doe I drinke in my Pilgrimage any other liquest then pure water) will maintaine me very competently three yeeres in my trauell, with meate, drinke and cloathes. In this Citia 40 of Agra, where I am now, I am to remaine about fixe weekes longer, to the end to expect an excellent opportunity, which then will offer it felfe unto me, to go to the famous River Ganges, about five dayes tourney from this, to see a memorable meeting of the gentle people of this Country, called Banians, whereof about four ehundred thousand people go thither of purpose to bathe and shaue themselues in the River, and to facrifice a world of Gold to the same River, partly in stamped Money, and partly in massie great tumpes and wedges, throwing it into the Riner as a Sacrifice, and doing other strange Ceremonies most worth, the observation. Such a notable spectacle it is, that no part of all Mia, neither this which is called the great Asia, nor the lesser, which is now called Natolia, the like is to be seene; this shew doe they make once energy yeare, comming thither from places almost a thousand miles off, and bonour their Riner as their God, Creator and Sauiour; Superstition and Impietie most abominable in the highest degree of these brutish 30 Ethnicks, that are aliens from Christ and the Common-wealth of Itrael. After I have feenc this flow, I will with all expedition repaire to the Citie of Lehor, twentie dayes iourney from this, and so into Perlia, by the helpe of my bleffed Christ, &c.

Your dutifull, louing and obedient Sonne, now a defolate Pilgrime in the World,

THOMAS CORTATE

Dddd

Certaine

Certaine Observations written by THOMAS CORYAT.

Iefuirica'l Ma-

WHereas the Beggers hegge in this Countrey of a Christian in the name of Bibee Maria, and not of Hazanet Eefa, thereby we may gather that the Iesuits have preached Mary more then lefus.

Notable example of A-

A great Rain a Gentile, a notorious Atheift, and contemner of all Deitie, glorying to professe he knew no other God then the King, nor beleeuing nor fearing none : fitting dallying with his women, one of them plucked a haire from his breft, which being fast rooted, plucked off alittle of the skinne, that bloud appeared; this small skarre festered and gangrened incurably, so that IO in few dayes he despaired of life, and beeing accompanied with all his friends and divers Courtiers, he brake out into these excellent words : Which of you would not have thought that Ibeing a man of Warre, should have dyed by the stroke of a Sword, Speare or Bow ! but now I am inforced to confesse the power of that great God, whom I have so long despised, that hee needs no other Lance then a little haire to kill so blasphemous a wretch, and contemner of his Maieflie, as I have beene.

Echar Shaugh had learned all kind of Sorcery, who beeing once in a ftrange humour to flew a spectacle to his Nobles, brought forthhis chiefest Queene, with a Sword cut off her head, and after the same perceiuing the heaumesse and forrow of them, for the death of her (as they thought) cauted the head, by vertue of his Exorcismes and Conjunctions, to be set on againe, 20

no figne appearing of any stroke with his Sword.

Sultan Curfaros hath but one Wife, for which one principall reason is, that during his impriforment, the King intending to make a hunting Progrelle of foure moneths, confulted how to keepe him fafe in his absence; at last resolued to build a Towre, and immure him within it, without gate, doore or window, except some small holes to let in Ayre higher then he could come vnto; putting in all forts of prouision whatsoeuer, both fire, clothes, &c. with some feruants to abide with him for that time. While this was building, his Wife came and fell at the Kings feete, and neuer would let goe till thee had obtayned leaue to bee thut up with him: the King much perswading to enjoy her libertie; she vtterly refused any other comfort, then to be the companion of her Husbands miseries; amongst which this was the greatest, that if a- 30 ny of those that were immured, beeing in number fiftie, should have dyed in the Kings abience, there was no meanes to burie them, for that no man was admitted to come neere the Towne.

Right and Ri +s about finding a

The Fountaine found the first day by one of my Lords people, Master Herbert, brother to Sir Edward Herbert, which if he had not done, he must have lent ten Course every day for water, to a River called Narbode, that falleth into the Bay of Cambaya at Buroch; the custome being such, that what focuer Fountaine or Tanke is found by any great man in time of drought hee shall keepe it proper and petuliar to himfelfe, without the interruption of any man whatfoeuer. The day after one of the Kings Haddys finding the same, and striuing for it, was taken by my Lords people, and bound all, &c. a great controuerfie being about it, &c.

Charitie of

Remember the Charitie of two great men, that in the time of this great drought, were at the charge of fending ten Camels with twentie persons every day to the said River for water, and did distribute the water to the poore, which was so deare, that they fold a little skinne for,

Echar Shaugh, a very fortunate Prince and pious to his Mother : his pietie appearing in this particular, that when his Mother was carried once in a Palankeen betwint Labor and Agra, he trauelling with her, tooke the Palankeen vpon his owne shoulders, commanding his greatest Nobles to doe the like, and so carried her over the River from one fide to the other, and never denyed her any thing, but this, that flee demanded of him, that our Bible might be hanged about an Affes necke, and beaten about the Towne of Agra, for that the Portneals having taken 50 a thip of theirs at Sea, in which was found the Alcorar among the Moores, tyed it about the necke of a Dogge, and beat the fame Dogge about the Towne of Ormuz: but hee denyed her request, saying, That if it were ill in the Portugals to doe so to the Aleonan, being it became not a King to requite ill with ill, for that the contempt of any Religion, was the contempt of God, and he would not be reuenged upon an innocent Booke : the moral! being , that God would not Profligate luft: the Mohal with some-what to fell, in manner of a Faire, where the King is Broker for his Women, and with his gaines that night makes his supper, no man present, (observe that what seeuer is brought in of virill shape, as instance in Reddishes, to great is the icalousie, and to fre- 60 quant the wickednesse of this people, that they are cut and tagged for feare of conserting the fame to fome vinaturall abule) by this meanes hee attaines to the ght of all the prettie Wenches of the Towne : at fuch a kind of Faire he got his beloued Normabal.

fuffer the facred Booke of his Truth to be contemned amongst the Inficels. One day in the yeare, for the folace of the Kings Women, all the Tradef-mens Wines enter

After Shaof Freed had wonne the Battle of Labor by a stratagem, the Captaines being taken by the King, and hanged vpon Fieth-hookes and Stakes, made an entrance for the King to La- Apophibegmes bor. his fonne Confaros being then taken Prifoner, and riding bare-footed vpon an Elephant; his Father demanded him how hee liked that Spectacle of his valiant and faithfull Captaines hanging in that manner, to the number of two thousand : hee answered him, that hee was forme to fee to much Crueltie and Iniustice in his Father, in executing them that had done nothing but their dutie; for that they lived upon his Bread and Salt: but hee should have done right if hee had fasted them, and punished him which was their Master, and the Authour of the 10 For more cleere declaration of this excellent vertue vphraiding the coldnesse of our Charitie, The Kings ex-

you shall understand a custome of this King , who sleeping in his Guste-can, often when hee a- ternal charity. wakes in the night, his great men (except those that watch) being retired, cals for certaine Hechadadded heere of the poore and old men, making them lit by him, with many questions and familiar speeches passing Rings respect the time, and at their departure cloathes them, and gives them bountifull Almes often, what to two fold focuer they demand, telling the money into their hands. For a close of this Discourse, I cannot forget that memorable Pietie, when at Afmere hee you have bewent afoot to the Tombe of the Prophet Hod. Mundon there buried, and kindling a fire with his T. Rec. ownehands, and his Normabal, under that immense and Heidelbergian-aquipollent Braffe-pot, and made Kitcherie for fine thousand poore, taking out the first Platter with his owne hands, and 10 feruing one; Normabal the second, and to his Ladies all the reit. Cracke mee this Nut, all the

Papa I Charitie vaunters.

CHAP. 17.

An Armenian defirous to turne Moore, procured a Noble-man to bring him to the King, The King likes whom the King asked why hee turned Moore, whether for preferment? hee answered, No. nor thaters of Some few Monethes after crauing some courtefie of the King, hee denyed it him, faying, Religion, That hee had done him the greatest fanour that could bee, to let him faue his foule, but for his bodie hee himfelfe should prouide as well as he could. The King likes not those that change their Religion, hee himselfe beeing of none but of his owne making, and therefore fuffers all Religions in his Kingdome. Which by this notable example I can make manifest : The King had a Seruant that was an Armenian , by name Scan-30 der; to whom vpon occasion of speech of Religion, the King asked if hee thought either hee or the Padres had converted one Moore to bee a true Christian, and that was to for conscience fake, and not for money : who answered with great confidence, That hee had one which was a perfect Christian, and for no worldly respect would bee other, whom the King caused preten ly to bee fent for ; and bidding his Master depart, demanded why kee was become a Christian, who rendred certaine feeble, implicite, Iesuiticall Reasons, and auowed that hee would never be other: whereupon the King practifed by faire speeches and large promises, to withdraw him to the folly of Mahomet, offering him Pensions, meanes, and command of Horse, telling him hee had now but foure Rupias a Moneth Wages, which was a poore Reward for quitting his, prapuced faith; but if hee would recant, hee would heape upon him 40 many Dignities : the Fellow answering, it was not for so small Wages hee became Christian, for hee had limbes, and could earne so much of any Mahometan, but that hee was a Christian in his heart, and would not alter it. This way not taking effect, the King turned to threatnings, and menacings of Tortures and Whippings; but the Profelyte manfully refoluing to fuffer any thing , answered , hee was readie to endure the Kings pleasure. Vpon this resolution, when all men expected prefent and feuere castigation, the King changed his tune, highly commending his constancie and honestie, bidding him goe and returne to his Master, and to ferue him faithfully and truely, giving him a Rupia a day Pension for his Interestie. About two Monethes after, the King having beene a hunting of wilde Hogges, a beaft edious to all Moores, and accustomed to distribute that fort of Venison among Christians and Razbootes, 50 fent for this Armenian, Matter of this converted Catechamen or Mahometan, to come and fetch part of his Quarrie. The Armenian not beeing at home, this his principall Servant came to know the Kings pleature, who commanded him to take up a Hogge for his Mafter, which no Moore will touch; which hee did, and being gone out of the Court-gate, was so hooted at by the Mahometans, that hee threw downehis Prefent in a Ditch, and went home, concealing from his Mafter what had paffed. About foure dayes after the Armenian comming to his watch, the King demanded of him whether the Hogge he fent him were good meat or ne; who replyed, hee neyther heard of, nor fee any Hogge : whereat the King remembring to whom this Hogge was deli ered, canted the fellow to be fent for, and examining the matter, had it confessed how he threw away the Hogge, and neuer carryed it home : the King preffing to know the rea-60 fon, the poore fellow answered how he was mocked for touching it, and it being a thing odious to the Moores, for sname he threw it away : at which he replyed, By Your law there is no difference of meats, and are you ashamed of your lawes for to flatter the Mahametans, doe you in outward things for take it now I fee, thou art neither good Christian, nor good Mihumetan, but a dif-

LIBILII.

I.

CHAP.I.

fembling knaue with both, while I found thee fincere, I gaue thee a pension, which now I take from thee, and for thy dissimulation doe command thee to haue a hundred stripes, which were prefently given him in stead of his money, and bade all men by his example take heed, this feeing hee gaue libertie to all Religions, that which they choose and profess, they may sticke vnto.

I had thought at first to have similared all these Indian Voyages in this fourth Booke: but perceiving it to grow into such greatmess, and withall such great alterations as the Trackyll Trade at Moba, and Especially the Persian at Lasgues, have caused in the English Trade.

rate at 1000A, and especially the esphan at 10,000A, and castle of the angulo Trade, with the contrary Attempts of the Portugals, and chiefly the Dutch, (before no good Friends, and there the world of Enemies) to the Energial India Trade, I blook for to.

the English-Indian Trade; I thought fit to make thereof a fifth Booke. Turkish rade,

NAVIGATIONS, VOY-

AGES, TRAFFIQVES, DISCO-

VERIES, OF THE ENGLISH NA-TION IN THE EASTERNE PARTS

OF THE WORLD:

Continuing the English-Indian Occurrents, and contayning the English Affaires with the Great SAMORINE, in the Persian and Arabian Gulses, and in other places of the Consinent, and Ilands of and beyond the Indies: the Portugall Attempts, and Dutch Disasters, divers Sea fights with both, and many other remarkable

THE FIFTH BOOKE.

CHAP. I.

Memorials takenous of the lowrnall of Rocer Hawes, touching the proceedings of the Fattory at Cranganor under the Great Samorine.

He Generall of this Fleet was Captaine William Keeling in the Dragon, Robert Boner Master: Captaine (Institute of Harris in the Peppercorne: Captaine Walter Payton * in the Expedition.

the Pepercorne: Captaine Walter Papen in the Expedition. 'You hauchis The fourth of March 1619, we chaled a Torseal Frigat, Journallisewhich rame into a crecke and chaped we: and we making our fore, way on towards Cape Comerne, there came a Tony aboord vs. with Melinegers from the Samorne to the Generall.

The next day the Gouernous franz Prefent, and entreated the Generall to go to Cranganor, which the day after we dad, and the cheek men fent from the Samorine: the Generall was defined to come afforate to pick each with him, but in the going, certaine Frigats came and anchored near the thears, and caufed him to goe abound the Exzedation. Some thots palled, burlittle hurt.

On the eight, the Generall went a hoare with Marter Barkley, Cape Merchant, and others, where they received kind viage, and concluded to fettle a Factory. The Articles agreed on, were these.

60 V Nderecon Cheete, the Great Samorine, & c. To I a M B S. by the Grace of God, King of Great
M Britaine, & c. Whereas your Servant and Subsect William Reel on Eljuire, avjued my Kingdome in the moneth of March, Auno 1614, with three English Jupp at the Part of Cranginor, in latitude ten degrees if seen eminates, and at my earnest follicitation came alfourte to see me: there was concluded by mesor my part, and by hum for the English Nation, as followeth.

Dalla

. 4

NA-

50

_____

fembling knaue with both, while I found thee fincere, I gaue thee a pension, which now I take from thee, and for thy diffinulation doe command thee to haue a hundred stripes, which were prefently given him in stead of his money, and bade all menby hus example task heed, their ening hee gaue libertie to all Religions, that which they choose and profess, they may sticke vato.

Thad thought at first to have finished all these Indian Voyages in this fourth Booke; but perceiving it to grow into such greatmester, and withall such great alectrations 2s the Indian Tradeat Mobis, and especially the Profism at Indian August, have caused in the English Tradea, with the contrary Attempts of the Promegalt, and chiefly the Dutch, (before no good Friends, and there the world of Enemies) to the English-Indian Trade; I thought fit to make thereof a fifth Booke.

20

30

Io

CHAP.I.

NA-

NAVIGATIONS, VOYAGES, TRAFFIQUES, DISCO

VERIES, OF THE ENGLISH NA-TION IN THE EASTERNE PARTS

OF THE WORLD:

Continuing the English-Indian Occurrents, and contayning the English Affaires with the Great Samoring to Rine, in the Persian and Arabian Gulfes, and in other places of the Consinent, and llands of and beyond the Indies: the Portugall Attempts, and Dutch Disasters, divers Sea fights with both, and many other remarkable RELATIONS.

THE FIFTH BOOKE.

CHAP. I.

Memorialls takenout of the lournall of Rooer Hawes, touching the proceedings of the Factory at Cranganor under the Great Samorine.

He Generallof this Fleer was Captaine William Keeling in the Dragon, Robert Boner Mailter: Captaine (Imitispher Harris in the Expedience: Captaine whalter Papers in the Expedience: You shalled Fright in the Expedience: You shall be which rance into a crecke and cleaped vs: and we making our force, way on towards Capt Comorne, there came a Tony abond vs with McEfingers from the Samonie to the Generall.

The next day the Gouernour fent a Prefere, and entreated the General to go to Cranganon, which the day after we dad, and the chefe men fent from the Samonies: the Generall was delired to come alhoare to fpeak with him, but in the going, certaine Frigats came and auchored neare the floare, and caufed him to goe aboord the Expedition. Some thots palled, but little hurt.

On the eight, the Generall went a'hoare with Matter Barkley, Cape Merchant, and others, where they rectined kind vlage, and concluded to fettle a Factory. The Articles agreed on, were thefe:

60 Whiercon Cheete, the Great Samorine, &c. T. I. a. u. u. by the Grace of God. King of Great Bittaine, &c. threats your Servant and Schoell William Recl. in Effuire, winedow my Kingdime is the month of CMarch, Auno 61s, with three English Jopan is the Port of Cranginot, in latitude tee degrees ifferent minutes, and at my carried follocitation came allower to fee me: there may conclude allow me for my and by min or the English Nation, as followed:

Dddd 3

...

March 41615. Craisaner Capromitted to the English.

As I have been ever an enemie to the Portugals, so doe I purpose to continue for ever : I doe hereby faithfully promise to be and continue a friend to the English, and my Successors after mee: to endeanous the taking in of the Fort of Cranganor, and to possesse English thereof, as their owne, with the Iland thereof, which is in length on the Sea-coast vine miles, and in breadth three.

Provided that I purpose to build therein a house for some of my owne people, to the number of one hun-

Carbin prominanted to be

I will also endeaucur, with the ayde of the English, hereafter to take in the Fort and Towne of Cofed, and coue- chin, belonging formerly to my Crowne and Kingdome, and then to deliver it into the possession of the English, as their owne proper lands and possessions: Provided that the charge of the surprize be equally English, as their owne proper sum and possible to the English Nation: and the benefit of the flooks thereof, borne, the one halfe by my felfe, the other by the English Nation: and the benefit of the flooks thereof, in what focuer qualitie, the one halfe to belong to me, the other halfe to the English Nation.

The Samorine to have no right, title or interest in the aforefaid Towne, Precincts, or appurtenances of

And the Samorine doth also covenant for himselfe, his Heires and Successors, that the whole Trade of the En lift, in what focuer commodities brought in, or carried out, shall pay, yeeld or allow no manner of custome, imposition, taxe, toll, or any other duty of whatsoener qualitie.

And to these Conenants, which the Sportneffe of time did not permit to amplifie: I the Samorine have religiously sworne by the great God I serve, to performe accordingly, and that not only for my selfe. but for my Successours after me : and in witnesse hereof , have laid my hand upon this writing.

And the faid Wilham Keeling doth promife to acquaint the Kings Maiestie with the premisses and 20 to endeausur his Maiesties undertaking thereof accordingly.

A Stocke was made, as the State prefent permitted, and three Factors appointed, George Woolmon chiefe, Peter Needham, one of the Generalls fernancs, fecond; my felfe (Roger Haues) third, Edward Peake, a Youth attendant, and to learne the language; and John Stamford a Gunner, to affift the Samorine, if need required in his warres. On the tenth, the thips departed, leaving vs in a shrambe at the waters side, with our goods and a Present for the Samorine, where wee continued till the thirteenth, at which time the lait of our goods were carryed to the Samorines Catile: whom thus possessed of our goods, we much suspected.

On the twentieth, hee would needs fee Mafter Woollmans Trunke, supposing weehad store of money (Needban had told him wee had fine hundred Ryalls of eight) and finding little aboue 30 fiftie Ryalls, he would needs borrow fifty, which wee could not deny him, and offered a pawne not worth halfe, which we refuted to take, hoping after this money lent : hee would permit vs to depart for Calient, but found delayes. He also vrged vs to give his brother a Pretent.

Stamferd 1

On the eight and twentieth, he came up into the Chamber where we were, and gaue Mafter Worlman two Gold-rings, and to every of the relt one; and the next day called vs to the fight of drunsentoole, his tumbling sports. The same night Stamford went out with his swerd in his hand, telling the Boy her would come againe prefently, and the next newes we heard of him, was that her was met with oy the King or Cockers Nairos, having loft himfelte (being drunke) they demanded whither he would go, he faid to the Samo iner, whither they undertooke to bring him, and hee knew not himielfe betrayed till he came at Coehin. This put vs in great feare, but the Samorine 40 gaue vs good words, faying, he had rather now find him a knaue, then when hee should haue put

In Aprill, we got liberty to depart with our goods for Calicut, where the two and twentieth we arrived, and were kindly entertained : but were faine to flay in the Custome-house, till wee might get a more contenient house, which was made ready for vs the fixe of May, with promife of a better after the Raines. Faine would we according to the Generall his order, have fent a mellenger with his and our Letters to Surat, to acquaint our Countrimen with our being heere: but the Gouernour would not content till wee had fold our goods, for their better en-

Perfidious

On the eighteenth, one was fent. Part of the goods were fold by the Gouernours procure- 50 ment, to the Merchants at Calicut, hone after on the fix and twentieth, and faire promifes of part of payment fhortly; but it is not the cuitome of bit or work in this country, to be as good as their word, being certaine only in diffembling. Mader 110 llmas was defired to go to Naffapre to make fale, but the Governour put him off with discressingts from time to time.

July 3. Na Tiperc.

The third of July, the moffenger fent for Smar returned with reports, that being well onward on his way, hee was fet upon, beaten, his money and Letters token from him a amongst which was a letter of Generall Keeling to the next Generall, which grieved vs, hapefting yet he was rebbed with his owne content, and of his honetry only. A Broker of Noff-pore cold Mofler Needbam that they were fold to the Portugalls; the Governour hearing or it, and hanging 60 downe his head, as guilty therein. We fold goods heere to Marchan's of Najimpere. The frients enth of August, Master Woollman dyed. Our promited money we could not get, and our Brokertold vs, that some one of the debters would goe to the Governour, and with a bribe procure reflice, the reft refusing till they paid all. On the foure and twentieth, the Samorines filter fent vs word, thee would both cause them to CHAP.I. Strange way to get debts: Nayros and Portugalls.

August 17.

pay, and lend vs any money we needed ; but we found her as the reft. The Queene Mother also made vs faire shewes. Divers likewise promised to convey letters to Surat for vs, but with words as divers from the event, and adverte to all truth.

Matter Needham thus wronged, further wronged himfelfeby indifferetion, threatning hee would be gone to the King of Cochin, in prefence of a Nayro appointed to attend vs. who difcovered the fame; and he added yet further, to put him in feare with making flew of violent reuenge, as he did also to a Scriuano (which is as a Justice with vs) taking him by the throate, and making as though he would have tiriken him with his fword, for detaining money he had receiued for vs. Our Broker also told him, it was not Merchant-like to go vo and downe the Towne 10 with a fword and buckler: his carriage and habite refembling those, which here we call Roaringboyes, rather then Merchants, notwithstanding, my admonition, which was requited with ill language to my felfe, and accompanyed with abuses of his owne solfe and the Companyes

The three and twentieth of September, a Holland thip, which had traded at Mecca, came to September 23; this Port, with purpose of felling a Factory, which were by the Gouernour appointed to go to Hollanders at the Ki. g, and promifed to carry vs a letter, but went without it. And heere dallying and delaying continued. Whereupon the fourth of Nouember, Mafter Needham went to the Samorine, > and returned the fine and twentieth, having had a Gold-chaine bestowed on him, a lewell and a Gold-ring to weare on his arme, with orders also from the King to effect our defignes. But the performance halted.

605

The twentieth of December, a Malabar Captaine had taken prize of the Portugals, and would December : haue traded with vs, but we could not get in our monies due long before. We heard also the same day of foure English thips at Surat, But the Governour and people continuing their wonted perfidioufneffe, the one more carefull of taking, the other of guing, bribes, then paying our debts : we yied a ftrange policie to got fome of them: for when wee came to demand them at their Strangepolihouses, if they would pay vs none, we would threaten not to depart till they paid vs. And we cir, frong fuhad heard it reported that their custome is, neither to eat nor wash, whiles we are in their houses. Perficion. By this meanes we fometimes got fiftie Fanos of one, one hundred of another; by no meanes would they endure vs to lie at their houses, except one, where we waited three daies and nights, 30 with three or four Nayros: they had for their watch of them, but we could get nothing. The Narro, whom the King had appointed to get in our debts, came to demand a gratuitie of vs, yet got in nothing yea, he would go to the debters houles, and take three or foure Fanos of each, and then depart without the money.

The ninth of Ianuary, Maller Needham going to demand a debt, a Nayro, as he faid, would Innuary 9. not fuffer him to palle, and being put by with his hand ftruke him; whereupon he gaue the Niy. A dangerous ro a dangerous wound in the head, which it was thought he would not recover; other Moores fraj. being hart in taking his part. And word was prefently brought to vs, to that vo our docres, left the Narros should affemble to doe vs some mitchiefe (feads or kindred-quarrely and murders being rife amongst them, without other law to right themselves.) Our Naro with his kindred ind 40 guard him home, to the number of thirty, with pikes, and fwords, and bucklers, in his defence, whom he could not but gratifie. Our house was guarded three or foure nights and dates, none of vs daring to go into the Towne for money or other businesse (which before we did very lafely) for a weeke : and then our Broker willed vs not to goe without a Nayro, for that they had fwome the death of one of vs, in revenge of him that was k lled.

The twentieth, the Portugall Armada of foure and thirty faile passed by from the South, Fight with the whereof fourteene ships, the rest Frigats: they put into the Harbour, where three Frigats by Polyagaand at anchor; a hot fight followed, but the Portugals went away with diffrace, having onely cut Napore one of the Frights halfes, which droue alhoare and broke in pieces, belonging to the Gou more, who was well lerued, keeping in the countrey, and keeping foure or fine great peeces, which were at his disposing, in the Towne, locked up, all face one: neither had they powder an i shoe 50 for about two thot. Before the fight was ended, fome four thousand Narros were come downe; divers were thine on both fides. Nine or ten Portugals were driven affinate, and two or three of the chiefe prefently hanged by the heeles two dayes, and then being taken downe, the night following were demoured by wilde beatls,

The eight and twentieth, a Pattemar told that the Gouernour was friend to vs only in fliew, withing the Portugalls in our roome; for we did no good in the Countrey, but brought wares which they were forced to buy, whereas they caufed good by trading,

The eight of February, we received Letters from Surat. The fourth of March, wee received Letters from the King, withing vs, if our thips came, to come with them to Panean, and for our moneyes not to trouble our felues, for he would pay vs, though he fold his Rungs.

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

Notes taken out of the Iournall of ALEXANDER CHILDE, from England to Surar, and thence to Iafques in Persia, and of the fight by the way with the Portugals, in which Generall I o s E P H was flaine.

He thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth of June 1616. after our arrivall at Solde. nia, we made merry one with another, glad of our meeting there with Captaine 10 Newport, homewards bound. We found heere good watering, but little refreshing elle, faue fresh-fish for our ficke men : the Blackes brought vs nothing. The first of August, we fell with the maine, the place called Boobam in fixteen degrees, fine and thirty minutes South latitude : variation thirteene degrees.

Fight with the Portugals Car-

August 1.

The fixt, we descried a faile, the Admirall of the Carricks that went this yeere from Lisbone. The Globe failing better then the reft of the Fleet, first came up to her, and the Carrick present. ly gaue her a whole broad fide, fhot divers shoots thorow the ship, and hurt a man or two, which cauled her to fall afterne, and fland in with the Generall and the reft of the Fleet, shewing vs of the Portugals discourtefie. When our Generall came vp with the Carrick, he fent his Shallon a. 20 boord her to know of the Captaine, why hee thot at his friend, and to entreate him to come aboord to make fatisfaction for the wrong done. But he fent the Boatfwaine aboord the Generall, who told him directly that he would not come aboord, nor give fatisfaction: who thereupon heuing fent his man aboord, began the fight, which continued an houre and halfe. But within Captaine Ber- leffe then an houre, an valuckie shot came from the Carrick, and slew our worthy Generall. Then did the Admirall prefently fall off, and put abroad a flagge of Councell, where comming abcord, wee found to our griefe his body mangled with a Culuerine shot, and himselfe suddenly departed. Captaine Pep-We kept company with the Carricke till fixe the next morning, and it proved under the Iwell fucceeds land Moyella, calme, that we were forced to anchor by meanes of a pretie firong current fet- 30 in place and ting to the South, and passed the whole day in making our ships ready for fight. I tooke out my long Boat and Pinnalle out of my shippe, and mounced the rest of my Ordnance, and kept the Carricke company all the next night. The eight, about seuen in the morning, our Generall, Captaine Pepwell, seeing hee could not

uers flame.

fetch her vp fo foone as he defired, called to me, whose ship went better, and gaue mee leaue to have the first onset. I came up and gave him three or foure broad-sides: and in the meane time the Generall came vp, and I gaue place; the Vice-Admirali also and the Globe one after another; and thus we fought all day. Betweene three and foure in the afternoone, his maine mast fell ouer-boord, and prefently his Foretop-mast followed : at fine we gauehim ouer within lesse then a league of the flicare, being a Lee-flioare, and a great fea. The Ilands name is Comora, very 40 fleepe to an hundred fathome, within leffe then a Cables length of the Rockes, and no ground : to we stood off and on all that night. The Generall was forely wounded on the face with splin-Captine Per- ters from a great that in his halfe decke, and Richard Homfell the Mailter, was hurt in his arme, wounded, die another had his head that away, and divers others were hurt: Hoft two men. The Generall in the evening lent Maiter Connock, Cape Merchant, to the Captaine of the Carricke, that if hee would yeeld, he should have good quarter, and be fent to Goa in fafetie : his answere was, he neither would not could ; but if we could winne him with the fword, hee must be contented, and hoped to find honorable warres with vs, if wee tooke him. At twelve in the night free was aground betweene two rockes very steepe, and set on fire, whether accidentally or wittully wee cannot tell.

The Carricke fired, reade more hereof in Sir Thomas

The ninth, in the morning I fent Mafter Anthony Fugars, my mate, ashoare in my long Boat to fee if any men were failed, and to take in some of them, to know how shee came on fire: but the Carricke was fill burning, and not a Man of hers to bee feene. There were many Blacker of the Hand on the land against the Carrick, and they put out a flagge of truce for my men to come alloare, but there was no landing in that place, nor within three leagues to the East or West, the rockes being fleepe, and as high as our mayne Top-maft.

The tenth, we bare about the South-west part of the Iland, and anchored in two and twenty Refreshing at fathome water with one, and another I laid out in fourteene, against a Towne called Mattoma, the people promising Beeues and all that the Hand did afford; but we were frustrate of our hopes, September 14. till at lait with much adoc we bought nine Beenes, Some Goats, Hennes, Lemons, Plantans and 60 Coco-nuts : and I reriwade my felfe they are very treacherous,

The foure and twentieth of September, wee plyed up to Smalls Road, there anchored, and this fune 1623. brought the Merchants aboord the Generall, the principall Factours name was Thomas

The Voyage to Iasques.

He fifth of November, I went ouer the Barre of Smally, bound for lafques in Persia. The November se I tenth, the Hand of Din did beare North from vs three leagues distant. The elementh, latitude twentie degr. twelue min. I fent my long Boat and Pinnaffe, thinking to have fpoken with a Fisher-man, and they found him a man of warre, and seuen or eight in the Pinnasse werehart with their arrowes, the long Boat not able to fuccour them.

The two and twentieth, wee were in latitude foure and twenty degrees, ten minutes, varia- Goudel, to tion eighteene degrees from North to Welt. This day wee law the Land of Gondel North and East, nine or ten leagues distant. When you are within five leagues of the shoare, you shall see the Cliffes whitish, like the Forland in most places.

CHAP.2,

. The fine and twentieth, in foure and twentie degrees, fenen and forty minutes, we were off a ragged mouldy Land, called by the Portugals Sete Setheages, by vs the feuen Cities, shewing like leven Caliles, standing a league from each other, the highest like a walled City, and lyeth West North-west from Cape Gondel fixe and twentie leagues, you may see it four seene or hfteene leagues off, like Hands, and may runne within a league of the shoare, in ten or twentie fathome, within a mile foft Ozie ground without danger: Variation eighteene degrees, I found no Current out or in.

On the feuen and twentieth, latititude fine and twenty degrees, two minutes: variation eighteene degrees, thirty minutes land, as before.

The first of December, we stood off with the Persian shoare, having been put over on the Coast December is of Arabia, with a North-west and North North-west wind, we had much raine divers dayes: and on the second at night, we anchored fine or fixe leagues to the West of Jasques, in two and twenty fathome Ozie ground.

The next I rode ftill, and fent the Pinnasse to see if they could speake with any people, but they could fee no mention of any. At three of the clocke I fet faile, and flood toward the Cape Cape of lafabout a league, and anchored in eleven fathome Ozie ground.

The fourth, I fent my chiefe Mate with the Frigat and Pinnaffe, to fee if hee could discover the Road of lafques; but before he came alloare, the Gouernour of the place, freing vs lye off and in with the thoare, fent a Fisher-boat to them, and they returned abourd with her. After fome conference, wee fent Malter Bell ashoare to the Gouernour, with his man and a Guzerat, to his Castle, a little mile from the waters side, with a Present, to found what welcome : I kept two of their men for a pawne.

The fift, I weighed and went two leagues neerer the shoare, and anchored within a league of it, in fine fathome at low water, tough Ozie ground, and a faire Bay. There runs no streame, but it flowes a fathome in the fpring, and three or foure foot otherwise : a South-east and by East Moone makes high water. The Eastermost low point hath a Paged or Mestite on it, and the Filher-towne did heare North-east, in latitude fine and twentie degrees, fine and thirtie mi-40 nutes, and longitude from the Cape of Dist ten degrees, fortie minutes West, and the Variation nineteene degrees, twen y minutes, from North to West, M. Bell returned with two of the Governours Souldiers, commending his entertaynment, and promited welcome to vs.

The eight, M. Conock our Cape Merchant went ashoare, with M. Barker, and two other Factors, and returned at night with like newes.

The feuenth, the Purfer bought vs toure Beeues and Goates, not fat at that time of the yeere, but fuch as gaue vs content.

The tenth, our Merchants went ashoure with their baggage, for their journey to Mogustan, Mogustan and on the twelfth tooke their way thicher.

The thirteenth, I fent the Boat and Pinnasse to fetch water the country-people that brought it downe, had after foure shellings English-money the tunne : it was raine-water (for they have noother) it raines but little in December, but in Ianuary it will raine fixe or feuen dayes toge- Raineferfe, ther, that it fils all their Ciffernes and places of prouision for the whole yeere following. I take it not wholesome being full of small wormes, that we were faine to straine our beuerage,

The fixteenth, I fent my Mate about Ballaft, wherein they found them vnreasonable. I sent the Pinnaffe to the Eastermost low point, for stones for Ballatt. It is the worthird place for his Fish & Ballatt. in all the Indies. They laded eighteene or twentie tunne of Ball

On the nineteenth, we received a Letter from M.C. Mogustan, of their peaceable trauell.

The first of Ianuary I received a Letter fi vs glad. On the fifth, M. Connock would his within feuen leagues ouer against Ormus, w yeere. The next day they talked of Piloring chants reported that they hoped it would in India. The Pilot confessed it was dans ridge, be is now

CHAP. II.

Notes taken out of the Iournall of ALEXANDER CHILDE, from England to Surat, and thence to Iasques in Persia, and of the fight by the may with the Portugals, in which General I o s E PH was flaine.

Iune 12:14.15.

He thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth of June 1616. after our arrivall at Soldania, we made merry one with another, glad of our meeting there with Captaine 10 Newport, homewards bound. We found heere good watering, but little refreshing elle, faue fresh-fish for our licke men : the Blackes brought vs nothing.

departed.

The first of August, we fell with the maine, the place called Boobam in fixteen degrees, fine and thirty minutes South latitude : variation thirteene degrees. The fixt, we descried a faile, the Admirall of the Carricks that went this yeere from Lisbone.

Fight with the

Paringals Car- The Globe failing better then the reft of the Fleet, first came up to her, and the Carrick presently gaue her a whole broad fide, fhot divers shoots thorow the ship, and hurt a man or two, which caused her to fall afterne, and stand in with the Generall and the rest of the Fleet, shewing vs of the Portugals discourtesie. When our Generall came vp with the Carrick, he fent his Shallop a- 20 boord her to know of the Captaine, why hee shot at his friend, and to entreate him to come aboord to make fatisfaction for the wrong done. But he fent the Boatfwaine aboord the Generall. who told him directly that he would not come aboord, nor give fatisfaction: who thereupon hauing fent his man aboord, began the fight, which continued an houre and halfe. But within Captaine Bene leffe then an houre, an vuluckie shot came from the Carrick, and slew our worthy Generall. Then did the Admirall prefently fall off, and put abroad a flagge of Councell, where comming aboord, wee found to our griefe his body mangled with a Culturine shot, and himselfe suddenly

Captaine Pepwell fucceeds in place and

We kept company with the Carricke till fixe the next morning, and it proved voder the I land Moyella, calme, that we were forced to anchor by meanes of a pretie strong current set- 30 ting to the South, and passed the whole day in making our ships ready for fight. I tooke out my long Boat and Pinnaffe out of my shippe, and mounted the rest of my Ordnance, and kept the Carricke company all the next night. The eight, about feuen in the morning, our Generall, Captaine Pepwell, feeing hee could not the Generall came vp, and I gaue place; the Vice-Admirall also and the Globe one after another;

fetch her up to foone as he defired, called to me, whose ship went better, and gaue mee leaue to have the first onset. I came up and gaue him three or foure broad-fides : and in the meane time

Comera.

cannot tell.

and thus we fought all day. Betweene three and foure in the afternoone, his maine maft fell ouer-boord, and prefently his Foretop-mast followed : at five we gave him over within lesse then a league of the sheare, being a Lee-shoare, and a great sea. The Ilands name is Comora, very 40 fleepe to an hundred fathome, within leffe then a Cables length of the Rockes, and no ground: to we stood of and on all that night. The Generall was forely wounded on the face with splinters from a great thot in his halfe decke, and Richard Hounfell the Matter, was hurt in his arme, wounded, di- another had his head that away, and divers others were hart: Hoft two men. The Generall in the evening tent Maiter Connock, Cape Merchant, to the Captaine of the Carricke, that if hee would yeeld, he should have good quarter, and be sent to Goa in safetie : his answere was, he neither would nor could; but if we could winne him with the fword, hee must be contented, and hoped to find honorable warres with vs, if wee tooke him. At twelue in the night flee was 2ground betweene two rockes very steepe, and set on fire, whether accidentally or wilfully wee

The Carricke fired, rende more hereof in Sir Thomas

uers flame.

The ninth, in the morning I fent Master Anthony Fugars, my mate, ashoare in my long Boat to fee if any men were faned, and to take in some of them, to know how shee came on fire but the Carricke was still burning, and not a Man of hers to bee feene. There were many Blackes of the Hand on the land against the Carrick, and they put out a flagge of truce for my men to come afhoare, but there was no landing in that place, nor within three leagues to the East or West, the rockes being fleepe, and as high as our mayne Top-matt.

The tenth, we bare about the South-west part of the Iland, and anchored in two and twenty Refreshing at fathome water with one, and another I laid out in fourteene, against a Towne called Mattonia, the people promiting Beeues and all that the Hand did afford; but we were frustrate of our hopes, September 14. till at lait with much adoe we bought nine Beenes, some Goats, Hennes, Lemons, Plantans and 60 Coco-nuts; and I reriwade my felfe they are very treacherous.

The foure and twentieth of September, wee plyed up to Smally Road, there anchored, and this functions. brought the Merchants about the Generall, the principall Factours name was Thomas The Voyage to lasques.

"He fifth of November, I went over the Barre of Smally, bound for Infques in Persia. The November & I tenth, the liand of Diu did beare North from vs three leagues diffant. The eleuenth, latitude twentie degr. twelue min. I fent my long Boat and Pinnaffe, thinking to have spoken with a Fisher-man, and they found him a man of warre, and seuen or eight in the Pinnasse werehart with their arrowes, the long Boat not able to fuccour them.

The two and twentieth, wee were in latitude foure and twenty degrees, ten minutes, varia- Goudel. 10 tion eighteene degrees from North to West. This day wee saw the Land of Goudel North and East, nine or ten leagues distant. When you are within five leagues of the shoare, you shall see the

Cliffes whitish, like the Forland in most places.

CHAP.2.

. The fine and twentieth, in foure and twentie degrees, feuen and forty minutes, we were off a ragged mouldy Land, called by the Portugals Sete Sotheayes, by vs the feuen Cities, shewing like feuen Cattles, standing a league from each other, the highest like a walled City, and Iveth West North-west from Cape Gondel sixe and twentie leagues, you may see it fourseene or hfteene leagues off, like Hands, and may runne within a league of the shoare, in ten or twentie fathome, within a mile foft Ozie ground without danger: Variation eighteene degrees, I found no Current out or in.

On the feuen and twentieth, latititude fine and twenty degrees, two minutes a variation eighteene degrees, thirty minutes land, as before.

The first of December, we stood off with the Persian shoare, having been put over on the Coast December is of Arabia, with a North-weit and North North-weit wind, we had much raine divers dayes: and on the fecond at night, we anchored fine or fixe leagues to the West of Jafques, in two and twenty fathome Ozie ground.

The next I rade still, and sent the Pinnasse to see if they could speake with any people, but they could fee no mention of any. At three of the clocke I fet faile, and flood toward the Cape about a league, and anchored in eleuen fathome Ozie ground.

The fourth, I fent my chiefe Mate with the Frigat and Pinnasse, to fee if hee could discouer the Road of lafques; but before he came a hoare, the Gouernour of the place, feeing vs lye off and in with the thoare, fent a Fisher-boat to them, and they returned aboord with her. After fome conference, wee fent Malter Bell ashoare to the Gouernour, with his man and a Guzerat, to his Castle, a little mile from the waters side, with a Present, to found what welcome : I kept two of their men for a pawne.

The fift, I weighed and went two leagues neerer the shoare, and anchored within a league of it, in fine fathome at low water, tough Ozie ground, and a faire Bay. There runs no freame, but it flowes a fathome in the spring, and three or foure foot otherwise : a South-east and by East Moone makes high water. The Eastermost low point hath a Paged or Meskite on it, and the Fisher-towne did beare North-east, in latitude fine and twentie degrees, fine and thirtie mi-40 nutes, and longitude from the Cape of Dist ten degrees, fortie minutes West, and the Variation nineteene degrees, twen y minutes, from North to West, M. Bell returned with two of the Governours Souldiers, commending his entertaynment, and promited welcome to vs.

The eight, M. Conock our Cape Merchant went ashoare, with M. Barker , and two other Fa-Stors, and returned at night with like newes.

The fewenth, the Purfer bought vs toure Beeues and Goates, not fat at that time of the yeere, but fuch as gaue vs content.

The tenth, our Merchants went alhoure with their baggage, for their journey to Mogustan, Mogustan, and on the twelfth tooke their way thicher.

The thirteenth, I fent the Boat and Pinnaffe to fetch water; the country-people that brought to it downe, had after foure shillings English-money the tunne : it was raine-water (for they have no other) it raines but little in December, but in January it will raine fixe or feuen dayes toge- Raineforfe. ther, that it bls all their Cisternes and places of provision for the whole yeere following. I take it not wholesome being full of small wormes, that we were faine to straine our beuerage,

The fix: eenth, I fent my Mate about Ballait, wherein they found them vireafonable. I fent the Pinnaffe to the Eaftermoft low point, for ftones for Ballaft. It is the worthieft place for nin Fifth & Ballaft. in all the Indies. They laded eighteene or twentie tunne of Ballaft.

On the nineteenth, we received a Letter from M. Connock, halfe on-ward of his way to Mogustan, of their peaceable trauell.

The first of Ianuary I received a Letter from Infques, which came from our Merchants, & made Ianuary t. 60 vs glad. On the fifth, M. Connock would have had me gone with the thip to a place called Coffate coffate Within feuen leagues ouer against Ormus, whereto I was loath to yeeld, being out of featon of the yeere. The next day they talked of Piloting the thin to Sireck; but I was the Jame man. The Mer. Sireck. chants reported that they hoped it would be a good place of Traile, and in time, as good as any Prosan Trade in India. The Pilot confessed it was dangerous then to carry the ship to Sireck, it was so foule, ftormie, and a lee shoare, the fea high, anchorage vusure, and Maiter Connock feeing the storme we there abode, to extreme, altered his mind, and speeded to land the goods at lafques. The twentieth, I fet faile from the Road of lafques : and the eight of Februarie, at ten of the clocke, wee anchored in Swally Road.

d-em

CHAP.2.

CHAP. III.

A Letter of Mafter THOMAS SEVEWAY Merchant, touching the wrongs done at Banda to the English by the Hollanders (the former unkind disgusts and brabling quarrels breaking now out into a furious, vnexpetted, iniurious warre ) Written in a Letter to the Companie.

Laus Deo in Bantam, the twentieth of Nouember, 1617.

Honourable and right worshipfull, my humble dutie alwayes remembred, And may it please you to understand, &c.

The beginning of this Letter was torne, and therefore as that, forthis, a little imperfect; but what is here defeciue,hereafter niel Corthops relation with and Dutch infolencies, in him Mafter Hates and others, This I thought good to premife, as in time, to in in the enfuing Voyages men-

The King of Monafor, and all the Kings ther abouts mortall cne-Flemmines. Nouema, 7. two Hollanders land at Mocca-The King of Moccafor cui-

Landers.

attempred whom the

at Moccafor,

Dioceaforians.

HE nineteenth of Nouember, 1616. wee arrived at Moccafor, the Sman and the Defence, where we stayed to take in one hundred quoynes of Rice. In the time 20 of our being there, and the fourth of December, we discried off at sea, a great thip, and comming at an anchor five leagues off. The fift dicio, they fent their skiffe alhoare, making directly to the English house, having eight men in her, which, as foone as wee perceived, wee ran to the fea fide, and before we could come to them, two of their men were landed; to wee acquainted them with the danyou thell find ger they were runne into,; for that the King of Moccafor, and all the Kings there-about were their mortal enemies, in regard of the many abuses their people the Hollanders had done vnto Mafter Nathan them, and that lately the Hollanders had carried away a principall Sabander, and others of Moccafer perforce, and therefore would be reuenged; also acquainted them, that if the King were the continue not the more mercifull, they were all dead men: fo they would prefently haue gone into their 30 ation of these skiffe. But the Meccasors flocking about vs, layed hands on them; I presently, the Factor, and Bindan affairs, other English rode post vinto the King, acquainting him what had happened, wee having a Guard of English neere the Hollanders for our better discharge , that the King might not conceme amiffe of vs, and that we were not accellarie to any treacherie that they might pretend. The King gaue vs thankes, and willed vs to take ti efe two men which were come on land, into the English house, and to learne of them their intent in comming thither, which we did. They faid they were of the Fleet lately from Holland, having lost the rest of their consorts, and fell with the backide of Iana: The one called Iohn Stanch under-Merchant, as hee reported; The cause prece- other an English man a Sayler : who perceining the great danger they were in , delired vs most ding the fights carnettly, that wee would thand their friends, and get them free againe, bewayling their hard 40 happe; we promifed to doe our best for their good, and so to be gone. Presently comes the King of Moccafor, the King of Tallow, and divers others , to the number of two thousand men prefently leuced, and came by the fea fide upon the fands, and fate in countell upon these men: the King of Tallow would have had them all killed, but wee vied our best meanes for their freedome. At last command was given, they should into their boat and be gone, the King saying, they were too small a reuenge, he expecting a greater, so they departed into their ship. They had all beene prefently killed, if wee had not beene.

The next day, wee perceived another boat comming towards land from the same ship; the King having notice thereof by his people, prefently commanded twentie Prawes and Correcorries to be manned, and to goe forth, which was on an infrant effected, and made towards 50 the Hollanders boat, the Hollanders still rowing in for the shoare, and directly to the English house: the Prawes and the Correcorries still edging neere the boat, betweene the shoare and them. The Hollanders perceiving their intent, turned their boat, and made toward their ship eth two thou- againe, being foure leagues off, but it was too late, for the Moccafors in thort time had teche fand men. The Emilifi them vp, and boorded their boat on each fide, enered, and instantly killed enery man of the Hollanders, being in number fixteene, and brought away their boat : wee were that time comprocure the Hollanders, being in number invested, and brought away then body. We were that time com-This Holland-ship called the Indrought, imagining vs bound for the Moluccas, or Banda, stayed The Hollanders off at fea.

Wee fet fayle out of Moccafor Road the eighth of December, 1616. The faid Il. Mand-ship 60 to I nd againe feeing vs vnder fayle, they also weighed and kept vs companie : wee would gladly have gone from them, but could not, in regard of the Defence her bad fayling. They fent their hoat aboord of vs, defiring two quoynes of Rice , foure tunnes of water and hennes , all which wee spared flew them all, being fixteene. The Englift courteous to the Hollanders, going towards Banda.

them, paying onely fortie Rials of eight for two quoyues of Rice: the rest wee gaue vnto them. Wee demanded of them why they would attempt to come to land at Moccafor, they faid that their first boat was not then returned vnto their ship, so they thought their factorie had still beene there: but I verily beleeue, it was their obtlinate boldnesse, and prefuming that their first boat was denied onely upon the instigation of vs the English, wherefore they would make triall againe, purposing to have flattered the King, and to have come there againe, and to have fetled a Factorie, and so to have hindered the English: for it is a manifest token of such a proiect, both of their boats comming by our ships, and within Musket shot, yet would not come abourd to inquire what newes on thoure, as they went on thoureward, which if they had, wee 10 could have fore-warned them of that danger. So now their obstinacie and rash proceedings purchased them a just reward, &c. They kept vs companie vntill wee came neere Ambina, and so stood in for that place, wee standing our course. Now, since wee understand that they The Hollanders have reported, that weewere the occasion that their men were killed at Moccasor, which is slander vs. most false : for, I protest, wee vied our best meanes to free them, the first eight men had elle

The thirteenth of December , 1616. the Swan and Defence arrived in the Road of Pola- Surrender of roone. The fourteenth dielo, the people of the faid lland came aboord the ships with whom we For their tollihad conference about the furrendring of their Hand of Polaroone. Also our Nation had many citation of the times beene at their Iland to our great charges, and partly vpon their requests, to settle a Facto- English to this to rie, and to have friendly trade with them, in bringing them commodities, as Rice, Cloth, and o- trade, ice Milther prouisions for their Spices, and that we defired not to viurpe, and bring them in fubication, wards lournill, or bondage, as the Hollanders, and other Nations have formerly; and that we now came to Keeling, Mide fettle a factorie, if they would furrender their Hands of Polaroone, vnto our Kings Maiettie of distons, &c. England by writing: also by delivering earth, with a tree and fruits of the faid land, as true token of their fidelitie, and fo enery yeare a nut-tree in remembrance, and in fo doing, wee would furnish them with Rice, and Cloth, and other commodities, for prefent and also yeerly. And being fetled on the faid Hand of Polaroone , fufficient fupplies should come every veere in bester manner then now at prefent, and that we would to the vttermost of our powers, with our men and shippes, defend them against any their enemies, if they came to doe vs or them 20 wrong. Wee also demanded of them, whether they had made any contract with the Hollanders, and given them any furrender; they all replied, they had not, nor never would; but held. The men of them as mortall enemies, confessing and auerring vnto vs (both Polaroone men and divers of Polaroone and the principals, which once lived vpon Polamay and fled to Polaroone vpon the Hollanders com- P. laway process ming there, and getting it by force of Armes.) They doe all still auerre, and doe maintaine the that they not Iland of Polaway to belong vnto our Kings Maiestie of England, by a lawfull surrender vnto Ri- hid, nor would chard Hunt, before the Hollanders came into the Road, and caused the English Colours to be fet with the Holvp in the Cafile, which the Hollanders that downe feuerall times, and vied many disgracefull lander. words of his Maiestie. This the Bandaneses doe still confirme, and that they did defend it, as Folaway was long as possibly they could, to his Maiesties vie, vntill perforce they must leave the faid Hand, achieved our 40 and fo fled to Polaroone, Lantor, and Serran.

This Connell continued all the day, and fo concluded: the writings being drawne and confirmed by the principals of Polaroone and Polaroy, and fo delivered by their owne hands vito into their road, vs , viz. Nathaniel Corthop, Thomas Spurmay , and Sophonie Cozocke, to his Maietties vie. Also The Bendancthe same instant delivered vs a Nutmeg-tree with the fruits thereon in the Earth, with other fes d fire to fruits, and a liuing Goat : and further, defired to have the English Colours fer vp vpon the Hand, his Colours and to have Gunnes shot off. All which was presently effected, the Colours set vp, and sixe for vp. and thirtie peeces of Ordnance shot off: and so at night they parted in friendly manner, repay - Hellanders inring to the shoare.

The fine and twentieth of December being Christmas day, we discourred two great Holland with Franches thips edging neere Polarcone. They discouring our thips in the Road bore roome for Nero: and and Houdie the fix and twentieth another did the like. The eight and twentieth, another Holland Pinnafle Anciests. flanding right ouer for Polaroone, came brauing within shot of our Fort, haung the Flemmilh Colours on the peope, and prefently tacked about, and taking them downe, fets up in Leu thereof a bloudie Ancient, and flands ouer for Nero. By this we expected their comming daily, according to their old custome of injuring vs. On the thirtieth, we landed four Peeces of Ord. The English nance, belides two other on Christmas day, and went to worke to fortifie for our defence. And with the helpe of the Bandaneses we made two Forts , one called the Swan-Fort, the other the Defence-Fort, and mounted on each three Peeces. The Swans Fort is within Calmer that of the thips, commands the Road at pleafure to the Eatterne fide, where the principall Road is for the 60 Westerly Monson.

The third of Ian arie there came into the Road three Holland thips from Nero, the Horne, our thips as of eight hundred tunnes; the Starre, fine hundred; the Tangar, one hundred and fixtie : which Talmane. came to anchor close by our flips; the Horne by the Swan , the Starre by the Defence , the Tangar a head of all to cut off supplie from the shoare; all these ships fall of men, &c.

The Inglife to the Hollan ders that the Iland was En-vs out of the

The English

Christians

that cuer came into the Road

dep.h by Pola-

Now our commission directed vs that having received the Surrender, and settled at Polaroone, we should give notice vnto the Hollanders thereot by writing, that they should not come there to moleft vs, as formerly they were accustomed, pretending ignorance. A Letter to the same effect we had readie written, but could not tell how to concey it to them, not daring to fend English or Bandaneses for feare of detention. These ships therefore comming into the Read wee fent George Muschamp aboord their Admirall the Starre, and hee delivered the Letter to the Dedall, adulting them to depart the Road before fixe Glaffes were Commander, called run, for that the Handers would not have them flay in the Road, nor come neere them; and would have flot vnto them from the shore, had not we caused them to forbeare. Presently their Commander Dedall and their Predicant, came about the Sman to know the reason: wee told to them that their comming was to doe vs injurie, as formerly they had done at Polamay, Cambella, and other places; and how they had turned the Glaffe for Matter Ball, having him in their poffellion, and threatning to hang him presently if hee caused not the English to come from Land The Hollanders forthwith. Also we then she wed them the surrender of Polaroone, and our right and possession could make no there for his Maiestie of England, which we would hold and maintagne to our vtmoit power : and wished them to be well adulted what they did, and that they would be shortly called to an account for their difgracefull words and abuses done to the English: demanding also of them the Iland of Polaway, as in right due to his Maiestie by lawfull surrender: further, demanding of them if they had any furrender of the Hand of Polaroone. But they could not fay of any they had: and when wee shewed the furrender wee had vnto them, the Predicant having the same in his 20 hand abourd the Swan, perving it, faid with these words, This is a true Surrender, All this time the Glaffe running in the great Cabin before their faces, put them in mind of being gone. We also told them, that their comming was onely to betray vs, and to put vs from the Iland by their treacherie, which our Nation hath divers times had experience of : wherefore we neither could nor would truft them any more; and so put them in mind of being gone, for, the Glasse times run, they must expect shot from the shore : and if in case they did reply and did shoote vnto the Land, or shewed any discourtese or wrong vnto the people of Polarone, we would take it as done to vs, and would defend them being now become our Kings fabiects. They would have flayd untill the next day, but wee would not grant it, doubting that more of their Ships might have comne over. They then defired till mid-night, which wee granted if 20 wee might fee them about to way their Anchors : and that wee would fend vnto the shore and perswade the Bandaneses to forbeare. Also I demanded of Dedall the cause of their comming to moleft vs. who answered. It had beene tormerly a custome in passing by the Iland. I told him that was vntruth, for that the people of the Hand had reported vnto vs, that there was neuer any Christian ship in the Road till wee came, and that wee were the first. So hee was filent and would not mantayne his report. They came into the Road about three of the clocke in the afternoone, and departed thence about eleuen at night. Wee have beene fince informed that they came purposely to betray vs. and to have beaten vs out of the Road, or to have taken our ships; and had given the attempt, but that they perceived we were fortified on the Land. If they had The Hollanders then begun, wee doubted not but to have made our parties good with them. For wee had both came to beate Forts readie, and our Gunners readie to give fire vpon our watchword or figne from the ships.

The tenth of Januarie, a Holland Ship and Pinnaffe came forth from Nero: the Pinnaffe came edging neere the small lland or high fand adiopning to Polaroone, called Nylacka, belonging vinto Polaroone, and confequently to the English. There are no Inhabitants upon the faid Hand or fand, but it is full of Trees and Bushes, and Polaroone men refort thither daily to fish about the The Hallanders faid final! Hand. Now the faid Pinnaffe came neerer the faid Hand and did found the depth as fend a Pinnaffe fhee went, which we perceiving made foure fhot at her from the Defences Fort , not intending to firike her, but fhot wide, giving them notice to forbeare and be gone. The Pinnaffe at every shot replyed with a Base, or some such like peece, vnto the small Iland among it the Trees, where there were some English and some Bandaneses of Polaroone, which were in danger of their 50 thot. And feeing they braued vs in fisch manner, the Gunner was bid to doe his best, who then made a thot, which fell close ouer them at the Sterne of their Pinnasse or Frigat, which made them crie out and prefently get off. They were Hollanders, and seemed men which came to found the depth and where to land, purpoling to come with their forces, and there to fortific and fo to put vs from the great Hand.

Ianuarie the thirteenth, Mailer Dauey complayning he wanted water, and purposing to goe the Smanwould ouer for Wayre vpon Lautore fide and there to water, we acquainted the people of Polarsone heregoc out of the with, who would by no meanes confent hee should goe out of the Road : neither would wee, Road tofetch and the people of The would be that they doubting some injurie from the Hollanders. And the people of Polaroone told vs , that they would rather fetch them water over upon Lantore with their Prawes. I went prefently abound 60 and acquainted Matter Daney herewith, but He and the Companie would not yeeld hereunto, but ipake all in generall against it, and said, that the Bandaneses would bring them raine water. or fuch as might bee viholiome for his men to drinke : faying , it was but fixe creight dayes

The same time there came ouer vnto vs from Wayre, a free Towne vpon Lantore, also from the Ile of Rosinging (an Iland of it felfe) the Principalls of both those places, to have parly with vs. to furrender both the faid Wayre and Rosinging vnto his Maiestie, as the people of Polaroone had lately done. Now, the furrender of both those places being drawne, and all concluded vp- The Ile of Reon at Polarcone, they defired that fome English might goe ouer to receive the fame from all their finging and hands, and to fee all rights thereunto performed. Now, Mafter Daueys resolution being to goe Town of Warre ouer to water, we concluded that Master Sophonie Cozock, George Muschamp, Robert Fuller, and defire to fur-Thomas Hodges, should goe over for Wayre and Rosinging in the Sman, to perform the said bull- tches, and to neile, or fee it done, and the Sman there to water; after which dispatched, it was ordered that have some goe Matter Sophonie should return agains in the Sman, and the other three should remayne vpon the torake the Iland of Rollinging for polletion, till further order. All businesse being there ended according to der. our expectation, divers men of Wayre and Rosinging defired, to lade Nuts and Mace in the Swan, The Swan and and paffage for Polaroone, there to fell their Spices to vs for Rice and Cloth. All being granted, four Merchats they shipped twelue of themselues with Nuts and Mace, a great quantitie.

The Swan let faile and went for Genlegola, being but a little way from Wayre, as I vnder and take the fland, and there watered; after which they fet faile and eight leagues off land, a Holland ship the people of or two gaue them chafe; which they in the Swan perceiuing, asked the Mafter what he meant Rofinging and to doe, thinking that hee purposed to fight with them. Matter Daney answered; they see my warrence with Colours and I fee theirs, I know him to be a Hollander, they me to be an Englishman; I know no goods to the 20 hurt I have done them, and I fland for my Port of Polarone. And in floor time, the Holland flip Strate.

the Trarre, being come within floor, neuer haled the Swan, nor faid word of their intent, but let traces the wan, flie great shot and small in most violent manner; the Swan hauing received two or three great flaying fue thot thorow and thorow, before thee ever replyed, and fome of the men killed. The fight con-men wing tinued, as Master Dawy writes, one houre and halfe, wherein five men of the Sman were killed, cruell violece, viz. Sophonie Cozock, Merchant, beaten in pieces with a great shot; Robert Morten, quater- sulland inmafter and Drummer; Christoper Droope, Edward Murikin, and a Bandanese of Wayre, a passenger. Three others were mayned, hauing loft Legs and Armes, and almost all hope of life, if not dead alreadie: More, eight men wounded, most of their wounds deadly. And in this their crueltie, a villaine of the Starre standing upon the Poope with a drawne Sword, braued with 30 thefe words, English Villaines and Rogues, we will kill you all (thus he spake in Dutch.) It seemeth that the Swans men were much discouraged, seeing many of their men lye dead, wounded, lamenting; infomuch that none would stand by the failes to trimme the ship for their best aduantage : fo that the Holland ship lay still in her quarter powring in small shot and great, and so tooke her, bording her both Souldiers and others; brake vp Cabbins and pillaged them, and the Egregiam ve men also in most base manner, both of clothes and all things else, throwing over bord what they landent liked not. The Spaniard neuer vied more crueltie in their professed Warre. The Starre had in her one hundred and three score men, most Soulliers, taken from Nero and Polaway Catile : the Swan having not about thirtie able men to fight, the rest sicke and lame : and the men some what wearied out in toiletome labour at Polarcone, in landing the Ordnance and making two Forts. 40 Ten alfo of their companie were left in Polaroone to defend the Forts, two of which were Gunners , viz. Harman Hammon, and Iohn Day.

The Swan being taken they carried her presently under Nero Castle and all the men, shee her The surrender ing much battered and torne; they much glorying in their victorie, and shewing the Bandane- of Polaroone ing much battered and torne; they much grorying in their victorie, and niewing the bandwise for their exploit, in the great dilgrace of the English, what they could, faying, that the King of the Sings, lo England might not compare with their great King of Holland, and that ore Holland Ship would take we produced ten of the English ships, and that Saint George is now turned child, and that they care not for the King another verbsof Éngland.

The Swan being brought to Nero, they prefently fent our men on shore and keepe them all prisoners, many of them in yrons, neither Man nor Boy hauing libertie. The Swan let falle from which I have brought with Polarone the fixteenth of Ianuarie. 1616. wee even thin her returns in sinker that the brought with 50 Polaroone the fixteenth of Ianuarie, 1616. wee expecting her returne in eight or ten dayes at the Surrender furtheft; but never heard of her till the five and twentieth of Februarie by Robert Fuller, who or Refinging, being at Rosinging and Wayre, heard of an English ship under Nero Castle, and came ouer to Pola- and delinered roone to acquaint vs herewith.

Presently we dispected away Robert Hayes, Purser of the Defence, with some principal men tam, &c. of Polarcone, to land upon Lantore tide being our friends, fo to goe as neere as might bee to the Holland thips, and to make figure to them by a white Flagge of Truce. Our Meffenger staydal- A Meffenger most two houres. At last they came with their Boat to fetch him, but made him wade to the fent to know middle, and so carried him aboord one of the Holland thips. The Principall and Affiftents of why they took middle, and to carried him aboord one of the Holland hips. The Frincipal and American our flup, There were meeting him aboord, our Meffenger demanded, why they had taken the Sman, and what borifly fage of 60 was become of the men, the reason of detayning the Ship, men and goods. They answered, that him. Time should bring to light. Our Messenger still vrging to know, and therefore he was sent, they vied many difgracefull words of the English, and that they would come ouer to Polaroone with Their vaunts their forces, and drive vs from the lland and other places. Hayes replyed, they had alreadie done and the eats. more then they could answere : and returned, without fight of any man of the Swans companie.

The English to the Hollanders that the Ilandwas En-

Commander, called Dedall, admining them to depart the Road before tixe Glaffes were make knowne run, for that the llanders would not have them flay in the Road, nor come neere them; and would have that vnto them from the thore, had not we caused them to forbeare. Prefently their Commander Dedall and their Predicant, came aboord the Sman to know the reason: wee told 10 them that their comming was to doe vs injurie, as formerly they had done at Polaway, Cambella. and other places; and how they had turned the Glaffe for Malter Ball, having him in their poffellion, and threatning to hang him presently if hee caused not the English to come from Land The Hollanders forthwith. Also we then shewed them the surrender of Polaroone, and our right and possession could make no there for his Maiestie of England, which we would hold and maintagne to our vtmost power? and wished them to be well aduised what they did, and that they would be shorely called to an

Now our commission directed vs that having received the Surrender, and settled at Polargone.

we should give notice vnto the Hollanders thereof by writing, that they should not come there to modelt vs, as formerly they were accustomed, pretending ignorance. A Letter to the same effect we had readie written, but could not tell how to come yit to them, not daring to send

English or Bandaneses for feare of detention. These ships therefore comming into the Read wee

Tent George Mufchamp abound their Admirall the Starre, and hee delivered the Lecter to the account for their diffracefull words and abuses done to the English: demanding also of them the Iland of Polamay, as in right due to his Maiestie by lawfull surrender: further, demanding of them if they had any furrender of the lland of Polaroone. But they could not say of any they had; and when wee shewed the furrender wee had vnto them, the Predicant having the same in his 20 hand abourd the Swan, perving it, faid with thefe words, This is a true Surrender.

All this time the Glasse running in the great Cabin before their faces, put them in mind of being gone. We also told them, that their comming was onely to betray vs, and to put vs from the lland by their treacherie, which our Nation hath divers times had experience of : wherefore we neither could nor would truft them any more; and so put them in mind of being gone, for the Glasse times run , they must expect shot from the shore : and if in case they did reply and did shoote vnto the Land, or shewed any discourtese or wrong vnto the people of Polaroone, we would take it as done to vs, and would defend them being now become our Kings fabiects. They would have flayd untill the next day, but wee would not grant it, doubting that more of their Ships might have comne ouer. They then defired till mid-night, which wee granted if 30 wee might fee them about to way their Anchors : and that wee would fend vnto the shore and pers wade the Bandaneses to forbeare. Also I demanded of Dedall the cause of their comming to molest vs, who answered, It had beene tormerly a custome in passing by the Iland. I told him that was vntruth, for that the people of the Iland had reported vnto vs. that there was neuer any Christian ship in the Road till wee came, and that wee were the first. So hee was filent and would not mantayne his report. They came into the Road about three of the clocke in the afterthat oue came into the Road noone, and departed thence about eleven at night. Wee have beene fince informed that they came purposely to betray vs. and to have beaten vs out of the Road, or to have taken our ships; and had given the attempt, but that they perceived we were fortified on the Land. If they had

The tenth of Januarie, a Holland Ship and Pinnasse came forth from Nero: the Pinnasse came

The Hollanders then begun, wee doubted not but to have made our parties good with them. For wee had both 40

The Eneliffe

were the first came to beate Forts readie, and our Gunners readie to give fire vpon our watchword or figne from the ships. Road.

dep.h by Pola-

edging neere the small Iland or high sand adiopning to Polaroone, called Nylacka, belonging vinto Polaroone , and confequently to the English. There are no Inhabitants upon the faid Hand or fand, but it is full of Trees and Bushes, and Polaroone men refort thither daily to fish about the The Hallanders faid final! Hand. Now the faid Pinnasse came neerer the faid Hand and did found the depth as fend a Pinnaffe flee went, which we perceiving made foure flot at her from the Defences Fort, not intending to strike her, but shot wide, giving them notice to forbeare and be gone. The Pinnasse at every shot replyed with a Base, or some such like peece, vnto the small Iland among it the Trees, where there were some English and some Bandaneses of Polaroone, which were in danger of their 50 shot. And seeing they braued vs in such manner, the Gunner was bid to doe his best, who then made a thot, which fell close ouer them at the Sterne of their Pinnasse or Frigat, which made them crie out and prefently get off. They were Hollanders, and feemed men which came to found the depth and where to land, purpoting to come with their forces, and there to fortific and fo to put vs from the great Hand.

Ianuarie the thirteenth, Mafter Daney complayning he wanted water, and purposing to goe the Smenwould ouer for Wayre vpon Lautore fide and there to water, we acquainted the people of Tolarsone heregoe out of the with, who would by no meanes confent hee should goe out of the Road; neither would wee, Road to fetch Road; neither would wee, Road to fetch Road; neither would wee, and the words of the words of the same told we that they doubting some injurie from the Hollanders. And the people of Polaroone told vs, that they would rather fetch them water ouer vpon Lantore with their Prawes. I went presently abound 60 and acquainted Matter Daney herewith , but He and the Companie would not yeeld hereunto, but spake all in generall against it , and said, that the Bandaneses would bring them raine water, or fuch as might bee viholfome for his men to drinke : faying , it was but fixe or eight dayes

The same time there came ouer vnto vs from Wayre, a free Towne vpon Lantore, also from the Ile of Rosinging (an Hand of it selfe) the Principalls of both those places, to have parly with vs, to furrender both the faid Wayre and Rosinging vnto his Maiestie, as the people of Polaroone had lately done. Now, the furrender of both those places being drawne, and all concluded vp- The lle of Reon at Polarcone, they defired that some English might goe ouer to receive the same from all their finging and hands, and to fee all rights thereunto performed. Now, Mafter Daurys resolution being to goe Town of Wayre ouer to water, we concluded that Master Sophonie Cozock, George Muschamp, Robert Fuller, and defire to furouer to water, we concluded that Matter Sophimie Cozore, George reinjenium, Robert Inter, and render chemto neile, or fee it done, and the Swan there to water; after which dispatched, it was ordered that hauefome goa Mafter Sophonie should return againe in the Sman, and the other three should remayne upon the totake the Hand of Rossing for possession, till further order. All butinesse being there ended according to fame surrenour expectation, divers men of Wayre and Rosinging delired, to lade Nuts and Mace in the Swan, The Swan and and paffage for Polaroone, there to fell their Spices to vs for Rice and Cloth. All being granted, four Merchans they shipped twelue of themselues with Nuts and Mace, a great quantitie. The Swan let faile and went for Geolegola, being but a little way from Wayre, as I under- and take the

or two gaue them chase; which they in the Swan perceining, asked the Master what he meant Rooming and to doe, thinking that hee purposed to fight with them. Matter Daney answered; they see my warre goe with Colours and I fee theirs, I know him to be a Hollander, they me to be an Englishman; I know no goods to the 20 hurt I have done them, and I stand for my Port of Polaroone. And in short time, the Holland ship Swaa. hurt I have done them, and I stand for my Port of Polaroone. And in hort time, the Flourna hap The Stare the Starre, being come within shot, never haled the Swan, nor faid word of their intent, but let takes the Swan. flie great flot and small in most violent manner; the Swan having received two or three great flaving fue shot thorow and thorow, before shee ever replyed, and some of the men killed. The fight con-men tinued, as Master Daney writes, one houre and halfe, wherein fine men of the Sman were killed, cruell violecce viz. Sophonie Cozock, Merchant, beaten in pieces with a great flot; Robert Morten, quater, fulcation, master and Drummer; Christoper Droope, Edward Murikin, and a Bandanese of Wayre, a passenger. Three others were mayned, having loft Legs and Armes, and almost all hope of lite, if not dead alreadie: More, eight men wounded, most of their wounds deadly. And in this their crueltie, a villaine of the Starre standing upon the Poope with a drawne Sword, braued with to these words, English Villaines and Rognes, we will kill you all (thus he spake in Dutch.) It seemeth that the Swans men were much discouraged, seeing many of their men lye dead, wounded, lamenting; infomuch that none would stand by the failes to trimme the ship for their best aduantage : fo that the Holland ship lay still in her quarter powring in small shot and great, and so tooke her, bording her both Souldiers and others; brake vp Cabbins and pillaged them, and the Egregian vere men also in most base manner, both of clothes and all things else, throwing ouer bord what they landen liked not. The Spanard neuer vied more crueltie in their professed Warre. The Starre had in her one hundred and three fcore men, most Soulliers, taken from Nero and Polaway Catile : the Swan having not about thirtie able men to fight, the rest ficke and lame : and the men somewhat wearied out in toilesome labour at Polaroone, in landing the Ordnance and making two Forts. 40 Ten alfo of their companie were left in Polaroone to defend the Forts, two of which were Gunners, viz. Harman Hammon, and Iohn Day. The Swan being taken they carried her presently under Nero Castle and all the men, shee hes The surrender ing much battered and torne; they much glorying in their victorie, and shewing the Bandane- of Polaroone ing much battered and torne; they much grotying in their victorie, and mewing the balance of was taken in fer their exploit, in the great difference of the English, what they could, faying, that the King of the Smer, for Encland might not compare with their great King of Holland, and that one Helland Ship would take we produced of England. The Swan being brought to Nero, they presently sent our men on shore and keepe them all Polarone men, prisoners, many of them in yrons, neither Man nor Boy hauing libertie. The Swan let faile from brought with 30 Polaroone the fixteenth of Ianuarie, 1616. wee expecting her returne in eight or ten dayes at the Surrender furthest; but neuer heard of her till the fine and twentieth of Februarie by Robert Fuller, who or Refinging, being at Rosinging and Wayre, heard of an English thip under Nero Castle, and came ouer to Pola- and delinered roone to acquaint vs herewith. Presently we dispeeded away Robert Hayes, Purser of the Defence, with some principall men of Polaroone, to land upon Lantere lide being our friends, fo to goe as neere as might bee to the Holland thips, and to make figne to them by a white Flagge of Truce. Our Meffenger flavd al- A Meffenger most two houres. At last they came with their Boat to fetch him, but made him wade to the fent to know middle, and so carried him aboord one of the Holland thips. The Principall and Albitants of why they took Nero meeting him aboord, our Meflenger demanded, why they had taken the Swon, and What boriffin viage of 60 was become of the men, the reason of detayning the Ship, men and goods. They answered, that him.

Time should bring to light. Our Messenger still virging to know, and therefore he was sent, they vied many difgracefull words of the English , and that they would come over to Polaroone with Their vaunts their forces, and drine vs from the lland and other places. Hayes replyed, they had alreadie done and the east. more then they could answere : and returned, without fight of any man of the Swans companie.

A STATE OF THE STATE OF

The Swan let faile and went for Genegola, being out a lettle way from waye, as I vincilled. flurender, fland, and there watered; after which they fee faile and eight leagues off land, a Holland ship The people of ten of the English Ships, and that Saint George is now turned child, and that they care not for the King another cerbs-

The poore ship there lay rent and torne in view of the Countrey people. In short timeaster, they fent ouer vnto vs a Meffenger with a Letter, which we answered, as we did others after they ten out vino value and with a Flagge of Truce, all which faid Letters and Surrenders I brought with me to Bantam and delivered to Captayne Ball, Now we were fill threatned by their Letters, as also by word of mouth from their Messen ger, that as they had the Sman, so would they also come to fetch the Defence, and drive vs from the Hand. Wee fill answered, that wee expected their comming in regard they had so often threatned vs, and that we would defend it as long as life lasted. Many brauado's they made, daily shooting at Nero and Polaway, fortie, fiftie and fixtie pieces of Ordnance, thinking to affright ly inooting at very sind a summer, to the people of Lantone brought vs word that they were fitting their fines, 10 and shipping Planke and Earth, which wee imagined was for Land service, having then seuen Ships, foure Gallies and Frigats, and many men and that they pretended to come ouer to fish Hollanders pra- With vs. And that they had inftigated their Blacks (Which are Slaues) that if they could by a-Hadander pra- Ville ville and the service of the property of the perfence, they should be Free-men, as alto some other reward they should have. Also the Hollanders reported, that wee should carry no Spices from the Iland, or any the Ilands of Banda. Hereupon wee confidered, that having made a contract with the people of Polaroone, Wayre and Rofinging, and had trufted our goods vnwe foodld have to them: Alio a good quantitie of Nuts and Mace being readie to dispatch away, lying readie threaten that those Ilands.

Reports than the Hollenders

fortific Pola-

vpon Polaroone: The Hollanders threatning to come ouer and force vs from the faid Iland of Polargone, and to take the Defence: Hereupon we resolved, to maintayne the Honour of our King, 20 and good of the honourable Companie our employers; to land all the gunnes out of the Defence, and all prouisions elie, and to fortifie vpon the small Hand adioyning vnto Polaroone, there being no people on the small lland, but full of Trees and Bushes. And there the Hollanders purpoled to haue landed and to haue fortified, which had they performed they would have commanded the Road and done vs much injurie; for that the people allo of the Iland Polaroone, could not have fished as they were accustomed, neither could the English have come into the Road, but that they on the small Iland would have beaten them off. And to prevent all dangers, we landed all the Defences Ordnance (onely four great peeces, and some Bread and two Butts of Syder, also a Terce of wine) and were all fortifying vpon the faid small Hand, with the helpe of the Bandaneles. The Master of the Defence, Master Hynsler, being also on the small Hand, and all men else at worke , and landing things , fome men being left aboord the faid Defence to keepe the Ship, 2

Nine men wet conspiracy was plotted, and the same night the twentieth of March, 1616. either they let the away in the Defence vnto the Hollanders

Ship drive, or cut the Cables, and so drove off in the night, which we perceiving from the small

Hand, prefently fent a Boate after them; adming them to returne with the faid Ship; but those Villaines would not heare them, neither fuffer the Boate to come neere them, but bent their pee-Boatsonsmate ces against them, and discharged a Musket shot at them. They being not able to ouer-come them, forfooke the faid Ship and came backe vnto vs at the small Iland, acquainting vs what William Carter, had passed. The next day we percenned they run into Nero Road, underfaile, and under the Richard Taslor, command of Nero Castle; some of the men went presently, as we understand, on shoare, and 40 Educal Bridge, command or vero Carne; some or the most them of their exploit, and contending among to the Marris, meeting with the Hollanders, reported with them of their exploit, and contending among the marris of the state o will Rodered, themselves who should be the best Pilot in conducting the Ship thither; one reporting it was I; Hugh Woodlock and another, it was I: and as the Hollander's Meffenger reported vnto vs , afterwards comming ouer vnto vs, that they brought a kan of Wine ashoare and dranke vnto the Hollanders, as soone as they came on shoare. Presently the Hollanders tooke possession of the said Ship the Defence, and had all the Villaines into their Castle, and examined them of all our proceedings at Pola-The Hallanders roome; and they discourred all how we were fortified, and what passed amongst vs. These Vilincouraged by laines tooke the course to cut all our throats upon Polarcone; for the going away of the Ship the Villaines bred a realousse in the Bandaneses, that it was a pretended plot among it vs to royne with the that run away. Hollanders, and so to betray them. Also their discovering our weaknesse vpon Polaroone might 50 have encouraged the Hollanders to have attempted, that in which elfe they perchance would haue doubted of victorie. And indeed, many sharpe threats wee had after the running away of these fellowes, and expected daily their comming over; which had they come it would have cost many mans life. For their having taken the Swan, and killed our men, abusing them with imprisonment and fetters, and all the difgrace that might bee, hath much hardned the hearts of the Englah against them.

The three and twentieth of March , 1616. we dispeeded away a Letter vnto the Hollunders at Nero, by Robert Fuller, who being landed vpon Lantore, the people of Lantore being then in The people of parley with the Hollanders, about a Factorie, that the Hollanders defired upon Lantore, and also Limitere wilnor would build a Fort there, but the people of Lantere would not graunt it; This time our Mel- 60 accord with fenger could not passe, but defired to stay three or foure dayes with kind words from the Lautore

the liberators, commands to the property of the liberators of the Generall, being newly come to Noro from the Molucous, vnderstanding what had passed, delring to have parley with vs, and would have Mafter Corthop and my felte to come in a Praw, and Offers of parly two of his principall Merchants should doe the like, and so to meete each other halfe way be between the twixt Polaway and Polaroone, to parley. But we refused their demand, doubting the treacherie, gents and Fafor they might have men lye fecret, and fo carry vs away perforce.

Alfo the same time, and by the Hollanders Mellenger, we received a Letter from Master Da- roone. mer being prisoner at Nero. The effect, disliking of what we had done and still did maintayne, John Daug his in keeping the faid Iland of Polaroone, and that our commission could not warrant what we had indgement by done, and aduiting vs to have parley with the Generall, Laurence Ryall, and to come to fome a intermation to greement that no more blood might be feilt. All which he harh written, I conceiue, was by the initigation of the Hollanders, possessing him with many vntruths; as hereafter it plainly appeareth : the first and principall they had so wrought him in humouring him, and made him believe that they had our Kings Maiefties Letters to take any English ships, if they found them to the Eastward of the Selebes, which newes made vs much to maruaile: and that if any fuch things were, we must obey it. Hereupon we did write a Letter vnto Laurence Ryall Generall, by his Messenger , that if he would fend ouer vnto vs two of his principall Merchants, viz. Henrick de Watterfoord, and Peeter Younge, and to land them upon the small Iland; and having received them into our charge, Mafter Corthon and one more to attend upon him, would prefently goe over, fo their M. flenger departed; and two dayes after, viz. the third of Aprill, returned with this answere, The 20 two Merchants, before named, which we defired for pledges could not come : the one gone to Sea in the Horne, the other his buimeffe fuch, being principall Booke-keeper, could not be ipared. The faid Laurence Ryall propounding two others lately come ouer, and principall Merchants, called Cornelius Neep and Hans Rogers. Wee returned the faid Messenger, accepting them: And the fixt of Aprill their Galley came ouer vnto vs and brought these two men. Prefently received them into our charge, and a Tent being fet vp neere the place where they landed, there lodged them, because they should not come neere our Forts to take any view how we were fortified, and placed a Guard alwayes about the Tent, twelue English men with small thot, and that they might receive no wrong of the Bandanefes. Presently Master Corthop went Nath Corthoc into their Gall: y and went ouer to Nero, and arrived there neere night and was received; no vron pledge 30 words passed that night but referred untill next day : to the next day did discourse . many Op- soeth to parly words passed that night but referred with the tay 1.10 the next day and discourse 1 many Oppositions on both sides, which I leave to relate because of the Letter of Master Corthop, which I Lunders at Neral brought from Banda and delivered vnto Captayne Ball, will certifie your Worthips at large. Onely a little I will touch, Many threatning words they vied, and spake of many abutes they had received by the English. Imprimus, that Sir Henrie Middleton did weare the Hollands co- The Hollander. lours in the Red Sea, in the Trade, and gaue out they were Hollanders. Mafter Corthop replyed, accuse our that was an vntruth, for that hee came forth in the faid Ship, and continued in her as long as people of vnthee raigned, and neuer knew her to weare Hollands colours; and replyed, That Sir Henrie was a Gentleman that much formed to weare the Hollands colours. Also reported, That they had The Hollanders the King of Englands Letters to take any English to the Eastward of the Selebes. So Master report hat 40 Corthop viged them that he might fee the fame, and that if they could flew him that we would they have out obey it and begone, but they could flew no fuch Letter. Divers other things they alleaged, but for taking of no truth; and many periwalions to leave the lland of Polarcone, periwading him the great er- thips, &c ror we were run into in holding the same. All this while, Master Daney, neither any the En- allynamichs. glifb were permitted to come neere Mafter Corthop. The Generall , Laurence Ryall , feeing hee could not prevaile and to have his defire, grew much discontented, and threw his Hat on the ground, and pulled his Beard for anger : Master Corthop answering him, that hee could doe nothing of himtelfe, but was ioyned to a countaile being Affiftants, and would relate what had paffed when he came to Polaroone, and that we would confider of it, and so write our direct an-iwere. Thus I aduited him to fay, that he might get the more freely away : Alfo Mailer Corthop The Hollander 50 demanded the Defence, Men and Goods in their possession, but they would deliver neither denie to re-Ships nor Men except vpon composition. Thus being Laurence Ryalls demand, that we would fore our ships; permit him to come with his Ships and Gillies vito the small Hand adioving to Polarone, disions to renwhere our Castle is and twelue peeces of Ordnance, and there to land his Men and his Ord- der Polaronne, nance, and being posteried, would deliver vnto vs the Swan and Defence, and all our Men: and for the goods, he would make restitution to all to a penny. All this would not doe; then to conclude, Defired Malter Corthop to fet his hand vnto a Note which hee had drawne, The ef-

Now, they had so wrought with Master Danie, that they were perswaded that hee would 6c perswale somewhat: he was sent for by the Generall, and admitted into the roome with Maiter Corthop. So Master Corthop and he had much discourse, speaking of the Letter which they should have, and was pertivaded that it was true, and that we continued in a great errour. Then Matter Corehop acquainted him what had passed in discourse with Laurence Ryall, and what Laurence Lyan, proffer we had made him, if he would show vs the faid Letters : which Master Davie perceifused and would not put his hand hereunto.

fect, That the faid Laurence Ryall had made these proffers vnto vs; Master Corthop like wife re-

Ecec a

CHAP.3.

The men of the Swan did complaine of and clothing, the Hollanders hands, and them, and giuen lentence

uing to reasonable a proffer, which they could not according as they had verified vnto him, make good: Mafter Davie prefently in great furie railed against them all, saying, they had done him great injurie, in telling him and possessing him with io many fallhoods: and further faid that they promifed him and his men good quarter, but his men complained much of want of and clothing, which was promised in their imprise food, and clothing, and hard viage; and that they had fate in Indgement upon him and his companie, and had given them all condemnation, there to remaine vntill they heard out of Holtompante, and han grant term remaine, has we could keepe them from the Iland of Polarcone. &c. So Master Corthop tooke his leave and was brought ouer againe vnto vs, and being landed. that they had the in ludge. We prefently released their hostage, and so departed for Nero. Now the easterly Monsion bewe prefently released their notings, and to oppose the memory of the antisty and notion being come, we fitted a Bandon Praw to diffeed away from Banton, to give adults what had pair togother, to the pair to the pair of the Defines and adults what had pair to the pair of the Defines and adults when the pair of the pair of the Defines and adults when the pair of the fed. It was concluded, my felfe, Mt Hynfley Master of the Defence, and others, to the number of four English, and fourteene Bandaneses of Polaroone should goe. Wee had the greater number of men, doubting of the Hollanders laying wait for vs, whereby we might by rowing free A Praw fent toward Bantam our felues, and indeed the Principals of Polaroone defired it. These which wee brought, fine of from Polaram. them are principall men, one is the Sabandors sonne, the principall of the Hand his father is the other foure are Orencayas, and the rest their servants: These also came to deliver the Nutmeg tree and earth of the faid Hand, and to manifest their loues vnto the English. Wee set sayle from Polaroone the seuenteenth of Aprill, 1617. and as wee fell with Bottone.

A stolland thip standing our course for Moccafor, we discourred a great ship and pinnasse, they feeing vs. gaue vs chase baring a presse faile, so that wee had no way to escape them, onely wee must perforce 20 ftand in for Bottone, and did. Halfe a day they game vs chafe, and had fetcht vs vp had we not rowed hard, so we were neere the Towne of Bottone by night, thinking they would not have come fo farre into the river. Next morning wee perceived this ship and pinnasse, almost within Masket shot of vs, presently we landed most of what we had in our Praw, and carried it into the Woods, and went presently vnto the King, and gaue him a Present (such things as we had) to the value of thirtie Rials, defiring his protection, which he promised vs in all kind manner, and fent his feruants to put all our things in house, and put vs into two severall houses to lodge, Heather kinder and to keepe in, that we were not seene abroad; so wee tooke our leaue. Wee were no sooner to the English. gone but prefently comes the Hollanders, and gives a Prefent three times the value of what wee gaue, enquiring what we were that were landed: but the King replied, that he did not know. The King demanding them how long they meant to flay, they faid, fixe dayes: hereupon the King aduifed vs to flay fo long time, to fee if they will goe or not, that wee might goe with the more securitie. The fixe dayes being expired, they would stay fixe dayes longer to mend their Mast, as they reported. So, seeing their intent, and our Praw lying in view of their ship and Pinnasse, that we could not goe about to fit our Praw, but they would have taken notice thereof. Wherefore I bought a Praw, and the King commanded all our things to bee carried by his of the King of flaues into the fame, lying out of fight of the ship. And all things being fitted, fent his men out Bettone, got an- of the river, patting neere the Holland thip with the praw, and to carrie her about on the backfide of the Iland, and fent fiftie men with vs, and conneighed vs ouer land vnto the faid Praw, where we went prefently aboord, and kept under the Hand untill neere night, and so flood 40 our course for Moccasor, heard no more of them. Wee were enformed that the Hollanders kept watch enery night vpon the water neere our Bandan Praw at Bottone.

Wee arrived at Moccafor the fewenth of May, 1617. and there we found the Attendance pretended for Bands, but could not beat it vp, the Easterly Monson being come. So we shipped in the Attendance, an hundred and eightic fuckets of Mace which was bought at Moccafor, and fedt the Praw for Beniarmasin and Suckadinia for aduice, and that a supplie of goods was not yet come to furnish those parts, as was pretended, for that the Salomon was not arrived yet at Bantam, being long expected.

The third of Iune wee arrived with the Attendance at Bantam, understanding of the death of Captaine George Barkley. And Master Ball succeeding him Captaine of the house : vnto Banda, brought him I delivered all things, viz. two Surrenders, the Hollanders Letters, and other Copies of to Baston, and Letters to them written by vs, and all things else of our proceedings in Banda; all which, I doubt not, but your Worships shall receive by the first convayance.

Alfo, may it please your Worships to understand, the Messenger that came ouer first unto vs from the Hollanders, having beene with vs two fenerall times, with Letters from the Principals of the Hollanders at Banda; This Fellow called Christopher van Loare, as he reported, came ouer vnto vs in a Praw, and three Blackes with him, faying, that he was runne from the Hollanders upon discontent, the Captaine of Nere having abused him, and that he loved the English, and would ferue vs : also was exceeding earnest with vs, presently upon his comming ouer, and importuned vs extraordinarily, that we should got that night vpon the Iland of Polamay with 60 fiftie men, and he would warrant vs the Hand of Polaway, and would bring vs fo that we should take the Castle, discovering vnto vs his plots. I could not beleeve him, but told him, that hee was fent to betray vs; This fellow hereupon protested, and swore most deeply to the contrarie, and that the Hollanders would presently hang him, if ever they did take him. Wee told him, we would no leke it by force of Armes, for wee had no commission to todoe: not doubting The Ile of Pobut they would be made to deliuer the faid Hand, by right of Law and luftice: the English ha- laway taken uing the first pess ssion and surrender of the faid Hand, and were by force of Armes pat from it. from vs by Vpon his protestations, Master Corthop accepted of him, and gaue him libertie, and went with force of Armsi him whereforeer he went vpon the Hand, fo that he faw all our fortifications and occurrances of A counterfeit him wherefocuer he went vpon the fining, to that he take at our formations and factly at the first messenger or businesse (which much grieued me, for I counfailed him many times to lay him fast, at the first diffirmbiang place where he was received, which was vpon the Defence-fort, and told him often my opinion, run-away. that he was a villaine, and was fent to betray vs; also it was the opinion of the Bandaneses;) yet all would not periwade Maiter Corthop: to I thought good to have him with mee to Bantam, and that he might bee fent for England, for that hee knew of all wrongs the Hollanders have done vnto vs. And he hath faid vnto mee and others, that the three ships that were with vs at Polaroone, which before I noted, came purposely to fight with vs, and to have beaten vs from the Hand; and that the Horne had plancke, bricke, and lime, and other provision to fortifie vpon Polaroone, or the small Hand, but that wee were before hand. Also hee did manifest vnto vs of foure other great ships that were sent from Nero, which ships wee faw come forth, who were route over great maps that they were by the fitting currant put to leeward, and so forced for and piled for Polarosese: but they were by the fitting currant put to leeward, and so forced for The Hollasters Allio he told vs. that their condemned flaure were set to worke to fire the Defence substruction of the source of the told vs. that their condemned their sources were set to worke to fire the Defence substruction of the source of the s at Polaroone; and if they could performe it, they should have their libertie, and bee free-men. flau. s to fet All this he manifested and auerred to be true. Within three dayes after our arrivall at Mocca- fire vponite 20 fer, this Fellow published that the Swan was taken by one of their Pinnasses, and other dif. Single Defence.

gracefull words tending to the difgrace of the English: which as soone as I heard thereof, I prefently charged the Matter of the Attendance with him, and fo fent him aboord : hereupon hee vowed to have my life. Shortly after we set sayle for Bantam, and comming neere, put him in the Bilboes, and learched him and his Cheft for Letters which he might have of aduice, to conuay vnto the Hollanders, and found a draught, which (hee faid ) was of Polamay Cattle; alto a Letter pretended vnto the principall of the Hollanders, or English at Bantam: all which I deliuered vitto Captaine Ball. This fellow reported he was a director in the building of the Forts Captaine Ball. at Polaway, and that he had experience therein: and when hee came ouer to vs, brought two hundred Rials of eight. So at my arrivall at Bantam, I did acquaint Captaine Ball of bufineffes,

30 and adulfed that the fellow might be carefully looked to, and kept prifoner, that hee ranne not away, to doe vs hurt. He willed to have him brought ashoare; My selfe and others went and fetched him and delivered him prisoner in the house. Captayne Ball had some discourse with The counterfetched him and denuered him and printed in the had done, with many protestations suffered to confirm who it is likely gaue him good words, as formerly he had done, with many protestations suffered to confirm the had done in the had done of his loyaltie; and had his libertie in the house (neuer made fast with yrons, nor in any roome.) cape by the And many times I spake to Captayne Ball, to make him sure, and told him he would watch his toleration of time to run away: whose answere was, he should run if he would, little regarding it, it much G. Ball. greening me to harbour a Traytor in our bosomes. Hee having beene two moneths in the house, the fecond of August, 1617. got out, and ran into the Dutch house, whereas I had aduised to keep him fure, and tend him in the first ship for England, fo to have witnessed against the Hollanders, 40 as he must have acknowledged and spoken truth vpon oath; which would much have advantaged your Worships in the prosequation in Law, touching the mayne businesse. The foure and twentieth of August, 1617. departed from Bantam an Holland thip of acuice Hollanders sens directly for Holland: and two dayes after her departure, they reported here, that ten English ten English men were fent in the faid flip for Holland. What they are, we cannot learne, but imagine mentioned the mention are the mental ranne away in the Defence, the Hollander thinking to make them favoure them on Holland, and the Milland, and the Milla the men that ranne away in the Defence, the Hollanders thinking to make them fay any thing, by their infligation, which may make for them. And it may be, they will fay, that the Defence was left as a Wracke, which is not fo. The Mafter and Companie would have gone away for

Bantam, but we held it not good : for that the people of Polary vnderstanding thereof were discontented, and faid, that we had built a Fort for the Hollanders. The Master writing a note, that he would let faile that night, having no goods at all in the ship, Master Corthop was going aboord to perswade the Master and Companie to the contrarie: which the Polaroone men vnderstanding, called prefently a Councell, and shewed many reasons that it was not fitting the ship should goe away, and would not let Master Corthop goe aboord by any meanes, doubting of his going away. It was propounded, that I might goe abound to perfivade the Mafter, or to command him and the reft to flay; and to charge them, that if they went, if wee lost lives and goods, it should be laid to their charge. Long it was before the Bandaneses would permit mee, fo icalous were they; but at last, through o'r earned request granted it, and fent fixe men with me of Polaroone. I acquainted Master Hinsley the Master, and the Companie of the many inconveniences and dangers, both of lolle of go. Is and lives, and feandall to our Nation, and 60 that if we should have gone about to have lader spices, the Hollanders would prefently have had notice thereof, and laid wait to haue taken the thip, and brought all into their hands: nei- The Maziners nad notice thereof, and isid wait to naue taken no imp, and clought an into their hands. The work plat therhad wee men, munition, or violuall, to maintaine the Ilind of Polarone, nor the finall polarone with Iland Nelaro adioyning. All the ships companie would have gone away, being viruly and per-muchdifficule uerie, faying, they came not to be fouldiers, nor would they flay: fo that we were fame to give ric.

of death.

Hollandere brags that they can make way, and intreat them by faire meanes, like children, fo little in their refolution regard they way, and intreat them by faire meanes, the conduction of the most of polygon by what may entue, caring for nothing to they may get free. The people of Polygon, perceiting a difference amongst vs, did murmure, taxing vs with our promites before mentioned: and that if the Defence and men went away, wee could not relik the Hollanders our mortall enemies, whom wee expected daily. And if they came and had the victorie, were that should there remaine, must expect none other but rigour on both fides. The People of Polaroone would have name, must expect noneconer out and the Hollenders would have had no remorie, letting their flaues a worke to murther, wherein themselues would not have beene seene. And should they haue gayned either the great Iland, or the fmall (as they might and would haue done, had not the ship stayed ) we had lostall, goods, debts, credit of our Nation, without hope cuer to bee 10 the imprayed twe man nor an ground second the Defence to flay and land all things; and in the D fine to let her ride it out vntill further opportunities. But in the meane time, these villaines range away with the faid Defence, endangering all, and therefore worthie of death,

At my comming from Polaroone, it was concluded by vs, that another Praw should bee sent for Bantam for aduice, twentie dayes after our departure, doubting the Hollanders might haue purfued and taken vs (as they did their best) and so all our proceedings had beene obscure. Ac-170. fackles of cordingly a Praw was fent, and therein laden an hundred and feuentic fuckles Mace (contay-Mace thipped ning three thousand three hundred fixtie fixe Catees, at a Riall the Catee, each Catee fixe Engin a lonk with hith and neere two ounces better) which if it might have come fate, it would have yeelded in eight English, un ann neere two ounces octet, which is it might have come tare, it would have yetled in which was lon. England five thousand pound. In the said Pray were eight English, and thirtie Bandweser: the 20 which was soit by the negli- charge committed to one Walter Statie, once Mafter Hinfleys Mate in the Defence. But it fremeth genee of one his knowledge and care answered not our expectation : for neere the Illand of Bottone, he ranne State, who had the Praw upon the sholes, being rockie ground, and there biged her, and lost all the Mace; the charge of her men got affore. State is put in fault by the reft of the companie, for that some of them told him they faw land on the lee bowe, but he being peeuish and headstrong, called them all fooles.

Also may it please your Worships to vnderstand, that the Hollanders having beene by some of our people, told of their vile abules done vnto vs, and that it will lie heavie vpon them at home, being knowne; the better fort of them have replied, that they can make as good friends in the Court of England as you (the Honourable Companie our Employers) can: and that this which they have done, will caufe you, the Honourable Companie, and that no 1970e, and that a chaine of gold will recompence all, and that they have Rials enough in Holland to pay for a ship or two, so as they may hinder vs from the trade at Banda.

All being considered, we hope, you the right Honourable and Worshipfull, our Employers. will so prize the bloud of your feruants , by them murthered , maymed , and wounded , the rest all prisoners: also all damages, interests, and hinderances in the returne of ships and goods; alto poore mens percitular loiles , as alto Matter Corthop , my felfe , Sophonie Cozocke, and George Muschampe; wee all prefuming what we had in the Swan to be as fure as on the shoare, and now have lost all: that they may better adusse themselves how they attempt the like againe. lobo Dazie had Likewile Mafter Dazie told me many times, that if it pleafed God to fend him well home, 40 cerbe by him he would come forth no more, finding himfelfe decayed and weake in bodie, and that he had fixe or feuen hundred Rials to employ, with which returne, and other his wages, hee should taken; and fur. haue a competent living: all which money (as farre as I can learne) he had by him when hee was taken: now these crosses, I am perswaded, will kill him; or else, I doubt, they will make him away by poyloning him, that he shall never fee England againe. Now, for adurce as touching the trade at Banda, the lland of Polaroone is reported to be the worst Hand, and is about eight English miles compasse: and the small Hand adioyning called

Neluco, about one English mile compasse. There is prettie flore of Mace and Nuts growing upon Polaroone, and more would be if it were well husbanded. Lantore and Rosinging yeeld great Description of store. Rosinging is a fine Hand, and yeeldeth the largest Nuts and Mace. Now, if we hold Po- 50 Polarisone, &c. laroone, we cannot want Spice: for the people of Lantore, Rollinging, and other places thereabouts, will come our to vs, and bring their Spices, if we bring Rice, Cloth, Salt, Pepper, Mellates, and other Necessaries for food, and some Moccasor gold, which will passe at Eurala, as currant as Rials of eight, and at the lame rate, being worth at Bantam but two shillings foure pence, or two shellings six pence the piece, called Maste. Our Cargason which we had was but imall, having but one hundred quoynes of Rice, our Cloth at Moccafor much decayed, lying there two or three yeares. If we had had three times as much Cloth and Spices, we could have fold it all for Nuts and Mace at Polaroone,: and were intreated for Rice and Cloth by Lantore and Rosinging men, and others; but had it not for them: and some returned with part of their Spices home againe. They come ouer to Polaroone with Prawes and Correcorries in the night. 60 The Maceand Nutswere very good, but lying fo long must needs decay, by the many moleitations of the Hollanders; we having no time, nor lime to make wherewith to preferre the Nuts. The Trade will proue profitable, if we may quietly enjoy the Hand, and we must buy Rice at a lower rate then at Moccafor, it being by report at Lip m about halfe the price.

May it please your Worships to understand, that after my arrivall at Bantam, the Steward of Aland quarrel the House being at the Market to buy promitions, the Hollanders Steward there present quarted a Bandania with led with him, whereof (whiles they contended) notice was given at the Dusch House; and the Hallanders. presently Tymon (the second Merchant) ran forth with twentie Lapons, and Hollanders, and A very Timon, Blacks, to the Bafar or Market, running vpon our Steward with their drawne weapons, he hauing but two English all difarmed, enforcing them to shift and give way. Meane while Richard Hiert, chanced to come by and drew his fword, whom prefently they affaulted and gave him three wounds, whereof he dyed within fifteene dayes after on the foure and twentieth of Iuly, 10 1617. Notice hereof being brought to the English house, we with our Lapons ran forth and met with them, before they could recouer their House, and wounded two Hollanders, whereof both dyed (hortly after; also one of their Blacks then killed out-right, and one or two more of them were hurt; and to draue them home to their Houle. They gaue after that great words, that they would put vs all to the Sword, and did lye in wait for our people with their Piffolls and Peeces, whereof wee had notice by the Ianans, and flood vpon our Guard night and day to receine them, if they had given any attempt on the House, or abroad.

Now concerning the Hands of Bands, and especially Polamay, Captaine Caffleton might have Outrichtby made it fire vnto the English, as I have heard reported by divers : and the English have still more Law and Equiright on that Iland, both by Law and Iuftice, then the Hollander, although by force of Armes the vinto Polathey put the English from it. The case obtayning, and Captaine Castleton denying the right "". and polletion the English had there (as it is reported) emboldned the Hollanders to vie the violence at Polaroone. And except it bee supplied this yeere, and the possession maintayned, the name of English is veterly diffraced, and little hope of being received there againe : which if we hold untill your Worthins have refolued what to doe herein, wee shall in short time procure as much Nuts and Mace as they; which may in time prooue an entrance into the Molsuccas for Cloues. The Hillanders pretend they have right vnto the Moluccas and Banda by the King of Ternates fonne, having him prisoner. But the Bandaneses denie any right the King of Ternate . In the quite hath in their Hands, every Hand being free of it felfe, and governed by Sabandors and Orencayas, religious generally appointed. Now it is meet that a fupply be fent the Bandanefes and English, for Rice, and betwist lictuals and Cloth, and other necessaries, to hold the possession, and bring away the Nuts and Capt. Keeling

Mace there in readinefle, in Godownes. The Hollanders give out that they will take your flips and them 1609 that shall goe into those parts and cut them off, so to famish both English and Bandans fee. So make such your Worthips may charge them of all damage alreadie done, and may expect to heare of further Title, but pre abuses from them. Wherefore it requireth an earnest and speedie prosecution, that wee may tended agreequietly trade without molefation vnto those parts, that have furrendred and defired Trade with ment, and intended and exvs: viz. Polamay, a Paradise by report (the Hollanders report it to bee as good vnto them, as tended force. Scotlar a' to his Maiestie) Polaroone, Rosinging and Wayre, Wayre being a Towne upon Lintore. Scenboue jag. And if in case of necessitie your Worships cannot agree for Polamay, yet if you may enjoy the 202, their own three last, we shall procure Nuts and Mace enough for England, as also to transport both thence Arricles of and hence for Surat, and other places in the Indies. Now is the time or neuer upon the vile their right, abuse of bloudshed and murther committed by the Hollanders. And for the Trade there, it will proue very profitable, I make no doubt. What hath paffed formerly, I doubt not, but Captaine Tordan hath certified at large; what fince, my felfe. It is requisite that I should relate the particulars of all Occurrences, in respect the businesse is of so great importance. Here is bound home for England the Charles and Hope, I pray God fend them well at London. I have fent your Wor-thips a briefe abitract of our Cargajon for Banda, and fales there made. If I feeme tedious, I humbly craue pardon : with my humble dutie I end , befeeching the Almightie to profper and giue good fuccesse to all your designes : humbly taking leaue.

Your Worships most humble servant in all dutie,

THOMAS SPVRWAY.

Endorfed. To the Honorable and Right Worshipfull Companie of the Merchants of London, Trading to the East Indies, these be delinered.

By Captaine Henrie Pepwell, whom God preserve.

May

CHAP.

CHAP. IIII.

Relations and Remembrances, taken out of a large Journall of a Voyage, Set forth by the East Indian Societie, wherein were employed, the Iames, the Anne, the Newyeeres Gift, the Bull, and the Bee; written by IOHN HATCH, Mafler of the Bee, and after in the New-yeeres Gift; and lastly, came home in the lames.

1617.

He fit of March, 1616. we fet faile from the Downes. The feuen and twentieth 10 1617. we saw the Canaries. Aprill the tenth, we met the Tornadas in fixe degr.
From thence to the twentieth, wee observed a Current setting to the North. The thirtieth, the Tornadas left vs, in latitude thirtie minutes North, longitude three hundred and fiftie degrees fifteene minutes, that night we croffed the Line. Iune the one and twentieth, we came to anchor in Soldania Bay, accompanyed Seldania Bay.

The Hound.

with the Gift and the Bull, having loft our Admirall and Vice-Admirall the night before, by fogs and hazie weather. They came in the next day. There we found riding the Honnd, wherein was Master William Iourdaine. Here we could get no refreshing for our sicke men, wherefore on the first of July, some were sent to march up into the Countrey to get prouision, which they did (without loffe of any, onely two hurt) in great abundance. The thirteenth, wee fet falle 20 Moleta or Mo. from the Bay. August the thirteenth, we anchored in the Road of Molata. The seuenteenth, we had both our Cables cut with the Rocks. The eighteenth, we fet faile from thence.

tish, and the Current also forsooke vs. The fourth of September, we passed by Socatra, but came found in the foure dayes before that, by helpe of a Current, the ship had passed three score leagues more then otherwise shee could have run; which now left vs. The seventh, a leake sprung in the Admirall (which Mailer Copeland, their Minister, hath with much feeling related how dangerow, either by villanie or negligence of the Sh-pwrights, as after appeared, when they came to careene her : being a great hole flightly stopped, and much hazarding ship , goods and men : they had none other meane there in deepe water to stop it, but by stitching a Bonet or piece of a saile full of Ockam or calking stuffe, which by force of the water running into the Ship, being haled downe to the place, was sucked and tweltth, we tooke a Portugall thip which came from Mofambeek, laden principally with Ele- 40

In the exteenth, we faw two Iunks, one of them chafed by two Ships, which were the Fran-gols Mothers, of the burthen of twelve or fourteene hundred Tunnes, having in her above a thousand persons, and nine and twentie Tunne of filter (some report more a great deale) wee chaired the Chafers, and in the evening came up unto them with the Bee and the Gift, and so faued the Iunke, with whom and her two Chafers, we anchored on the twentieth, betweene the

) The Iunke they chaled was the Great Mo-

not within fight by reason of the Monson, left it should be done before we came to Surar. Wee 30

The flue and twentieth, in latitude at noone foure degrees fortie foure minutes, longitude fiftie three degrees flue minutes by judgement, we found our felues hindred by some Current: at fixe in the evening the water was changed white, and at feven as white as any Whay, which made Sea white. the Skie alto white and hazie. This night we founded often and had no ground : thus the water phants teeth, and bound for Din.

River of Surat and the Barre of Swally,

Current to the continued all night in the strangest manner that ever I saw, vntill the day light did alter it. It South South fo continued together with the Current : the fixe and feuen and twentieth was but little whi-

A great Current to the North,

Danger by leake, of this yo thine Ma-fle: Prints owne re, ort, in his relation forced in, and so stayed the leake till it selfe decayed in time, then the leake renewing, and againe stopwritt n since ped : which in the careening was found and remedied.) On the eleventh, it was stopped. The Joweth. A ottza. English men of cis and the Lion, Ships let forth by (

Sur 22.

The thirteenth of March, wee weighed : the fifteenth at night, wee anchored to the South west of D.mon. The seventeenth, the Anne departed from vs to the * Red Sea. The seven and 50 twentieth, 1618. wee efpyed many failes and fetched them up with the Bee, being fine and This voyage twentie faile (fourteene faile of Frigats men of Warre, eleuen of Merchants the Molucca fleet) you have here and two great Gallies of Goa, which exchanged fome shot with vs, but alloone as they could cleare themfelues from vs, went away : and being fo farre off at Sea, they all escaped vs, not without great trouble, in three Vessels, whence they heaved Chists and other things over-boord, to make roome for their Oares, and eight of them got into Cochin, the reft to Goa.

How to know

The nine and twentieth, came abourd a Boat with one Woman and foure Men from the King of Calecut. The Woman was interpreter and spake Portuguise. Aprill the first, we came to anchor two miles to the North of the Road of Bring John. About two leagues to the North of Brim Iohn is a red Cliffe, and to the South of it a low fandie fhore, and the next high Land or 60 Cliffe is within a mile of the Road of Brim John, where on the fecond wee archored. Mafter Corrmore and I agreed the next day with the Gouernour for fortie Rialls to water there, and feuentie men were landed to guard the watering place for feare of poylening; for they are treacherous people, which also came armed the next day very strong, and would not permit vs vnder twentie Rialls more.

A Sea fight betwixt the English and Dutch. CHAP. 2,

The twelfth of Aprill, we had much adoe (the Current letting vs right on the lland of  $Z_{clon}$ , halfe a league from Cape de Galea) to double it with tacking off and on that night. The thir- Mafter Hatch teenth, the Generall came aboord the Gift, and established mee Master of her. The fourteenth, mide Master the Bee departed from us for the Coast of Coromandell. The fixe and twentieth, we were neere to the North Coast of t the Southerly Hand of Nicobar. The nine and twentieth, wee anchored on the Mayne of Su-Nicobar. matra, the high Hill Lambre (by some called Pedire) bearing South South east halfe East from vs, and the East point of Achen Road West by North halfe North, foure leagues and halfe off, The King his Courtiers with his Women were there on hunting, who the next day fent his Chap by the Sabander and William Nicholas , our chiefe Factor there : at whose parting wee gaue 10 twentie pieces of Ordnance to honour the Kings presence and his Women, which was well taken, and went the same night neerer to Achen: and anchored the first of May, a little to the West of the Court.

The tenth of June, wee weighed to goe for Teco, but with foule weather were put backe againe. The nineteenth, we againe fet faile. The fourth of August, we came to an anchor in the Road of Teco. The first of September, we fet faile for Bantam, where on the two and twentieth we anchored. On the five and twentieth, arrived there the French Pinnasse from lambe, on the Coast of Sumaira. On the thirtieth, came in the Vnicorne from Musulpatan. The fourth of O-Stober, we fet faile for Inquatra, and then anchored on the fixt; and thence againe on the twentieth to Bantam, with the Iames, Vnicorne and Bee. The feuen and twentieth, the Iames had her Leake against leake brake out againe, which did increase by report two foot water in a glasse, and five foot in in the Lames, hold before they knew of it. The eight and twentieth, they stitched a Bonnet with Ockam, and haled it under her, which having beene there a quarter of an houre, the leake stopped, so that the water increased not aboue halfe an inch in an houre. They resolued to careene her, and we hasted to get our Ordnance and Provisions. The twelfth of November, since was in like case, and men were sent from every ship to pump her (and haling the Bonnet agains to her keele, thee was thight as before) at the Iland where thee was to be careened.

The fifteenth, the Rose anchored at Palamban point from Teco. The nineteenth, foure Ships out of England, the Moone, the Cloue, the Samfon, and the Pepper-corne; Sir Thomas Dale and Sir Tho, Dale; Captaine loundaine being both in the Cloue; the Sunne being loft at the lland of Inganio, and the Globe lost their companie betweene the Cape of Good Hope and Saint Laurence. They had most of their men ficke at their arrivall. The eight and twentieth, they anchored by vs at the lland, being in all thirteene faile, the Iames, Gift, Vnicorne, Cloue, Samson, Moone, Pepper-corne, Thomas, English thips, Bee, Aduife, Rofe, little Francis, and the Prize. This afternoone the Sunnes Skiffe came aboord the Moone from Inganio with the Master and Cape Merchant, the Minister, and twentie men together. more, the Ship being split in pieces, and all her ficke men drowned, being eightie or ninetie of Sunne perishthem. The Inhabitants of Inganio came downe on them which were gotten on land, and flue ed. feuen or eight, hart the Master and others, with wooden Darts. Then they made them another Boat of boords and broken pieces that came from the ship. So there came fixtie or seuentie men in the Skiffe and this Boat; and nineteene or twentie were left on the Iland ficke and hurt, 40 which were after taken in by Iona Prawes and brought aboord the ships, being in miserable case, with want of clothes, bruses with the Rocks, and burning with the Sunne and salt Water. The nine and twentieth, the Globe arrived.

The third of December, the Bee fet faile for Inganio, to fee if they could have any thing, but was forced backe with croffe windes. The fourth, the Blacke Lion of the Hollanders arrived from Blacke Lion, the Coast of China, Palatina, and other places; her lading, Pepper, Rice, Sugar, and some China commodities, by report, to the quantitie of fixe hundred tunnes. This night Sir Thomas Dale cauled men to goe out of other ships abourd the Moone, the Clone, the Samson, the Globe, being but weakly manned: which the next day anchored close by the Blacke Lion, which yeelded on composition. Shee was, by report, of eight hundred tunnes, had in her eightie men, and two or foure and twentie pieces of Ordnance. The nineteenth, Sir Thomas Dale in the Moone, Captaine Pring in the Gift, with the Vnicorne, Cloue, Samson, Globe, Pepper-corne, Thomas, Bee, Rose and Blacke Lion, set faile for laquatra, where they found riding seuen faile of Hollanders, readie to fight. The one and twentieth, came a Holland thip from lambe, which fent their Boat for Iaquatra with twelue men, two great murtherers and eight fmall shot, with each man his fword : but we way-layed her and tooke her with the Barge, and the Ship put to Sea againe.

The two and twentieth, we thought to have fought, and plyed to and againe as occasion offered. The three and twentieth, we began the fight, and the lambe thip got in among them. Fight with the This fight continued about three houres, in which time wee received in the Hull and Masts be- Hollanders tweene fiftie and fixtie great fhot, most in the Hull, yet had but one hurt in the fight, and hee free See Cape. 60 died of it. The Hollanders and wee came to an anchor all night close by each other. The next fer Corthess morning wee fet faile and plyed to windward : but the Hollanders feeing wee would get up to fournall. them, waighed and fled betweene halfe may Iland and the other Iland to the East, and so bore a- Holmeders fled; way to the East, betweene the Hands and the Mayne. And when they came thwart of their I- Little lames land, they faw a little English Pinnasse, which in slight from them had run on a ledge of Rocks, sunke;

and was there cast away. They sentetheir Boates, which by our pursuit they were forced to recall; and we flood after them amayne and chafed them (being now by addition of another from laguatra nine thips) three or foure miles to the Eaft of laquatra, and night comming on, anchored. The fine and twentieth, came a China Inncke on fire drining thwart our halfe, but we percrited it betime, let flip and anoyded it, so that it did no harme at all. We made after them, but they were vinder fayle to the East, and the wind at South South-west. The same day we tooke Thomas funk: out the Thomas Ordnance , beeing an old flip, and funke her neere the Hollanders Iland. The eight and twentieth, they abourd the Blacke Lion, cryed out, fire, and flee was fuddenly on a light fire, and nothing faued, but her company, which went into the Boat and Skiffe. This happened by some which had beene at Dice all night, and went and broke ypa Scuttle where there 10 was Rackupee, which fo foone as they had broched, tooke fire with the light they had, as it is

Rackupee,or Aracape a hot Drinke.

Black: Lion

620

The third of Ianuary, Master Iackson, the Land Captaine of the Iames, dyed of a shot which had taken away his legge at Laquatra. The feuenth, Shot and Powder were fent to the King of laquatra to take the Hollanders Cafile. The ninth, we wayed from this place to the Westward. The twentieth, we espyed two sayles to whom we gaue chase in vaine, they failing better then wee : the next day wee espyed foure , which wee chased as the wind would give leave till night. The fine and twentieth, the Bee was fent to Marough for prouision; The one and thirtieth, we anchored in the Road of Bantam.

The three and twentieth of February, Sir Thomas Dale weighed to go for Laquatra, with the 20 Moone, Cloue, Globe, Samson, Pepper-corne, Hound, Bee, Rose. The feuen and twentieth, the Great lames, the Gift, the Unicorne, and the little lames weighed from Bantam leaving in the Road the Advice and the Mosambeeke or Prize.

The first of March, the Flemmings law vs and weighed, and we made all the fayle we could to get up to them, and they keeping the weather of vs, their Admirall let flye two Peeces at the Another fight. Great Lames first : and then we went to it on all hands. As wee fought, one of the Fleurings ranne aboord their Admirall by chance, and bore ouer-boord his owne Botspret and Beak-head. and the Admirals Ancient. The other two Flemmings feeing that, shooting a shot or two, ranne away and the rest after. We tacked and chased them, but they going better, went from vs exceedingly, and wee gaue over. The thirteenth, the Bee came to vs in Bantam Road, from Sir 20 Themas Dales Fleet at Iaquatra.

The feven and twentieth of Aprill, 1619. there came a Juncke amongst our Fleet from Parania with Flemmings goods and a Flemming in her, which we tooke. The eight and twentieth, the Dragons Clawe came to an anchor at Palambam from Surat.

Marough.

The twentieth of May, we fet faile in the Road of Marongh, to goe for the Coast of Coromandel, being eleuen Sayle in company, the Great Iames, Moone, Gift, Unicorne, Clone, Globe, Pepper-corne, Bee, Rose, Aduise, and the Surat Pinnasse. At five in the afternoone wee anchored betwixt Beffe and . Cracatawe. The one and twentieth, a Councell was held abourd the Adeall the Salt bill miral (the Moone) wherein Owen Bodman was condemned for burning the Blacke Lion and other Owen Bodman, treipaffes, who was hanged the next day aboord the Moone at the Yards arme.

The thirtieth of Iune, we came to an anchor nine leagues East from Mafulipatan. We flaved in these parts till the tenth of December.

The nine and twentieth of July, the Vnicornes Shallop was cast away at Penara, wherein M. Rice and Harris, and foure men more were drowned.

The five and twentieth, we anchored neere Teco, and faw three shippes, which the next day came to vs, being a new Fleet; the Palfgrane Admirall, the Elizabeth Vice-Admirall, the Merchants Hope Rere-Admirall. We all wayed and went into the Road of Teco.

Shoalds: Nimtan

The fourth of March, we all fet fayle in Teco. The fifth, the Iames met with a shoald, and they had much to doe to faue her from grounding. This should lyeth from the White Iland, Southeast, two thirds East, three leagues within two Glasses, the lames and Unicorne met with ano- 50 ther sheald, and stayed upon it at five fatheme water, and within a Cables length of fiftie fathomes, and then the White Hand bore North-west by West eight miles and an halfe off. The ninth, we bore up to goe to the South of Nimtan. This Iland is neere twentie leagues long, and lyeth South South-cast, and North North-west. On the Wester-side is great shoalding, on the East deepe water hard by the shoare. The twentieth, at night wee had a great storme, and had many Corpo. Santos, viz, at the head of the Maine-top-mast, and on the Meson yard, the Foretop-mail, and the Mezon Top-mail. The next morning, the storme beganne to breake up, and we faw the high-land of Manning Cabo.

Foure Corpo-

The fine and twentieth of March, 1 6 2 0. we anchored neere the point of Ballambin; where on the fixe and twentieth our Cable was cut a lunder with a Rocke, which wee recoursed the 60 the feuen and twentieth.

At the South-west point of Sumatra lyeth the Hand Pola Tellore in fine degrees fiftie seuen minutes of South latitude, South South-east from which is Ballambin, where is good refreshing and watering, thence to the South point called Cape Bublathore, is two leagues South Southeast three quarters East, and from thence to the next Easter point is three leagues, and in the freend Bay from the faid point is a River where we watered, but the water not very good.

CHAP.4. A peace concluded betwixt the English and Dutch.

The fixth of Aprill, 1620, we weighed to goe for Bantam, with a full resolution to make an end with the Hollanders one way or other, they being eighteene Sayle, and weeten, little and great. The eight, betweene two and three of the clocke in the morning, beeing fhort of Sangang we met with the Bull and two Hollanders bound to looke vs to bring newes of the peace Peace betwitt betwixt vs and them. The eleventh, their Fleet being thirteene belides the former two came vs and Hollerunto vs from laquatra: and wee faluted each other with many Peeces of Ordnance. The dere. 10 twelfth we went for Bantam where we found two Hollanders more. The feuen and twentieth, the James and the Vnicorne departed from vs for Japan, to careene there. The thirtieth, we anchored in laquatra Road.

The one and twentieth of May, the Elizabeth, the Bull, and the Hope, fet fayle with the Harlem, and the Dutch Hope. The Elizabethand Harlem were bound for Leque Pequena, there to Leque Pequena, flay for the Bull and the Dutch Hope which were appointed to goe for Moccom, and the English Hope for Patania, and then to meete with the other foure at Leque Pequena, thence to goe all for Iapan, there to meete the rest of the Fleet for the Manilla. The thirtieth, peace was published at Inquatra on shoare and aboord the ships.

The fourth of Iune, the Moone, the Palfgraue, the Bantam and the Pram, fet fayle from Ia- and Manillas. 20 quatra for Iapan, and the Manilla's. The fewenteenth, wee fet faile to goe to Cracatow to cut new Mails and Timber to theath our thip, and beeing a league and halfe from the Roade, met with a shoald where we had but two fathomes water (being suddenly on ground) at the shippes Shoald. head, and fine at her sterne : but prayfed be God, got off without hurt. It is Rockes and Corall and lyeth halfe way betwixt Iaquatra Road, and the Sand to the East of Hellors Hand. If you keepe the Flemmil Caftle and the top of the highest hill one right ouer the other; you shall goe cleere in or out. If you cannot fee the hill keepe the Caftle South South-east, but if you keepe it South by East, You will be neere it, or on it. On the neerest part of the next Iland to the East of Pola Lacka is a dangerous should two miles off, and seldome sheweth it selfe. The one and twentieth, we anchored and moored our thip a Cables length North-west of the little 30 round Hand, and rode till the one and twentieth of July, in which time wee cut about feuentie pieces of square Timber for our decayed ship, and to pay the Holanders two and twentie hor- Creater a verowed, for their house at laquatra, by our Merchants. This place is to infectious that most of rysickly place, our men were taken with iwolne legges, or bodies, fome breaking out with Sores and Byles. otherstaken with dizzinesse and dimnesse of fight, almost every one losing his stomacke, and given to vomiting with a strange costinenesse: fixe dyed, and thirtie seven were sicke and lame. all weake, vomiting, facke, racke, beuerage; nothing thiyed.

The feuen and twentieth, we anchored in Morough Road neere the shoare, which is no good Moongh. Road, but we were forced, fo to command the Towne with our Ordnance in fuccour of our Boats, if the people should have betrayed them, as they had done the Hollanders of whom they 40 flew eight men. We lost an Anchor there (they cut off the Boyes that we could not after finde it) and could get little refreshing, or none.

The nineteenth of August, we anchored at Jaquatra, having beene from thence two moneths. and in one moneth which we were returning from Cracaton, we loft with the former fixe, one and fortie men, befides fortie fine ticke in the thip; nor had we aboue twentie of our owne Company that could goe up and downe the ship. The eight and twentieth, the Hollanders surrendred the Starre againe to the English.

The first of September came in a Flemming from Holland, which told vs of the Lion arrived at the Cape from Surat; and of fixe English thips with her in Soldania from England, two bound Newes of English for Bantam, and foure to Surat, which were to flay in Soldania for foure Flemmings to goe to Su- lift thips. to rat with them. The one and twentieth, the Dragons Clam arrived from Achen with newes that the Charles, the Rubie, and the Diamond, were all at Sea comming for laquatra; and that the Bee faw a French-min of Warre on the Coast of Sumara, which would by no meanes freak French man of with her. They were in all foure thips, but the had loft her conforts.

The first of October, the Schedam arrived with newes of three English ships in the Straits of Sunda, the Royall Exchange, the Vintie, and the Beare, the Bee also with them, which on the fe- Newfleet, cond, and the tenth arrived here. The foure and twentieth, the Dragons Claw departed hence for the Moluceas. The fixe and twentieth, one of our men suspected for stealing Cloues, was drowned. Hee had wished before mee a little afore, if hee knew of the Cloues, that hee were fo farre under water that he might neuer rife againe; and going cuer the fhips fide, a flep of the lad-60 der broke, and he fell over-boord, & never role againe. The thirtieth, the Beare and Diamond were fent for lambe in hope of Pepper. The eleventh of November, the Globe departed from laquatra latare.

for lapara, to fetch theathing boord and cattell : and the fitteenth, the Vnite let faile for Achen. The second of December, the Roe-bucke arrived from Teco with Pepper. The third, the Samfon arrived from Patania, and brought in her the Purfer and three others of the Unicorne, Vnicorneloft.

Fleet fer Japan

which was cast on the Coast of China. The fifteenth, the Globe arrived with boords and plankes from lapara. The fixteenth, arrived a luncke which brought fome of the Samfons men, fome of the Vnicornes, and those which were left on shoare at Patania, when the Samfon and the Hound were taken. The one and twentieth, the Rubie departed for the Molnetas. The fixe and twentieth, the Clone arrived from Iambe and Patania. The nine and twentieth, the Royall Exchange, the Starre and the Roe-bucke, fet fayle for Amboino with a Holland hip in their company.

The Dragon Gil feruing the

The second of Ianuary, the Bee went to Hestors Hand to careene. The same day the Hollarders had foure ships that went for the Moluccas, the Dragon being one, and the next day the New Holland, and in her Iohn Peterson Coen Generall of all the Indies, for the Hollanders : who carryed a float with eight or ten Demicanons, and fortie great Prawes to land men, and a great 10 Returne of the company of Souldiers. The eighteenth, the lames Royall arrived in laquatra Road from lapan, where the careened both fides to the keele. The one and twentieth, arrived the new Zeland from Masulipasan, and brought in her Captaine Ball, Thomas Iones, and Richard Thomas. The thirtieth, the lames began to take in Pepper to goe for England. The one and thirtieth, the Bee returned from Hestors Iland, careened to the keele, and the Globe foure or fine strakes on a side-In the lames Royall bound for England. The fixe and twentieth of February we fet faile.

Their returne home, 1641.

The nineteenth of May, we anchored in the Bay of Soldania: where we fet fayle the second of June. We found there riding the Anne, wherein was Captaine Walter Bennet, and the Fortune a Victualler, and three Hollanders bound for Bantam. The one and twentieth of June, wee faw the Iland of Saint Helena, bearing West by North sixteene leagues, and on the two and 20 Saint Helena, twentieth anchored there. Here we tooke flore of fresh fish by the shippes side. The nine and twentieth, wee set sayle, and the eighteenth of September anchored in the Downer;

CHAP. V.

The Voyage of the Anne Royall from Surat to Moha, in the Red Sea, for feeling an English Trade in those parts : Anno Dom. 1618. extracted out of Mafter EDWARD HEYNES bu Iournall, writsen thereof.

In Thomas Roe, Lord Embassadour for his Maiestie with the Mogoll, having given diuers Articles of instructions unto Captaine Andrew Shilling, Master of the Anne Royall, together with Ioseph Salbanke, Edward Heynes, and Richard Barbar, Merchants; for Trade at Dabui, and after as they law occasion in the Red Sea: it was thought meet by Captaine Marin Pring Generall, and Thomas Kerridge, and Thomas Rastell (the twelfth of March, aboord the lames Royall, the time being too farre spent for Dabul/that the said ship should sayle directly for the Red Sea. Thus they layled from the Road of Smally.

The tenth of Aprill, we had light of Aden. The thirteenth, we past the Strait of the Bab or Babel Mandel (an Iland in the entrance or mouth of the Red Sea, which caufeth the Strait) about feuen in the morning : and about five in the evening, wee had fight of Mocha five leagues off, Night comming on, we anchored, and a Canon came abourd vs from the Gouernour to know what we were and our intent, which we answered, and they having begged a few Bif-

The next morning wee anchored a league and halfe from the sheare, and saluted the Towns with nine Peeces. The Water-Bayly brought vs a Prelent from the Governour, a young Bullocke, two Goates, Mangoes, Limes, Cucumers, and Water Melons, welcommed vs, and defired to fend one on shoare to acquaint the Gouernour with the cause of our comming. We answered, so we were English-men, which came to seeke Trade there, but durst not aduenture on shoare wishout sufficient pledges. About three in the afternoone, came a lem aboord (borne in Libone) together with an old Venetian turned Turke (one in good respect with the Gouernour) which from the Gouernour affired vs of all content.

The fifteenth, Allee Afgee, the Chiefe Scriuano fent a Present of Goates and Fruites to welcome vs, with two old men of good qualitie: fent from the Gouernour to remayne as pledges for fuch as went on shoare, with many protestations of good vsage. Hereupon Master Salbanke and I went with our two Linguists and one Attendant, with a Present for the Governour, viz. fixe yards of broad-cloth Stammell, fixe yards of greene, a Fowling Peece, and Looking glaffe. At our landing, a thousand people expected, and divers Officers were readie to receive and conduct vs to the Gouernour. His house was faire and large, built of stone and bricke. At the entrance was a faire gate with a Porters lodge, and divers fervants thereattending. Within is a ale and great Court, whence arise winding staires about thirtie steps to a square Tarris; our of which we were brought into a large roome, having at one end a great bay window opening to the Sea, in which the Gouernour fate : on the fides others of like bigneffe , looking vnto the Wharfe or landing place. The flore was couered with fine Mats, and neere the Gouernour, with faire Tera Carpets and Persian Felts. That whereon himselfe fate was a partie coloured Sattin Quilt, with rich Damaske and Veluet Cushions. Hee was clothed in a Violet colour Sattin Vest, his vnd r-coats fine India Linnen, having on a Sattin Cap wreathed about with a fine white Shah. He was accompanied with the Chiefe Sermano, the Principall Cultomers, fome Turker of better fashion, many Indian Merchants, and one hundred servants. Hee is about fiftie yeeres old, and named Mahomet Aga.

When we came neere, he howed himselfe and wee did reuerence: then bade vs fit downe, Their confe-10 and demanded our Nation and bulinesse. Wee answered, we were Englishmen, of London, Mer-rence. chants, who by command of the Ambassadour of His Maiestie of England, resident with the Great Mogoll (with whom we hold league and amitie) are comme to this Towne to treat for licence of free Trade: That we were friends to the Grand Signior , and had traff que at Constantinople, Aleppo, and in other places of his Dominion , and noped the like here : that wee were come to delire his, and the Bashas Firman, for like liberties heere as is granted vs by the Grand Signior, both for present and future times, as intending to visit their Ports yearely with plentie of English and Indian goods: that we had likewise in command from the said Embassador (which had heard of clivers Pirats, English, Dutch, French, Portugals, Malabars, and others which infelled the quiet Trades of this Port, and principally the Gazerats, our friends) to take them, and 20 free those Seas of such incombrances, protecting all honest Merchants, ships and lunckes from iniurie : and thefe were the true caufes of our comming. Hee then rofe vp and bad vs welcome; They fill gaapplaud dour deligne, and demanded why wee were to fearefull to come on shoure without specied our pledge. We answered, that about fixe yeers since, some of our Countrymen were here with kind ship a man of hewes and promifes entired alloare, and by the then Gouernour betrayed, emprifoned, and mafon of fone mewes and promises charact amounts, and by scatterious for our owne fafetic. But that we were no otherwise then we professed, they should shortly know by the testimonie of two Guzerat Iuneks, of our Counone of which had not come this yeare, but for the passeand promise of the said Embassador that trey-men in our ship should defend them home-ward bound from Men of Warre in these Seas, having esca- those Seas, ped rifling last yeere by men of our Nation, through our opportune comming to our refcue; who 30 deliuered her fafe at her Port, and sent their chiefe Commanders into England to answere those wrongs to our Kings triends. Hee acknowledged our Nation good and friendly, promiled that we should line on shoare and negotiate as secure as in our owne Countrey, that hee would also procure the Bulba to confirme the same, and would give vs any content. That for the ill vsage formerly, the Gouernour then was an ill man, long fince removed, and now living in difference at Stambola and Sware by his Mahomet and by his Beard, that not one haire of vs should be dimini- Confinitionite. shed, nor any wrong offered : that he would therefore proclayme our liberties that none might pretend ignorance to discourtesse. Hee wished vs also to looke out a house in Towne sit for our persons and goods, commanded two of his principall Charses to attend vs, and till wee could fit our selues better, recommended vs to the Jen-Merchant his entertainment, desiring him to assist

40 vs in all things.

CHAP. 5.

Thus after our Present delivered as from our Captaine and many kind thankes, wee went by The visit the the Iewes perswasion to visit the Serinano, who is likewise chiefe Customer, whose serinano, (himselfe not being then at home) entertayned vs with much civilitie, and brought vs into a faire roome, not much inferiour in building, or furniture to that of the Gouernour, where we had left him, and whence he soone returned and welcommed vs with much courtese, affuring vs of whatloeuer the Gouernour had promifed, and that he himfelfe would fee all executed, who had power also to right vs. We were informed that this mans authoritie was no lesse in the Towne then the Gouernours, who was by him directed in matters of weight; hee feemed a heartie old man. After he had made vs Drinke Coho and Sherbet, we tooke our leave and refted that night so with our Iew.

The next morning, wee fpent an houre to view the Towns and observe the countenances of They view the the people toward vs, whom we found gentle and courteous, especially the Banians and Guze-Towne, Towne, of which here liues continually great flore, as Merchants, Shop-keepers, and Mechanike Thedescription Trades, their hops nearly built and cleanly kept. Their Market or Bazar appeared well furnished onthercof. with all necessaries, belides fraits daily brought out of the Countrey. The Towne for the most pare built with bricke and stone fairely playstered over with Playster of Paris : the building flat-roofed fome two flories high, with Tarrifes on the top, whereon they build Summer houfes of Canes and Mats, in which they rest in the nights and passe the first quarter of the day, hating at that time a fresh breele from the Sea; all the rest of the day so hot, that men cannot well Heat at Morbs. 60 endure any clothes, not to much as a thirt. It lyeth levell along the Sea-fide, being about two Their neutnes. miles from North to South. There are many faire houses and three principall Moschees; the ffreets kept cleane, each mans doore every morning and evening watered and fwept, feeming liker fandie bowling allies then streets; no filth futlered to be cast abroad, but carryed to a place appointed fowred by the Sea : In fine, I have not lightly feene, a fweeter, cleaner, better go-hinder others from comming; the feare of which had caused some alreadie to paste by this Towne to Gudda, the Port of Mecca, one hundred and fifty leagues farther up, a Towne of great Trade, and others to other places. Hereplied, we should be as welcome as to any place in our owne Countrey, and vowed by GoD, Mahomet his head and beard, we should have as fecure from hurt as in our owne Land. We asked what fecuritie he would give vs; befides his oath (he answered) his Firman under his Chop, and procure the like from the Balba. With this wee feemed content, and gaue him thankes : nor did euer people feeme more willing to give content then they : which, I thinke, ariseth not from confeience, or love, but feare, feeing vs alle to internert their Trade. After fome questions of our Embassador, now residing at Constantinople, 10 and touching the Portugals, and Spaniards, (which he faid were proud and vinfaithfull Nations) fome speech happened of Sir H. Middleton; we demanded the cause of that treacherie towards Cause of Tare him: hee answered, the Vizier at that time was a bloudie, cruell, and ill-minded man of kish treacherie himselfe, and made worse by the instigation of others, Turkes, and Arabs of this Towne, who to Sit H. Midhimselfe, and made worte by the initigation of others, surges, and extraor of this lowing, who observing the vacuuall behaviour of our people, as pissing at the gates of their Churches; forcing dition.

CHAP. 5.

Lie Felise mto mens houses to their women; and being daily drunke in the streets, would sight and quarrell with Christians the people; things hatefull in these parts: these things were in part, but the Gouernours coue-read blush, and tousnesse (hoping to get their ship and goods) was the maine cause of that ill dealing, for which amend.

and many other bad actions, he was not long after fent to Constantmople to answere it, and is either dead, or lines in difgrace to this day. Wee dined with the Serinano, and hired a house of 20 Haffana Ga, one of our Pledges, at feuentie Rials of eight the Monton, (which is all one with the yeerely Rent.) The Scrivano would needs (weare himfelfe our friend on his Alchoran: yet denied this Gouernour to be the man which captized Sir H. Middleton , which was after found Turkib faith. We agreed for Cuitome three by the hundred, both inwards and outwards (which hee vowed all others paid fine ) and for filter, and gold, and money, to pay none. Wee supped with him also, and gave him a Prefent.

The nine and twentieth, wee had thought to have had our Firman read before all the Merchants, and proclaimed to the people; but the most part of the day was ipent in a ceremonie Death of the by the Gouernour and Chiefeat their high Church for the death of the Grand Signior, and the Grands signior. establishing his brother in his roome. They came riding afront our house, we sitting in our win-30 dow open to the street: they seeing vs, bowed themselves, and we did reverence: their horses were accommodated with rich furniture. At foure of the clocke, wee were fent for , but our Linguist had got to a Jewes house that fold Racke, and was drunken, and wee pretending Master Salbankes prefent in disposition, promised attendance the next day. On the one and thirtieth. the Governour fent for vs, and made knowne to all the Merchants our welcome, causing his Scriuano to draw a Firman as large as we could require, which he would figne with his Chop, and at his principall Serinances, in the afternoone we should have it. The Copie whereof is as followeth, translated out of the Arabicke.

Faithfull and perfect Firman given by the grace of GOD to the worthie Captaine of the Englis, A Faithfull and perfect Firman given by the grace of GOD to the worthic (aptaine of the Englis, Andrew Shilling, to the Merchants, and to all fuch as are come with him at this prefent; and to all the Nation of the English , which shall come to this Port hereafter: For their good sage, and friendly entertainment by the grace of GOD, and by the Faith we have in our holy Prophet Mahomet: with the licence of our Great Lord and King, to whom the Great Gow of the World give long life : by the fidelitie, trueth, and authoritie of the great Vizier of Sinan , Mahomet Baiha; whom the Great Mahomet Baiha; GOD give strength, and power in his Kingdome: and by the faithfulnesse, and to we meaning, and com_ Raid Age. mand of me Raiab Aga, now Gouernour of the Towne of Mocha; to be given to the Great Nation of the English, with all faithfulneffe.

to The Gonernour Raiah Aga, doe give libertie and licence to the English Nation, to come bither to this Port, to receive friendly entertainment, to bring alboare their goods, to buy and fell with all freedome ; to carrie (uch goods as they buy aboord, without let or hinderance: and have made contract with them, that for all goods they land, they shall pay three by the hundred, not in readie money, but in goods; and for what they carrie away aboord so it be Merchandise, and not promision for their ship, as Victuals, or fuch like, that they shall pay readie money at three by the hundred likewife, neither more nor leffe, but as it is contracted by our agreement. That no Inhabitants of this Towne, nor People of the Country, " Either the neither Turke nor Arab, Shall insure them; but they Shall have their libertie to their contents. And difference is that this my Firman and Contract is guen them with a good heart, and true meaning to fee it perforfrom their difference compuference compumed, I witnesse the truch before the most high GOD, and our holy Prophet. Signed with my Chop, tition, or that 60 the fourteenth' day of May, in the yeare of our Prophet Mahomet 1027.

the Scale was deferred to this day, uerned Towns then this of Mocha. Betwixt the Gouernours and Scrinances is the Wharfe, about twelve fcore square, neere which adioyning to the Gouernours house is a platforme rayled built with hewen itones, with Battlements towards the Sea, about fortie paces iquare, in which are mounted thirteene or fourteene small Peeces of little force. Against the landing-place are two faire Bra'le Peeces about fine foot in length; on the other end is the Alfandica , and a Braile Peece of fixe foot, which carryeth a Bullet as bigge as a Canon. This is their strength for defence of the Towne. Yet at the North end is a stone house in manner of a Fort, and in it some few Peeces, but they put small trust in their Ordnance, relying most on their Souldiers, of which two hundred refide continually in the Towne, the rest (beeing in all to the number of Which worked him a day or two dayes journey, and are in readinesse vpon any occasion.

I haue

Hosa Nassanton, the principall India Merchant of the Towne, professed and promised all 10

kindnesse (for wee went to his house) and after a cup of Coho and Tobacco (which is vivally amongst these people) we went againe to visit the Gouernour before wee went abourd, who rose and met vs, caused vs to fir by him, welcommed vs, promised as free Trade heere, as in any other place of the Grand Signiors Dominion, nor would denie vs any thing reasonable : faid that another Gouernour should shortly succeed him, but one as his brother, honester then himselfe. who should performe all the promises which he had now made; at our request, commanded the Water-Baylise to furnish vs with Boats at all times to carrie vs , or water from shoare for the ship aboord. After this we visited the Scrivane, and found him very courteous, promising to come aboord to fee our ship, and bid our Captaine welcome, and after a health of Coho dismis- 20 fed vs to returne to the ship, where our two pledges approued their kind viages, whose departure was honoured with fine Peeces. On the feuenteenth, the Scrinano, our pledges, the Iem, and twentie persons attending came aboord, brought a Bullocke, Bread, Quinces, and other Fruites, and a Cake of great roundnesse and thicknesse like puffe-past, wherein were baked Hennes and Chickens very well dressed, and pleafing enough to a daintie palate; we also with a Quince Pye, Crabs, Sacke and Strong-water, added our best welcome. He would needs bee sworne brother to the Captaine, which was so-Iemnized with a Cup of Sacke, and after much mirth and view of our ship, heedeparted with great content.

Feaft on thip-

We had water brought by poore people at reasonable rates. We also had given good reason to 30 the Gouernour and Serinano (who approoued it) to make every Juncke that should arrive to anchor by vs, and there to ride till they had discharged their goods. The Gouernour was willing, we should examine and compell them hereto, because some Junckes passed by their Towne to other Ports for Trade, to the loffe of this.

Scorme and

The one and twentieth, fixe at night, we had a storme of wind off the shoare with Thunder and Lightning very vehement, but no raine, which continued halfe ar houre, the rest of the night extreame hot. This ftorme brought fand and dust abourd in abundance, notwith standing, we roade a good league from shoare. The five and twentieth, we had a message from the Scrissano, that the Gouernour and himfelfe had received Letters from the Basha of Sinan, commanding them to receive and entertaine vs with all kindnesse, to permit vs to live and Trade amongst 40 them freely and quietly. Ignorance of a new Gouernour must excuse vs of the charge of a new Present to him. His arrivall was on the feuen and twentieth, the Ordnance of the Towne, and Iunkes, and of our thip welcomming him. Hee fent our former Pledges aboord with thankes , and a Prefent of Plantans, Limes, Mangos, Melons, Bread, and one Bullocke, promifing in the Bashas name like trade here, as at Constantinople. The two Pledges remained aboord all night, and went with vs on shoare the next day, where we found the new Gouernour, and the old sitting at the end of a large roome, adorned much what as at our first arrivall, or better. He is about foure yeares old, named Raiab Aga, was accompanied with divers principall Turkes, and all chiefe Merchants now in trade of Surat, Din, Dabul, Sindu, Calicut, and Cananor. At our approch he onely mo- 50 ued, fo did the Turkes: the Merchants rofe, and faluted vs. He caused vs to fit downe by him, told vs that the Balba, the Vizier of the Prouince, informed of vs, had commanded to give vs content: and behiles his Lords command, he knew vs to be friends of the Grand Signior, and to have Trade at Constantinople, Aleppo, and other places of his Dominion, a Nation of friendly and honest disposition, and therefore we should find him our good friend, and readie to doe vs any courtefie, and give vs as free Trade, as wee any where had under the Grand Signior, or English fleetof Great Mogoll. We told him we were Merchants, and our thip Vice-admiral to a Fleet of five five thips, one of which was departed from Surat homewards, three from Review and other places. thips, one of which, was departed from Swat homewards, three from Bantam and other places to the South, and our ship by his Maiesties Embassador employed hither (with such circumstances as before are delivered) that if our just requests of free Trade be granted, wee purposed at 60 our next comming to fettle a Factorie here, and yeerely to frequent this Port with flipping Factory inten. With English and Indian goods: fignified our intents against Rouers, and what alreadie we had done in that case against our owne Countrymen : intimating that it was needlesse to presse with the insonueniences which might arife from denying vs Trade, who were able to force it, and

New Gouer-

I have thought good to adde the Basha of Sinan his Firman. translated as before.

 $oldsymbol{T}$  N the name of God. This Letter written with the word of trueth of the most high  $oldsymbol{God}$  : To all Nations, Goizernours and Officers ouer the people under my government : God keepe you all. Know yee, that we have given our faithfull Firman unto the hands of Signior Andrew Shilling Captaine of the English, Joseph Salbanke his Companion, and to their friend Edward Heynes Met-Chant, which are come to the Port of Mocha, for them to goe and come with their Ships to the Said Port, and there to buy and fell all manner of Merchandise freely, and with all content. And wee doe further and there to very analy can an intermed of the Faith of the Great Go D, and our holy Propher Maho. 10 met; in the Faith of our Great Lord, whom Go D preserve; and in the Faith of Our selfe, Governour of the Province and Citie of Sinan; free licence for to fell and buy there, heere, and in all other of our Ports, and Townes of Trade within our Government, as freely and queetly, without injurie, let, or molefation, as any of the Traders and Merchants which come to that Port of Mocha, or any other, of what nation, away of the state of th promise and swears, in the true way of an Oath, to keepe our word with them in this Agreement; and give you all hereby to know that they shall pay neither more nor lesse. And further, that they shall receive neither injurie, hust nor danger, nor any discontent ginen them, either to their persons or goods, but they and their Nation Shall have, as from their first Ship that came to this Kingdome, now this, so ener to the 20 last thip that shall arrive hereafter, the like friendly entertainment, and good v fage, as we have comman ded to be given them at this present. And that this is my faithfull meaning, This owr Firman which comes to your hunds hall be a witnesse of the truth. Written and signed with my Royall Chop, from our Court of Sinan this eighteenth day of Inlie, in the yeere of our Prophet Mahomet 1027.

The Copie of the Gouernour of Moha his Firman, given to Master Salbank for good viage in his way to Sinan, is this.

Nethe Name of the great God. This Letter of commandment in the name of our great Lord (whom 30) GOD keep) to all people, Gouerners of Townes and Cities. Know yee that it is our will and commandement, that when the Bearer hereof Ioleph Salbank, or any of his people, or any of the Nation of the English, come to your places of Government, you we them, him, and all whom soever, friendly and with all courtestes: that you make them pay for viltuall, or other necessaries, no more then ordinarie; but rather make promision for them, and affist them. And for what goods they shall carrie away, or bring up into the Citie of Sinan, you shall take no duites of them, as is the custome to other men, but let them. paffe free, doing them neither wrong nor iniurie. Wherefore, all you to whom this Letter or Command Shall come, which I have given into his hand, I command you all, in the name of the Basha, (whom-GOD bleffe) to see this performed with all diligence. Ginen at Mocha, the twentieth of Inne, A. 1027. of our Prophet Mahomet.

drinke made

It was agreed betwixt vs, that Master Salbanke and I should follow the businesse on land and Mr Barber should remaine aboord to prepare such things as should be sent for. The fift of May, wee went to the Scrinano to get leave for Racke to be made for our ficke men : for by reason wine or frong that our Linguist, and others of our companie had beene drunke in a Tenes house, we complain ned and defired the Iew might be prohibited to fell them any : whereupon the Gouernour forbade the Iewes and Turkes the felling of Wine or Racke in the Towne. The Gouernour, at our and the Scriuano's request, gaue leave onely that a Iew by I is appointment, should brew it in our house ; but to preuent disorders, would permit none elsewhere. On the eight in the afternoone, understanding the Gouernour and principall men were set in the Custome house . ape- 50 cting the Surar Captaine then comming alhoare, he went also to see the manner of his entertainment. At our comming, we found the Gouernour fitting at the upper end of a long roome vpon a Bench of stone, on a Carpet : by him in a row, on the same Bench couered with fine mattes divers Merchants, and men of qualitie about twentie; on the other fide against him, were about as many fet in Chaires: betweene them was made a lane reaching downe to a square place, three steps high from the floore railed in and matted, in which the Scringro and Officers of the Custome house fate on Carpets. The Governour bade vs welcome, told vs hee had given the chiefe Broker order to come fee our goods, and procure their fale; caufed vs to fit downe, two Merchants offering vs their places, and called for Cohoh and Tobacco. After halfe an houre thus spent, the Captaine came alhoare, in his owne boat curiously painted, rowed by 60 twentie of his own feruants, all in white linnen, with a Tilt of red filke, many filk Streamers, his Saile of fine Callico, with divers Drummes, Waits, and ill Trumpets, his owne Iunke, and the Towne-Chambers adding their reports to make up the muficke (if fuch confuted founds may be so called ) Attended by a few slaues trimmed up with Silkes, and course Sattins, her entred rat Captaine.

The English entertained by the Captaine of Surat. CHAP. 5.

the place where we fate, where the Gouernour rofe and faluted him, and placed him next him: and many complements of welcome passed from him, and from the rest of the Merchants conly he in the height of his pride, neglected vs, and wee accordingly him, though wee thought, the Captaines courtesse to him, fending his long-boat and men to free his lunke (being foure or fine hundred tunnes, and aground ) with his kind entertainment abourd our thip , had deferued better respect. After a little time in complements, Cohoh was againe brought to all the company, and after it fix Veits, two given to the Captaine, and foure to his foure Merchants, which being put on, and Salams given, they againe tooke their feats, fitting like fo many painted Images, their Coats being of course Gold and Silver Veluet. One thing wee observed as the vsuall cu-

10 shome of this Towne, at the arrivall of any lunke, and the landing of the Captaine, there is free libertie to all the Mariners and Passengers of the same Junke, to bring ashore as much of their goods as each man can carrie on his backe, free from paying any Custome: in which manner passed by at this present, three hundred persons of that lunke, with their luggage, to their habitation without moleftation. On the ninth, our Landlord and the Scrinano told vs of three Junkes of Din, and foure Malabars that stayed at Aden, hearing of our ship, and would not come Feste of the without our Passe, which they intreated vs to grant. The forme of our Passe subscribed by the English. Cap aine and three Merchants, was this.

WW Hereas the Gouernour of the Towne of Mocha, understanding that there are divers lunkes now riding before Aden, fearing to come to this Port, as doubting good usage from sisthe 20 English; hath intrated vs to give vnto him, our Certificate or Paffe, for the faid lunkes, or for any other that vsually trade to this Port , to come in freely, without any minrie done unto them, either in bedie or goods by vs, and to have good and friendly quarter, as lowing friends and Merchants amongst vs: Wee finding good vsage by the Governour himselfe, and forwardnesse by all men to give vs free Trade and commerce, and as well out of our good disposition, and inclination to peace, as for the satisffastion of the Gouernour, in his request; Wee, by these presents, doe promise and give them all freedome to passe quietly, and assure them friendly vsage, to their content: so as they be not enemies to our dread Sonerai gne, the Kings Maiestie of England, or his Subietts. In witnesse whereof, wee have put to our Firmes, &c.

A larger Passe at the Gouernours request, and more generall, for the quiet departure of all Junkes, &c. was after made, which I forocare to transcribe.

The tenth, the Captaine of the Dabul Iuncke inuited vs to his house to a Banquet, where we Dabal Captain found the Gouernour with fiftie principall persons, besides Attendants; All role and bade vs his feast. welcome : wee fate not long but Coho and Sherbet were brought, Tobacco, and diversitie of Fruits, as Plummes, Apricockes and Mangos, we thinking these to bee our Feast, and readie foone after to depart. But the Gouernour and Captaine defired vs to flay, and eate Bread and Sale with them, which we did; at last, though late, our greatest cheere comming, being about fixtie Dishes of fundry forts of meats, baked, rosted, boyled, stewed, and sodde, but all mingled with Rice, with divers forts of Sallers, in manner as in India.

Our Cargaion was of bad wares for the most part, which had lien in India, till they were Freedome & neere spoyled, and so hang on our hands; wee therefore importuned the Gouernour, and hee egraffe and charged the Broker to procure our fale with great earnestnesse: we obtay ned leave also, contrary regresse. to the common custome, to come and goe aboord and ashoare at our pleasure without demanding any leave, and charged the Water-Bayliffe not to molest vs. On the twentieth, it was observed in generall that the Monson changed.

The four and twentieth, The Scrinaro told me that he vnderflood that our men of the Ship, Pedling of at their comming ashoare, fold in the Bazar, Baftas and Sword blades: he faid, the Gouernour some. had promifed for the poore mens goods to demand no custome, and therefore they should not feare to bring it ashoare, but to fell it at the house; for at the Bazar, was a difgrace to vs and our Nation. On the one and thirtieth, the ship was in danger to have beene burnt, one taking

Tobacco in the sprit-saile yard arme, and the cole falling in a fold of the faile, which there bur Danger by ned two or three breadths, and was long smelt before it could be found : and Tobacco taking was Tobacco. prohibited, except in the Cook-roome or Captaines Cabin. In regard of recouring our ficke men, discouring the cost, and procuring ballast in stead of Lead, taken out of the ship, it was The ship goes concluded, that the ship should goe ouer to Asab on the Coast of Africa: and Master Baffen Ma- ouer to Asia on the Coast of Africa: fters Mate, was fent to found and discouer before.

The tenth of Iune, we had speech with the Gonernour, and in other discourse learned of him, that hee was Gouernour of Aden when the Afcension came thither, where hee imprisoned the Captaine and Iof. Salbanke two dayes; as he laid, doubting they were not Merchants, but a man of Warre: that he was Gouernour here at Sir H. Middletons apprehension, which he excused by the ill rule of our people, and bad disposition of the Balba; that he was blamed for the fact; but the Balha, whose leruant he then was , commanded that and a great deale more . God knew his vnwillingnette to it, and forrow for it; but these things are pair, feare you nothing. Here wee faw how farre he and the Scrimans were to be trufted.

I have thought good to adde the Basha of Sinan his Firman, translated as before.

lacksquare N the name of God. This Letter written with the word of trueth of the most high lacksquare lacksquare lacksquareNations, Governours and Officers over the people under my government : God keepe you all, Know yee, that we have given our faithfull Firman unto the hands of Signior Andrew Shilling Captaine of the English, Ioleph Salbanke bis Companion, and to their friend Edward Heynes Metchant, which are come to the Port of Mocha, for them to goe and come with their steps to the said Port, and there to buy and sell all manner of Merchandise freely, and with all content. And wee doe further give themby vertue of this our Firman in the Faith of the Great GoD, and our boly Prophet Maho-10 met; in the Faith of our Great Lord, whom GoD preserue; and in the Faith of Our selfe, Genermour of the Prosince and Citie of Sinan; free licence for to fell and buy there, heere, and in all other of our Ports, and Townes of Trade within our Government, as freely and quietly, without injurie, let, or molestation, as any of the Traders and Merchants which come to that Port of Mocha, or any other, of what nation, away of the times and agree with them, to pay for Cultume of fach goods as the bring three by the hundred, and for what they buy and carrie forth, three by the hundred, and for what they buy and carrie forth, three by the hundred through. And doe promise and sweare, in the true way of an Oath, to keepe our word with them in this Agreement; and give you all hereby to know that they shall pay neither more nor lesse. And further, that they shall receive neither injurie, hust nor danger, nor any discontent given them, either to their persons or goods, but they and their Nation Shall have, as from their first Ship that came to this Kingdome, now this, so ener to the 20 last hip that shall arrive hereafter, the like friendly entertainment, and good vsage, as we have commanded to be given them at this present. And that this is my faithfull meaning, This our Firman which comes to your hunds shall be a witnesse of the truth. Written and signed with my Royall Chop, from our Court of Sinan this eighteenth day of Iulie, in the yeere of our Prophet Mahomet 1027.

The Copie of the Gouernour of Moha his Firman, given to Master Salbank for good vsage in his way to Sinan, is this.

Mishe Name of the great God. This Letter of commandment in the name of our great Lord (whom 30 God keep) to all people, Gonernors of Townes and Cities. Know yee that it is our will and commandement, that when the Bearer hereof Ioseph Salbank, or any of his people, or any of the Nation of the English, come to your places of Government, you we them, him, and all whom foeuer, friendly and with all courtestes: that you make them pay for victuall, or other necessaries, no more then ordinarie; but rather make prouston for them, and affest them. And for what goods they shall carrie away, or bring up into the Citie of Sinan, you shall take no duites of them, as is the custome to other men, but let them. paffe free, doing them neither wrong nor injurie. Wherefore, all you to whom this Letter or Command Shall come, which I have given into his hand, I command you all, in the name of the Balha, (whom-GOD bleffe) to see this performed with all diligence. Ginen at Mocha, the twentieth of Inne, A. 1027. of our Prophet Mahomet.

Racke in a drinke made

It was agreed betwixt vs. that Master Salbanke and I should follow the businesse on land and Mr Barber should remaine aboord to prepare such things as should be fent for. The fift of May, wee went to the Scrinano to get leave for Racke to be made for our ficke men : for by reason ned and defired the Iem might be prohibited to fell them any : whereupon the Gouernour forbade the Iewes and Turkes the felling of Wine or Racke in the Towne. The Gouernour, at our and the Scrivano's request, gaue leave onely that a Iew by his appointment, should brew it in our house; but to preuent diforders, would permit none elsewhere. On the eight in the aftercting the Surae Captaine then comming alhoare, he went also to fee the manner of his entertainment. At our comming, we found the Gouernour fitting at the vpper end of a long roome vpon a Bench of stone, on a Carpet : by him in a row, on the same Bench couered with fine mattes diners Merchants, and men of qualitie about twentie; on the other fide against him, were about as many fet in Chaires: betweene them was made a lane reaching downe to a fquare place, three steps high from the stoore railed in and matted, in which the Scringro and Officers of the Custome house fate on Carpets. The Governour bade vs welcome, told vs hee had given the chiefe Broker order to come fee our goods, and procure their fale; caufed vs to fit downe, two Merchants offering vs their places, and called for Cohoh and Tobacco. After halfe twentie of his own feruents, all in white linnen, with a Tilt of red filke, many filk Streamers, his Saile of fine Callico, with divers Drummes, Waits, and ill Trumpets, his owne Iunke, and the Towne-Chambers adding their reports to make up the muficke (if fuch confuted founds may be so called ) Attended by a few flaues trimmed up with Silkes , and courfe Sattins , hee entred wine or frong that our Linguist, and others of our companie had beene drunke in a Iewes house, we complainoone, understanding the Gouernour and principall men were set in the Custome house, cape- 50 ment of the Suan houre thus spent, the Captaine came alhoare, in his owne boat curiously painted, rowed by 60

The English entertained by the Captaine of Surat. CHAP. 5.

the place where we fate, where the Gouernour rose and saluted him, and placed him next him: and many complements of welcome passed from him, and from the rest of the Merchants : only he in the height of his pride, neglected vs, and wee accordingly him, though wee thought, the Captaines courtefie to him, fending his long-boat and men to free his lunke (being foure or fine hundred tunnes, and aground ) with his kind entertainment abourd our ship, had deserved better refrect. After a little time in complements, Cohoh was againe brought to all the company, and after it fix Veits, two given to the Captaine, and foure to his foure Merchants, which being pur on, and Salams giuen, they againe tooke their feats, fitting like fo many painted Images, their Coats being of course Gold and Silver Veluet. One thing wee observed as the vsuall cu-10 shome of this Towne, at the arrivall of any lunke, and the landing of the Captaine, there is free libertie to all the Mariners and Passengers of the same Junke, to bring alhore as much of their goods as each man can carrie on his backe, free from paying any Custome : in which manner passed by at this present, three hundred persons of that lunke, with their luggage, to their habitation without moleftation. On the minth, our Landlord and the Scrinano told vs of three Junkes of Din, and foure Malabars that stayed at Aden, hearing of our ship, and would not come Feare of the without our Passe, which they intreated vs to grant. The forme of our Passe subscribed by the English. Cap aine and three Merchants, was this.

WW Hereas the Governour of the Towne of Mocha, understanding that there are divers lunkes now riding before Aden, fearing to come to this Port, as doubting good veage from us the 20 English; hath intrated vs to give unto him, our Certificate or Paffe, for the faid Innkes, or for any other that a fually trade to this Port , to come in freely, without any minrie done unto them , either in bodie or goods by vs, and to have good and friendly quarter, as lowing friends and Merchants amongst vs: Wee finding good vsage by the Governour himselfe, and forwardnesse by all men to give vs free Trade and commerce, and as well out of our good disposition, and inclination to peace, as for the saist-saltion of the Conernour, in his request; Wee, by these presents, doe promise and give them all freedome to passe quietly, and assure them friendly vsage, to their content: so as they be not enemies to our dread Soueraigne, the Kings Maiestie of England, or his Subietts. In witnesse whereif, wee have put to our Firmes, &c.

A larger Passe at the Gouernours request, and more generall, for the quiet departure of all Junkes, &c. was after made, which I forocare to transcribe.

The tenth, the Captaine of the Dabul Iuncke inuited vs to his house to a Banquet, where we Dabul Gaptain found the Gouernour with fiftie principall persons, besides Attendants; All role and bade vs his feast, we leave : wee fate not long but Coho and Sherbet were brought, Tobacco, and diversitie of Fruits, as Plummes, Apricockes and Mangos, we thinking these to bee our Feast, and readie foone after to depart. But the Gouernour and Captaine defired vs to flay, and ease Bread and Salt with them, which we did; at last, though late, our greatest cheere comming, being about fixtie Dishes of fundry forts of meats, baked, rosted, boyled, stewed, and sodde, but all mingled with Rice, with divers forts of Sallets, in manner as in India.

Our Cargason was of bad wares for the most part, which had lien in India, till they were Freedome & neere fpoyled, and fo hang on our hands; wee therefore importuned the Gouernour, and hee egreffe and charged the Broker to procure our fale with great earnestnesse: we obtayned leaue also, contrary regresse. to the common cultome, to come and goe aboord and alhoare at our pleasure without demanding any leave, and charged the Water-Bayliffe not to moleft vs. On the twentieth, it was observed in generall that the Monson changed.

The foure and twentieth, The Scringro told me that he understood that our men of the Ship, Pedling of at their comming ashoare, fold in the Bazar, Baftas and Sword blades: he faid, the Goucrnour some. had promifed for the poore mens goods to demand no custome, and therefore they should not feare to bring it ashoare, but to fell it at the house; for at the Bazar, was a difgrace to vs and our Nation. On the one and thirtieth, the ship was in danger to have been burnt, one taking Tobacco in the sprit-saile yard arme, and the cole falling in a fold of the saile, which there burn Danger by ned two or three breadths, and was long smelt before it could be found : and Tobacco taking was Tobacco prohibited, except in the Cook-roome or Captaines Cabin. In regard of recouring our ficke men, discovering the cost, and procuring ballast in stead of Lead, taken out of the ship, it was concluded, that the ship should goe over to Asab on the Coast of Africa: and Master Baffer Ma- overto Asab fters Mate, was fent to found and discouer before. The tenth of June, we had speech with the Gouernour, and in other discourse learned of him, that hee was Governour of Aden when the Ascension came thither, where hee imprisoned the Captaine and Iof. Salbanke two dayes; as he faid, doubting they were not Merchants, but a man of Warre: that he was Gouernour here at Sir H. Muddletons apprehension, which he excused by the ill rule of our people, and bad disposition of the Basha; that he was blamed for the fact; but the Balha, whose leruant he then was, commanded that and a great deale more. God knew his vnwillingnette to it, and forrow for it: but these things are past, feare you nothing. Here wee faw how farre he and the Scringro were to be trufted.

On

our purpote, to fend vp one to him for his Farman, who had promifed his welcome whether wee came or tent; he thought it our best course that one should goe, and we should have Horse, Camels and Servants of his to attend vs; and he would write in our behalfe.

628

M. Salbanks

The Gouer-

The nineteenth, arrived a Junke expected from Gudda, which brought Chamlets, bad Cor-Monion how rall, Amber beads, much Silver to invest in Spices and Indian Linnen, many passengers from Mecca. Shee brought newes of a Ship laden hence the last yeere for Grand Cairo, by losse of her Monfon through contrarie windes, forced to flay a little aboue Gudda till next yeere. By this Junke the Gouernour received letters, that the Gran Signior had fent divers ornaments of State to the Balha of Synan, and had confirmed to him his government for feven yeeres longer, IQ and himselfe in this Towne of Mocha vnder him for the like time, whereof hee seemed not a little proud. In regard of my continual indisposition, it was thought fit Master Salbank should and a prefent for the Balba to be prepared, with some merchandise also to carry with him. The Scringno offered Master Salbank his Mule to ride vpon, which he accepted with thanks, He was furnished with two Camels, one Cooke, one Horie-keeper, three Seruants of the Gouernours, whose wages he had compounded to pay, with Alberto a Linguist, and taking leane and letters of the Gouernour. On the three and twentieth, he departed about fixe in the euening, the nights being the accustomed time of tranell. That morning wee received a Letter from

On the thirteenth, the Gouernour fent for vs, told vs that he had acquainted the Bafka with the nights being the accurrence time our Captaine of his fafe arrivall at Affab; of their good health, and finding ballaft and other prouitions. On the fixe and twentieth, the Gouernour fent me a Horfe by one of his Seruants, desiring mee to ride with him in companie of other Merchants to his banketting house, some halfe mile out of Towne, there to spend the day in mirth. About halfe an houre after came the chiefe Seristano to call me, with whom I rid and met the Gouernour in the way, whom we accompanied to the place. It was in the midit of a groue of Date Trees, in which was a faire house, and within it a large Tanke, and other roomes of pleasure to sit in. After a little while, He with diners others went into the Tanke, and sported therein halfe an houre. Then was Cohohbrought and giuen the companie; after that, Grapes, Peaches, Muske, and water Melons, Almonds blanched with others, Raifins in great abundance (for he had at least fiftie or fixtie Ghefts, besides attendants) and alwayes betweene whiles Coho and Tobacco. Thus with Musicke, indifferent 30 good, he spent the forenoone. After prayers he went againe into the Tanke with others, wherein hee spent an houre in sport with his companie : after which, the rest of the time was spent. Cards, cheffes, fome at Cards, fome at Cheffe, himfelfe beholding juggling tricks untill foure at evening. Then were brought in at least a hundred dishes of divers terts, good meat, but cold and ill dressed. E. uery dish might well have served soure men with good stomacks. Hee vsed me well . and was earnest to have me into the Tanke, which I excused by my late ficknesse. He answered, if at any should permit me and vie me well. The twelfth of July, at evening was a great flew made by the Surat Captaine before the Gouernour, being the time of the New Moone: Many figures artificially made in fire-works, rare 40 wate figures, and excellent. The Governour fent for me to fee them, placed me in a Chaire by him, told mee of Letters that day received from Sinan of the Basha's Firman, granted before Master Salbante came, who hearing of his comming staid it and made another, as he gaue instructions, and deliuered it him with his owne hand.

On the thirteenth, passed by the Road of Gudda a Junke of foure or fine hundred tunnes, bound for Kuchine, a dayes faile within the entrance of the Red Sea; I suppose it not farre from Cape Guardefus on the Coast of Afrike. Shee is reported to be rich in gold, Royalls of plate, and many forts of Merchandise : veerly comes to Mocha, brings Myrrhe, Trunkes for Cobo feeds, at the first beginning of the westerly Monton, and dispatching here, goes up to Gudda or Aliambo, and there fells her Coho and Indian goods which finee taketh in at Kitchine, brought thither by dian Linnen, Gumme, Lac and Myrrhe; thee is fraighted by the Portugalls, and the Governour wished we might meet with her, which it is likely we had done, had not our ship beene absent, which returned into the Road on the one and twentieth. I went aboord, and was told, that the tainment, in requitall whereof, the King promited to fend for flore of Beeues and Goats: but in the euening, by figne of a light given, fled with all his people up into the Mountaynes, pre-time I had a defire to wash, he would have me come hither and take my pleasure, and the Keeper

Gudda of great

Portugall Junk. Portugall Frigats from Din, and other places. Her lading outward is Indico's, all manner of In-

Returne of the King of Alab with his brother and brothers sonne, had beene aboord and received good enter-

M. Salbanke

Relation of

tending a pursuit of his enemies, and neuer returned to much as thanks. The seven and twentieth, before day, Master Salbanke returned in perfect health and content with his Firmans. He related to me of his hard journey, good respect given him by the way in all places; being alway met before he entred any Towne of note, with Horle and Foot, to guard him to the Gouernours, and of them received with good welcome; his provisions provided by his voyage and their Officers (but at his owne charge) the Gouernour of Mobas fernant in the name of the Baentertainment fla, procuring his good viage. Before he came into Sinan he was met a mile without the Citie

by fortie or fiftie braue Turks well horfed, fent by the Bajha to bring him in; which conneyed him to a house readie and richly furnished against his comming. He received friendly entertainment of the principall Xeriffe and the Bafba's chiefe Treasurer, which were both appointed to welcome him. And two dayes after, the Balba himselfe gaue him hearing, of whom he received courteous entertainment and two Farmans, both of one Tenor, but one written in a fairer Character then the other, to thew to the Grand Signior, if occasion required.

CHAP. 6. Likelihood of Venting English cloth at Sinan.

I find, by his report, that the Citie of Sman with the Countrey adioyning, will vent verily fome quantitie of English cloth, those parts for three quarters of the yeere being cold; yea, in Sale of English this Summer time a man might well have endured a turred Gowne. Befides, there is a Court clothlikely 10 kept, to which belong fortie or fiftie thousand gallant Turks, most of which wore garments of Venetian cloth of great prices. Also not farre from thence lyeth a Leskar of Souldiers, to the number of thirtie thousand, that continually are in the field against an Arab King not yet con- drabia par quered, which liveth in the Mountaynes adiopning, all which, he faith, are reported to weare wholly mined Coars quilted of Cotton made of India Pintado's, which is deare and little ferniceable, for want to the Turke. of cloth to keepe them from cold, which there is extreme. To this I may aide the Citie of Tieis, and the Leskar of thirtie or fortie thouland Souldiers, gouerned by an Almaine turned Moore, fubicat to the Bafba of Sinan , where is much cloth worne , not about fue dayes journey from Mocha, vet very cold.

The fecond of August, the Governour sent our Captaine a vest, a rich one, by his chiefe Sha- The Captaine 20 bander with Drummes and Trumpets, his Boat bedecked with Flags and Streamers in great vefted. brauerie, which was deliuered with great reuerence, and received accordingly.

The eleventh, the Captaine of Dabul Melic Maruet, and Nakada Roofwan the Chaul Captaine, fent vs their Letters of recommendations to their Kings, according to our defire, certifying of our friendly viage here, and promite to defend them homewards bound from Pyrates, and therefore befeeching, in our behalfe, freedome of Trade and friendly viage in their Kingdomes. The fourteenth, we gave our Paffes (as at other times to others) vnto two Captaines of the Malabarres. Amet Ben Mahomet of Camanor under Sultan Ala Raia, and to Abu Buker of Calicut vnder the Samorine.

This day came into the Road a small Galley from Cairo, with many passengers, Turks and 30 Iemes, rich in Royals, Chekines, Corall, Damaskes, Sattins, Chamlet, Opium, Veluets and Taffata's. Shee had beene in her voyage but thirtie dayes. I had conference with the Iewes, one of which had beene of my acquaintance in Barbarie. They report, that the Grand Signiers brother, being made Emperor , had imprisoned his two Nephewes , done to death some Grandes, and otherwise discontented the great Ones, and that he was deposed, imprisoned, and the eldest of his Nephewes created. That there were two hundred thousand Souldiers sent against the Persian, for the conquest of Gurgistan, with other things; whereof some proued true, others falle, according to the fate of Merchants newes. Some leves and Tinks defired paffige for them Many paffers and their goods in our ship to Swat; and it is likely when they know vs better, much profit gers both for may be made this way, their lunkes being so pestered vsually with vnciuill people.

Thus having told and bartered our goods as well as we might, hope of such a Cargason, and and Pilgridispatched our bulinesse, wee visited the Gouernour and defired his Letter testimonial to the Lord Embassador, which he gaue vs; we tooke our leave the nineteenth of him, the Scrinana and principall men of the Towne, from whom wee received protestations of much kindnessealwayes, came abound, intending the next day to fet faile for India, in companie of the Surat Junke, according to our instructions.

CHAP. VI.

50 Briefe Notes of two Voyages of Mafter MARTIN PRING into the East Indies; the first with Captaine NICHOL . S DOWNTON, Generall of foure ships, in which be went Master in the New-vecres Gift Admirall.

Rom England to the Canaries, we vied our Chanell Compasses, and from theree Compasses. our Meridionall. Whiles we vied our Chanell Compasses, we gaue not any allowance for the variation; which afterwards we did in all our Courses. Wednesday, the fifteenth of lune, 1614. We anchored in the Road of Soldania, the Soldania latitude whereof is foure and thirtie degrees, the longitude from the Lizard eight and twentie degrees, of a great circle East, the variation one degree, thirtie minutes, North westing.

The fourth of July, we had the Cape of Good Hope East seuen leagues off. On Saturday, the The River of fixt of August, we cicried the Land of Saint Leurence. The River of Saint Augustine hath in Saint Augustine latitude twentie three degrees, thirtie eight minutes, and longitude from the Cape of Good Hope twentie three degrees, of a great Circle. Weleft it on the twelfth : and the thirteenth weelad Welminster Hall (which is a flat Hill, lying North-east by North from the Road of Saint of gustine) South-east by South nine leagues off, being in latitude three and twentie degrees, variation fruenteene degrees and twentie minutes, North westing. On the fourteenth and sifteenth, we found that the Current had fet vs to the North, of our account, fixe leagues.

Jeguna.

On the eighteenth, by observation of the Sunne at noone, wee found the clevation of the South Pole to be feventeene degrees and twentie fixe minutes. The three and twentieth, wee descried the land of loanna.

The second of September, we passed the Line: the ninth, wee anchored in Delista Road on 10 the North fide of Socorora, in twelve degrees and thirtie five minutes, variation eighteenedegrees and thirtie minutes, longitude eleuen degrees and twentie minutes, of a great Circle to the Fast of Saint Augustine.

Their anchoring, and what paffed at Swally, yee had before in Captaine Downson. The second of March, we lett the Road of Smally. On the fourth, we were as low as Damon, and faw the Vice-roy with his Paderofa Armada, which chafed vs till the fixt at noone, and then left vs. Whirlewinds. The night before wee came in fight of Damon, wee had many Whirlewinds, the weather being cleere, as if the two Montons had beene striuing for victorie. The fixteenth, Cochin bare three leng ies off East halfe North. It stands in ten degrees close by the waters side; the Land solow that we could fee nothing but Trees : but vp in the Countrey are Mountaynes : variation fifteen degrees North North-eatling, this evening.

The nineteenth, at noone being Sunday, there was an Eclipse of the Sunne, the end whereof by my observation, continued till one in the afternoone and fortie five minutes. The distance of the Sunne from the Zenith, was twentie feven degrees and thirtie minutes, just as the Eclipse was ended. Munday, by observation of the Crossers we were in fixe degrees, and by the Starres of the great Beare alfo. Tuelday, at fine in the morning, we descried the Coast of Seylows fine leagues off, which neere the water fide rifeth full of small Hummocks, and vp in the Country are Mountaynes, whereof one like a Friers Cowle. Friday , Punta de Galia North-east halfe North eight leagues off, wee perceived that the Current fet westward. By observation of the Starre in the great Beares backe, we were in fine degrees and thirtie minutes.

Currents.

Salt Ilands,

Thele Marine

here abridged and cut off

par ly occuse I thinke iew

Marmers

experience; and in the borrow.d

broks of the Companie, I

was orceden

now in on .

wh.le in ano-

te:iall in this

Eclipfe.

The fourth and fift of Aprill , we perceived the Current had fet vs five leagues and two third 30 parts to the North, being in one degree and fiftie minutes, when by our way wee should have been in one degree thirtie three minutes. We found a like Current on the ninth. The two and twentieth, wee found that the Current had carried vs in foure dayes thirteene leagues to the South of our computation. The third of May, at noone, wee were in foure degrees and thirtie minutes, and found that fince the former noone the Current had carried vs foure leagues South of our computation. We had fight of Sumatra. The like we found at noone the next day. Wee faw the He of Enganio, the North point bearing South-west eight leagues off. The fixt, at noon, we were in fine degrees and thirtie feuen minutes, carried to the South of our accounts fine leagues by the Current. We law the South point of Sumatra East South-east low by the water. Punicelone ile.

On the feuenth, we were at noone in fixe degrees and ten minutes, the Current having fet discour es are vs fixe degrees and an halfe to the South of our accounts.

This morning we faw the Salt He, which is in the entrance of the Straights of Sunda, bearing East, two third parts North. The tenth of May, the South-east winds began to blow fresh, onely now and then a gust which would sometimes alter it, and that about the change or full of the Moone, or elfe we had it alway betweene the South South-east, and the East Southwili much affell that part, talt : but most commonly at South-east. On the tenth, the Generall ( wee being able to doe and now many no good the other way) thought best to beare up to the North of the Salt Iles, where vnder the North end of the Northermost , wee anchored in twentie fadoms oaze, within three kn with m by quarters of a mile of the shoare, finding the like depth all alongst the North end of this Illand in that distance. Betweene the high Salt-Ile and this, is Pumicestone-Ile, which alwaies burneth, and cafts forth Pumicestones like to Fuego. The Northermost we called Coco, of the fruit found there. These Pumicestones we cast into the water, which swam like Corke. The twelsth, the Pinnaffe was tent to Pulo-Beeed for water: it was brackish. On the fixteenth, our men found a Pond of fresh water, on the North end of the Salt Ile, in the flat ground by the waters side, be Scribe my feite, thete- and filled water there. We fet faile thinking to have gotten to the South of the Salt Ile, the diouinclient winde being at North-east, but could not prevaile against the Currant. The nineteenth, we were w. ich wari d m. Yer haue I in fixe degrees, fine minutes of South latitude.

The twentieth, the Current North North-west and North-west, whereas before for ten degrees it had fet directly Weit betweene those Hands. After much contending with the weather and Current, having had very good water from Palmeto the, expressed He, halfe a mile within the East point in a landy Coue. the most a.

The first of I me, we set faile and stood to the South, making a South-west way by meanes of the Current that fets West South-west, along It the shoare. On the three and twentieth of June, CHAP.7.S. I. Croffe lost at Soldania. Current from Saint Helena, Maiter Iordan came aboord: and the next our Generall fent a Prefent to the King of Bantam, Note, that while we rid in the Straits mouth, we found the Current from twelue at noone, till four in the morning torunne very fwift, and from thence till noone very easie. Sunday the fixth of August, our Generall departed this life.

The tenth of October, Captaine Tordan came in the Juncke from Lacatra, and related his kind entertainment, the King being wholly denoted to vs, and hating the Dutch.

The feuen and twentieth of Nouember, the Flemmings fet vpon Kemee his house (he was our Merchant to buy Pepper forvs) with intent to keepe him Priloner in their owne house: But 10 Captaine lordan having notice thereof prefently went and referred him in despight of the Flemmings, and brought him to the English-house. The two and twentieth of December, having received our lading, we left the Road of Bantam.

The fenenth of Ianuary, we were in fenen degrees fine minutes of South Iatitude, wee found that the Current had set vs South South-east nine leagues in twentie houres, the variation this evening was three degrees fortie minutes North-westing. The two and twentieth, our Generall Matter Thomas Elbington departed this life.

The first of March, we anchored in the Bay of Soldania, our Company most part in good Soldania. health. The next day we fet vp our Tents ashoare, landed our ficke men and our water caske. On Sunday the third, Cory came downe vnto vs, who told vs of one Captaine Crosse, which lived cory. vpon Penguin lland with eight men and a Boy : to whom Master Dodsworth had given a Boat. I 20 fent the Pinnasse which brought three, and left there other three. These reported , that on Saturday laft, Captaine Croffe with two others, their Boat being fplit in pieces, made a Gingada of Croffe with o-

Timber, and had gotten halfe way betweet the land and the flip, when two Whales of eye the condemby them, one of them foncere, that they fit ook him on the backe with a wooden first, after ned perions which they desired the state of the st which they funke downe and left them. Captaine Croffe thus terrified with the Whales, and there. benummed with the water, returned to the lland, and having shifted a shirt and refreshed him - crossolos. felfe, aduentured the second time, giving charge to one of the Company, to have an eye on him folong as he could fee him. This fellow faith, he faw him a great way from the Iland, and on the fudden loft fight of him; which is the last newes of him.

The eight of March, (all things ready) we departed, having gotten good flore of sheepe and 30 fome Bullockes. From the Tropike till we were in one degree eighteene minutes of South latitude, we met alway with a Southerly Current, which fet vs to the South about feuen or eight miles in foure and twentie houres. The reason I guesse to be, because we were alway to the Eastwards of that Current, which fets towards the North-west from Saint Helena, fo that wee went in the edge of the Eddy of the North-west Current. The fine and twentieth of Iune, 1616. we arrived in the Downes.

CHAP. VII.

40 The second Voyage of Captaine PRING into the East-Indies, Or a Relation of the fifth Voyage for the loynt Stocke, fet forth by the Honorable and Worshipfull of the East-Indic Societie: consisting of fine Ships, viz. the Iames Royall, of burthen a thousand tunnes, Rowland CoyT-MORE Master: the Anne Royall, nine bundred tunnes; ANDREW SHILLING Master : the Gift, eight hundred tunnes ; NATHA-NIEL SALMON Mafter: the Bull, foure hundred tunnes: ROBERTADAMS Master: the Bce, one hundred and 50 fiftie tunnes; IONH HATCH Mafter. All under the Government of MAR-TIN PRING.

Occurrents in the way, at Surat, Bantam, and Iacatra.

Nno 1 6 1 6. The fourth of February, our Fleet departed from Granefend. Thursday the fixth, Master Maurice Abbot, Deputie with divers of the Commission ners were aboord the ships, and mustered all our men and payd their Harborough wages. The next day they departed, and all our men were entred into whole pay. After much foule weather. The fift of March , wee departed from the Downes. March the feuenth, we had the Lizard North foure leagues off, which

621

Their returne.

I eth in fiftie degrees ten minutes. From the Lizard we steered away by a Meridionall Compale, giving allowance in all our courses for the Variation. The seven and twentieth, 1617.at noone we had in latitude twentie eight degrees ten minutes, the North-east point of the Gran Canaries Well North-well fine leagues off.

The two and twentieth of June, we had fight of Soldania point, and the fame afternoone anchored in the Bay, whence we departed on the thirteenth of July. On the three and twentieth. we descrived Terra de Natal.

The third of August, we descryed the land of Saint Laurence, in twentie two degrees fortie fixe minutes of latitude. On the eleventh, we faw the lle of Molalia. The Kings name is Five no Mary OF annal II: Pamon the name of the Port where we road: Commore by the Inhabit. tants is called Angazija. The next lland to the East is loanna : and the next to the East-ward of that is Mamotta.

The fixe of August, at night the Moone was totally eclipsed, when the foot of the Crofiers was nine above the Horizontic began at eight, and continued til it was past eleuen, and was totally eclipsed for the space of an houreand halfe. The fine and twentieth of August, at night betweene leven and eight a clocke in South latitude foure degrees twentie minutes. The water of the Sea feemed almost as white as Milke, and so continued till the next morning; and then as the day came on the water began to alter againe. The next night wee were in the same water againe, but not altogether so white. The thirtieth, before day we saw the fore-taid white water againe : and likewife the next night, but could find no ground.

The eight of September, we mounted the rest of our Ordnance; this night attwelve of the clocke we had fix foote and an halfe water in hold, which in foure houres with both Pumps was freed, and after that the Pumps did fucke to much in the space of halfe an houre, that it would rife twelue inches water.

The minth, in the morning, I caused the Chiefe Commanders of the Fleete to come abourdwhere after that I had given them notice of the Accident, I willed them to fend for their carpenters to have their advice in fearthing for the Leake, and some of their Companies besides to helpe our men to pumpe; others to rummage in hold, and the rest to stirch our sprit-layle with Ocom, wherewith we made tryall divers times under the bildge of the shippe, but could not find the Leake, yet by divers experiments within boord, we found that the Leake was before the Math, and therefore the next morning being the tenth, wee fitted our sprit-sayle againe, as before, and let it downe before the sterne of the ship, and so brought it afterwards on by degrees, vitil by our judgement it was vider the farfe of the keele, and the sterne, and there (God bee prayfed) our Leake was partly flopped, for it rose not aboue fixe inches in a Glasse , where before it role twelue inches. After this comfortable newes, we steered away our course, and within three Glaffer after the Ocom was washed out, so that we came to our old frint againe: this night we fent for one of the Buls Pumpes to free our water from before, where there was alwayes till then a foot and an halfe water more then was in the Well.

The cleuenth, we fitted our fprit-faile with Ocom, and let it downe againe, in which action it pleased God to to fauour vs, that within an houre after, our shippe was thighter then at any time befor , which I pray God long to continue.

The swelfth, in the morning we deferyed a fayle which the Gift did fetch up in the afternoone : this was a Portugall which came from Mocambique, having about fif it Kintals of Elephants teeth. In the morning, the Bee came to vs from Swally Road, and gaue vs intelligence of the rest of the Fleet, that they were all in fafetie in the Road of Swally, which was no small joy vnto vs. Likewife, we vnderstood that they had brought the luncke and the two shippes, which they chafed the fixteenth of this moneth, into the Road with them; the lunckebeeing a Captain Neues great thip of Surat, belonging to the Mother Queene, the other two English thippes which had her in chafe, the one of the flups was called the Francis, a flup of one hundred and fixtie tunnes, ) the other the Lion of one hundred and twentie tens, fet forth by at Swelly, wee Philip Bernardy, an Italian Merchant in London. The Captaine in the Francis was Neuce, and of the Lion Thomas lones, who in former time had beene Boat-swaine of the Hector.

This eneming (God be prayled) we arrived in Swally Road without the Sands, where wee Gondeuer, with found the rest of the Fleet; the fore-faid luncke, and the two English-men of Warre; the Bull the Rosterdam and the Lion being got in on the barre. The fine and twentieth, I game order that the Francis should goe in also, that we might be more secure of her and her Confort; the same evening, the final Punnaffe; Bee and the Prize went in alio.

The ninth of October, at night, I fent vp one and twentie chefts of Corall to Sarat, which ashoare. The was landed from the Anne two dayes before; at night I fent eight tunne, four hundred of E-18. heather: lephants teeth to Surat from the Prize. In the morning, wee had a confultation abound the 60 lames, where it was determined that the Anne or Gift, thould by Gods grace bee laden for Eng-

This afternone, twentie fayle of Frigats from Goa, arrived at the harre of Surat, the Cap-Portugall spies, taine Maior, Don Pedro de Afadedo, from one of those Frigats, fine of the Countrey people came ashoare amongst our men, which being discouered, three of them fied and two were taken by our guard, who confessed that they came from Goa a moneth before, being commanded by the Vice-Regent to range the Coast, to discouer the English; which found, they were to returne againe, if not deferyed, to proceed on for Cambaya to waste the Caffallo.

The fourteenth * in the morning, I fent fourteene tunne of Elephants teeth to Surat, from * This mor-The fourteenth in the morning i that toure the theorem that went for the Conuoy of our mony ning the 17.
the Prize, which were guarded up with thirtie fixe men that went for the Conuoy of our mony faile of Figure handred teeth faile of Figure to Amadauar. The feuenteenth, wee fent up twelve tunne, and foure hundred teeth.

The seventeene Frigats aforesaid returned againe faire by vs, and stood to the South-ward, Cambana, paswe fent the rest of our teeth to Surat. On the two and twentieth, and this afternoone we lan- fing faire by vs. Io ded fixteene chefts of Corall, and two of Mors teeth from the Bull.

The fourteenth of Nouember, being Friday, we dispeeded the Bee for lasques, a monethes pay was given to all the Company in the Fleet, (the chiefe Commanders and the Merchants excepted) which amounted to three thousand three hundred and two Rials of eight. And after that, this afternoone we landed Cloth, Tinne, Cases of Wine, and strong Waters, with the rest of the Presents that were in the Cabbin.

The fenenteenth of Ianuary, being Saturday, the Bee returned from Persia: this day seuen Mallabar Iunckes Road in the offing, to whom I fent out the Francis, who brought in two of them, and the Bee other two.

Thursday, the twelfth of March, we departed from Swally Road, the same evening we ancho-20 red neere the Barre of Surat. The feuenteenth, in the morning, the wind veered up Northerly, and in the afternoone the Anne departed from vs, bound for the Red Sea. Tuesday, the eighteenth, I dispeeded the Bull. At noone wee had gone South-east by South twelve leagues, latitude, eleuen degrees twentie fine minutes, the winds (as foure or fine dayes before) at night a little breath off the shoare, by day in the afternoone a fresh gale from the Sea; this day in the fore-moone we saw eight sayle of ships to the South-wards of vs, and three betweene vs and the shoare; moreouer, two Gallies and ten Frigats, these were chased to the North-wards, by the Bee and the Francis, which I had fent the night before, to keepe faire the shoare. The eight and twentieth, in the afternoone the Francis and the Bee being neere the shoare, and thwart of Cal. K. of Calius. licent; the King fent off a Boat pretending to bee very defirous to speake with me, but I was too

30 farre fhot to the South-wards before that I heard the newes. The second of Aprill, 1618, in the morning, we got into the Bay of Brin Ian, where we an- Brin Ian and chored in fourteene fathome water, within halfe a league of the Towne, a high picked hill like therefreshing vnto a Sugar-loafe, hearing North-east by East by the Compasse, which is the best marke if it be cleane, to know the place; here is good refreshing to bee had, Hennes and Coco Nuts in abundance, Goates and great itore of fish, also good fresh water springing from a Rocke; but wee were faine to pay seuentie Rials of eight, a Vest of Cloth, a small Peece, a Looking-glasse, and a Sword, and all too little to give her content. For after the Governour had received the Prefent with the mony, and granted vs leave, he came againe with feuen or eight hundred men, and de- Perfidious manded more money, and had we not kept a strong guard at the spring, hee would have put vs people:

40 by it after our money was paid. Sunday, the fifth, at one of the clocke at night, the wind comming off the shoare, we weighed anchor and departed. This evening we were thwart of a headland, which lyeth South-east by East fron Brin lan eight leagues, from whence vnto the Cape East, two thirds South are seven leagues. Neere vnto the first head-land lyeth two Rockes a good heighth aboue water and a mile without them, there is a most dangerous Rocke, which is Dangerous cuer with the furface of the water, but if you come not within twentie fixe fathome, you shall Rockes. goe cleere enough.

On the feuenth, in the euening at fixe we had Cape Commorin North North-east one third, Cane Commo-North fine leagues off, being in thirtie fathome. The nineteenth of Iune, Captaine Ball and rine. Matter Pickham came aboord. This atternoone (God bee prayled) wee arrived in the Roade of

The foure and twentieth, I went to the Pangram, to compose the matter betweene Cap- Emman. taine Ball and the Chinefes, whole Iuncke Captaine Ball had arrefted for certaine debts due by the Chineses; where (according to Captaine Balls defire) I made proffer of the re-delinery of the Iuncke, conditionally, that the Pangram would doe vs Iustice; which he passed his word to performe, Munday, the fixth of July, in the afternoone, I went agains to the Pangram, Mafter Fangram of George Ball, Mafter Rich, Mafter Pickham, and divers other Merchants in company. His malice Bantam his ?n. was io great against Maiter Ball, that he would not grant him accesse, whereupon I sent him inslice, word that Maiter Ball had brought the bils of debt, and was onely able to give a reason of all paffages between the English and the Chineses, whereof I was veterly ignorant, his Messenger 60 returned the fecond time, and told me that Mafter Ball might not be admitted, and so wee left the Court. The hrit of September in the morning, the windbeing off the shoare, we weighed, and stood towards Point Agre, keeping along in leven fathome vpon the maine, vntill wee were within Point Agre. three miles of the fand Point, where we had feuen fathom wanting a quarter the one cast, and

This this did belo . o Deu Petr de simomoder the guoda M. jambique. and over Atour arrivall belonging to( Durch thips c it away at the one forced ly 1617- one in fight of ena- land.

way that wee 1, in the Road Delinerance.

from 3-dangers. The 19. of this monerh the Angel a Dutch thip of 500. tunnes,came from Ambonia Inden with nuts & clou: 5. and departed from thence the as of the

The Detth had the next but three fathom; fome supposing that our ship did touch, but I could not perceive it, Off this Point there lieth a flat should almost with the frame of the water, but you haute feuen Of this roint there need a net model among the fathom within two Cables length of it. This afternoone, as we ftood in with the Duch flips, which rode in the faire way betwire the two llands, even as wee came within a mile of the way this were to path: flips, our flip came aground, but (G o p be prayled ) we got her off agains without any hort were to patter maps, our map came agrounds and the day, where against wee came within two Cables length of another should, which lieth South-east by South from the Flemmish Iles, one league and an halfe off.

Wednelday, the fecond of September in the afternoone, it pleafed Gon to bring vs into the Road of Jacatra in fafety, having delivered vs from three imminent dangers the day before, Go D grant we may alwaies remember it with praife and thankefgiuing to his holy Name.

The fixe and twentieth of September, being Saturday, early in the morning, I went to vifite the King the fecond time, remayning in his Parke; and finding him in a plealant vaine, I moued him concerning of former businesses, and before I left him, we came to a finall conclusion, which was this: First, in consideration of our free importation and exportation of all manner of Commodities, to give him seven hundred Rials of eight per annum, and fifteene hundred Rials of eight, for a plat of ground to build on.

ð. I I.

Dutch wrongs, and the Fights betwist Sir THOMAS DALE

Vnday, the feuen and twentieth in the euening, Marker Bilhop arrived in this Road, in a Praw, which came from Ispparra, wherein was a Cogee which brought the Main a Praw, wintercame Iron copper on whether or I dispected him for Bentam the fame inght: he left two English behind him at Inparra, one of them being field from the might: Dutch, and had Letters from divers of our People that are prisoners in the Moluccus, and among st the rest, one was directed unto me from Master Richard Tatten, wherein he complaineth very much of the boarish vsage of the Dutch, that will hardly allow them Rice to put in their bellies, and that vpon euery idle newes of the comming of any ships, they are still put in Irons.

The thirteenth of October in the evening, Cornelius Marthon, Commander of the French ship next morning about ten of the clocke, at which time by letting downe of a fayle bailed with Ocum, it pleased G on to stop the leake againe. The one and thirtieth, I discouered a place in the Bay of Bantam, we made all things readie to repaire vnto the forefaid Hand.

French thin tataken by the Dutch, came into the Road, and the same night came aboord of me, and after some ken by Dutch. discourse told me, that we had fixe ships comming for this place out of England, Six Thomas Dale Sit Thomas Date Admirall, for some speciall businesse at the Molucous, and that hee was bound thither with the French ship, the Soulahailer, and the Neptune, to attend the comming of good friends. The feuen and twentieth in the enening, wee had foure foot and an halfe water in the Iames Royall, which wee freed in two houres with both our Pumpes, and afterward kept our Pumpe going vntill the

to the English.

Taniam point, for the careening of the lames Royall, vpon the little lland, that lith next within Taniam point

The fifteenth of Nouember, the Rose arrived from Teco , bringing newes that the Hollanders had a Factorie there established soone after that ours was dissolved. The ninteenth, the Moone, the Cloue, the Samson, and the Pepper-corne, arrived from England, and anchored betweene Unan point, and Poolo-Pariang. This day I went abourd of them, taking with me such fresh victuals as our thip did affoord to congratulate their comming. Comming neers, I perceived the Clove to be Admirall, and therefore went first aboord of her, where I found Sir Thomas Dale the chiefe Commander, and Captaine Iordaine the President; I understood by them, that they lost companie of the Globe to the Wellward of the Cape, and (which was farre worse) that they left the Sunne (Admirall of the Fleet) in great danger of calling away, upon the Ile of Engano; they themselves having much adoe to double the Iland. Two dayes they rode still in this place expecting her comming, which was long before bildged vpon the Rockes, as afterwards we understood to our great griefe. The two and twentieth in the morning, the forefaid ships itood in for Bantam Road, and as they passed by the Hand where our ship lay, wee faluted them with fifteene Peeces of Ordnance, which we had formerly planted on the shoare, and withall, tooke in our Flag, to thew our respect to Sir Thomas Dale, the Admirall of that Fleet.

The eight and twentieth of Nouember, came two boats from Engano, with fixtie eight of the Swanes men, who brought lamentable newes of the loffe of the faid thip with many of the companie, vpon the forefaid Iland. The nine and twentieth in the morning, the Globe arrived; 60 Leake againe. this day our leake brake out againe, but was quickly stopped (Go D bee praised) by remocuing of the Bonnet. The thirtieth, our flaip being cleared from stemme to sterne, the Carpenter went downe to fearch for the leake, and as they passed forward, still taking up the feeling as they went, in the formost roome fauing one, they found the leake being an augur hole left open in the middle of the keele; which was four einches and three quarters about, which Their leake leake, if it had fprung vpen vs alone in the Sea, would have tired all our companie in foure and found, being leaks, if it had fprung vpen vs alone in the sea, would hade thet all our companie in rolle and an aput hole twentie houres, herein the great mercie of Go D did manifestly appeare, in that it neuer brake leit open. out but when we had a Fleet about vs for our aide, Go p giue vs grace alwaies to remember it with praise and thanksgiving to his holy Name.

The fecond of December being Saturday, Sir Thomas Dale and Captaine Ball came aboord, because we had proclaimed a Fast through both the Fleets, and the Exercise to bee abourd the AFattin both Lames the next day, which was the Sabbath: on which morning, the Prefident and divers Mer. Fleets. chants came aboord, bringing Master Wrenne in companie : the Preacher of the Sunne, who ex- Master Wrenne to errifed in the fore-noone, and Master Copeland our Minister, in the after-noone. This day the and copined. Bee let faile for Engano, being formerly ordained to goe thither, in hope to recour fome moneys and goods they hold of the Sunne. The fourth in the after-noone, the Swart Lee arrived from Potania, and rode to the Westward of Poolo Paniang; Master Denton in regard of his acquaintance amongst the Dutch, was sent aboord of her in the barge, to enquire from whence shee came: who when he came aboord, found one Hendricke lanfon his old acquaintance, a man that had beene chiefe Factor for the Dutch in Potania a long time. This man with another inferiour Factor came abound the Moone with Master Denton, where they were well entertained, till Sir

Thomas Dale came aboord, and foone after were fet on shoare at Bantam the same night, before day we resolved to goe forth with source ships, the Moone, the Clone, the Globe, and the Sam son, that we might the better incompalle her. At breake of day wee were faire by her, and after a few exchange of Parles, they yeelled up their ship, upon condition that they might depart The BackeList with all fuch goods, as did properly belong vinto them. On the fixt, we brought her in neere a Ducto this ta-

the Hand where we had left the reit of our Fleet.

The fourteenth, the Bee returned agains beaten back with foule weather, that the was not able to get out of the Straights. On the fixteenth in the after-noone, there came twentic Poringuezes abourd the Iames Royal, fled from the Datch at Iacatra, which were freely received, and kindly entertained. This evening, we were readie to fet faile with eleven ships great and small for Incarra, in hope to beat away the Dutch thips from thence; The names of the thips were the The English Moone , in which Sir Thomas Dale went, the Gift, wherein I went my felte , the Unicorne , the thips, 30 Close, the Globe, the Samfon, the Pepper-corne, the Thomas, the Bee, the Rose, and the Swart Leo; leaving behind vs the lames Royall, there to take in her provisions, also the Prize, and the Aduce, because they had most of her proussion in them. The ninteenth in the morning, wee set faile with our Fleet aforelaid, and the same day wee anchored betweene Poolo Paniang, and Poolo Tunda. The twentieth in the evening, we anchored with all our Fleet about a league to the Northwards of Heltor-Hand. This night we fent the barge to the Flemmit llands, where they found no people at all upon the Souther Hand, there lay a Dutch Galley which they fet on fire, and so returned abourd the same night. This evening, wee descried seven roders in the Bay of Incatra. The one and twentieth early in the morning, these seuen ships stood off with vs vntill they were fomewhat neere the Hands, and there they came to an anchor altogether. This 40 afternsone we flood in towards them, and anchored a mile to windward of their Fleet. This evening, we had a confultation aboord the Moone, where it was refolued, That the next mor- Confultation ning we should assault the Holland Fleet in manner following: The Globe, and the Samson, for between the between the the Sunne; and the Thomas to passe in betweene them, fitted with combustible matter to let her English and on fire; the Mocne, and the Clone, for the Golden Lion; the Gift, and the Bee, for to attempt Dutch Fleets. the Angell; the Unicorne, and the Rose, for the Demillof Delfe; the Pepper-corne was sent forth to furprise the burget boat come from lambee; riding about three leagues off; whose boat with thirteene men, our barge had taken as thee was thanding in with the Holland Fleet, about feuen of the clocke at night: this our determination being written downe, we departed aboord eucry man to his charge, but after we were gone, Sir Thomas Dale fent his boat aboord the Thomas, for three Sakers, which held them in worke till eight the next morning, so that the Hollanders were all away b. fore these Ordnance were aboutd the Moone, which made vs all in a hurliburly to weigh, and get to feawards, that we might have fea-roome, and the advantage of the featurne; the which at length wee attained, getting without the Hes of Point Aire: the Holland Fleet passing betweene them and the maine of laus. So that the same night they anchored saire about the Coast of Issa; and our Fleet in the offing without the Hands.

On the three and twentieth, in the morning , the Holland Fleet flood off to the Weltward close under Anti-Lackie. The Deuill of Delft borrowing so neere that shee came aground, and fate fast for a quarter of an houre; which was no fooner perceived by vs, but forthwith we made The Fight; towards them with all our Fleet; yet before we drew any thing neere, the was thipt off againe; See Majer and thee with all the reft of the Fleet standing off to the Northwards : our Fleet haung the Corths of Sec. Na irr weather gadge, wee paid roome vpon them, till weecame within that, and then the Mone, nathwhiteyou (wherein was Sir Thomas Dale the Admirall) beganne the fight with the headmore thip of the Thin Delector-Dutch, named the Sunne; our fight continued the space of three hours, during which time wee transhifter fpent some twelve hundred great shot amongst them , and so left them for that night; they lorders flanding off so farre to the Northwards, that they got the Burger boat into their companie, and then anchored to the westwards of vs, about halte a league : there they rode all night.

Gife, the Vincorne, and the little lames; and the next morning anchored neere Poolo-Pen-lano,

The foure and twentieth, both Fleets weighed anchor, ours plying to the weitward to gaine the wind; and the Hollanders ranne in to the shoare, towards Point Aire: in the meane time wee deferred three Saile comming from the westward afore the wind, which comming nere, we perceived to be the little Lames, the Hound, and the Francois; and after they were come neere vs, we isyned all together, and chased the Holland Fleet, through the Bay of lacutra vince the Easterne point of the same; where wee all came to an anchor in the evening. This night there was a lunke fent from the Flemmings at Iseatra, filled with combustible matter, and fet on a light fire, which came so nere vnto our Ficet, that we were faine to weigh or an - 10 chors and be gone. The fine and twentieth, being Christmas day, wee faw the Flemmijo Fleet againe, standing to the Eastwards, and the same day, wee sent out our barge to follow them all night, and fee what course they tooke, because we had left the Iames Rejall in the Bay of Bartam, with the Advice, and the Prize, which thips they might have surprised, if they should get Bantam before vs ; for there was no ship of defence, but the lames, and shee vnprepared, by taking in of her goods.

The seven and twentieth after midnight, the Blacke Lion was set on fire by the wretched carelefness of three wicked fellowes, and burnt downe to the water. The thirtieth in the morning, the Prefident went ashoare to the King of Iacatra, with Master Iohn Iack fon in companie. went afhoare to view their fortifications, where an vnfortunate shot tooke away his leg, and so confiquent. 20 at lacatra.
Mafter lack fon ly his life.

The fift of Ianuarie, the Iames Royall, the Adnice, and the Prize, arrived from Bantam. The fecond, Sir Thomas Dale went a shoare to visite the King of lacatra, and to vinderstand his refolution concerning the Dutch Fort: The King gaue both the Prefident and him great content in words, promifing to grant any reasonable request, if the English would affist him in surprising of the Durch Catile. This morning before day, the Francois departed for Polarome, with divers promisons for reliefe of that worthipfull Gentleman, Mafter Nathaniel Corthop, and his companie, God fend her thither in fafetie. The fixt day, we held a confultation abourd the Moone, where it was refolued, That out of our greater ships we should land fix Peeces, three Culuerings, and three D.mi-culurings, with powder and shot, convenient to affift the King of Iaccatra 30 against the Dutch, also that Sir Thomas Dale should remaine in the Road with eight Saile, to countenance the businesse, and my selfe with fixe ships to plie for the Straits of Sunda, to lie in Wait for the Holland Fleet. The fine and twentieth, being Munday, wee got into the Road of Becce, and anchored in fifteene fathoms oze, about two miles from the shoare, the South point of Becce, bearing South-west one quarter West, and the North point of Sabaioa: (the Wester Ile of Poolo Tiga, being that in vpon it) did beare North by West three leagues off. The twentie feaen and twencie eight, we watered our ships, and cut wood; and my selfe with Master Coitmore, and other Masters went ashcare twice, to view the Harbour; which wee found to bee an excellent place for refuge of a small Fleet against a greater force. The one and thirtieth , by order from the Prefident, we put into Bantam Road with our Fleet.

The first of Februarie, Captaine Iohn Iourdan the President came abourd; who acquainted me with all the passages betwire them and the Dutch, in the Castle of Iacatra, during the time of my ablence; which was that the Dutch had condescended to deliuer over their Fort vnto the mentws crost English, upon condition they might depart with bag and baggage, and a ship for two thousand fed by the Fort Reals of eight, to carrie them for Coromandell. On the fourth, Sir Thomas Dale with fixe ships, viz. the Moone, the Cloue, the Iames, the Peppercorne, the Hound, and the Aduice, arrived in Bantam Road. This afternoone, the rest of the ships came in. Here, after our arrivall voderstanding that the Pomgram of Bantam had dealt under-hand with the Dutch, to have the Castle of Iaceatra delivered into his hands (who before had vniustly disappointed vs of it) we thought it fitting, that the Prefident, and the rest of the Principals should repaire abourd, and forthwith 50 birds, but in fine to get all their goods and prouision from the shoare. The tenth, elementh, twelfth, thirteenth, was deceived. fourteenth, fifteenth, and fixteenth, we were imployed in getting the Honourable Companies moneys and goods aboord the fhips : during this time, the Pangram ient divers flight meffengers vnto the Prefident, to demand (as from themselves) the reason of his departure, he (as he faid) giving them no other infloccation, so to leave his Countrey: whereupon the President drew certaine Articles of the feuerall wrongs and grieuances, that the English had received from time to time at his hands, which were to bee translated into the land language, and

The fenenteenth, Mafter Vfflet aduiled from Iacatra, that the Flemmings were fortifying daily. And also, that when the Messengers of the Pangran demanded the surrender of their Fort, with 60 part of their Moneyes, Goods and Ordnances; They answered, That it was their Masters goods, and therefore not fit for them to give them away. About noone, wee heard of the arrivall of two Dutch thips, in the Road of Iacatra. The fame night , Sir Thomas Dale with eight thips, went for I acatra, in quest of the faid ships, and I remayned here with foure to attend vpon the Prefito pridy up our ships, and to take in water and planks that lay by our side. The first of March in the morning, we weighed againe, and plyed towards the mouth of the Streights, where we descried the foure Dutch ships aforesaid at anchor, neere vnto the Iland called Tamporon, which lyeth about three leagues to the Westward of Viun or Pallambam point. So foone as we descried them we made towards them with all speed : and they in a careleile fa- Datebbrauery. 10 thion plyed it to and againe with their top failes halfe mast downe, and at length as wee drew neere vinto them, the Admirall and the rest bore vp with our ship, being the winder most of our Fleet; and gaue vs two shot, one through the ships side under the halfe decke; and the other in the fleeridge tide.

This I declare, because men may the better understand the insolencie, or rather vinrualencie of vinivalencie of this arrogant Nation, to come on with fuch a Spanish brauado, and to foone to run away, of the Dutch. They had no sooner begun, but they were as quickly answered from our ship, in such a measure, that within the space of two houres (by the gracious a listance of Almightie God) wee made Their flight them as quiet as Lambs; the Admirall, that first gaue the on-set, being the first that ran away, and after him all his Fleet; whom we chased vntill night, and then finding them too light of foote, gaue over the chafe. The night wee flood over towards Poolo Tunda. The record in the 20 afternoone, we anchored againe in the Road of Bantam; this day we had newes from lacatra, that one of the two Dutch ships aforenamed, was fast on ground hard by their Castle, and that they themselves at fight of Sir Thomas Dales fleet, had let her on fire. The other thip which Dutch thip tooke in some rich goods out of the Castle, was likewise cast away vpon certaine Rocks, ten burnt, and anleagues to the Ealtwards off lacatra. The fourth dicto, we received the Letter from Io. Powell, other cafta. refiding in lacatra, that Sir Tho. Dale departed from thence the first of March with the Moone, way. the Hound, the Rose, and the Bee, to learth out the Flemming that was cast away. The fourteenth in the forenoone, we had newes from Sir Thomas Dale, that hee had gotten almost in shot of these foure ships; and then they were taken with a calme the space of twelve houres, and after this calme there did arise a tempest in the night, which scattered them so farre atunder, that the A Tempest. 30 next morning they were out of hope of their chafe, and to returned to point Agre againe, determining forthwith to come vnto vs with the Moone, and to leave the rest of his Fleet to take in some prouitions from Iacatra.

of March, we consulted aboord the Unicorne, of our best course to bee taken with the Fleet, where it was refolued, that we should goe for the Coast of Coromandell, which (as we were informed) is a good Countrey for the health of men, and abounding with Rice, Wheat, Butter, Grauances, &c. which could not here be had for any money.

ð. III.

Their departure for Coromandell: Occurrents there: Sir THOMAS DALES death. English ships taken by the Dutch. Consultation and provisions at Teco, and departure thence.

Prill 19. 1619. being Munday, all our thips being together that were in this place, and the three lunks at anchor amongst vs, wee resolued in counsell to put the honorable Companies Committion in execution, which was to appropriate the Chineses goods vnto them for former debts. On Tuefday, Kenee came abourd to the Prefident, accom-panyed with the three Nochadas or Captaines of the Iuncks, to know his intent; who answeored them, That if the young King of Bantam would displace the Pangran, he would then come and Biebir with him, and deliuer ouer the Iuncks againe. The eight and twentieth in the morning, all our Fleet being readie to fet faile, intending to goe for Morrogh, there to take in water, Morrogh and to discharge the Iuncks; we descried a faile comming in from the Westward about Pallam. bam point, which we found to be a Portugall Frigat, taken at lafques, and having twentie English men aboord of her, and was fent from Captaine Bonner, as an adulte to the President in Bantam. Thele men gaue vs to vnderstand, that Sir Thomas Roe the Lord Embassador, was gone for Sir Tho. Roe: England in the Anne Royall, having quitted the Countrey with great honour and reputation, returne to Enboth for himselse and the honorable Companie our Employers. Bodman, who was the cause of sland. fetting the Black Lion on fire, was hanged. On the two and twentieth of May, this night wee 6c fet faile from hence.

The thirtieth, we parted with Sir Thomas Dale, who haled in with his Fleet, under the Iland : and we held on our course for Messulapatan , having in companie the Gift , the Unicorne, and the Bee. The thirtieth of Iune in the morning, wee anchored in nine fathome about two leagues of the shoare on the Coast of Coromandell, here we road for the space of foure dayes, du-who gaue vs leaue to beat

Aide to the

ting fo ftrong to the Eaft.

we had feuen

Cape Comfort.

Umgeton.

lations ended. I tooke my leave of him, who had then caused his Pallankeen to be made readie to conucigh me vnto my lodging, which was an house neere at hand, that he himselfe had alotted for mee. The first of August, I returned abourd the lames, where to my griefe I vnderstood, that the Mendrowned Unicornes shallop was cast away three dayes before, neere vnto Ponara. Master Harris being neere to Pana- drowned with two of the Coxfons gang, and one Blacke; Captaine Spauldmy, Mafter Yard, and the reft, very hardly escaping the danger. Saturday in the morning, the Gouernour of Vingeron came abourd to see our ship, in expectation of some great Present; on whom I bestowed a piece of China Damaske, and foure pieces of China Taffataes, which gave him more content then our prouisions at Sea. Tuefday in the afternoone, here arrived a Ballegat from Naffapra, bringing in her twentie fixe Candees of Granances, a Candee of Butter, and one hundred Gallons of Racke; this day I re-

The coufs that ring which time, we were hardly able to visit one another, by reason of the West South-west pet vs to lee windes, and the continual Currents fetting to the East North-east. The breach also was so wind of Might loftie on the shoare, that we durit not aduenture to put to shoare with any of our boats. At length the violence of when we met together, Mafter Roberts, Mafter of the Vuicerne, gaue me notice of a Bay, lying the violence of when we interespective, market Agents, about fine leagues to the Eastwards of Nasjapore, where winds, and the there was good riding for a Westerly Monson, which was the onely thing I now defired, seeing there was no hope against Winde and Tyde to recouer Meffulapatan. The fourth in the morning, we fet faile and stood to the Eastward, the Coast lying West South-west, and East Northeaft, and having run about nine leagues by judgement with the Wind and Current, wee found ward, catt, and nating run apout time to the form the place the Land to lyeaway North, and North and by Weft, which gaue mee fome hope of a good 10 where we fire Road: by this point of Land there commeth ont a great River, the fireame whereof hath raifed anchored vato a great Rife or Shoald of the sharpe of the Point, extending it felfe halfe a mile into the Sea. which maketh the smoother Road about the point, for you may bring the said sand South South we supposed to west, and ride in fixe degrees and an halfe fathome Oze, two miles off the neerest Land. Two benine leagues leagues from the Northwards of this point (which for diffinctions fake I call Cape Comfort) iffueth out another branch of the former River, which maketh the head-land it selfe an Iland, of the mouth of this River lyeth likewife a long ridge of fand which is drie at low water; the all slongs two Northermost point of this ridge beareth North-west halfe a degree West from vs, where we leagues and a ride in fixe fathome and an halfe, three miles off; and the should of Cape Comfort beareth South South-west three miles from you, and the necrest land between them both about two miles off: The next point to the Northwards of Cape Comfort is three leagues & a third part diffant from it, and did beare from vs (whence we road) North North-west, halfe a degree West, two leagues and a third part off; to the Eastward of this point lyeth another sandie Shoald, the Eastermost part of it bearing North from vs about foure miles off : in the fetting of all thefe Points and Shoalds, I have allowed the variation, which in this place is twelve degrees neerest.

The fourth of July, in the afternoone, we fent the Viccornes Shallop into the fecond branch of the River (which we call Mullet Sound) to fee if they could discouer any Towne, where they might procure a Guide to conduct Robert Pickering and William Clarke vnto Meffulapatan, by whom we had fent our Letter to Mafter Methwould. Tuefday the fixt in the morning, the Shallop returned aboord, reporting that they had gotten a Guide to direct our Messengers at a little Village three leagues vp the River; they brought aboord twentie Hennes which coft two shillings. Friday in the afternoone, the Barge returned abourd from Captaine Ball with one and feuentie Goates and Sheepe, and nine and thirtie Hennes, leaving Captaine Ball and the rest at a Towne called Narfapela, which is fixe leagues up in the Countrey. The twelfth in the morming, Maiter Methwould came from Meffulaparan in one of the Countrey Boats , and brought with him twentie Hogs, two great Iarres of Racke, fixe Goats, and two baskets of Bread; hee brought vs newes of a Dutch thip richly laden, in the Port of Meffulapatan, and readie to depart for Holland. The fixe and twentieth in the evening, I went in the Barge to feeke out some Barge which might lead vs vnto Vingeron, the chiefelt Towns that is neerest the Sea side: The same night I passed in ouer the Barre of Coranga, and about two miles vp in the River, I lodged in the town of Coranga, where I found the chiefest of the town very readie to entertayne vs in the best manner they could, and gaue the Governour of Vingeron notice of my comming the same night. The next morning, having rowed up about three miles in the mayne River, and two miles in a little Creeke we had fight of Vingeron about twelve miles off. Here I landed and went towards the Towne ; but before I came to the Townes end , the Governour fent his Horse for mee with all the musique that the place affoorded; amongst other instruments there were two huge brasile Hornes in flead of Trumpets: The Gouernour received mee very kindly, but more kindly my Present, which was two pieces China Veluets, and fixe pieces China Taffataes; our congratu-

the fight of a thousand ships, and so hee departed, when he saw that begging could no further pieuaile. On Munday the three and twentieth, I caufed our men to repaire aboord, intending to 60 ply up towards Meffulapatan : This evening wee got abourd two hundred and hirie Goats for he departed out of this life the ninth of August, 1619. in Meffulapatan. Munday, the fixt of September, in the morning, having road most part of the former night about three leagues South South-east from the Barre of Naffapore in nineteene fathome, finding OfheRuer about three reagues the wind at North-welt, we let faile againe and plyed it vp towards Meffulapatan. This night of Naffapore, we found the we anchored foure leagues to the Eastwards of Meffulapatan.

The feventh in the morning, wee law the English thips in the Road of Messuaparan foure day to set leagues off. This afternoone, the Bee being farre loutherly, wee stretcht it along the shoare, South South and in the evening arrived in the Road of Meffulapatan; where we found the Moone, the Cloue, east by right Io the Globe, and the Advice, which being found vnferuiceable was here cast off, and her prouisions North North put aboord the Moone and the Cloue. Wednesday, in the morning, Master Spaulding, Master aleague an Ball, and Master Methwould, came aboord the lames, giving mee notice of all matters that had house. paffed in my absence, also of the state of the honorable Companies businesse at present. This afternoone I accompanyed them ashoare, that we might the better consult and determine how to Maffulapatam. proceed in these weightie affaires; the first thing proposed, was the vnion of both Fleets, which was thought most necessarie, and therefore soone concluded, which businesse ended, they Both fleets vmade choile of me to be Admirall and chiefe Commander of all thefe Ships and Men thus vni-nited. ted, according to the honorable Companies direction. The eighteenth of October, being Munday, here arrived a ship from Mocha belonging to the Towne, who brought vs newes of the both. 20 Lion being at Mocha, and a small Frigat in her companie. The Bee arrived from Nasfaporpete, The Lion at with promitions from the Fleet. The nineteenth, the Dragons Class came from Nassaporpete, almost laden with Rice and Pad-Red Sea. die. Thursday, the ninth of December, in the afternoone, Master Ball, Master Methwould, and Nourmb. 6, Nassante and Master Methwould, and Nassante and Master Methwould. the rest of the Merchants, that were to remayne in this Countrey, went ashoare.

Friday, the tenth, in the morning, we left the Road of Meffulepatan, and in the afternoone anchored of the head-land to stay for the Pepper-corne, which came out to vs in the euening, be-tweene the Ile Engano and Message 1 made nineteene degrees and thirtie minutes of The longitude great Circle in longitude, which although it give not the true longitude in these parts neere the betweene En-Equinoctiall, custome hath called it so, and so doe I, because I would not savour of innovation. Supering Ma-30 The next merning very early, we descried the Land of Sumatra, the Hill of Passaman, bearing

East North-east halfe North twelue leagues, and the high Land of Prisman East halfe South Passamen in fourteene leagues off. Here we met with two Shoalds, the one within a mile to the Eastward Sumain of the other; the Gift came over the Eastermost, and had no lesse then foure fathom and a halfe : Two Shoalds, ouer the Wester Shoald I sent the Class, who found foure fathom : in the first place shee crossed fcape, it, and had but two fathom as shee returned, which was a little more to the Northward. This morning before day, the wind began to duller againe, which was the onely meanes that pleafed God to vie for our preservation, his hely Name bee praised for the fame. This morning about nine, the wind came vp South-east, and so continued vntill three in the afternoone, which brought vs to the Southward of all these Shoalds againe, and so with little wind we spent all the 40 next night betweene the foresaid Shoalds and the Ile of Battoo. A sagging Current setting to Ile Battor the Nor hwards, brought vs fo neere vnto these Shoalds; for had the Current, as in former time fet away to the South-east, our course would have lead vs neere vnto Tecos, but contrarie Tecos. to our expectation, wee found that it had carried vs to the Northward, and this deceived our judgement.

The foure and twentieth of Ianuarie in the morning, the Hill of Paffaman did beare East North-east one third part Northerly, and the high Land of Priaman East one third part South twelue leagues : here we faw a drie Should in forme of the Hull of a great Boat, lying Southwest by West of the Hill of Passaman, about ten leagues from the shoare, and West North-west from this Shoald foure leagues, wee faw the breach of another Shoald, which by Gods gracious 50 prouidence we happily escaped. This evening at fixe of the clocke, we had fight of the Iles of Tecoo, and halfe an houre before eight, we anchored in fortie foure fathom streamie ground, the faid lles of Tecos bearing East by North feuen leagues off. Tuesday, the fine and twentieth in the afternoone, with the first of the Sea-turne, we weighed againe and steered in towards Tecoo. As we drew neere we descried three faile, standing to the Northwards of the Ile of Tecoo; which Three faile of thips came to anchor faire by the shoare the same night; and we with all our fleet about a league English without them. Thursday in the morning, they weighed anchor and came up with vs , which were found to bee the Pallgraue, the Elizabeth, and the Hope; by these wee heard the dolefull newes of the taking of the Dragon, the Beare, the Expedition and Rofe, by fixe Holland thips, as The Dragon. they were at anchor within the lles of Tecoo; also of the losse of the Starre in the Streights of Boure, Extendi

60 Sunds, taken by the Dutch. Moreover, how they had fent four great thips, double manned, in tion and Rofe, quest of the Samfon and Hound, of the safetie of which ships wee are very doubtfull; so that taken by the the English thips which they have taken, doe almost equal the number of our three Fleets, now The State.

Munday, the one and thirtieth of Ianuarie, we held a consultation about the Iames Royall, House taken Gggg 3 ceined letters from Mefful spatan, importing the deletul newes of the death of Sir Tho. Dale, The death of

Current by

CHAP. 7. S. 4.

Confulration. concerning our future proceeding, where it was with one confint agreed and concluded to goe to Achin, in hope to meet with our thips from Surat, that we might keepe our Forces together. according to the honorable Companies directions: The reasons moning vs hereunto, were the want of Rice and other prouisons, which could not at this time bee procured at Bantons, Sewant of Accession of the Hollar ders forces, holding it no wifedome for vs to adventure construction of the companie hath now in India, vpen fuch desperate termes: the whole erraic, that the homologic they having at this time foure ships for one of ours. And lastly (Canja fine qua non) the necessity tie of careening of three of our ships, which may no longer be differred without imminent carger of all three, viz. the lames Royall, the Gift, and the Vnicorne. And therefore we have refolger of all three, one, the same and same and same we are given to vinderfland, that there are all 10 things necessarie for the careening of ships, and store of prouisions for the reliefe of our men.

The eleuenth, at night, Malter Mille arrived in the Bee with three hundred facks of very good Rice, and eleuen Hogsheads of Oile, giving vs great encouragement to send thither agains. Saturday, the twelfth, at night, the Claw was dispeeded againe for Pedang and Cuttatinga, to procure Rice, &c.

Pronifion.

Mafter Mills his care.

Nimtam

Vpon the higheft of this Shoald our Bost found but three foot water. From this Shoald the White Rocke did beare West North-w.ft foure leagues : and the Hay the fireft of Northwards of next morning. Teco, did beare East Northeaft balfe Eaft, nine leagues ger from Rocks. Samanca. Ballambeen. Annia . Cracaton and

Tuesday, in the night, we returned the Bee to Priaman to provide more Rice and Oile. Saturday, in the afternoone, the Claw returned with foure and thirtie bags of Rice, fixteene thoufand Coquer-nuts, ten Goats. This night, the Bee arrived from Priaman with nine hundred and eightie facks of Rice, procured by the great labour and industrie of Matter Mills, Merchant of Friday, the third of March, in the morning, we departed from the Road of Tecoo: intending by the grace of God, first to touch at Nimtam, for the dispatch of the Bee for England; and from thence, God willing, to goe for Achin, in hope to meete the Charles and the Ruby from Surat, This day afternoone, wee anchored in fine and twentie fathom Ozie, the middle Ile of Tecoo bearing East South-east, about two leagues off. Saturday, in the morning, wee set faile againe and stood off West and West by South: This afternoone, we anchored againe in three and fortie fathom ground, the lles of Tecoo being East from vs about eight leagues off, and the White Rocke West by North halfe North foure le gues off. This White Rocke lyeth West one third part North from the lles of Tecoo, diffant eleuen leagues. Sunday, in the morning, the wind at North, wee weighed anchor and steered away South-west, for that the Current (did then) fet to the 30 Northwards : we had not gone aboue one league this Course, but the wind veered vp at Southwest by West, so that we could lye but South by East, and before we had run three miles South South-east, our men from the sprit saile top descried Rocks vinder the ship, at sight whereof wee brought our ship astayes, and shot off a peece of Ordnance for a warning to the Fleet. Before our ship was come about, we had out three fathom and a halfe; yet, I thanke God, we never toucht. Our ships being tacket, we stood to the Northwards, thinking the safest course to returne the fame way we came : but we had not made aboue two miles North and by West, before we saw other Rocks againe under our thips head, upon which we had but feuen fathom. The depth that we found all this day, when wee were free from these dangers, was fortie and two and fortie fathom : and therefore, feeing it had pleafed our gracious God to free vs from both thefe dan-40 gers, we edged in againe a mile or little more within them, and there anchored againe vntill the

The thirtieth of March, 1620. we all anchored in the Bay of Samanea, about a mile off the shoare, where we tooke in water and wood, and other necessaries. The last of March, our shallop was fent unto the Bee at Ballambeen to call her away. The first of Aprill, wee lent the Vnicornes thallop for Anniar, to enquire of the Dutch forces, and how the Pangram Rood affected Escape of dan. towards vs. At eleuen, at night, two and twentie of our men run away with the Barge: In the morning, the shallop returned from Annia, and brought newes of fifteene failes of Hollanders at Bantam and Iacatra, whereupon we resolved to goe for Bantam, to treat with the Pangram hoping that the Hollanders would not venture upon vs. This afternoone elfo, the Bee arrived 59 with our shallop from Ballambeen. The fixt, we let faile for Bantam . The feuenth , wee came in betweene (rackatam and Becee, where we met with a Praw, with some of our people, come from Anniar.

Ø. IIII.

Newes of the peace betwixt English and Durch: the mutual congratulation: Voyage to Iapan, returne thence and home.

Aturday the eight in the morning, at foure of the clocks, we met with the Bull come from England, with the joyfull tydings of peace betweene the Dutch and vs; which God in his mercie long continue, thee had a small thip in her Company called the Flying Hare, whichwas fent out with her, having Letters from their Generall; to adulfe vs or any of their ships of the agreement and vniting of both the Honourable Com-

This afternoone we anchored all together neere the point of Pallambam. On the eleventh of Aprill, in the morning wee described the Dutch Fleete, who came from lacatra to meete vs. and to congratulate our arrivall : Generall Coen beeing there humfelfe in perion. So foone as the Generall Coen, Hollanders Generall was come to anchor, we began to lalute each other with our great Ordnances, to fignifie vnto the Countrey people our great ioy, that we conceive in this happy tydings.

The twelfth, we came into Bantam Road with both our Fleets; ours contifting of twelve to failes, theirs of fifteene; belides, two of their ships, which wee found in that Road. This day Mafter lohnfon, Commander of the Dutch Fleet, came to visit mee with the Fifcall and divers others: Maiter Brockendon, Matter Spalding and my selfe were inuited abcord the Admirall shippe, where wee conferred with the Generall concerning our future businesse; and after we had compared the Articles and Letters, he was content that wee should proceed joyntly according to the Honourable Companies instructions; but would not publish the same, vntill the arrivall of some ship from the Low Countries. Friday the fourteenth, in the morning, by a generall consent, we sent M. Beamont, and Philip Baduge, with one Dutch Merchant ashoare, Pangrant hate to the Pangrams, to make him partaker of our good newes; and that we being now vnited, de- to the Dutch. fired onely a good composition and reasonable agreement that wee might remayne in his Countrey in peace, and enioy free Trade as we had in other parts of India. But the Pangram was fo 20 impatient at the newes, that he would affoord no answere: but oftentimes demanded of them, why we would be friends with the Dutch, and fo they were faine to returne without any anfwere. Saturday, the fifteenth, we fent the fame meffage againe unto him , but then they were not furfered to come on land.

Wednesday, at foure in the morning, I departed from Bantam Road in the Iames Royall, having Voyage to the Vnicerne in Company intending by the grace of God, to goe for Iapon, there to careene and Iapan. trimme our ships: Master Brockendon the same time departing with six ships for lacatra, having relolued about one moneth after our departure, to fend fine good English thips, and fine good fhips of the Dutch after vs to Iapon, * that from thence wee might take the fitteft time of the I have ferina yeere to goe for the Manillas.

We arrived into a Port of Ferando, called Cochee, which is about foure English myles and an felfe sharthe halfe to South-wards of the Hauen Ferando. Tuefday, the fine and twentieth of July, Cap-fludiousof Mataine Cox fent good flore of Funnies or toe Boates aboord of our ship to helpe vs. This day in rine knowthe afternoone (God bee prayfed) we arrived in the Port of Firando. This day, before wee got ledge might into Firando, the Elizabeith brought in a Frigat with her, wherein there were found certaine make vie of S.lkes, Hides, and some Sugar; the Mariners were laponeses with certaine Portugals, whereof would perhaps some were Fryers: the Elizabeth came into Cechee alio, Captaine Adams, Admirall of the V- to others feen nited Fleet, arrived in the same place about three houres after me in the Moone; likewise Wil- to interrupt lians lobnfon in the Trop.

The fixe and twentieth, in the morning, a generall Councell of English and Dutch were affer and delicate dute, with a 40 bled in the English house at Firando, where it was resolved that the shippes which lay neere the Sca sienelle. Coalts of Salima, should be called in, because were were certainly informed, that the Frigats of Here we found Massa were newly arrived in Nangalaque. Sanday, the thirtieth, the King of Crass camea-boord the lames Royall, and feened much to reloyce to fee fuch an English thirt, demanding of the hither, at 1822. Macao were newly arrived in Nangasaque. Sunday, the thirtieth, the King of Crass camea- the Smen, and Imabaffa, if this were one of the Englift Frigats, wherehy we supposed that the Dutch had given pole, to the out, that we had none but small ships like voto Frigats.

Tuelday, the first of August, a generall Councell was holden at the English house, concerning our Nation in the choice of two men, the one English, the other Dutch, to carrie the Present to the Emperour, where (after it was confidered, that I could not follong hee spared from the Royall James, nor World, Captaine Adams from his Fleet) at length we made choice of Master Charles Cleaning or Com- They arrive ag so mander of the Palfgrame, and Ioseph Cockram Cape Merchant of the Fleet, to goe in the behalfe Firande of the Englifb, and Infques le Febre of the Harlam, with Matthiade Brooke, for the Dutch. On Siftma. or the Engine, and suppose a true din the Road of Cochee. The feuenth, the Bull came into the Name closest Chericicias Chericicias Road of Cochee, having cut off all her Mails by the boord (as they lay) to faue thip and goods; ungar. Captaine Adams and I did visit the King of Firando, carrying with vs a small Present which was very well effeemed, and wee of our felues very courteoufly entertayned. Wednelday, the ninth, the King inuited the English and the Dutch to Dinner, where to shew his respect voto our Nation, he caused vs to sit downe on the right hand, and the Duch on the left; and the first Dish of every course, was presented vnto vs.

Munday, the fourth of September, we had a great Tuffone with the wind Northerly, which Tempet, 60 forced the Moone on shore, and over-fet the Expedition, so that she sunke downe suddenly. The Trow had likewise beene over-set, had not the Master of her soone prevented it, by veering of her sterne ashoare. Tuesday, the fifth, I caused many of our men to come abourd the Moone, to helpe hale her off, where we all firmed along time to no purpose. The thirteenth, the Moone was got off againe, to the great toy of vs all, having received no hurt at all by her lying fo long on shoare. The nineteenth, the Iames Royall having all things taken out, but onely certainebars of Lead, to helpe trimme her ouer was heaved downe almost haife way to the keele. Thurlday, the one and twentieth in the morning, the lames Royall was brought downe follow, that wee faw part of her keele, and so began presently to sheath her. In source dayes the Carpenters shea-thed one fide of the Iames, from the keele vp to the lower bend. Wednefday, the feuen and twentieth, I fent a Cooper, two quarter Masters, and a Butcher to Nangasague; to kill and fale fuch meate as was provided for vs.

Piragraph or

Thursday, the twelith of October, we had the lames downe to keele againe on the otherfide, on this fide we found foure dangerous places, where the maine planke was eaten thorow by the Wormes; in each of those places wee graued in a piece of planke, and innoe of them we droue a trunnell, where there was never any before : also wee nailed a piece of Lead vpon the end of the bolt, which was formerly driven through the keele to stop our great leake; our ship was righted againe both fides, being finished up to the lower Bends. Saturday, the one and twentieth, the Moone was finished on both fides. Tuefday, the foure and twentieth, we had newes that Nangalaque was burnt, that a fire beginning in the Portugall street, consumed foure or five Nangasaque of the richest streets in the Citie.

Their depar-

The feuenth of Dec.being Thursday, we departed from Firande and the same evening wee anchored in the Bay of Cochee Saturday, the fixteenth, Captain Cleanengar, and Captaine Le Febre arrived in Firando, from the Emperors Court, with the loyfull tidings of good successe in their bulineste. Sunday, the feuenteenth in the morning, I tooke my leave of them, and about noone, 20 the wind being taire, and the weather cleere, we left the Road of Cochee.

Comming to

Thu, iday, the fixteenth of Ianuary in the morning, feeing foure thips in Bantam Road, we weighed and stood in, a little within Pan-lang, at length there came the Pepper-cornes boate aboord our thip with the Master, one Morton, he told me that there were two Dutch shippes in the Road, and one French ship; to whom the Pangram had granted Trade, and that the English and Duich had conforced with him to share the Pepper in thirds amongst them. I also vaderflood by him, that the most part of our lading was readic for vs at lacatra.

Wednesday, in the morning, I set faile for Iacaira, and the same evening anchored neere vito Antilaty. Thurlday, the eighteenth, at night, we arrived in the Bay of lacatra, where we found Arrive at Isthe Charles, the Gift, and the Cloue, and two Dutch ships, viz. the Leyden, and the Sun, and at HeVision lost on Stor Iland, the Globe, and the Bee. Here I met with the Master of the Unicorne, and divers of the Coast of his Company, who came hither in a luncke: their ship being lost vpon the Coast of China. The Iames having discharged her lading, was readie to relade for England. Heere was at this time in the Charles, the Clone, and the Gift, about fix hundred tuns of Pepper, & the Beare daily expected from lamber with two hundred tunnes more, which gave vs good hope that wee should very neere make vp our ships lading with Pepper, Beniamin, Clouss, and Silke. Munday, the fixe and twentieth of February, in the morning, I departed from the Road of Iacatra in the Iames Royall, having taken in our whole lading of Pepper, faving fiftie five Peculs; also, certaine Sapetas of Silke and some Cloues. This businesse ended about ten of the clock this fore-noone, we let fayle for England. I pray God in his wonted mercie to conduct vs vnto 43 our Natiue Countrie in satetie, in his good time appointed.

Soldania.

Sunday, the twentieth of May, 1621. in the afternoone, wee arrived in the Road of Soldania, where we found the Anne Royall, and the Fortune, thips belonging to the Honourable Com. pany of London, and three Dutch thips, viz. the Gamda, the blacke Beare and the Herring, all bound for Bantam and lacatra. The one and twentieth, we romaged our ship. Tuesday the two & twentieth, we fent some Water-caskes on shoare, and set up a Tent for our sicke men and Coopers, and fent five and twentie men on land to guard them. This night, I ordayned fixtie men to goe in company with fixtie Dutch in quest of Cattle, who re urned the same night in vaine. The second of June, in the morning, we left the Road of Soldania, with the wind at South morning. West fifteen leagues at this instant (God be prayfed) we descryed the Iland of S. Helena;

South-east, South-east from the twentieth at noone, untill the one and twentieth at fix in the 50

the bodie of it (to our judgement) bearing West, two third parts North, about fifteene leagues off. This evening, we got within five leagues of the lland, and there plyed it off, and on vntill fine the next morning, and then we did beare in about the North point of the Iland, and the same forenoone, about ten of the clocke we anchored thwart of the Chappell Bay, halfe a mile from the shoare in fixe and twentie fathemes. The North point of the Iland bearing Northeast two third parts East, one league off, and the other point South-west by South one league and an halfe off: betweene which two points there are feuen Vallies, and the Southermoft of the feuen, leadeth vpright to the Limon Trees. Munday, the fine and twentieth, wee weighed anchor againe, and road off the Valley, about halfe a mile from the floare, in twentie feuen tathomes, blacke fand and finall Corall, the Northermost picked point bearing North-east halfe East from vs two leagues off, and the Southermost point in fight South-west halfe South, two miles off, this is the best Valley for refreshing that I know in all the Iland.

At this Hand we remayned feuen dayes, during which time we filled our water, and got at least fiftie Hogges and Goats, and aboue foure thousand Limons. Friday, the nine and twenteath of Iune, in the morning, at nine of the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke, hauing very well refreshed our felues, reliable to the clocke to th (through the good prouidence of Almightie God) we departed from hence, and the time Euening at fixe, we had the bodie of the lland South-east by South eight leagues off, the wind at fide of 5 field South-east, the weather ouer-cast. The fixteenth of August, at noone we saw the high-land of Pico East North-east about fifteene found wish ty

The fixteenth of August, at noone we law the nightannon Fee Eart North-rait about inteene leagues off. The feuenteenth, at noone we had the top of Pico North fixe leagues off, being in the despite of the fee Earth State of the latitude of thirtie eight degrees, twelue minutes. Whereby I perceive that the South-fide of Pico lyeth in thirtie eight degrees thirtie minutes neereft.

The fifteenth of September, wee had the Lands end of England eight leagues off. Tuefday, the eighteenth, we arrived in the Downes.

The Voyage from Bantam to Patania, and thence to Iapan, with his returne to . Intarra; fet by it felfe for the vse of Mariners.

He seuen and twentieth of Aprill, being Thursday, we tooke leaue of this Fleet, and

CHAP. 7.5.5.

fleered away to the North-wards, borrowing within halfe a league of the Eafter point of Poolo Tunda, and in the evening, came to an anchor about a league off the North-east point of it in twentie three fathomes water ozie; where we roade untill Pools Tunda, the Westerne streame beganne to returne to the East-ward againe, which was about tenne at

The eight and twentieth at night, we anchored in twentie eight fathoms ozie, Poolo Antekero bearing North-east three leagues off. Poolo Antekero lyeth from Poolo Tunda, North North-east Poolo Antekero halfe East about eight leagues off. The depth betweene them from fixteene fathomes to fix and twentie, and to to twentie two, twentie, eighteene, fixteene, fourteene, and twelue fathomes ozie. Poolo Antekero is the Wester-most of all the row of Ilands, which extend them-30 felues from the mouth of the Bay of lacatra, to the West-ward. Saturday, the nine and twentieth, to the evening, we were in fifteene fathome. Poolo Kero bearing North by East halfe East of vs , two leagues and an halfe off. Poolo Kero lyeth from Poolo Kero. Poolo Antekero North North-east neerest, distant fixe leagues from the time that wee had Antekero, North-east three leagues of, we had twentie, eighteene, fixteene, fourteene, twelue fa-

Sunday at noon, we had the Poolo Kero, South halfe East fix leagues off. Our depth continuing thirteene, twelle, and eleuen fathomes the fame ground.

The first of May, at noone, we had Poolo Kero South halfe west, nine leagues off, beeing as much as we could fee it at our top-mast-head, the depth twelve fathomes. Here by observation of the Sunne we were in South latitude foure degrees forty fine minutes from noone, vntill fiue, North North-east foure leagues. Here we anchored againe in twelve fathomes ozie, having Poolo Kero, by estimation South by West from vs, thirteene leagues off. This night at nine, as we were at anchor in the same place, by observation of the Crossers, I made the thip to bee in foure degrees, fortie minutes South latitude, allowing twentie nine, for the complement of the declination. Tuelday, the second in the morning, betweene foure and fine of the clocke wee set fayle againe, and the same day at noone we had runne about six leagues North North-east. The depth continuing as before, thirteene, twelve, eleven fathomes. From the second to the third, at noone we made an East by South way, fine leagues, finding such depths as the day before, the winds betweene the East and the South-east, and then the wind came vp Northerly, and fo continued untill the third at noone, From Poolo Peniang unto Poolo Antelero the Current did Poolo Peniang, fet vsto the Well-ward, for the most part some-what strong, but from thence vntill wee drew Current. neere unto the Streights of wee found but an easie Current, which did runne almost vpon all points of the Compasse, euery twentie foure houres. From the third at noone, vntill the fourth at moone North North-east eleuen leagues, the depth from twelue to ten, halfe a fathome ozie. From noone, this day till fenen at night, North fine leagues and a halfe, where we anchored in ten fathomes and an halfe leffe.

The ground from Bantam Road higherto all ozie. From Bantam for the space of two dayes wee so had Sea-turnes and Land-turnes. From thence, vntill the fecond of May in the afternoone,

Friday, the fift in the morning, we weighed againe, having little wind and variable, vntill 60 halfe an houre after fixe, and then the wind came up at South-west and blew fresh. From soure to nine we made North-east halfe Easterly three leagues and from nine until noon North-west by North halfe a league, the depth ten fathom neerest. This day at noone, wee were in three degrees and thirtie minutes South latitude, where wee descried a little Hand North North-east Alice Hand, halfe East foure leagues off, which appeared at first fight like a great Tree rising out of the Sea, from none to fixe North-well fine leagues; here wee faw two or three Hummocks like llands. North by Well from fixen leagues off. From hence vanil three after mid-night, Welf ix Is-gues: as fixe we had ninsteene fathom, which as wee flood to the Wellward in the night intracted to tra, clearen, and twelue fathom; and afterward it decreafed vato eight fathom, where wee came to an anthor, the fixenem by night fix South-eaft, by 49 North-well.

646

Lucepara.

Saturlay in the mesning, we weighed at fixe agains, and fleered away Weif North-weift one leagus and a third part i here we had hight of many Hummocks ring like llants, which at length we perceived to I call one Land, as we drew near to it after weit had gone one league and a third part Weif North-weift, as attoretaid, were came into feuen fishem a halfe leffe, and therefore tacks about to the North-eaftwards, making a North North-eaft way small noons, I would be a supported to the perceive the state of the west of the state of the same, were were in three degrees and twentie minutes neared South faitude, being gotten into eight fathom waterasgaine; where we found-the Current to fet away North-weit by Weif : here also about noor this day, a lunck of fore came by with 18, which had been at Celerbow spin Lunc, and was now returning to love. This afternoone were fleered in with the Eafterne part of time I Lunnockie Land, and making our ways as the Eafterne Point did beare from vs. which worth North-eaft halfe North, in this our courfe we came againe to feuen fathom. —add in increasing to foue and twentie fathom, and from thence decreasing to fleuen fathom and can transfer of our and twentie fathom, and from thence decreasing to fleuen fathom and and part North four leagues of the leagues of th

Sunday, the fearnth in the morning, we weighted and feod in nerter vito the Point, in hope to have paide through between this Point and an Iland, which lyeth three leagues there Eathward of it, but as we flood in, we found the depth of the water fift to increase from feuer fathom vino fearness that me, and from thence againe write fixe and foure fathom a quarter left. And about two miles of the Point in the faire way, we lad but fixe floot water, which our flaillop found as fine was founding of the Chanell. To the Eaftwards of this place there appeared many final Ilands, and by the report of the people in the lanke, the Sea is full of Ilands betweener the Sorthe-caff end of Bane p, and the Ile of Banese. Now this was the South-eaft end of the More with the North-eaft, black in two leagues of; and the Land lands twist.

Sea full of I. of More, which did bears North North-eaft, black in the Velley South nevertle 2 to the Chanell C

Mundy in the morning, shating little hope to find a piflige hetween the South-eaft end of Banes and the forefaid Illands, by reason of the fearetial shouldings which were shadlered found) we resolved by the helpe of God to goe through the Streights of Banes, and there with-all presently came to faile, steering off as neere as we could itage, the same course that we came in in mythic course we found more dangerous sheading in our thanking off, then were had done in our comming in before. After we had gotten about eight leagues off South South-west from the South-east point of Banes, we steered away South-west by Worl, the Current setting North 40 west, which make a Welt by South way necrest; this course were run fine Lagues, and anchored in eight fathom Ozie, about nine at night. The ninth in the morning, we descried Lucepara North North-west senen leagues off, and fleered in neere with it vntill we had it North two leagues. In this course we came ouer a spit where wee had but foure fathom and a halfe and fine fathom a quarter leffe, but drawing neerer unto Lucepara, we had fine fathom and a quarter, and when it was North two leagues off al Ozie ground. And so all the way before, now, and after that we had brought it North two leagues off, as I haue faid, we steered North-west by North, untill Lucepara was North-east of vs, and had fine fathom the same ground; and then we went West North-west, having alwayes Ozie ground till we were within two leagues of Sumatra shoare in fixe fathom. Here we had our lie 50 of Lucepara East South-east three leagues and a halie off. And a Hill vpon Banco with a deepe fwampe North by West neerest, being a sailes breadth open of the Point of Sumatra, which was then North by West halfe West from vs, about three leagues off: wee sleered from hence away with the forefaid Point North by West, and had fixe and a halfe and feuen fathem, fort ground, vntill we came within a league of the Point, where edging too neere the fame, we had but fine fathom and a halfe, and four eard a halfe in the Boat hard by vs : but had we kept a little further off that Point, wee might have gone away in feuen, eight, nine, and ten fathoin, and so all the Streights alongit, borrowing carefully with our Lead upon the Sumarra sheare; but hee that keepeth any thing neerer vnto Banco then vnto Sumatra, shall have very vncertaine shoaliing, formetimes deepe and otherwhiles shoald, and commonly foule ground, whereas on Sumatra side 60 if you should come into should water, yet the ground for the most part is foft, ozie, and the founding farre more certaine; all which will more plainly appeare by my description of this

Friday, the twelfth in the evening, having brought the North-west Point of Banco North-

eaft, we opened two fmooth Hills with a little Hummock betweene them, the Northermoft of them being the Northermoft Land of Bases, and bearing from the North-weif Point atorelaid, North-eaft nine leagues off. This night we fleered North North-eaft, togo through the Chandlebetweene Limpa and the North end of Bases, finding twentre three, twentie two, twentie, Linga eighteen, and fixeten fathoms ozie, writill we came nere the entrance, and atterwards firen, four-teene, thirteene fathoms, going through the pultage. Linga rifeth at fift in three Hands, the Northermoft being bigger then both the other, riing full of Hummocks, being neare two leagues in length. The lles of Linga have certaine fragments of Hes intermix amongst them, thewing lake Hay-cocks, which is a good marke to know them. From the fmooth Hill, which to is the South end of Bases, well the South Weltermott He of Linga, North y Welt ten leagues, to is the South end of Banco, vncill the South Weltermotil le of Linga, North by West ten leagues, East North-east hale North. From the middle of the greated lle of Linga, (which is the North East North-east hale North. From that there is another sha lland, and off the North Point of the round smooth lland, lyeth also a little fragment like a Rocke. In the way betweene this smooth lland and Linga you have fourteene and thurteene fashom water, also being in the midway betweene them, you course is North, to palle along they the Esser-side of Bantam. This day at noone were were in one degree South latitude, the greatest like of Linga South-west fine leagues, whereby we gathered that the great Il to of Linga stood in one degree and ten minutes. A little Liand, necrest. This afternoone we saw a little I land to the Weltward of vs, about eight leagues off, 20 Which lyeth North North-weft nereft from Lings.

Sunday, the fourteenth at noone, hauing made a North way foure and twentie leagues, by helpe of the Wind and Current, which did fet North, we had tight of the high land of Bintam, Bintam, the work of the thing had of the North, we had tight of the leagues from rifing with two Hills and a deepe fivamp betwixt, being to our indgement twelve leagues from vs. At this time allow we had fight of three or foure Hummocks, rifing like llands, South-weft by Weft eight leagues; here we founded and had ground in twentie faithom. From Lings with other place we had fourteen, fifteene, fixteene, feutnetene, eighteene, and twentie tathom, as wee supported, threamy ground; for wee had not meanes at all times to trie it. From mid-day rie fourteenth with other hifteenth at noone, North a thrip part Weft, feuen and twentie leagues. This foure and twentie leave fathom, four and twentie houres, twentie one, twentie two, twentie three, and twentie four fathom. 30 This day from twelue to three, three leagues and a halfe. Here were faw Pools Lord, bearing Pools Lord North-weth halfe North from vs, by our undgement about twellar leagues off, at this inflat twe half faten and twentie fathom, the ground like vnto Fallers earth; it is night Pools Lord being North-weth by Welf eight leagues off, we had nine and thirtie fathom ozic. From the fifteenth at noone, vnto eight the next mornie, we made a North North-welf halfe Welf way fifteen leagues. The fixecenth art eight, Pools Lord bloar South-welf by South off vs fixe leagues, dittant the vety body of the land Hermans de Lorg. Welf South-welf halfe Welf Kuen leagues dittant the vety body of the land Hermans de Lorg. Welf South-welf halfe Welf Welf Lord. North-welf thalfe welf ten leagues off. This cuening wee anchored within four miles off the North-welf halfe welf ten leagues off. This cuening wee anchored within four miles off the North-welf halfe welf ten leagues off. This cuening wee anchored within four miles off the North-welf halfe welf ten leagues off. This cuening wee anchored within four miles off the North-welf halfe welf ten leagues off. This cuening we anchored within four miles off the North-welf halfe welf ten leagues off. This cuening we anchored within four miles off the North-welf halfe welf ten leagues off. This cuening we anchored within four miles off the North-welf halfe welf Lord.

North-welf halfe welf ten leagues off. This cuening wee anchored within foure miles off the North Point of Tymos in foure and twentief athom, fireamy ground, the Point it felfe bearing 40 Welft by South halfe South. This cuening, I fent our finallop about the Point, where they decreied a Towne and a lunke, riding close by the floare, and distributed by the point, where they decreied a Towne and a lunke, riding close by the floare, and distributed by the point, where for one came to them to enquire what Nation they were, and told them, that at the Towne there was good fresh water, and Buffels, Goats, and Hennes.

Welniefdig in the morning about flowers that had been a found to the point of the point

Wednefday in the morning, about foure of the clocke, wee fent the Vincenes long Boat with ours to the faul Towns, who returned in the afternoone with foure Butts of water a piece, not willing to fill more because it was bracklish. At the watering place they found a lunck of Ier, A lanke of which was let out for a man of Warre, and hauing twentie small shot besides Lances and lauelins; he reported to our people that he had taken a China Lunce, and fold her on the Coast of Ier, And sent me word, that he would take my part against the Prontagal, as long as his life did Jast. In the next Bay to the Southwards of the North Point of Paslo Tamon, wee found very good fresh water, but we could not consensingly take it in with our long Boat, for she drew fine foot water being loden. Thus having spent our day in this place to little purpose : I set faile

the first of the night, directing our course for Patania, steering away due North with little wind Patania all night.

Thurfday at noone, we were in three degrees and fortic minutes South latitude, having made a North halfe Weif wry, by meanes of the Current, which did fet a way North by Welt about a mile an houre. This atternoon are foure, having made a North halfe Welt way about eight eagues, we deferted the He of Tingoran North North-welf Hitene leagues of This night wee Pools Tingoran, about fixe leagues to the Eafterward of it having twentie eight, 60 thirte and thritte two talknowns foir round.

Friday, at fixe in the morning, we had Poolo Tingoran West South-west source leagues off-here we had itse and thirtie station the same ground. This day at noone were were in two degrees and thirtie minutes. Tingoran bearing South one third part East sourceme leagues off, whereby we conceined that the lle of Tingoran standed in source degrees and fitte minutes. This day as

noone

noone we had likewife the South-Ile of Poolo Rondon, Nort-west by West feuen leagues off; and in the same night at eight of the clocke, I observed the Crossers, and made the ship to be in five degrees fortie eight minutes, the Eastermost (which is the greatest of the Iles of Poolo Rondon. bearing West four eleagues off. From eight at night vntill noone the next day, our way was neerest North-west by West nine leagues; in this course the depth we had from twentie eight to feuenteene fathoms: then the Northermost Hand of Poolo Rondon was South, one third part East, foure leagues off; being a round Hummocke much like to Pomo in the Gulph of Venice. but somewhat higher, and more compleat: these Iles of Rondon are good high land, and a faire depth from the one end to the other, on all the Easter fide, and as I am informed a faire Channell betweene them and the Maine, there are in all, thirteene or fourteene Ilands great and small. Saturday from noone, vntill Sunday, eight in the morning, our way was West North-west nine leagues: here wee faw two hills by the water fide, bearing West of vs fine leagues off, rising like two Tortugas. From Poolo Tingoran vnto Potania, is very high land alongst vp in the Countreve and low land by the waters fide, with a fandie Strand at least twentie leagues to the Southward of the Point of Potania, and how much farther I know not; but so farre I have seene. This Saturday in the afternoone, as we flood in West North-west to the two hills aforesaid, wee came from fewenteene vnto fourteene and thirteene fathomes, hard ground; and as wee drew neerer the hills, the depth encreased agains to ninteene fathomes ozie, and thence to eighteene and feuenteene fathoms, the fame ground.

Sunday the one and twentieth, from eight in the morning vnto feuen at night, our course was 20 North-west three quarters West thirteene leagues, keeping for the most part, within foure leagues of the low fandie thoare, the depth all the way niteene, fourteene, and thirteene fathoms: here at feuen wee anchored in thirteene fathoms and a quarter threamie ground, the Northermost point in fight (falling downe from a reasonable high land at the end of all the low land ) did beare Welt North-west halfe North , neere three leagues and an halfe off. Sixe leagues South-east by South from this Point lieth a Rocke, as high about the water as the Hull of a finall thip: we passed along about a league and an laste to the Eastward of it, finding no alteration of our former depth : this point aforefaid I call, the Gurnets Head. From this Point, the land trendeth away West North-west, and West by North, vnto the entrance of Potonia Road, being all low land from the Gurnets Head vnto the very Point of the Road, and lowest of all at the same Point. From Gurnets Head vnto the said low Point, the distance is fixe leagues; and all the way of faire depth, untill you draw neere the low Point of the Road: but there you must give a good birth, because there lieth a shoald from it halfe way over vnto the Wester shoare: therefore you must not bofrow too neere it , before you have the shoalding of the Westershoare: and there you shall find the softest ground. From the low Point, as you range ouer the Bay vnto the Wester shoare, you shall not have aboue five fathomes, and foure fathoms and an halfe, when you are in the Road; where you shall have the low Point East Northeast one third part East, and the highest mountaine on the Wester side of the Bay will then beare South South-west one third part West.

Anchor at Polambe.

Racke, and

Thursday, we anchored in the Road of Potania, where we found the Samson, and a Datch Pinnase. The day before we came into the Road, I went ashoare to the English Factorie. Where I found Matter Adam Denton, and Matter Richard Welding, lately come from Iambe in a Praw with divers English of the Samfins companie, who were all glad men to fee fuch English ships in that Port. At my comming to the English house, I equainted Master Denton with the cause of my comming, which was, for Racke and fresh Victuals, whereof wee stood in great need; whereupon he presently game order, to lay out for all things necessarie; that within fix dayes we were furnished with fixteene Buts of Rack and Rack-apee, whereof three Buts of Rack-apee, we had from the Dutch; which currefie they did vs, to halten our dispatch: Beeues, Goats, and Hennes, we had here in plentifull manner. Here also we bought Dammar and Oyle for the trimming of our ships, because I vnderstood it was very deere in lapan. Heere also I found a small Frigat, 50 bought by the English , which being of no great vie in this place , by generall confent it was thought fitting, that thee with most of the English Sailors should goe along to attend upon the degrees twentie minutes.

A Rocke dan-

The last of May, we departed from Potania. The first of Iune, at seurn in the morning, wee descried a small Rocke, which appeared but little aboue water, lying very dangerous for thips that goe from Potania for the Head of Camboia : when this Rocke did beare North North-east halte East, a league off , then the high-land ouer Gwnets Head was South South-weit halfe West, thirteene leagues off , and by computation, the low point of Potania Road was eighteene leagues off, Weit South-west halfe South from vs. After we were out of the Road of Potania, in feuen fathoms, the depth increased or- 60 derly to eight, ten, twelue, fourteene, fixteene, eighteene, twentie, twentie two, and twentie foure fathoms, vntill we had light of the Rocke; and about two leagues from the Rocke, fine and twentie fathoms ozie: and fuch was all the ground from Potania to this place. This day at noone, this Rocke being West from vs about foure leagues off, we found the ship to bee in teuen

From hence untill the third at noone, East halfe North fortie fine leagues, here we saw Poolo Hube East North-east halfe North, eight leagues off, having fourteene fathoms ozie: all this Poole Hube. eight and fortie houres we had ozie ground, the depth from twentie seuen to thirtie sixe fathoms, and from thence decreasing againe to fourteene fathoms, which was the depth wee had when we faw this Iland. This Poolo Hube rifeth first with one round hill, then as you come neerer, you shall see a shoulder of somewhat high land rising in hummockes: but not aboue two third parts as high as the round hill, being all one land with it, and then shall you see another leffer round Iland rife, which is neere about the highth of the hummockie land, and lieth close aboord the greater Hand. At the East end of this lester round Hand, there are two little Hands Two little I. 10 very neere it, and a mile to the Eastward of them lieth a long Rocke like the Hull of a Galley. Jands, and a This night wee anchored in thirteene fathomes and an halfe ozie, about three leagues off the Rocke. greatest lland, which was also the highest. The next morning wee weighed againe, and stood away East by South, and East by East, having but little wind. This evening at fixe, wee had the bodie of Hube West by North , foure leagues off. From hence wee steered away East by South, and East, vntill fixe the next morning, but the Current checked vs to the Northward, Current. by which meanes we made our way to the Northward of the East.

The fift, from fixe at night vntill fixe in the morning, we ranne fifteene leagues, the course afore-said, and here we had fight of a very little round Hand, bearing foure leagues off; and to the Southward of it about a mile distant, a long slat Rocke a good highth aboue water. From 20 Poolo Hube untill we came three leagues off this little round Hand, we had thirteene, fourteene, fifteene fathoms, and fifteene, fourteene, and thirteene againe, all ozie ground. When we were within two leagues of this small Iland, we had thirteene fathoms sandie ground. Here we deferied Poolo Candor, the Norther end of it bearing East by North, from this Hand about feuen Poolo Candor leagues off. This day at noone wee found the ship to bee in eight degrees fortie two minutes North latitude, the highest land on Poolo Candor being East from vs fixe leagues off: from Potania untill wee were in fight of Poolo Candor, the winds for the most part were at South Sout -west. This day at noone wee steered away North-east, North-east by North, and in the night North North-east; so that wee made North-east by North in all vntill the next day at noone, about foure and twentie leagues: In this course wee found thirteene and fourteene

Tuesday, the sixtat noone, we had sight of two Hummockes upon the Coast of Camboia, Camboia, bearing North by East, and to the Westward of that low Land. From Poolo Candor untill wee came in fight of this Coast, we found the Current setting East by North: here also when wee faw those Hummockes bearing North by East nine leagues off, wee had twelue fathoms streamie ground. Wednesday the seuenth at noone, wee found the ship to bee in ten degrees fortie two minutes, having runne from the former noone vntill this present, North-east a quarter North fine and twentie leagues: heereby wee found, that the Current fetting East by North, had carried vs ten miles to the Northwards of our computation, our depths from twelve to fixteene, twentie, and twentie foure fathoms ; and so to twentie, eighteene, sixteene, fourteene, 40 againe, fandie ground. From the afore-faid two Hummocks, as wee did coast it along within eight leagues off the shoare, and sometimes more, sometimes lesse, wee saw high Land all along up in the Countrie, and in many places by the waters fide, a smooth Land about the highth of the Lizard, with many plots of white fand upon it, as well as by the waters fide. The first white spots that we saw upon the smooth Land, was upon the very Point that is ten leagues to the Westward of the Cape Ceffier, which at first feemed to bee a Towne with faire houses Cape Ceffice, and white walls: this Cape did beare West North-west halfe West from vs, about fixe leagues off, this present day at noone, when we were in ten degrees fortie two minutes. Thursday at noone, we were in eleuen degrees thirtie minutes, having gone twentie leagues North-east halfe North, from the former noone. The night before, at eight of the clocke, we came to an anchor in twentie two fathome freamie ground, where the Current did fet East halfe North, vntill twelue; and then finding that it had recourse to the Westward, wee weighed anchor againe, and steered away North-east, and North-east by North, all the night; and so vntill the eight at noone afore-faid : in which course we had from twentie two to twentie eight , thirtie two, thirtie fixe, fortie, fortie foure fathoms; and a little before noone, fortie feuen, and after that wee had no ground. The cause why wee anchored that night was, that wee found very vncertaine shoalding, having had eighteene, twentie, twentie two, and twentie foure fathomes : and after noone on the sodaine we came into fixteene, fourteene, twelue, and the Unicorne being faire by vs had but nine fathoms and an halfe.

From the eight untill the ninth at noone, wee steered alongst the shoare North North-east fixteene leagues, North by East fix leagues, North fix leagues, and North by West nine leagues; which made in all a North by East one third part Easterly way, thirtie six leagues : here we had Cape Varrella West South-welt eight leagues off, being in the latitude of thirteene degrees thir- Cape Parella teene minutes : this Cape is called by the Chinefes (Ientam) which in their language doth fignifie a Chimney, because it hath a sharpe Hummocke on the top of the hill, much like vnto a Current.

Chimney on the top of a house. From the ninth vntill the tenth at noone, North two third parts West twentie fixe leagues, the latitude fourteene degrees thirtie minutes : here we were about ten leagues off the land; and the day before, wee came not aboue fixe leagues off Cape Varrella, by which I gather, that the land trendeth away North by West from Cape Varrella. Sunday at noone, we were in fixteene degrees ten minutes, having runne from the former noone thirtie three leagues and one third part, due North. Munday at noone, twentie fixe leagues North North-east halfe North, latitude seuenteene degrees fortie minutes , the Current hauing fet vs fixe miles to the Northwards. This evening at fixe, we descried the Ile of Amon, the high land bearing North-west by North twelve leagues, wee having gone from noone seven leagues North-east. From hence vntill noone the next day, North-east by East twentie two to leagues : here we were in eighteene degrees and an halfe. This morning, we chaled a Portugall Frigat, but flee was of folight burthen that we could not come neere her.

The fourteenth day at noone, we were in ninteene degrees thirtie fine minutes, our way from the former noone North-east twentie fixe leagues ; whereby wee found that the Current had carried vs foure leagues to the Northwards of our account : and yet this day at noone, with our boats in seuentie three fathoms ozie, and found no Current at all. Here we saw many Ripplings like ouer-falls, as though there had gone some great Tide, but found none as yet. This afternoone at fixe, we anchored againe, with our boat in fixtie eight fathoms ozie fand, and found a small Current to the Southward. The fifteenth at noone, wee had runne seuenteene leagues North-east by North : here we were in twentie degrees thirtie minutes, the Current 20 having carried vs feuen leagues to the Northward , here we had fortie fine fathoms fandie ozie. The fixteenth at noone in twentie one degrees and twentie minutes, we had fight of three Ilands : the Eastermost bearing Nor. h North-east, the Westermost North-west, the necrestland nine leagues off : here we had twentie two fathomes ozie fand; we met with the wind here at East South-east, which blew very fresh: but from Cape Varrella vnto this place, wee had the wind alwayes, from the South South-east to the South-west. The next morning at eight of the clocke, we had twentie eight fathomes ozie, having runne from the former noone South-west eleuen leagues : where perceining the wind and weather to encrease, wee thought it better to anchor, then to runne backe the way that we came.

Sunday the eighteenth in the morning, the weather somewhat faire, we endeauored to weigh 20 our anchor; but even as our anchor was ar eeke, the cable brake in the halfe, being new, and neper wet before : by which accident we loft a good anchor. The Unicorne, as wee were almost apecke, shot off a Peece, whereupon I fent the Shallop speedily about her , to know what was amisse; who brought me word, that shee had sprung agreat leake, which had almost tired all their men with baling : which as foone as I heard, I fent thirtie men aboord of her, to ease their men by spells, vntill it should please Gon to discouer the leake : this day the wind at South-east, which stood to the Eastward, making of a North-east way, vntill fixe at night, at which time we faw the former high Hand againe , North North-east one third part East , ten leagues off, having twentie three fathoms. This evening, our men returned from the Unicorne, and brought vs newes, that the great leake was firmely ftopt, whereat wee all reioyced. From 40 fixe to twelue at night, we made a North-east way fourteene leagues, where we had twentie fathoms ozie. From twelue to fine in the morning, wee flood to the Southwards, making a South-west way three leagues and an halfe; here wee had twentie fixe fathoms againe, ozie

The nineteenth, from five this morning, we call about to the land, the wind at South-east, wherewith we made a North-east way: and at fixe of the clocke were within eight leagues of the aforesaid high Iland, bearing North by East from vs: and at eight this morning, Master Roberts, Master of the Unicorne, came aboord of vs , and told mee that they had another great leake broke out, and that they must needs seeke out some smooth place to ride in , the better to fearch their leakes, and to fit their fore-mast better in the step : hereupon I resolued to beare vp 10 under the great Hand, which was now North by East from vs, in hope to find a smooth Road the more speedily to effect their businesse. There were many more llands in sight , both to the Westward, and to the Eastward of vs; but this being the neerest to vs, and the likeliest, we steered with it, being within three leagues of it, the wind began to duller, and the night was at hand, therefore we plied it to and againe, vntill the twentieth in the morning, and then the wind was fo farre Northerly, that wee could not cease the place. This day I went abourd agains of the Unicorne, to know what they intended to doe; where I found them all very willing to stand it alongst, because the wind was faire; not doubting but that they should bee able to ouercome it. When I heard their resolution, I caused all my Laskayres to remaine abound the Vincorne, to asfift them as occasion should require, and so we stood away all that afternoone vntill midnight, 60 with a faire wind, and faire weather; but then it began to blow so much wind, that wee were inforced to lie here a trie with her maine course all night.

The one and twentieth in the morning, we law the Vnicorne a league and an halfe afterne off vs , having a fore-faile and a sprit-faile out ; which, as afterward I perceived, was to flat her about for the shoare againe: I presently caused our fere-course to be made readie to flat our ship after her, although wee had little hope to allit her in any thing, because the sea was so farre growne, as our men were a loting of their fore-courle, there came fuch a violent guft that they were faine to furle it againe: if not, our faile would have beene blowne away. After the gult They lose fight was ouer, we fet our fore-faile, and to make her weare the rounder, wee braled vp our maine of the Pricerne, course, part of it being blowne out of the boult-rope before they could furle it, after that the maine-faile was vp, we put the helme hard aweather, thinking that the ship would have come round, but all in vaine; for thee would not weare about two or three points, and then come to 10 againe. Now the sea was so growne, that we durst not let fall our sprit-saile; and the wind so violent, that we could not loofe our fore-top-faile : and this while the Vnicorne was out of fight, when we faw that our thip would not weare, we steered away, as neere as wee could lie South by East, vitil noone; having made our way South by East thirteene leagues from the Southermost Iland in fight ouer-night, which I called the Morocco Saddle, by realon of a deepe Swampe Morocco Saddle on the top thereof. This Saddle-Hand aforelaid lieth in twentie one degrees fortie fine minutes or Saddle-

North latitude, it hath on the Westerfide, source or fine very small Ilands close by it , and on the Iland, Easternetide three Ilands in fight, lying all three next hand East North-east from it. From Saddle-lle to the Westward, there are many Hands; some North-west from it, others West North-west, West by North; and the Southermost of all those Hands in fight did beare from 20 sodaine foure foot and an halte water in hold , which imployed both our Pumpes going a long time before we could free her. Towards the evening, it pleased G o D to discover three or foure great leakes betweene wind and water, which when our Carpenters had stopped: wee found Leakes. great eafe and comfort, for then we could let the Pumpe stand still halfe an houre, and free her againe with one Pumpe in little more then a quarter of an houre. From this day noone, vntill the two and twentieth at noone, fine leagues South South-west, with a paire of Coursers; and nine leagues South-west by West a Hull : here we had twentie seuen fathoms and an halfe ozie. The two and twentieth in the afternoone, the violence of the wind began to decrease, and confequently, the furie of the waves allayed, which caused our ship to grow the thighter, whereby we plainely perceived, that the most part of our leakes were betwixt wind and water, and 30 therefore the first faire weather I caused our Carpenters to fearch the ships sides, where they found and stopped many bad places, some of a yard in length, where the Ocum was all rotten this West, about fifteene leagues off. This afternoone, our ship waxed very leake, having on the

in the feame. The foure and twentieth day, we had fight of a great Hand, bearing North from vs, about featien Leagues off, having a high Hill on the Easterne end of it, which was the same Iland that did beare West from Morocco Saddle, fifteene leagues off or thereabouts. From hence untill the fix and twentieth in the evening, our way was South by West twentie four eleagues, the depth increasing from nineteene vnto fix and thirty fathoms ozie ground : Here we had a little round Iland South-well by West two leagues off, which lyeth in twenty degrees and twenty minutes neereft. This Iland hath foure small Ilands in the South-west side of it, but none of them e-40 quall in height with this , wee faw it at least ten leagues off , rifing like a Chinefes hat. From hence untill the feuen and twentieth at noone East by North, two third parts North, twelue leagues : Here we had one and forty fathoms, ozie ground. This morning at two of the clocke the winde veered up at South South-east and about noone at South.

From twelue the twentie seuen , vnto twelue the twentie eight , East North-east eighteene leagues, here we had almost one and forty fathoms ozie ground. This morning at two of the clock the wind veered back agains at South South-east. From the eight and twentieth vntill noone the nine and twentieth, East North-east eighteen leagues : Here we were in one and twenty degrees and ten minutes depth, one and forty fathoms ozie. The wind, this twenty foure houres, from South to South-east by South, and very faire weather euer fince the storme. From the nine and 50 twentieth untill the thirtieth at noone, East North-east eighteene leagues latitude, one and twenty degrees and thirty minutes depth, fix and fifty fathoms ozie, the winde South-east by South, fomewhat guftie weather. From the last of lune vntill the first of July at noone, East North-east halfe North , two and twenty leagues latitude, two and twenty degrees and ten minutes, the depth fine and twenty fathoms black fandy ozie: Here from the top-mast-head we saw land North North-west halfe North, the winde in the night South South-east, by day South-east. This day from noone to featen at night North-east by North, fixe leagues, twentie foure fathoms black and white fand with fliels. From thence vntill two at noone South-well halfe South, nine leagues and a halfe, foure and twenty fathoms fandy ozie. The first of July, at fixe in the afternoone when we were 6c in foure and twenty fathoms land and shels, wee law three China Fisher-boates. The winder came up this evening at East South-east, with which we stood off to the Southwards, and having crackt our maine top-maft but a little before, which was the cause that wee could beare but course and bonnet of each, and therefore made our year of no better then South-west, as I said before. From this second day at noone untill eight at night, our way was South foure leagues, depth seuen and twenty fathoms o zie ground. From eight at night vntill noone the next day North North-west a quarter West, seuen leagues fine and twenty fathoms blacke ozie sand, like the former, the winde at East by North and East North-east; here wee faw the land from the North to the North-east about twelue leagues off, rising in certaine Hummocks, by which I connecture that this land lyeth in two and twenty degrees and fine and forty minutes neerest. From twelle this day to foure, North North-west three leagues fine and twenty fathoms black fand. From foure to twelue the next day South-east by South, ten leagues fue and forty fathoms black fandy ozie. From the fourth vntll the fifth at noone South-East by South fix leagues no ground in eightie fathoms. This foure and twentie houres very little wind, for the most pare no ground in eighter fattoms. I mistoure and version mones buy and a manner memort part at East North-east. From the first ot the fixe at noone North by East four leagues, here we had 10 no ground in eighty fathoms. This foure and twenty houres, it was for the most part calme, that little winde that blew was at East and East North-east, when it was flat calme wee made divers trialls with our Lead, and sometimes wee should have fixty fathoms, otherwhiles fifty fixe fathoms, and then we perceived that the ship was carryed to the South Westward with a fagging Current, and when the calme continued three or foure houres, then no ground in eighty fathoms, as aforefaid, This afternoone, it rained a downe-right showre, and after that, the wind came up at South and South South-west an easiegale with fair weather. From the fixt unto the feuenth at noone, North-east halfe North mine leagues; here we had twenty fixe fathoms black ozie ground : the winde continued at South South-west with faire weather. From the seuenth at noone vntill the eight at night, North-east by North three leagues and a halfe, twenty fa- 20 thoms gray ozie fand, here by the Scorpians heart I found the ship to be in two and twenty degrees and fine and thirty minutes. From eight to twelve, the eight North-east by North fifgrees and the distance made vs in three and twenty degrees and fixe minutes. At this prefent we had fight of the high land of Logoffe North-weft by North cleuen leagues off, having nineteen fathoms, a groffe white fand with smal shels, the wind stil continuing at South-west & West South-west. This morning, we saw eight or nine Fisher-boats, whereof one came within hayling of vs, but we could not perswade them to come aboord. This morning, we came ouer a banke where we had but fitteene fathoms groffe ground, this afternoone, from twelue to foure North North-east halfe North fine leagues, twenty fathoms fandy grauell and shels, the high land of Logosse bearing North-well by West nine leagues off. From soure to eight, Northeast by North fine leagues, two and twenty fathoms fandy granell. From eight to twelve, fine leagues thirty fathoms landy ozie. From twelve to twelve the ninth, North-east twelve leagues thirtie foure fathome, blacke fandie ozie, the wind at South-west, faire weather, latitude twencie foure degrees, twentie minutes. From the ninth at noone, vntill the tenth, North-east one quarter East, twelve leagues thirty fine fathomes ozie, this night the skie was all over-cast, and the wind over-cast with raine. This forenoone it was calme, and we making tryall with the Lead, found that the Current did fee vs North North-east. Here we had light of certaine small Hands, oncof them rising in forme of a Sugar-loafe, and did beare West North-west from vs at noone about eight leagues off. This afternoone we hoyfed out our little Boat, which the Carpenters built vpon our fore-Caftle: by her wee made tryall of the Current againe, and found it to let East North-east. This Euening, at eight we anchored in twentie eight fathomes, having made no way all this after-noone, but as the Current fet vs, which was North-east about a mile an houre. Tuesday, the eleuenth in the morning, we fet faile againe, and so drove away to the North-east-ward, by means of the former Current, having no wind at all : this day at noone, wee had fight of the top of Formefa about the clouds, the highest part of it bearing South-east by East, about eighteene leagues oil, and the neerest Iland vnto vs on the Coast of China, was at the same time North-west from vs seven leagues: heere wee had fight of many great Fisher-boates almost round about vs, who fent certaine little Boats aboord vs with fish, for which we paid them double, the value at the first to encourage them to come agains. This Euening, at fixe, the wind came up at North North-east, by meanes whereof, and a little helpe of the Current setting towards the North east by East, which made an East way nine leagues to the twelfth at noone. Heere we had the highest Land of Formofa, South-east, the neerest land about eight leagues off, the neather point of it East by North ten leagues off our depth, fortie fixe fathomes ozie : the latitude twentie fine degrees twentie minutes. From the high Land of Formofa, firetcheth out a lower Land to the water-fide, being a white fandy shoare, and smooth fand Hils farther up the Countrey, much like to the Coaft of Barbary.

A banke.

Wednelday, the twelfth, from twelue to three East two leagues, here we were in the same depths, that wee had at noone, viz. forty fixe fathomes, beeing foure leagues off the forelaid fandy thoare, and feeing wee could lye no flent this way, wee tackt and stood off againe, flem- 60 ming North-west and North-west by North, and North by West, making North-west eight leagues, where we had forty fathomes. From hence we stood in againe vntill twelve, the next day our way East by East fixe leagues, here we had the Norther point of Formofa, East Southeast ten leagues off, being in the latitude of twenty five degrees, fortie minutes, the depth fifrie fix fathoms exicity this we perceived that the Current had carryed vs towards the East Northeast. The thirteenth, from noone vntill fix, we flood in East by South, and East South-east vntill we had the forefaid point East South-east halfe East, fixe leagues off forty two fathomes, Here we tackt about the North-ward, lying North North-west and North-west by North, which made a North-west by West way, till two at night about one halfe league, then the wind came up at North-west by West, untill fixe in the morning, with which halfe a league Northeast by North, heere the foresaid point was East South-east halfe South. From fixe to twelue, it was calme with a cockling Sea, fetting in vpon the spoare, and yet by meanes of the Current 10 fetting towards the East North-east, we had by noone brought the faid point South-east of vs, about fine leagues off, having forty foure fathomes ozie, the latitude twentie fine degrees fortie

Friday, the fourteenth in the afternoone, we perceived that the former Current was done, and that our ship was driving to the South-west-wards with a contrary Current, wherefore we anchored, having fortie two fathomes, a browne gliftering fand, here wee rode vntill eight at night, at which time finding the Current to fet towards the East North-east : againe wee Contrary Curweighed with a little breath of wind Southerly, and within an houre after, the wind veered rent, vp at Welt South-west, and began to blow fresh. At eight at night, the fourteenth vnto the fitteenth at noone, North-east by North halfe East, nineteene leagues, twentie fixe degrees thirtie minutes, the wind West and West by North. From the fifteenth at noone, vntill the 20 twelfth, the fixteenth, North-east by North, twentie foure leagues, latitude twentie foure degrees thirtie minutes, depth fifty five fathomes, black, fandie, ozie, the wind at West by North. From the twelfth, the fixteenth, vntill the twelfth, the feuenteenth, North-east by North, feuen leagues, latitude twentie eight degrees eight minutes, by this I perceived, that the Current had fet vs North-cast foure halfe leagues, the wind West South-west, depth fiftie fathoms, blacke, fandy, ozie. From the feuenteenth, vntill the eighteenth at noone, our way through the water, East North-east, ten halfe leagues, by the Current North-east one quarter East, fine leagues latitude twentie eight degrees thirtie minutes, the wind North by West, and North North-west faire weather. From the eighteenth, vntill the nineteenth at noone, our way through the water North-east by North thirty foure leagues , latitude twentie nine degrees 30 forty rise minutes, depth fixty fathomes, fandie, ozie. The wind at first North North-west, and North North-west vntill mid-night with faire weather. From thence vntill noone, the next day Weil South-weil and South-weil very foule weather with much raine. From the nineteenth vntill the twentieth at noone, North-east twentie eight leagues, latitude thirtie degrees thirtie fine minutes, depth fiftie fine fathomes, fandy, ozie, the wind for the mo? part South-weil and Weil South-weil, the weather showrie.

Thursday, the twentieth, from three to fix North-east two leagues & a half, depth thirty fuen fathomes, blacke fand. From fixe to fine, next morning, North-east by East nine leagues, eightie fixe fathomes, groffe, gray fand with some shels. From fine to twelve, the one and twentieth, North-east nine leagues & a halfe, no ground in ninetie fathomes, here we were in one and thirrie degrees twentie fine minutes, South South-west South, and South South-east, here I found that the Current had carryed vs tenne miles to the North-wards of our computation in Current. twentie foure houres. From twelue, the one and twentieth vnto twelue, the two and twentieth, North-east two third parts North, twentie fine leagues, latitude thirtie two degrees urtie minutes, here the great found of Langasague, was East about nine leagues off, and the Se that Goto West by North ten leagues off.

we arrived in a Port of Firando, called Cochee, which is about four halfe English miles to the Sou of the Hauen of Firando.

THEIR RET

He eighteenth of December, Munday at noone, the lles of Mexin I from vs foure leaugues off. Our course from Pomo being South South-west twentie fine leagues, the wind North-well. From the eighteenth, at noone to the nineteenth, fixe leagues South-west, little wind & variable, yet faire weather (as before) here we had the Iles of Manna, North-east by North nine leagues off, the latitude one and thirtie degrees thirtie two minutes, here we had feuentie eight fathomes, threamy ground betwixt with a peppery fand and fmail thels. From the nineteenth to the twentieth at noone South-west fourteene leagues, latitude one and thirtie degrees two minutes, the wind from the West North-west to the Northeast, the weather very faire. From the twentieth, to the one and twentieth, South-west by Well thirtie leagues, latitude thirtie degrees twentie three minutes, by this we found that the 60 Current had let vs thirteene miles to the North-wards of our account, the wind at North North-east, the weather faire. Friday, the two and twentieth, (from the former middley, we had made a South-west by West way twentie seven leagues, latitude twentie nine degrees fortie minutes, here our lacitude courie & distance agreed wel together. This day at noon we had thirtie fine fathoms, final fand & ezie, the wind North-east and North-east faire weather.

From Sunday noone, vntill Munday noone, being Christmasse day, South-west halfe South fiftie two leagues, here we had fight of certaine Ilands, which lye off the Coast of China, the neerest vinto vs was a small Iland bearing West by South from vs, about three leagues off, and did rife in the forme of a Cayman, the wind North North-eaft, and North-eaft, the depth in this place about thirty three fathomes ozie. This forenone, wee came vp with a luncke that kept the fame course as we did, she had the Hollands Colours on her Poope, whereby we conceiued that the had a Paffe from them, but had thee beene good purchas, wee could not have dealt with her, because there was much wind, a loftie Sea.

From Munday noone to Tuesday noone, South-west by South, fiftie three leagues, here we hadight of certaine llands, which lye off Logo to, bearing North-weit by West nine legues off, here wee had one and thirty fathomes, blacke peppery fand. From hence wee steered in West South-west ten leagues, vntill fixe at night. At which time wee had the Rockes of the 20 point of Loamb West fortie leagues off, our depth twentie two fathonies, and white fand mixt. From fixe to twelue South-west by South, cleuen leagues, twentie fine fathomes ozie.

From twelve to twelve, the feuen and twentieth, South-well halfe Welt, one and twentie leagues. This feuen and twentieth, it blew a faire gale at North-east as before, and the weather cleered up, that we had light of the Sunne, which we had not of a long time feene before. From noone untill mid-night South-welf halfe West nineteene leagues : here by the North-star and Canons, we were in one & twentie degrees thirtle minutes, the depth fiftie fine, fandy, ozie. From mid-night the fenen and twentieth, vnto mid-night the eight and twentieth, South-weft nineteene leagues: heere by the Sunne, we were North twentie degrees, forty fue minutes, the wind fill at North-east, the weather faire. From the eight and twentieth, vntill thenine and 30 twentieth at noone, South-well thirtie eight, leagues, latitude nineteene degrees fiftie three minutes, the depth feuentie fine fathomes, fandy, ozie, the wind North-eaft, the weather faires by this we gathered, that we had made our way to the West-ward of the South-west by West, by meanes of some Current setting to the West-ward. From the nine and twentieth, vntill the thirtieth, South-west halfe South, thirtie eight leagues, latitude eighteene degrees thirtie minutes, the wind at East North-east and East by North, the weather very faire, no ground in one hundred and twentie fathomes. From Saturday untill Sunday at noone, which was the laft of December, South-west by South, twentie seuen leagues and a halfe, latitude seuenteene degrees twentie minutes, wind East North-east, weather faire.

The first of January, from the last of December untill New-yeeres day at noone, South-west 40 by South twentie eight leagues, latitude fixteene degrees ten minutes. Here the wind came vp at North-east by North, the weather faire. From the first of Ianuary , vntill the second at noone South halfe West, twentie eight leagues, the weather ouer-cast the wind at North-east by North. From this day noone, vntill two of the clocke in the afternoone, South South-west halfe South three leagues, here wee had fight of a point of Land, bearing West from vs eight leagues off. From two in the afternoone, vntill twelves the next day, South halfe East, fortie leagues, here we had Cape Varella North-west by North eight leagues off. This twentie foure houres we had much raine and dirtie weather. From the third at noone, untill the fourth at fixe in the morning, our way one with another vpon a straight Line South South-west halfe West, thirtie 50 leagues, here we were in eleuen degrees, North latitude, of our depth twentie foure fathomes, as neere as I could gheile. Here also wee had fight of Poolo Ceeir, bearing South by Eath feuen Cape Ceer, or leagues off, and the Cape Ceer North by West fixe leagues from vs. From fixe vittill noone, West South-west thirteene leagues. From the fourth at noone, vitill the fifth at noone, first South-west by West twentie two leagues, then South-west halfe West fixe leagues, and then South South-west halfe South one and twentie leagues, here wee were in nine degrees. The body of Poolo Candor, bearing South South-west about seuen leagues from vs. Our depths from the fourthat noone, were from eighteene to fourteene fathomes : from fixteene to cleuen, wee felt a Current fetting our flip to the South-ward beyond our computation, this fame night at 60 Sun-fetting, we found the variation to be one degree North-westing. This eneming, at fixe of the clocke we had the South-east end of Poolo Candor, North-west foure leagues off, the wind North-east. From fix this evening, vntill twelve, the next South South-west thirtie leagues, latitude fenen degrees ten minutes, the wind at North-east, the weather very faire. From the fixt vntill the feuenth at noone, South South-west thirtie fix leagues & a half, laritude

654

Poole Cander.

Current.

CHAP. 7. S.5. (aptaine Prings arrivall in Iapa from Iapan.

fine degrees thirtie minutes, the wind at North-east, the weather faire. From Sunday the feuenth, vntill Munday the eighth at noone South South-west halfe South fortie two leagues, latitude three degrees thirtie minutes, the wind at North-east by East and East North-east, the weatherfaire. This day at foure in the afternoone, we had the North point of Pools Timon, Pools Timen, South-west by South about feuen leagues off, we having runne from noone feuen leagues South South-west. From Munday to Tuesday at noone, South South-west seuen lengtes, South-east fixteene leagues, and South feuenteene leagues; the latitude one degree twentie fiue minutes; by this we perceived the Current had carryed vs fixteene minutes to the South-wards of our

From this swelfth day vntill foure in the afternoone South fixe leagues, our depth twentie foure fathomes streamy ground : here we faw Poolo Pengran South-west by South fixe leagues. and the head-land of Iore Welt South-west eight leagues off. From hence vntill foure leagues off South South-east fourteene leagues off, eighteene fathomes, the fame ground : from hence till noone, the tenth, South twelve degrees, here wee had feuenteene fathomes. The tenth at noone, we had fight of Land. The Northermost high hummocke bearing West from vs about fixe leagues off. This day at noone by our indgement, we were ten minutes to the South-ward of the Line.

Thursday, the eleuenth at noone, we were in one degree fixteene minutes South latitude, our course from the tenth at noone, South halfe West twentie two leagues. Here the Souther Ile of 20 Poolo Tayro, was due East from vs three leagues off : our depth fourteene fathomes, ozie. This Poolo Tayro confifteth of fenen or eight Hands and Rockes mixt together, the longest tract of them is North North-west, and South South-east, the Northermost Ile is farre longer and larger then any of the reft. From this Norther-most lle vnto Poolo Pan, North- Poolo Pan, well halfe Well nine leagues, the depth from the tenth at noone vnto this prefent, was from feuenteene to fourteene fathomes all along it Poolo Tayro : when the Norther-most Ile of Poolo Tayro, East North-east halfe East three leagues from vs, then the three hummocks on the North end of Banco did beare South-east ten leagues off; And the high Land of Mannapin South by Monnapin, East halfe East. From this day noone vntill mid-night, South South-west halfe South tenne leagues : here we anchored feuenteene fathomes foft ground, where we rid all night. The next 30 morning, we had the Hill of Mannapin, South South-east halfe East, the low Land by the water fide three leagues off, the next head-land to the North-wards, which rifeth in three hummockes, when you are to the North-wards of it East North-east halfe North. About fix leagues off, the twelfth at noone being at anchor in the same place, by our observation wee were in one degree one and fiftie minutes neerest, the wind at West North-west, weather faire. This afternoone we weighed and stood in towards the Coast of Sumatra, and at mid-night anchored in twelve fathomes of the River of Pallimbam, finding nine, ten, and twelve fathomes ozie, as Pallimbam

Saturday, the thirteenth in the morning, we weighed againe (the wind Northerly) and flecred along by the Sumatra shoare, through the Streights of Banco, vntill wee came betweene 40 the first and second point, which was at eight at night, where we anchored in fixteene fathoms about two leagues off the Sumatra shoare. From the River of Pallimbam vnto this place, we had Sumatra, nine, ten, cleuen, twe lee fathomes within two halfe leagues off the Sumatra fide, all alongst Straights of vntil we came up neer the fecond point (which maketh the narrowest of the Streights) & there Banco. we found about twentie fathomes water. Sunday, the fourteenth, we fet faile againe and borrowed faire abound the Sumatra fide in eight, feuer and fixe fathomes untill wee had Lucepara. South-east by East, and then we haled away South South-east, South-east by South and Southeast finding all the way five fathomes ozie, vntill wee had brought Lucepara North by West about feuen leagues off, and then the water began to deepen, having fine fathomes & a halfe, fixe fathomes. Munday, the fifteenth, wee were in foure degrees fiftie eight minutes, wee being difo ftant from Lucepara, thirtie fixe leagues South by East from it. From hence vntill foure in the afternoone South South-west foure leagues. Here we saw a should aboue the water, about foure miles from vs, West South-west. The two slands on the Coast of Sumatra, bearing upon the same point seuen leagues off. Also Poolo Keero did beare East South-east halfe South. From this should fine leagues off, and the high Land of Marrough was South-west from the should afore- Marrough. faid. This Evening, the wind did hearten in at North-west : by which meanes we got in neere vnto Poolo Peniang after mid-night, and there came to anchor vntill the next day.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

WILLIAM HORES Discourse of his Voyage in the Dragon and Expedition. from Surat to Achen, Teco and Bantam; and of the surprising the Dragon, Beare, Expedition, &c. in a Letter to the Companie.

To the Honorable Gouernour and Right Worshipfull Committees of the Companie of the English trading in the EAST INDIA. &C.

10

Honorable and Right Worshipfull Sirs.

He passages of your businesse, in Captaine Bonners Voyage, to and at Surat (till then and long after very hopefull) you have by ma , adulfes from themselves. and fenerall relations from others, largely and particularly understood. Wherefore I shall therein be purposely silent, intending according to my poore meanes and abilitie, (the one being loft with your ships, and the other having alwayes and aointie, (the one composite with fuch accidents as vntill the faid 20 ships taking hapned. Wherein I shall humbly befeech, that you would be pleased to pardon my prelumption, in offering to your view thele imperfect and vinworthy Lines, not doubting but others better able, will more accurately performe (what is by me omitted requifite your knowledge) then my infufficiency (especially at this time) is able to expresse, and poore imployment in your feruice affoorded not to be made partaker of.

Dragon parted 17.Febr. necre A lunke of the Red S.a.

Kin I entertiinm nt at The Daball rs delire i rade with vs. Store of refreshing at Da. bull and good cheape. Promitingto

Daball.

Pepper at E4. Left for pledges.

cau crobee

The Dragon and other thips of that Fleet parting with the Anne, the feuenteenth of Februafrom the Anne rie, 1618, the one and twentieth following, anchored before the Road and Towne of Dabull, (it being formerly ordered by consultation to touch there) and not long after came a Boat from the Gouernour-Deputie, to learne what and whence we were; whereof being certified, hee againe returned ashoare : and toward night, a grave man, Captaine of a Juncke, then in the Road, 20 laden and bound for the Red Sea, with his tonne came aboord, bringing ten Oxen, ten Goats, and bound for three hundred Hennes, with great flore of Rice, Fruits, &c. for a Prefent, to conferre with our Captaine about fuch things as should be propounted; and that night they lodged abourd. The morrow after (they remayning for pledges) Mafter Salbanke and Mafter Fuelland went ashoare to the Deputie (the Gogernour himfelfe being then at Court, eight dayes journey diffant) The Chiefes of the Towne, as they affirmed, entertayned them very kindly, profesting likewise that they were much contented with the English arrivall, and had long delired to have commerce with them, and to that end intreated to have a Factorie left, or the flups to ride, till notice thereof might legiuen to the Governour, because without his approbation they could not conclude of any thing. We had at this place great flore of very good refreshing indifferently cheape, large 40 Becurs for fixe Rinlls a piece, and Fruits, &c. great plentie for small prices: but none of the old remnants in the Lion could wend, yet upon future hopes, they promifing fairely to deale hereafter for large quantities of broad Cloth, Lead, and other English commodities, Captaine Bonner deferred inforcing, adulting thereof to Surar, that the next yeeres Fleet might doe to them as ocbuy quantities calion required. The fixe and twentieth, the aforefaid Noghoda landed, to whom was given a or cloth here- faire in-laid Musket with the furniture thereof: He also earnefily defired an English Bible, which being given, he faid, he would carefully keepe till some English were there resident, and then not put off any with their helpe would have it translated into Arabeck for his owne vie. It hath beene, I prefune, long fince related vinto your Worthips, how that during your Fleets aboad at Smilly, two Mallabar Frigots put themselves under command of your ships, affirming 50 The Captaine themselves subjects to a Ragia of Echarce neere Gos, and pretending to be fent by the King them of the lunder. Mafter, to capitulate with the English about establishing a Trade with him for Pepper, his Coundefied on Entrey, by their report, yeelding yeerly fufficient to lade two great ships, the trial whereof being by confultation affented vinto, they both attended the Fleet to this place : and here one of them trussated into defired leave to depart before to the King to aduize of our comming, that his Pepper might be in more readineffe against our arrivall, and that an English Merchant might accompanie him to view the commodities, and cut price with the King, for whom fufficient Hoftage thould be left abourd the Dragon. Which was likewife agreed upon, Mafter Highs, Merchant, and Iro Theres of the offered with him for Linguist, were dispeeded with him , and eight of the Prime men in beth I rights

> The Lion being formerly disposed of for the Red Sea, it was ordered that they thould keepe the other fluns companie to Dakull, there to vent, if possible, part and there remeants brought from the R d Sea, for readic money, or to force them Trade, and the proceeding thereof to bee toward lading the Expedition with Pepper at Extraola but the unfitned of the forming dities for the Dabulleers, their faire promises and kind viage, procure their quiet this yeere, for which The Lion Sicause the Lians companie being judged needlesse any further. The seven and twentieth, shee was spreaded to the dispended pointer voyage: but before her departure, fixe hundred pounds fterling intended to be transported to Sarat, was detayned for specifier lading the Expedition: having left Letters to to be four to Sarat, toward night the Drawn circ for fall, intending next for Basis of Pounds decay. to be sent to Surat: toward night the Dragen, coc. set saile, intending next for Basachala. At need to the la-Dabull enquirie was made for Tho. Sprage, who was sent from Brampore into Gulcandame, to dingo: the Exrecouer a debt due by a Persian in that place, and at Surat it was reported, that the taid Persian redition. was forceably taken from him at this Towne, and Sprage also very much abused. But they de- Sprage not nie euer to haue feene or knowne any such men, but tooke notice from vs to apprehend both or heard off at 10 either if they should at any time happen on them.

The fift of March, we anchored at Batachala, shooting three Peeces to give notice of our arriwall: and the next day about noone, Master Wight with the other Mallabar Frigat came aboord, by whom we understood, that at the Kings Towne, some three dayes journey thence, was Pepper to the quantitie of one hundred and fiftie Tunnes or vpward, but the price was held hard at The price of fiftie Rialls of eight the Candee, and would not be brought lower then fortie feuen; the Pep- Pepper at Batper worse then that of Tercoo, and in all likelihood he had no intent for to fell it, but to keepe it testo at hite for the Portugals, with whom he hath continual Trading, and this to bee but a deuice of those Rials the Can-Rowers to free themselves from command of the English. The Candee at this place contayneth the Candee neere fiue hundred pounds.

Our hopes of this place prouing no better: the third present, we set saile thence. Running Pound. along this Coast, we saw and met with many Juncks of the Mallabars, and not finding ought in them, faue Coco-nuts and fuch trash, presently described them, one excepted, belonging to the Aluncke of Samorene, which Captaine Bonner caufed to returne with him, the fooner to procure satisfaction the samo ine for goods and debts, left there by Peter Needham, Ge. which luncke certified of another of the decayned. Samorines laden with Pepper, riding at Panana, some twelue leagues to the Southward of Cali- At Panana in cut, and bound for the Red Sea, at which place also the Samorine then kept his Court, where are the Samorine riuing the tenth dillo, a Messenger was sent to aduertise the ships arrivall, to require satisfaction country willie riung the tenth acce, a menenger was built with ye; all which motions hee feemed willing to en. began from for his debts, &c. and to read the with very and the sweet and confer with Careline Remove when the Sweet was lunk for his deots, etc. and otherway a rate was the state of the same and confer with Captaine Bonner you the Suraywas lank tetraine, promiting the twelfth following to meet and confer with Captaine Bonner you the of the Samonas 30 shoare neere the Sea-side, and after an end made of the old, to begin a new businesse. The King ladenwebpepcame at the time prefixed, having the day before drawne alhoare and vnladen his luncke, the ri- per bound for ding within a River, at the mouth whereof was a great Barre, hindring our feizing her, whom the Red Sea.

ding within a Ruser, act and models with a Guard of fiftie small short, &c.) mer, delinered our Kings Maie-Captaine Bomer (attended with a Guard of sittle small short, &c.) mer, delinered our Kings Maie-our debts dathes Letter with a Prefent to him; and after long debating, it was concluded, that in regard we manded of the knew not the summe due by goods left with him and others, not having any notice thereof; the Samaine, payment should be deferred till information from Needham might be procured, and with aduice The Samorines of his Merchant conferted to fell vs Pepper: at prefent feuen or eight hundred Candless or more, at hirtie Rialls of eight, free of all charges. The Candes we found by trail thereof, with our Pepper offered at thirtie Rialls of eight, free of all charges. The Candee we found by triall thereof, with our by the same-English weights, to contayne fine hundred and two pounds nete; whereupon resoluing, it was rise fraude-40 concluded that the next day Master Wight and my selfe should view the quantitie and qualitie lendy. of the commoditie, which wee were to certifie Captaine Bonner (then aboord the small Pin-The and never the finare) who would thereupon have landed, money, &c. and gone to weighing deed in the bun-But that night the Kings mind changed, and we landing early next morning, were refuled poundered.

fight thereof vnleffe the King gave expresse order thereto, to whom also going, hee demanded when our Captaine would land, which wee certified him would not bee till wee had feene the The Sancting Pepper, and could judge of the quantitie, and that then we should make signe for his comming. dissimulations He then fent vs backe with one of his Kinfmen to the Merchants house, willing vs there to stay Ingediscourse, till he either came himselfe, or sent order for diparch : but there we attended while past noone, and then not hearing ought returned to the King, who by his Inrabassa fell to discoursing of our Countrey manners, had Tumblers playing before him, and with fuch trifling delayes put off the time till neere foureafter noone, when we entreated him to give vs an answere, that we might returne to the Captaine, who all this while expected our comming. Whereupon taking vs afide into a roome from fight of his people, he told vs, that he had many matters of import wherof to conferre with the Captaine, which he would not have his owne people to take notice off, and to that end had appointed a private house to be prepared for his entertainment not far from his Court, and therefore willed that Master Wight should tarrie and accompanie him presently thither, and that I should returne to the Captaine and bring him to the place assigned. I defired to fee it, but he refused, appointing one of his attendants to goe with me to the Sea-fide, there to tarrie Captaine Bonners landing, and conduct him to the foresaid house. But by the way confidering, how indifferent it would feeme, to motion his going to a place I had neither feene nor knew, especially in such a treacherous place, I told my Companion, that vnlesse I might first see where the King intended to meet, I would not admife the Captaines landing; he perceiving me resolute, lest me, and directed one of his Slaues to shew it me; who lead me need two English miles vp into the Countrey, and at length brought mee to a little house (but handsome enough)

dered to be

fent from A.

chen from Rob.

Teco and Ban-

The Pinnaffe

fixed in the midit of a small Wood, about which was a faire plaine a quarter of a mile every way. and without that, round enuironed with thicke and high Woods: which place ministring justily great cause of suspition. I returned to the King, whom I met vpon the way with fortie or fiftie attendants comming thither, with him also Master Wight; to whom I shewed my opinion of the place, and that it now grew late, and therefore nothing to be done that night.

Comming to the house, the King sate a good while musing without speaking, when we defired leans to depart, it being now neere night and past time for the Captaines landing, and that if he pleased we should againe returne on the morrow, as also to certifie his desire of private conference with the Captaine, but withall intreated, that we might lose no more dayes, but that according to his former conclusion, we might dispatch our businesse. After a little pause, he com- 10 manded all his owne people out of the roome, leaving none but Master Wight, Ino. Tucker Linguilt, and my felfe. The doores being flut, hee beckned vs, and then readily finding his Porte. performe with guife tongue (till then concealed) told vs refolutely, that he could not performe at the price convs according, tracted for; the Pepper being none of his but the Merchants of the Towne, and that vnder fortie Rialis of eight the Candee he could not accomplish; and if they or any other would fell to his promi e wager tortie Rials the Can-cheaper, he gaue licence thereto, but if none, then at that price himfelfe would furnish, and that he would fatisfie his debt when we could certifie how much and wherefore it was due: Alfo, that he had other bufinesse to confer with the Captaine, which he faid should not be mentioned, vn-Esner threat leffe himselfe were present : with which answere we returned abound to Captaine Bonner, who ned the Same- fent him word alhoare by one of his feruants who came with vs, that the English should largely 20 Pier, to take his pay themfelius you his lunks, both for the goods he detayned, and for this abuse also. Innex, and . The fourteenth of March the detayled theme.

The fourteenth of March we departed thence, the nineteenth anchored at Brimion; where pay our felues. failing of refreshing or water, the people by the Portugally instigation, refusing to let our Caskes be filled unler eightie Rialls of eight : the twentieth, altogether that night let faile, and that night doubled Cape Comorine.

The two and twentieth of March, a confultation was held aboord the Dragon, wherein was A Pinnaffeor- propounded and concluded, fending the Portugall Pinnaffe for Bantam: and by the way to touch at Teco, to learne the effate of that Factorie (if any were) to flay there foure dayes, and at Bantam ten, and then vnleffe by Captaine lordaine detayned longer, to make all hafte poffible backe to Teco, there to attend the Dragons articall from Argin, to informe the Companies affaires at 20 Bantam. In her was appointed William Ricker Mafter, with twentie other, and my vnhappy felfe alfo, that Factorie being likelieft to want attendance, and I willing to my best seruce, though in so meane a condition, as it hath pleased your Worships to dispose me.

The foure and twentieth ditto, about foure after noone we parted with the ships, they standing away for Aches, and we for Teco, of whole proceedings there I am altogether ignorant, and shall therefore presume to referre your Worships to Master Nichols his aduice (if as I much feare hath hapned) the rest from the Factors there have with your ships miscarried.

The fixt of Aprill, 1619. Wee arrived at Teco, and hearing nothing at this place, faue what your Worth ps haue long fince beene acquainted with, having watered and fent aduice to Captaine Bonner, of our arrivall, &c. The eleventh following, we let faile for Bantam. Having had 40 divers dayes calme, and sometimes the wind contrarie: the three and twentieth dielo, wee anchored twist the falt H Is in the Streights of Sunda: and the feuen and twentieth toward night, a finall gale blowing, we worshed and intended to have put into Bantam Road before day, but the vitall calme forced our anchoring fome foure miles short of Poolo-Paniang: and in the morning, readie to let faile, we deferred ten ships and foure Juncks, riding under the foresaid Hand, arrise among who with that breath weighed and flood toward v, we knew not what to conceine of them, little expecting to have found fo many English, especially those ships in that place; the better to make them, we hoyled out our Praw and in her three men, to row vntill they could make their Bantam, the 23. Colours; and if Duteb, to repaire backe to vs; if English, to goe abourd them, the latter whereof they did. Ere long the Admirall was thwart of vs , whom Mafter Rickes faluted with three 50 Peeces, he answered with one, and sending his Skiffe aboord, willed our Master to weigh and fland after him to Morrogh, and me to come abourd his ship, and bring such Letters as I had with me, which I prefently did, where I have related all those miserable and lamentable accidents, which, I prefume, your Worthips long fince vnderstood by the lames, fafely arrived home. The nine and twentieth Ditto, the Fleet anchored Morrogb, and the next day Sir Thomas

Dale, Captaine Pring, &c. came aboord our Pinnaile, and dispeeded her for Bantam, if possible to get fon prouison for the shippes, as also to learne if any Flemmift shippes were at lacatra or thereabouts : but speeding of neither, we returned to the Fleete the second of May. The Cap. loraum in ten thips then at Morrogh , were the Moone, Clone , Globe, Pepper-corne, the James Royall, Oift, the Samon and ten thips then at Morrogh , were the Moone, Clone , Globe, Pepper-corne, the James Royall, Oift, Vnicorne, Adnice, Rofe and Bee : Captaine Iourdaine being tome foureteene dayes before our 60 for lambe Pata comming gone with the Samfon and Hound, for lambee, Patania, Syam, and other places, befides the foure luncks, three whereof were from China, the other from Patania, and our Pinnasse newabout the 9, or 1 y alto by Sir Thomas Dale ordered for to attend his Fleete.

The tirst of May, the China Iuncks began to be Romidged, and their goods taken into your thips, for debts owing by the Chineses to your Worthips. After which, cutting downe their Foure china matts, yards and fayles, to preuent their lading the Pepper at Bonam, left them there ryding : lunks taken by the quantitie and qualitie of those goods exceedes my knowledge to aduize, I being both a our thips, their ftranger, and by your Worthips order not to meddle in bulineffe of that nature.

The foure and twentieth of May, Onen Bodman was executed at the yard arme in the Moone. &c. the 1. May This day the Fleete fitted to layle, and the Rofe in stead of the Pinnasse, was intended for Teco 1619. and Achen, to aduize Captaine Bonner of proceedings there with a Cargazon of Rice, Steele, &c. Own Bedman Confined to Mafter Furstand at Achen; In which ship also it pleased Sir Thomas to appoint my the 24. May 10 returne. One of the forefaid luncks being of Patania, and most of her lading Rice, belonging 1619. to the Plemmings : fo much thereof as was thought fitting, each ships prouision was taken out, Our ships fee to the Flemming: 10 much therefor as was mought many, test mays and the this day difmiffed. The fine and twentieth Dillo the Fleete let fayle, Sir Thomas Dale sale out of the and the this day difmiffed. The fine and twentieth Dillo the Fleete let fayle, Sir Thomas Dale sale out of the with the Moone, Clone, Globe, Pepper-corne, Aduice and Pinnasse, Randing for Ingano, to Sunda, the 25. recouer (if possible) part of the Monies loft, in the Sunne, and to releeue those men left there, of May if any were aliue; and Captaine Pring with the lames Royall, Gift, Vnicorne and Bee for A lunke of the Coast : intending there all to meete, and to come with their loynt strength to Priamen, Rice belongthe Coalt: intensing there all to meete, and to come with their royne needed in ing to the there to meete with the ships from England, and also Captaine Bonners, and altogether to goe Dutch. to Bantam.

The fifteenth of Iune we arrived at Tee, where we made little flay, but having watered, &c. The Date being and left letters for Captaine Bonner, of the past proceedings at Banam, and future purposes Admissible with the purposes and the second seco 20 for this place, departed thence the nineteenth Dicto from Achen, going betwixt the Mayne of all the reft of Sumatra and the Shoalds, which from Teco lye foure degrees or more of North latitude, and fet falle out of ftopping every night : The ninth of July, about fixe in the evening, a storme began at North- the Streights welt (we being then anchored some fifteene leagues to the Northward of Barrous) which in- of Sunda, 25. creafed in great extremitie till about mid-night with very fearefull Thunder, Lightning, and May, 1619. terrible Raine, we had but one anchor aground, having the Shoalds and the Mayne on every fide of vs within two leagues. In this extremitie, not knowing what course to take, but onely the money and to attend Gods mercy in our deliverance, our Cable brake, and we bare roome backe over these ordnance lete Shoalds in an exceeding darke night, with which formerly we durft fcarfe deale at noone-day: in the Sunne. vet the neuer forfaking mercy of the Almightie preserved vs from all those dangers, and with Our Fleetpuryet the neuer forlaking mercy of the Alimigniae preference was from an vinor dangers, and with poled to re30 day-light also fent visitaire weather, when necessitie enforced determination to beare backe asturns against to gaine for Tees: it is faid we were the first ship that ever went this way, and I thinke no man Bantam by the shat dare depend upon his skill, to adventure without fight of land, will ever faile that way laft of Sept.

The one and twentieth ditto, we had another great storm, which began about two after noone, with very much Wind, Thunder and Raine, which lasted aboue foure houres, split our main Bantom to Tees, faile, and blue away our iprit-faile; Rich. Crane, one of our companie, being then upon the yard Priamer and arme, the braces, lifts, and all the rigging of the fprit-faile yard at once broke, and hee with his Acten head downewards hung (at every let of the ship covered with the Sea) above a glasse space, no The Pinnaste man being able by any meanes to fuccour him, till at last, faintnes & wearines made him let goe, Tecoto debine and as he droue by the ships side tooke hold of a Rope, by which meanes, next to the Almighties Rich Crane, mi mercy, his life was beyond expectation miraculously preserved; another, named Price Hames, raculously faflanding in the walte, was by a flash of Lightning strooke dumbe and lame ouerall his body, well. Iying in most lamentable plight for many layes, yet, God be thanked, his speech is a littlere-body laying in most lamentable plight for many layes, yet, God be thanked, his speech is a littlere-body laying in most lamentable plight for many layes, yet, God be thanked, his speech is a littlere-body laying in most lamentable plight for many layers, by the speech laying in the walter body layers. turned, but a kind of dead numbnesse in both his legs and armes, maketh him still continue a velightning, but

ry miferable man, diffressed as aforesaid. The three and twentieth dillo, we returned to Teco, and by reason of our wants, both of Cordage, Sailes, and Ground-tacke, of which there was no more in the ship then was at that time The Pinnasse in vie, no more then one Hoginead of fielh, no bread but Rice and that not fweet, no other againsto Tico. drinke for ficke men, &c. but water ; but nineteene men in the ship , whereof fine very ficke, 50 and divers others lame : It was refolued through importunitie of the companie thereto, to remayne there and attend reliefe from the Dragon, or other English; but in the interim, a rumour of Flemmish ships comming from Bantam, forced vs change resolution : and the fixt dillo. with our weake crew put to Sea, in hope either to meet the ships from Achen, or to get our intended parke, and by that meanes to eale our felues of fome of those miseries. Having had fince The Dragon & our departure from Teco a very faire gale: The tenth dicto, to our great comforts we met the Dra- Expedition goe gon and Expedition, betwixt the Ilands Nimtam and Batta: fo toone as we came neere, Captaine to Teco. Bonner fent his Skiffe aboord, to whom I went and delivered his Letters from Mafter Spalding, Marker Ball, ce. Sir Tho. Dale by reason of his sicknesse having also referred him to them for aduife. The next morning at a Consultation it was concluded, that the Rose should return backe Trade obtay-

no to Tece. in regard of her wintinesse for any Voyage, as also for that the goods in her would wend ned at Tece. fo well here, or better then at Achen, the Invoice whereof was inclosed in a Letter, fealed and 1500. Bahars directed to Master Rich. Furstand, which I then likewise delivered : By Captaine Bonner I vnderstood of two moneths Trade granted at Teco, of aboue one thousand and three hundred Ba- bought, for hars of Pepper, then in the Dragon, and of more then one thouland and fine hundred remayning lackof meanes.

goods laden in to the Lames

CHAP.9.

at Achen vnbought, for lacke of meanes. To the end that fo little as might be of our short time fhould be loft; the fifteenth in the night, Captaine Bonner fent off his barge with Mafter No. chols and my felte, to goe a hoare, and acquaint the King &c. with our licence for Trade; as also to take an house, and so much as might be , to set each thing in a forwardnesse. The King seemed very willing; appointing, as we defired, a very concenient house close by the sea side, next to the Custome-house, and promised so soone as he saw the Kings Letter, musters of our goods, and had concluded of the price; order should be given for present weighing.

Fourteene cer

cherie viuali in Alteration of the price of uall of the Beare, Bonner altered his refolution of fitting his ship for a man of Warre, and lade her into Engand. The Drager. pestred. The Dragen Discourse of theft in Teco, the feuen and August.

John Tucker

The nineteenth, Mafter Niehols went aboord the Dragon, riding two leagues without the Road, and brought the Kings Letter ashoare with him, which feene and read, Proclamation Road, and prought the Ame. the Countrey, and many in the Towne had good quantities of 10 Feprerbought Pepper, which they would not fell till the King had fint begunne. The one and twentieth, the Dragon &c. came into the Road, and musters of goods landed, the greatest part whereof was Cainkeenes, blue Selas, and the price was concluded, fiftie Selas, thirtie fine Cainkeenes, fixteene blue Byronnes, red Selas thirtie two, and of Baftaes according to the goodnesse, eight, ten, and Pepper, and of twelue Pieces for a Bahar, which valued according to the rates worth in readie money, twentie Rials the Bahar; and it was agreed, that the next morning the King should beginne to weigh (the Custome of goods not to be payed in kind; but to land whatsoeuer wee would, and to pay fourteene the hundred Custome, in Rials of eight: for all the Peppershould be payed, either centum cuftom with goods, or money; a very hard condition and wondrous vnadurfedly confented to, by those formerly there employed; but now it is continued, and little hope to get it euer reclaymed. Little hope e-uer to hime the Some goods were this day landed, being first opened aboue, and fent assoure in bags, to preuent great Gustom wetting; and small quantities at once, for feare of fire and treacherie, both which are very visual here (but especially the latter) more then in any part of India. The two and twentieth dicto, the King &c. returned to the Balley, refuling their former Contract, and would not himselfe sell under fortie Camkeenes, and sixtie blue Selas the Bahar ; but gaue free leaue to any other that would; which was nothing: for till he began, none would fell a Catee, so that necessitie inforced our affenting. The fixe and twentieth our trade began, and this day weighed the first Pepper, the contents whereof, and of the succeeding dayes, I forbeare to recite, hauing collected it together in a note herewith vnto your Worships. Master Niebols &c. being abourd the Dragon, this day Captaine Bonner discouring of the businesse past at Bantom, and his owne at prefent in the Drigon, fearing left at the Fleets arrivall, the Pepper in her 30 should be taken out, and fent home vpon some other ship that had beene long in the Countrey, Bonner is very as also dreading the Flemmings arrivall (of whom hee was alwayes wondrous suspicious) affirmed, he had no intent to lade more Per per in the Dragon, till he knew certainly how he should the Hollanders, be disposed of ; but would take it into the Expedition, whereto he said shee should be presently fitted, and the Dragon kept cleere and prettie for a Man of Warre, in case the Flemmings should Man of Warre, come : his reason was, that he could not at any time after take it into his ship, of which if he could dispose, hee could likewise by the same power command the Expedition, and goods therein : in which determination he feemed to be firme; and gave order for the Expeditions fitting Vpon the Arri- roomes. But the next day after, arrived Henry Base Merchant, from the ship Beare; who the day before anchored at Priaman; and the eight and twentieth of August aforesaid, arrived at Tecoo: at inflant of whole comming, but vpon what prefumption or reports I cannot certainly determine, Captaine Bonner changed resolution, and proceeds to lade the Dragon, filling each place with lumber, romaging her bread-roomes, and so cloying her deckes, as was not post ble to vie her Peeces in greateit extremitie; by which vnhappie accident, Wee your poore Semants haue with loffe of liues, or goods, or both, indured excette of most base, and past compare, contemptible viage, from an ingratefull and vnciuill Nation, with many other neuer to be latiffiel or forgotten injuries.

The feuen and twentieth, all night being very temperatuous, fearefull thunder and lightning. and abundance of raine, we had vider our house, in a roome for that purpose, some small store of fleele Bettle boxes, and fuch like; where also lay two men, appointed by Capt. Bonner to watch the house, the boat being left behind them ashoare. That night Iohn Cocket (alias Tucker)a youth, who had long lived at Swat, and he also lodged there : about midnight came theeres to open the doore, which one within perceiuing, with crying out scarred them away; two houres after, they returned; and one of them putting in his arme, was strucke at with a sword, but missed, fled away the second time; and they within made the doore so fast as they could (which was but hurdles.) About foure in the morning comming againe, & opening the doore, one went in, taking some Braffe Bettle boxes, our men being all fait asleepe; and in returning, rubbed against Tuekers legs, who starting vp , caught hold of him , and cried, A theefe, I have him ; which scarce pronounced, with a pitifull accent, cried out againe, Ob, bee is gone, and bath stabd mee with his 60 uen and twen- Creeze: which was fo fodainely done, as those who lay by him had not time to rescue him. There was at that time aloft the Surgeon of the Dragon &c. who prefently ran downe with a light, but too late; the villaine having with a knife given him two wounds, one whereof to the heart, who without ipraking more words then, Lord have mercie upon me, presently died.

Wee in vaine fearched each bush and place about our house, and I went to call the Cowals (or Waiters) who every night till this, kept watch in a Balley within twentie paces of our house; milling whom, I went instantly to the Pongolo Comallas house, and calling him, asked him where was the Watch ; he faid, at the Balley; which I denying, he affirmed to have charged one that night. Then I toldhim we had a man flaine, and willed him to fearch narrowly, if any sufficious person could be apprehended, he forthwith went and acquainted the King therewith, who prefently came downe with the Chiefe there-abouts, faw the dead bodie, and affirmed, he would doe what might be, to find the murtherer : Maker Nichols charged the Cowals to bee actors, or authors hereof, and required to have them all fent for, and one after another to touch the Corps, whereto the King gaue order: and when each one had taken him by the hand, and no cause to suspect any appeared; Master Nichols demanded if there were no more Cowals; it was aniwered, no more faue one, who was ficke, and kept his bed; him the King commanded to be fent for, whose very lookes and demeanour condemned him in the opinion of all, to bee the villaine fought for, the King commanded to take the dead man by the hand, which with extreme quaking, and many distracted gestures and answeres he did, but would not hold it any time. Malter Nichols vrged this to be the man , and required Inflice. The King caused him to Aftory of trial be bound, and professed in his conscience that was the man who kild him, but that hee must be do in a Malefatried by their Law also, whereto the fellow astented.

And while preparation was made thereto, wee fent word to Captaine Bonner, who came ashoare to see the event hereof: presently after whose comming, a fire was made, and an iron pan with a gallon of oyle fet thereon; which leafurely boyled till it came to fuch a degree of heat, that a greene leafe but dipped therein was fodden and shiuered. The prisoner then called, and perfitting in deniall of the fact, was in tellimonic of his innocencie, to take out of the faid oyle a small ball of brasse, little bigger then a Musket shot, with his naked hand; and that if any burning or scalding appeared thereon, hee was contented to die: which hee addressed himselfe to performe; stripping up his sleeue aboue the elbow, and taking a kind of protesta-tion, desiring that as he was electe thereof, so he might prosper in this act; dipped his hand to the writt in the burning oyle, tooke out the ball, held it fast, and crying, Olla Basar, or, great is Twentie two the Lord, toft it vp, caught it againe, and then cast it on the ground; shewing his hand vnto all Rials a Bahar the Lord, toff it vp, caught it agains, and there are to in the ground; incoming any many vito all of Pepperar to that would, which had no more figne of hurt, then if hee had experimented the fame in cold Treese. water. The Deuill, it feemes, being loth at that time to lofe his credit. The fellow was inflant- The Dragon ly released, and within an houre after returned in his holiday apparell, and none to lustie as hee, went out of though but a little before he had beene ficke, and so weake, as he was faine to be brought vpo n Tecoo Road inmens shoulders to his triall: and this was all the institute we could have, for our murdered man; ter. though in all likelihood, and their judgements also, he was the actor.

This businesse ended, the King propounded to Captaine Bonner, that our time of Trade be- laden with gan now to be short, and that there was great forc of Pepper yet to be had, which might spee. Pepper about dily be bought for readie money: the people being vinwilling to deale for any more Cloth, in the Dragon. regard the Iunkes from Argin were daily expected with great ftore from the King, who would ried about the 40 force their taking thereof; and that having fold before for readie money, they would make the Pepper. better shift: which he said was alike to vs, our commodities being as vendible in other places; Six Hollanders and the new (hip(the Beare) liquing brought good ftore of mony, which might be wel imployed: comming into whereto confent being given, the price was cut, twentie two Rials the Bahar, and the allemblie addiadged Engdismissed. That night goodstore of Pepper was brought downe to be weighed the next day, life thips shewmany of the Chiefes affirming, that there was in and about Tecoo, aboue a thousand Bahars ing no colours Pepper, which fo fast as could be weighed, would be brought in. The King gaue vs leave, that Found by their Fepper, Which to last as could be weighted, would be the food of the might we faw any about the house, we should detaine them prisoners till the next day; land ships, and in case they refused to come vnto vs, being called, we should shoot them, and the perill to Serveon the lie voon their owne heads. The nine and twentieth dicto, Captaine Bonner perceiuing the Dra- Dragon vnprogon to bee alreadie deepe, and hoping ere long to have her full lading, weighed out of the Road, uided, and her by the Hand, and anchored without, attending a wind to goe to the Southward of those Hands, men wearied there to ride, and take the rest of her lading. The first of October, about foure in the morning, the Dragon weighed, and neere eight, with and Vice Adthe Breeze let saile, and came into the foresaid Road; not long after, all the boats and Skiffes of mirallaid her the Dragon, Expedition, and Rose, came ashoare to fetch Pepper, who laded so fast as they could; aboord, and all but before all were laden, fixe Saile were descried, standing with a fresh gale at South, toward the other foure but before all were laten, like Sale were entering that a first gate at South, toward hips. The Boars forth with put off, and had very much labour to row to wind, ward, the men being much wearied before, with mooring the ships, and carrying the bags of separation before the south wearied before, with mooring the ships, and carrying the bags of separation was a support of the south was a support o Pepper: Captaine Bonner integed them to be Sir Thomas Dales Fleet, who had determined to she being altoarriue there, by the fine of September; and therefore, till they came within leffe then a league, gether pelter that their Hulls showed who they were, no Colours being abroad, not suspecting them: and red, no Peece then before any prouition could be made for defence, the Admirall and Vice-Admirall layed the could come by Dragon aboord, all the other as they went, by shooting so many Peeces as could be brought to nopowder or beare vpon her, who had that day taken in aboue an hundred Bahars of Pepper, had all her men that.

mare merci ull then the Hol-Luders three hundredmen fortic fixe of offering to carrie away the

The names of thips departing from Teces to at Bantam, and taken. t he Hollander veying for people.

euen ipent with labour, and was at that time focloyed as was neuer poore, all emptie and full of caske, bread, and other prouisions then ypon her deckes, and all her lower Guanes io flowed vp with lumber, as that in fo little time, as was then to prouide, not more then one could be cleered, and that but once discharged; powder, and shot in that extremitie not to beccome Peece, recurring and that the one one of the receiver of the Fight was maintained very hot about three Hall advantage by With those Orunance which were this worthin resolution approxing his zelle todoc your channels of the property of the proper and in ompa. Service the state of fertile preceived a mortall wound, with a finet in the right fide, rable crucile. which remained in his bodie, who being carried downe, the ship fired, in source or sine seun mie.

Rithe Infidels rall places most pitsfully torne, and many men slaine, shee became a Prey, rather then a Prize

The other foure Dutch thips flood in to the Beare, Expedition, and Refe, who feeing, as is faid. the Dragons difaster, yeelded also the two first without shooting a shot. Worthie Sirs, I was not at present an actor at this surprise, though I shall have alwayes cause to bewayle what I then suffered; and therefore must be seech your fauourable acceptance of this small recitall, till others had perimed. Ferest a mattererous must observe your automate therein employed, of farre better abilitie them my lelfe, shall largely acquant you with energy circumstance: neither dare I persist in this subject, lest just passion, caused by remembrance of long, in mer filps all night fo late felt, and (vnleffe by your Worships elemencie relieued) neuer to bee recourred milerie, in open ayee, should transport mee beyond those limits, wherein I must now willingly containe my felic. But thus much I may truely professe, if (as is a common Maxim) contraries hold the fame reanie and tem-perfluous night fon of proportion in change of qualitie, they may be expected to be most kind friends, for al- 20 pethous night readie, we have found them most sterne insulters, and beyond compare cruell enemies: and fang ficke nor had not more true compassion, pitie, and reliefe, beene extended to vs from Infalell Moret, then from these Duteb Christians, three hundred of your Servants (vnhappie men) a great then from time to the from him time to the from him time to the charged fortunes even with the chiefer and vnworthiest of that Crew, had left their dead Carcafes a prey to beafts and fowles, and subwithrigges, iected their min amon, ft were beene inflicted. iected their liuing bodies to milerable seruitude, if a greater chastisement for our sinnes had not Being possessed of our ships, they straight way sent the English abound theirs, and for refre-Being pomeneous on imps, they margine way that the start men, even inlinow, even inlinow, the first power of the start men. Here the start men. kep. Prioners, in fuch a night of wind, raine, thunder and lightning, as either before or fince I neuer faw; with. Rob, Benner was out respect to either ficke or wounded; many of whose lives shortly after payd for that nights ient ashoare, barbarous entertainment.

The next morning early, they turned all ashoare with such poore ragges, as they would rie away the bed he lay yp. fuffer them to weare on their backes woon the mayne at Teese, beeing the foresaid foure shippes on, which for Company, and fortie sixe of the Seares men, till then also kept Prisoners, there beeing thesa triple the value shoare in the Factorie, William Nichols, Henry Bate, and my selfe; where so good order was tawas redeemed.
His death with
ken for the ficke and wounded, as the times Confusion, and poore meanes then there would commendati. permit.

The third day following, Captaine Bonner was fent alhoare with a Gardian, attending him on, 9.October. God mooued to the house sent by the Dutch Admirall, to carry backe even the poore bed he lay vpon, which 40 the Heathento for triple the value was redeemed, where Griefe and Anguish adding a violent Feuer and Spafma, to his former deadly wound : having heretofore well deferued the repute of a Worthy, people. ma, to his former deadly wound: having heretofore well deferued the repute of a Worthy, The King did now shewing no lesse a Christian man, and with a resolution well fix ton the merits of our Rerifit Captaine deemer; yeelded his foule into the hands of the Almightie, the ninth of October, leaving vs Benner, and fur- diffressed infly to lament his losse, who were before enough sorrowfull afflicted with rememnultr him with brance of passed misery, and expectation of more and greater ensuing calamitie, whose bodie offering all as he defired, was buried vpon the little Hand at Tecos, so neere his Brother Thomas as could be courtefie.

Somewhat to comfort vs in this diffreste, it pleased the Lord to give vs favour in those peoples fights, who yield vs fairely and well, as could have beene expected in any Christian part of 50 the World. The King would divers times visit Captaine Bonner, and each day present him Prizmenand with fuch Cates as were there efteemed fittelt for fo ficke a man, defiring him allo to bee com-Mantam, where forted, and that both they and Countrey should bee readie both to protect and relieue vs, which they had thirty was well performed : for so long as the Flemmings rode there, one thousand men armed lay The Passyan victual was kept at our doore, wherein all provisions fold cheaper then before our flips were

The fifth dilto, the Hollanders having taken in their Pepper at Tecoo, fet sayle with these thips following, viz. The Vapan van Sealand, Admirall in her; William Iohnfon, Commander of the Fleet; the Huerlam, New Zeland, Neptunes, English Starre, Post-part, the Dragon, Beare, 60 and Expedition for Priaman, intending thence for Bantam, to the rest of their Fleet, there con-Diego Fernandes fifting of thirtie fine layle besides them, and were then besieging Bantam. The Pangram and they behaded, be- Vying for dead mens heads, one for Hollanders and the other for Ianas, giving Kewards; and in which deadly difference, it was vnhappie Diegoes destinie to bee a sufferer; who after his being taken in the Starre and kept Prifoner, making an escape in a Prow from Iacatra, intending to have fecured himselfe in the English house at Bantam, was by the Iamer apprehended and beheaded instead of a Dutchman; leaving the Rose in the Road, having first taken out all her Ordnances, Powder, and Munition, and in her twelue Hogsheads salt fieth, two Buttes of Wine; vnto the Eneand fome few bagges of bread, and a very small proportion of water-caske, for the foresaid life in Tecoo number of men, except fach as in the interim ranne away into their feruice, to transport our Road with the felues whitherfoeuer we could.

CHAP.9. $ 2. Distresse in Tecoo. Our men murthered.

About this time there arrived at Tecco a man(as himfelfe faid) belonging to Monanchabo; who Aman of Moreported confidently (but whether by the Flemmings instigation, or his owne knowledge I can-nanchabo, re-10 not determine) that at the place whence he came, two ships and a Pinnalle were faid to be taken porced Capt. at lambee by foure other thips, which is much to be doubted of Captaine Iordan, &c. The Eng- lourdaine to be tift on the Starre likewife, affirming they had heard of foure ships which were double manned, taken at lambe. and maruelloutly well fitted, fent purpofely to take them, which the Lord, I truft, in his mercy taken in he hath prevented. The forefaid Blacke was thirtie dayes from Monanchabo thither, and though Starre, doerenot commonly yet fometimes aduice from lambee, commeth hither over-land.

During our abode at Tecoo, before the Rose could be fitted to fayle, it pleased the Almightie Hollanders tent to take compassion on our distresse, and to deliner vs from the many ineutrable dangers, yea, ebie manuel to uen confusions, which were likely presently to light vpon vs, by sending in thither Captaine take C. Isrdaing Charles Cliffingham with the Palfgrane, Elizabeth and Hope; who by confultation at the Cape, The Palfgrane, were intended for Priaman, and arrived at Tecoo, the three and twentieth of October, about Hindreth and whom the men alhare were forth-with dispersed. M. Niebols, and Henry Bate sent in a small  $Ho^{*}e$ , arine at Prawto Achin; and the Rose, in that poore and weake state shee then was, and no otherwise pily, who rooke concluded, to be dispatched for England; to aduse of these accidents and proceedings. Concer-in all our menning the intendments of the three forefald thips, as also the end of fending those mentioned to Will, Nichols & Achin, I am ignorant, and therefore shall humbly referre your Worships to their owne aduices. Henry Bates go Adher to the Norman parted the fourteenth delte, & the Lord of his mercit youchafed vs so faire a passage, that plane of the John Comman parted the fourteenth delte, & the Lord of his mercit youchasted vs so faire a passage, that his mercit youchasted vs so faire a passage, that his mercit youchasted vs so faire a passage, that his mercit youchasted vs so faire a passage, that his mercit youchasted vs so faire a passage, that his mercit you can be so that the fourteenth delte, & the Lord of his mercit youchasted vs so faire a passage, that his mercit you can be so that the fourteenth delte when the source of th with the loife of but one man, who also was ficke before we left Tecoo; (notwithstanding our hard Hollanders. allowance, most of our Bread, and much of our Rice beeing confumed and spoyled with The Refeorde-Wormes and Vermine) was arrived at the Cape Bone Spei, all in found health, the eight and red to be fent twentieth of January 1619.

Going ashoare at Soldansa, we found Letters left by Captain Adams, (the Copie whereof is this and Role herewith inclosed) also of two Dutch ships departed thence home-ward, left by an Englishman, depart out of passenger in one of them; the Copie whereof is herewith likewise inclosed. We had our Sayne Tecos Road the as hoare to fish, and the Countrey people demeaned themselues as formerly they accustomed, but the next day returning against ashoare to fish and water. The most tragicall and worful according to the state of the befell vs, that euer happened to any English in these parts : eight of our men going to the River 28.0f lanuary. by Land, carryed the Sayne with them to fift, and were all by the Saluages either miferably. They found flaine or kept away from vs; we having found the dead bodies of but foure of them. The caule Capt Adams 40 which should excite them to such an horrid and vnheard of attempt I cannot conceine, vnleife Letter and of which should excite them to such an horrid and which stelly gone hence, have moved them to the stelly gone hence, have moved them to The Stanger's (as is most probable) fome wrong our ready and to be doubted, will be indeauoured to all at the Cape practife and exercise this Treachery to vs now, and to be doubted, will be indeauoured to all at the Cape that shall hereafter arrive.

Hauing watered our ship, buried so many of the slaine men as could bee found, and left Let- eright of our ters for any that should arrive after vs, we fee fayle from Soldania. The second of February, a to be prouoked bout noone, past the Equinoctiall, The fifth of March, and the in England. The Almightie having of his ineftimable elemencie protected and wrongs done deliuered vs, from the exceeding many and eminent dangers of a most miterable Voyage, and the Dutch. deliuered vs, from the exceeding many and eminent dangers or a most miterable voyage, and vouchlase vs safe returns into our Natiue Countrey, for which and all other gracious fauours safanis the from our beginnings to this day extended, his great and glorious Maiestie be extolled and mag- \( \frac{100 mag man to the cond of Feb. \) 50 nified, both now and for euermore. Amen. Amen.

arrived at thereunto by

Your Worships poore Seruant in all dutie and feruice euer at your command.

WILLIAM HOARE.

Iiii 2

ഗ

CHAP.

CHAP. IX.

The Iournall of Master NATHANIEL COVETHOR, lu Voyage from Bantam to the Ilands of Banda, being thiefe Commander of the two Ships, the Swanne, Admirall ; Mafter DAVIS, Mafter : and the Defence, Vice-Admirall ; Mafter HINCHLEY, Mafter: together with his residence in Banda, and occurrents there; contayning the differences in those parts betwixt the English and Hollanders contracted.

ð. I.

English kindnesses to the Dutch : the surrender of Poolaroone to His Maie Hie, and the fortifying there by the English : Dutch Hostilitie, their taking the Swanne, Salomon and Attendance, and keeping the Defence betrayed by Fugitines, with other wrongs.

Let none accule me for rediouinciie, or being too pun-Ctuall in this Relation : fceing the Dutch peffilence grew principally from hence: and for which I adde this wite neffe after Quians of Rice.

English kindpeoples the The King sacoffering all courtefie. The names of the Holland thips departing Prismen and kantam, where they had thirty hue faile .efi. ging Bantam. the Hollanaine flught, ne reof and to his pernieftie.

Trorrifying

E set saile from Bantam the last day of October, 1616, and arrived at Maccassar, the feuenteenth of Nouember, with the Swanne : the Defence came in the nineteenth, where I went on shoare to get readie our prenision of goods and Rice, hauing no goods as then in Bantam, to ferue those places; but had commission to take them here : where I found small store ; the chiefest being one hundred

The fitt of December, I spyed a boate alongst the shoare, being a Skisse of the Hollanders come from their ship (which was in the offing) thinking they had had a Factory here: but hence; and honce certified them, it was diffolized, the people their enemies. Whereupon they intreated Maiefterright me to fland their friend; and I forthwith went to the King and intreated him to difinifie to the fellands them in that they came ignorantly, who at my request let them goe, giving them warning not becknowne to to attempt the shoare a second time. So being night I wished them to goe aboord my ship to refresh themselues, and to depart at their pleasure. That night their Pinnasse went out to Sea, but missed their ship which came the next day into the Road, and not understanding the newes, sent their long Boat towards the shoare, which the King of Maccaffer perceiving, fent a number of Prowes which furprized her, and flue every man of them being fixteene in number.

The ninth of December, we fet faile for B.inda, with the Hollander in our Company, and being cleere of Maccasser, relieved them at their request with fresh water, and fold them two visit Capitaine Quoines of Rice, with some few Hennes and racke, keeping company as farre as Amboyne. Bennet, and fur. Hence we proceeded, and the three and twentieth of December, being neere Polaroone fent my nills him with Skiffe alhoare to vnderstand the state of the Handers, who were glad of our comming, as beeing not able to hold out longer against the Hollanders oppression, keeping them from reliefe of

> The same day we came to anchor at Polaroone, the Oranjayes came aboord, and I enquired of them whether there had beene any former contract betweene them and the Hollanders: who certified me, there had beene none at all. Then according * to my Commission, I required 50 them to furrender their Land to the Kings Maiestie of England, which they presently did: and drew Articles of Trade and Conditions to be observed betwixt vs; which being agreed on, we spread Saint George upon the Hand, and shot off most of our Ordnance.

The fine and twentieth of December, we faw a Holland ship comming from the West-wards, and forthwith vpon Councell landed three Peeces of Ordnance out of the Swame, and mounted them on a Cliffe fittest for that purpose, and made what haste wee could to fit a platforme for them. We landed three other Peeces of Ordnance, and mounted them on a point of Land which commanded the Road : thus fitted, Ilanded most of the goods and settled a Factory.

Vpon the third of Ianuary, there came three Flemmil: ships into the Road, flourishing with their Trumpets and came to anchor by vs. Wee fitted our shippes for fight , and I fent Mailer 60 Muschamp abourd the Admirall, to certifie them of the surrender, as also to demand if they could lay any clayme to the faid Land. They answered, no. I further offered them water or any Three Holland thing the lland affoorded; but they plainly teld me, they came fer no fuch thing: whereupon fhips to diffurb I told them the Countrey people would not fuffer them to ride there wider their notes; and that they had beene doing, but I caused them to forbeare : and perceiving their intent to fur- Master Soybothat they had beene doing, but I cause them to resease, and perceiving their meets of the me Corate, prize vs, and fearing they would lay vs abcord in the night, I told them I could not slay the me Corate.

The Swartase Countrey people any longer, if they were not gone before two Glasses were runne. They there-ken by the vpon weighed and departed. The fourth, there came a Holland Boat and founded all alongst Dutch, See the the little lland, at whom Mafter Hinchley shot from the Land, but hit her not, and they manner of departed.

The Sman being deliuered, Master Danis would goe water at Warre, obstinately contrarying nerlinesse in Sturmer. my command. I being then very licke came abourd the Defence, and fent Septionie abourd the Dut because Swan, which departed Ian. 18. I after had vicercaine newes, that the Hollanders had taken her neffe, 10 and fent the Sewes ouer to Lantere to heare the newes, which brought word that the Swan was Quitulerit and lent the Senes ouer to Lantere to heare the newes, which prought wout that the Senes ouer to Lantere to heare the newes, which prought the Hayes to the Hellunder Grately defi-in Nero Road. On the feuer and twentieth of Februarie, I fent Robert Hayes to the Hellunder Grately of the Mellunder Grately of the Hellunder with a flagge of Truce, to demand the reason of taking her. Their reason was, we came yearly 10th Dous his to make our voyage and lade our ships, and be gone; they had the brunt of the Warre, and wee Letter. This came freaking to doe them injurie. And further, they faid, that the States of Holland and the and other Let-Lords of the Councell should conferre of this businesse: and being demanded the manner of her ters I had taking, they faid, Time should bring it forth. And further, threat net to fetch the Deferce out of the Road. They asked what men wee had at Wayre and Rossing, and faid, they would fetch that which I them out of those places. They also fent a writing, the effect whereof was, that the wrongs thought me ft we offered them could no longer be indured, and that they would have one fent over to come to fit leaving the 20 composition with them. Hereupon by councell it was agreed for the safetie of our flip, lines reft: which are and goods, to land all our promisions on the small Illand, with most of the men to manage the testin Moster Ordnance : which being tubscribed by Corthop , Spurmay, Hinchley, Hayes, Stacy, Helmore , and Cort, Iounna's the second of March to be put in execution, none elfe of the ships companie would yetld there. I had alone to, but would keepe the ship to death. The feuenth of March, a Letter was brought from Ners, to Levers by a Hollander, with a flagge of Truce from Mafter Dauis, part whereof I haue transcribed belonging to Master Corthop commendations, &c. The Admirall and the rest have settled their resolutions to R. Hates lovehave you off from Polaroone, according to their Commission, and Is know, that unleffe you doe talks nell to perule: together, there will be much flaughter about it. For they are all double manned from their Castles, and some of which must fight it out as I have proved alreadie. For they did shoote at me twice before I began, although I 1 here have 30 was in the Sea eight leagues off when they chased me. We fought almost board and board for the space tion the oriof one houre and an halfe, omill they had killed five men, maymed three, and hart eight. And when we began we had not thirtie men able to doe any thing, nor no wind to worke withall, &c.

I answered by a Letter to them , that we doubted of their Message and Letter , except they liandby Polawould fend an English man, one of the ships companie, to notifie things vnto vs: that we heard to the Chipsee they had murthered out men in cold bloud a and as they pretended commission to beat vs off, bet ayed by we had commission to maintayne the Kings Maieties right of England. We thus sought to prolong time for our better fortification : and the fame night fent Ordnance and Munition to the Knows to the little Hand of Neylackey which maketh the Road; and if they had planted there as they preten- Hollanders. little lland of Neylackey which maketh the Road; and it they nau planted there as they preten-ded, they would have beaten all our ships out of the Road, and have kept all reliefe from the great Howers Hars H. 40 Hand, so that we must have been gone for want of food. The tenth of March came a Hollan- Bidges, Roleder with Matter Davies Boy and a Letter from him, to fignifie, that after the Flagge was furled well, Carrer, not one man was meddled with : Sophonie was the first man was torne in pieces with a great that, Ge. Taylor and This Letter came with other Dutch Letters: but we now being almost readie for them, wrote be what a them an abiolute answere, that if we should come into their subjection as they defire, we should shew Durch prison our selves no true subjects to his Maiestie : and that our resolution was to stand to all hazards what- wil.doe; tofoener . March 11.

On the fourteenth it was concluded by councell, to bring afhoare our Provisions, and to bring lying priterthe ship about, her Cables twice cut in two with the Rocks, and now having but two anchors tonders and to Sea-boord. But finding her leake and valikely to be brought about, wee agreed to bring her fugi mes. alhoare under the Defences Fort. Mafter Hi chley, on the e ghteenth came to an anchor neerer The Denill into the Bay, leaving aboord Iohn King Boatlon, with fome twentie more. And on the twen- was also a Lyce tieth in the morning, the ship was driven almost as farre as Lantore; which when they which and North rer were a fleepe in the thip perceiped, and asked the reason, the King answered; Tell the Master ginning, I had the Watch, and being afleepe, the ship drone! Thus some went into the long boate, the ship drone! rest which were compacted stayed behinde, and when the long boate was come away, they fet Datch with their fore-course and went into No o Roade, and delivered the ship to the Hollanders.

The first of Aprill 1617, the Flemmings fent over letters with a stagge of trace; one from 1 day noting Mafter Danis to vrge a composition, adulting very passionately, If I lose any more men by your Lie all, in prearrogance, as here I have lost by sichnesse already, their lines and blouds shall rest upon your heads and tence of Com-60 your fallion, and this I will write with dying hand, God give me leave : for what they doe or have done, mill n and their Commission will beare them out in and are contened to let the Law decide between our Masters tekings Letand theirs, or will come to any resfinable matter of friendship, that no more blond may be spilt on either * take this as side: For I plainely fee how you carry it. You have cansed the Master of the Desence, to land he pre- the uguines ces alloare from his fin and make wracke of her . to drine up and downe. Is it in our hands to defend and Hollanders an army that have order for what they doe? He proceedeth to an invactive, that they would defend trecherous Bandaneses, who are at Banda daily to make a paice with the Hollanders, that they may

I made an fiver to the Hollanders, promising vpon such two stayes to come and conferre, with-Il redeman ling the Defence with hermen and goods. Those pledges came not, but two others; and on the fixt went to Nero. Where the next day the generall and Councell offered mee reftitation of thips, goods, men and all loffes whatfoeuer, on condition that I should take off my Ordnance from Polarson and Neylackey and leave the lland: to which I answered, I could not valefie I should turne Traitor vinto my King and Countrey, in giving vp that right which I am valide I frould turne transor vironity angular sound, and the rendered by their land to our sole to hold; and also berray the Country people, who had kirrendered by their land to our 10 Kings Maielie; but promifed to conferre with my Councell and fend him an abbilite answer. I returned the eight, and fent him his pledges : The next day I called a Councell, shewed my Commission, where it was resoluted to send word to Bantans, and a resolute answer to the Hele. Linders, that we could not give away the Kings right without treason; and to betray the Ilanders his fubrects were both vnchriftian fallhood, and vnreasonable folly to incurre their fury, New proficts. B.t if the Dutch would reflore the Defeace with men and goods, and helpe to contay them to Bantam, giving vnder their hands, that no attempt should be madeagainst the two llands, till it be decided in England or Bantam, then &c. They returned the meffenger to adule mee by writing, to confider of it, and fend my full resolution in three dayes, or else hee would bring all his ting, to commer or manual manu demand ayde, wherein went Matter Spurmay, Matter Hinchley, Christopher the Flemmis fingitiue, whom doubting, I gaue order to leaue at Maccasser. I wrote a letter of Occurrents to Bantam; fignifying also the Dutch brauadoes (which they had made Master Danis beleeue) as that that before tom; the my later to take any of or to the Eafl of Celebes: He offered, "If they could flew Reasonable factor to the world flew on if they could flew on Surrender made to them by the Natines, or if offers made, if they would carry us to Bantam, and not medale till there, or in England, things bee decided that the to reasonable Hollanders are hated of all Nations in those parts: that they vanus they have the Copies of the Compamention when conficience is nies Commission before any stips come forth; that no English Generall hash the Kings Commission: that temoued from they bring Letters from petty Kings (which are required as their flaues) as of Amboyna and Hetto, with the here to the the like : that if the Bandaneles will have their Countrejes in peace, they must fubrint themselves to the hill, and reason Hollanders, for that no Nation can compare with them: with request of supply the next winds: that he to the point of could have had all Lantore llands delivered him, but did not thinke it fit, having no goods nor victuals for them; which if it come, in two dayes will bee done, the small league they enter with the Hollander, being but to sustance their hunger; all of them being agreed to have no other peace with them, &c.

The fift of Iune, the Holland Generall Laurence Ryall, in a small ship, came within shot of dealt with then our Fort, vpon Neylackey, having heard by the Defence-fugitives, that most of our men would the English and runne away, if they had opportunity: but he expecting them in the Stiffe, was welcomed from me with fourteene shot, that a man was not seene to trimme the failes, but they bore up the helme and departed. I fent another Praw with aduice for Tantam, left the former might mifcarry by Mafter Stacy, which departed the eight of July.

The force and twentieth of December, we had newes that the men of Lantore had detayned 40 feuen Hollanders of their chiefe and their goods, killing one of them in the taking, the other ranformed for eighty fine Bandanefes : and to the league was broken. The three and twentieth of February, I had newes that the Praw in which Mailer Stacy went, was call away, and the King right of the Of Botton lent them another for Maccaffer. The twelfth of March, we felt a terrible earthquake.

The flue and twentieth of March, 1618, we faw two of our ships about some flue leagues from Polar comming from the Westwards, with the very last of the westerly windes, and as then this more, the being taken with an Easterly winde, which brought the foure Holland ships (these we had seene Salomon and looking out from the twentieth day) up with them, the great Bantam, the Trow the Star and the Seems and looking our from the twentieth day by with them from two of the clock till nine at night. The fight was in dece lader.

Swanze: Their fought with them from two of the clock till nine at night. The fight was 19. fight of Polaroon some three leagues off. And at midnight came the Attendance Skiffe ashoare Clothes of dia at Polaroon with four and twenty Bandanefes, who told us of three thips, the Solomon, the Thouers kinds, &c. mas, and the Assendance; and how the Thomas had left them in the Streights of Defolom, and by the Invoyce neuer was feene after; and that the thips could no longer endure the light, because the Sulomon, which thaue could not vie her lower Teere, and their Powder was mught. The fixe and twentieth, we lost feene of Ma- fight of all the ships, and in the nine and twent: eth, all fix came into Nero Road, where the Holflee Balls hind. Landers wore our Colours under their thips iternes in all diffracefull manner.

δ. II.

The manner of taking the Salomon and Attendance, in divers Letters described, Dutch abufine denifes by lyes to delude and dif-hearten our men : diners Extracts of Letters of Master Conthor, * with other Occurrents.

* In Mader Co the slour-He first of Aprill, Robert Fuller brought newes from Lantore, that the Bandaneses were nall are Co-

most of them slaine by the Hollanders (in taking the ships) and that they feet the fent by him or Hollanders twice over boord and flew many of them , but were opprefied with num- to him, ber. On the foureteenth, a Hollander with a flag of truce brought mee a letter from Master Cassarian Danid, Commander of the three ships aforesaid, in these words.

Pooloway, the fourteenth of April, 1618.

M Aster Corthop, my lone premised unto your selfe, and the rest of your good companie, I wish you all bealth and prospersite. Hening at this time (through the Generalli permission) gosten opertunitie to write vnto you, I thought good to let you understand of that , which I thinke , you doe alreadie know too well, that is, of our being surprized by the Holianders. The Generall and his Councell doe alleage, that these Ilands Pooloway and Pooloroan with the rest, is their right, as you have formerly Folsepretence heard them fay, and that if any of the English came there for Trade, they have a Commission to make of Commislawfull prize of them, and so late experience bath taught us here. For my part I cannot resolve the Ge- fion. nerall of any determinate course, for want of your aduite, but I wish you were all safe from thence.

It rests that you doe aduise with the Merchants and the rest, residing with you, and (if you thinke good) write downe your determination, and fend u me by this Bearer , that I may the better answere to the Generalls Propositions, which I cannot doe, till we underst indeach others mind, as for my confent it shall be 30 grounded upon your knowledge and experience of the lland, whether you bee able to keepe it, or bee willing to leane it.

Our ships, the Salomon and the Attendance, ride at Nero, and our men shared amongst the Dutch Ships being stripped out of all money and clothes. My felfe with one English Boy to attend me remaine upon Pooloway, where the Generall and his Councell dre abide, at whose hands I doe daily find much fanour and kind v sage, though watched and looked unio as a prisoner. The Thomas, which was my Vice-Admirall, we lost in the Streights of Delalon, and by all indigement; shee is there cast away, yet we have no absolute certaintie thereof.

I would be glad to have your presence here for our better proceeding in the businesse, and the Generall is willing to fend to Pooloroan a man of faib: on to stay there as a pledge in your absence, but alwayes 40 provided, that you enter into a condition with the Countrey people, that the faid pledge have no wrong offered him in your absence, but as you shall returne in safetie to Pouloroan, so hee may returne in safetie to Pooloway agains , of this, I pray you, consider, &c. and conferre with the Orankayas, and fend it me in writing by this Bearer, whether you may doe so or not : If you thinke good that it shall be so, faile not to aduise me thereof, and the Boat shall come for you againe, and bring the Generalls pledge. And so I commit you to the Safe suition of the Almightie : And reit

Your ever louing Friend,

CASSARIAN DAVID.

Aboord the Trow in Nero Road, the twentie fixe of April,

M Ost lowing and kind friend, Master Nathaniel Corthop, I heartily salute you, and besetch
God to send continuance of health wino you all there: Your Letters, yesterday being of we sitely received here, ministred much toy visto vs. all in middest of our lamentations for you, vinderstanding there-60 by the Flemmings notorious lyes, who can doe little elfe , reporting you all to be in all minner of wints. Lies of English and miferie by the Bandancies, against whom they are speedily bent to make an assault upon either Lan- distinction. tore or otherwise Polaroon (bin I hope you mistrust the worst) with fine hundred Souldiers at least, now they having here eight faile of Ihips of their owne, and within two or three dayes expect them.

ð. I I.

for the length I durft not transcribe : a great part being the same that before the Sword, Reason and Religion shall

* The Copie

of the Letter

be no better here were. And note that the Holl nders can thew no right to the I. lands, bat ius

Fight of the the English and

Is pleased Master Geo. Barkley, the twentieth of Februarie, 1616. to feed meen ith Ric, Hunt (who died at Bancam) spon the attendant to your selfe, but the Monson being shert wee could but stich Maccallar, where I strayed but elemen moneths, in expellation of our Fleet fer Banda, which was a hot one when it came (to inccunter with such an Enemie) being but three stips, and the best of them run any afore-hand, I meane the Thomas, Master William Hakerie ge leaving my felfe and bis Mate Tatten and Purfer, with five more of his companie about the Salomon, and God knoncibuhat is vecome of them, which had we beene together, doubtleffe we had gelded them of them great Bantam, but being as mereere fo deepe forps, baning remards of two hundred quones of kice, besides Arack six busiared Larres, three four ebales of cloth with other promisors, as never was Poolarcon fo fitted, if it had pleased God, wee bad all safely here arrived, for that wee were 100 100 much ener-maiched by their 10

Sickneffe at

There hath beene this yeare a great mortalitie in Bantam, the chiefe Fastors there, with Generall Pepwell and the rest kept the flips there so long, that there dyed abone two hundred of our men there before their departure from thence.

French arrived med by the

Brane Spirits

Ba'e dealing

of Brunth

The Frenchmen that arrived at Bantam, thefe Flemmings tooke their Dutchmen out of them Present artised
at Bostam, and perforce, to the ouerthrow of their Voyage, and for any farther matter not northy the writing thereof. Non to come to our felnes, and our taking the Bantam being neerest vs, of the Hammings foure Ships, yet some distance off, and the fine and twentieth of March last past, about noine site at visition we some answered agains with shot for shot all that afternoone, but our Pewder was naught, and could not carrie the shot home, when theirs came ener vs, but never tenebed vs to the setting of the Sunne, 20 Some after the wind comming Easterly, we were in the middest of our fees, and being so much overmaiched, were by them surprized and taken, but the Bandan ezes eight of them senght very valiantly, and billed the Flemmings, three men out-right, and hust them three more : but the tall man of Pooloway, and another little man with him, played their parts excellently, for they dreue the Flen mings overboord, b; fortie at once; some up into the foure brouds, some one way, and some another, that they had Scoured the Deckes of them all. I thinke if the Pandanezes had had them upon plaine ground, they would have put the Hemmings to the fword energman of them, for that they were exceedingly fearefull to deale w.t. them, but by their Boats and Subtilitie, they killed the Bandanezes, and tooke senen or eight Boyes prisoners, whereof one or two of them is turne away and escaped from hence out of their hands, and I hope got Safely to you there by this time. Now, after that wee came to a parley with the 3Q Flemmings, they killed vs three men basely, both against the Law of Armes and all good manners besides, bringing us afterwards to Neto, where they made tillage (by the Dutch Generall bis order) of all that we had, teeping our men in Irons, thefe Flemmings being fo close in all their doings, that their owne Skippers cannot know their determination; and jet their Generall is bound with them in companie, or else I thinke little would be by them performed, what I can I will aimse you, though I cannot persmade you, but I befeech Godbleffe you, and all with you.

Master Castarian Dauid is kept by the Dutch Generall at Pooloway , being fent by the chiefe Factor and counsell at Bantam, Cape Merchant of the Fieet apon the Salemen, and my felfe his fecond opon the Thomas, configned all by Commission unto your felfe and is referred to your appointment. The first present I writ Master Cassarian at Pooloway, admising him to acquaint you with all Occur- 40 rences what hath paffed, that you might not be ignorant of any thing, nor frustrate your hopes in expe-Hation of what now cannot be, I say, the more to blame them at Bantam, so caresty to keepe these shape there so long, unto the eight of Januarie, last before, they sent them away from thence, which hath brought upon us all this miserie. The shippes arrived at Maccastar the second of February last, and through extremitie of foule weather it was the senenth of March, before we could set saile from thence. I pray you returne my bearty commendations unto Master Muschampe, Master Heyes, and Thomas Foord, with all the rest of our louing friends, there likewise Master Lane, Master Churchman, Mafler Kellum, and Thomas Fowle, commend themselves heartily onto you all, I connot yet heare from Master Callarian, I thinke bereafter we shall goe for Amboyna, where Master Davis is and twentie men more, the rest are at Ternate, I pray you excuse my not formerly writing to you, because I doubted the 50 delinerie, and thus much at present shall for this time suffice, and with my lindest commendations unto Jour felfe, I befeech God to keepe you out of the hands of all your enemies, and make our meeting toyfull to each other, and fo in hafte I reft, Want of conueyance maketh a long passage.

Your ever louing friend here now Prisoners, Geo. Iack fon, in the behalfe of Iacob Lane, Bartholomew Churchman and the reft.

fafe at Poola-

Thefe Flemmings report that the day after we were taken, their other three thips tooke vp the Attendines Skiffe, halfe full of bloudy water, and thinke those Bandinezes that went a- 60 for it arrived way in the Skiffe, killed one another; and got not to Poolaroone. Wherefore in your next, I pray you write the certaintie of it, likewife, they report that our men did not runne away with the Defence, but would have carryed her for Cerran, but that the Flemmings manned out two of their long Boats, and tooke the Defence, and brought her into Nero.

Preidem GEO. IACKSON.

A Letter from Master Lane Master of the Salomon. From aboord the Trow of Amsterdam, in Nero Road the twelfth of Aprill.

Oning Friend Master Nathaniell Corthop, I heartily salute, these are to certifie you, the senenth of March we departed out of Macasser Road, with the Salomon, the Thomas and the Attendance, Master Casiarian Davis being our chiefe Commander of all the ships, the thirteenth of the same moneth, being neere the Streights of Saler, we lost company of the Thomas , which wee never heard of 10 fince all of us being bound directly for Poolaroone: the fine and twentieth of the same moneth, beeing breake of the day, the Salomon and the Tendance beeing within foure or fine leagues of Poolaroone, we saw foure sayles of Dutch ships, three of them being to the Easterne of vs, the other being their Admirall, was neere unto the Iland of Poolatoone, that day beeing calme with little wind Easterly, wee towed with our Boats and made the best meanes we could to get the Iland, the Dutch ships having the wind of vs, bore with vs at two a clocke in the afternoone, the great Bantam Vice-Admirall got within Stat of vs, and plyed her best to vs, and we requited her to our power at foure a clocke; the Starre which tooke the Swanne, and the Swanne likewife got within foot of vs, at eight a clocke at night. The Admirall got within a ships length of vs, and plyed their great Ordnance upon vs , killing three men, and hart thirteene or fourteene men, but would not boord vs, commanding the chiefe of vs to come aboord 20 their Admirall, and to firike downe our Sayles, and to take in our Flagge, which Mafter Callarian caused to be done, and commanding the Skiffe to be manned to goe abourd of them, and likewise Master Iackson, in another Boat to goe aboord another of them, they being there, I could heare no answere from any of them, the Dutch basing our two Boates aboord with our chiefe Commander, send their foure large Boats (till of men, to the number of one bounded and fortie, or one hundred and fiftie men to keepe our folys, and to sake the Bandancte's which they killed, the Arankayes to the number of ruclus of them, the rest they faued alue, and carry thom 40 over to News, for Maffer Calatians here is and bath beene at Pooloway ince we came in bere, but for my part with my Mate Churchman, and Masier lackson, with thirteene men more, are aboord of the Trow in Iron; but we three, for Master Villes which was Master of the Attendance, he is aboord the Statte with many of his men, for the rest of 30 our men they are aboord the Bantam, and the Swanne not suffered to goe to one another, but lye and Dutch cruelites fare more like flanes then men, which I thinke will kill many of vs. For our things they have taken away all that enery man had to their clothes of their backes; Sir, I understand, that your wants are great Lye-deuites; at the Iland, and that the Countrey people have got the Castles from you, and that within short time they meane to fend you all over here unto the hands of the Dutch, which I wish you could rather get for Macaffer, then to come in their hands. The Dutch hath no ships at Buttone, three ships they have now in the offing, or at Amboyna fine ships, they have hear dif, the three ships get in here, they purpose to come all for Poolaroone, otherwise I thinke not this yeare, yet I heare within this seven or eight dayer, the old Horne a Stip of Seuen or eight hundred tunnes, with the Small Gally and other Boats are to come for Poolaroone, where they understand that the small Castle shall be delimered up unto the Dutch , for the 40 rest of their ships that be here, I heard within this three weekes they are to goe for Amboyna. Sir, I have sawed these two Letters which Captaine Ball delinered me for you, which I wed the best means: I could to fauethem for you, and to fend them to you with the best meanes I could to fauethem for you, and to fend them to you with the best meanes I could use, which I desire you may receive, and to Send me answere how all businesse standeth with you in this case, and I will be glad to pay the Coat off my backe to the bearer for an answere, other Letters we have for you and the rest of your company on the Iland, which if I can shall be sent you.

Sir, the Salomon was deepe layd with Rice, the Thomas laded with Rice and Racke, and other prosuifion, the Attendance laded with Rice, Fish and Racke and other provision. Thus with my love unto you with the rest of your company, I cease, beseeching God to blosse you in your proceedings, and deliner 50 vs out of the hands of these Tyrants, and send vs all a toyfull meeting.

Your Friend to his poore power to command.

IACOB LANE.

Sir, the Generall of the Dutch had given expresse authoritie vnto the Commanders of those thips, that if they meet vs, either to finke or burne vs before wee should recouer the Iland, or elfe Co he would hang them that should be the occasion.

Adie

Adie in the Prison of the Castle Pooloway, July the fifteenth . 1618.

fte, luly 15.

The Cope of a piece or Milliam Hakeridge bath dealt with me, yet I reif much beared to your felfe for your a piece or M. I four to me, that thought fo well on me, whose thanks intellige found and antically base turned to your La foot letter credit, had a not brene by these arrogant theensthe Flemmings, and Master Hakeridge : otherwise presented, which mischiefe grew from a Molajo Letter, written by a Flemming whore in Maccaffer and fent in a Trunke to Amboyna, admising of our comming otherwise wee had beene at our Port be. fore that the Flemmings had heard of vs. Hereupon the Flemmings layed weight for vy, with fower 10 fore that the eleminings one conditions of eccord them if need required. Now the Thomas their visit out of our Company: we plyed our Voyage with the Salomon, and the Attendant failing to the South-ward of the shoulds that are off a Buttone. And the fine and twentieth of March last, b to the continuous of the postate town and the tangent of profestly spot the self-typed three fight of and read to the the continuous of the tangent of profestly spot the self-typed three fight of Flemmings to the North-mard, and one to the Edf-mard, to for , the Bantam, the Trow, the tangent of tangent of the tangent of tangent Swanne, and the Starre that tooke the Swanne, which of these shippes the Bantam came somewhat neere vs about noone, and had we here had the Thomas in our Company, wee had surely Gelded them of their great Bancam for that ship was some distance from her Consorts, and seeing our weaknessible gan fight and shot at us, whom we some answered againe with shot for shot, but our Powder was nauch and could not carry the first home, when the Flemmings shot oner vs, thus wee continued but no bart 20 done of eyiber side to the setting of the Sunne, for that we were some distance off, and being sent to too late: the Monfon fayles vs, the wind comming now Easterly, and in the night brought our enemies round about vs, at which time of being fent by Master Caffarian aboord their Vice-Admirall. The Bantam to know their intent which was according to their protest made at Bantam against vs, then the Trow their Admirall very basely shot: the Salemon twice thorough and thorough, killed there foure men, and burt vision men more, thus were we by the Flemmings surprized, taken Pri-Soners, and pillaged; who keps us first in their Ships at Neto, and now close Prisoners in Pooloway Castle ten of vs , the rest are carryed for Amboyna , and the Moluccas.

Perfidious

Now if our three hips had beene fent sooner, we had not onely arrived safely at Polaroone with two bunded and fiftie Quiens of Rice, for that I know there was no leffe provided in Maccaffet, but also 30 we had gained the whole commoditie of Nuts and Mace, with both Countrey of Banda, and people likewife; and the Flemmings could not have bought two hundred Suckles of Mace whereas now ther bane bought at least two hundred Tunnes. The neglect of which thus much importeth, though it prove not the losse of both commoditie and Countrey hereafter.

The fine and twentieth of May last, the Flemmings marched with senen hundred and fiftie Souls diers against Lantore, but the Bandanezes gaue them such a repulse, killing them foure men, and burt them fixteenemore, that the Flemmings came off againe, and neuer beate their Drumme. The Dutch Generall wen! d not be intreated of vs to shew vs any kindnesse, neyther would be ransome vs for any money, it may be that be thinket's the English will take so many of his men, and so ransome one man for another.

Thus not willing to be oner tedious, I be feech you good Sir, to consider our misery, and doewhat may be for our Reles sement.

Your euer louing Friend to command,

Pooloway, the 18. of September.

George Iackfon.

I fent an answere offering upon pledges to come ouer to Pooloway , in the Vessell which they

The scuenceenth of Aprill, the Orrenkayes of Lantore came ouer to me to conferre about keeping the Hand another yeare, which they promifed to keepe out the Hollander from trading With them, onely relying upon our Forces the next yeare. Wee agreed to hold it out till the next yeare. The eighteenth, by a Praw that went to Bostoone, I fent a Letter for Bantam, to be conneved by that King to our Factorie at Maccaffer, lignifying the taking of thefe flips, the unaduisednesse in sending them so unseasonably ( for one day sooner had brought them in ) neither was there about haife a day of Wesserly winds to bring them to Neto) that many poore men were slive, maymed, or held in slaverie worse then Turkish slaves; and had not source slive lated luncket come in, for want of victuals we must also have given up, and still line on Rice only with a little fish, which in 60 foule weather is not to be had; daily expetting an affault from the Hollanders, and wish it not so much able to stand out, as willing to make them pay deare, &c. He fent another also for refreshment to the Factor at Maccaffer.

The twentieth of Aprill, we were aduertized that within two dayes the Hollanders would

CHAP.9. S.2. Hollanders tyrannie. Bandanezes constancie to the English. 671

affaile vs, but they came not. The thirtieth, they trayned their men, about feuenhundred. I fent another Letter to Mafter Ball (where, in relating the fight these words are vied.) The Attendance before they reelded gaue the Bandanezes their small Boat; so they escaped to Poolaroone. But the Salomon was fo belayd : that the Bandanezes could not goe out of her. Master Cafferian reelded in that manner that if I had beene in his place, before I would have done it, I would have sunbe downe * right in the Sea. That was in this manner: After they had fought from two till nine at night, * Thus he did being almost boord and boord, the Dutch called unto him to take in his Colours, strike his sayles and sore-tell his come himselfe abourd, which all hee did, they detayned him and his Boat. So our men in the ship played owne death in the cause and a good and mile part likewise: for they perceising their Commander kept aboord the Dutch Shippet, went manner, 10 and got the Bandanezes Swords, and hid them from them: only two of them kept their Swords prinately : ninetcene had no weapons, and stowed themselves in the ship, and some eight or ten of them with their Creezes and two Swords, at the Hollanders entring of our shap killed the Hollanders at least forty of them, and hurt diners more of them; most of this flaughter being done by two of the Bandanezes only. For at their entring our men kept themfelues in the fore-castle apart, whilest the Bandanezes fought; but at last being taken, the Hollanders killed some twelve, and saued seven of the youngest. So farre as can I perceive, they neither respect right or instice, but stand altogether upon force of Armes. I have but thirtie eight men to withstand their force and tyranny, our wants extreme : neither have wee victuals or drinke but only Rice and water, they have at present eight (hips here and two Gallies, and to my knowledge all fitted to come against us. I looke daily and howerly for them, &c. He signified also these llands, received one Letter or advise from any English. In a Letter from Master Lane to M. Courthop, is written that he had sent away the Bandanezes, but one Richard Tamton Masters Mate of the Thomas would not fuffer it, for feare of the Dutch seucritie: and that they seeing no remedie, shot william Shoply, after Master, and cut the eare off of the Gunners Mate neere off; another they ranne thorow the backe. This is like to be the cause of taking away their Swords. The seventh of May, the Salomon went from New ro laden. The fine and twentieth, the Hollanders gave an affault on Lantore landing eight companies of Souldiers, contayning about fine hundred men, but were repulfed with loffe of foure of theirs and one Bandaneze. The two and twentieth, for further certaintie I fent another Let-30 ter to Mafter Ball.

20 both to him and in a Letter to the Factor at Maccaffer, that he had not, fince first hee came into

The eight and twentieth of June , I had a Letter fent mee from Master Cassarian Danid; wherein he signifieth the Dutch threats of perpetuall imprisonment, if I came not to better consideration: which I answered, refelling the Hollanders hes touching the Attendants Bost to-ken up by them with blond; and another, that I should send the Generall a Letter to surrender the saute in Eng-Small I land; and that I have but ten English bere: also that the Blackes had possession of my Or- glish, and sauce denance oc.

The last of June, Master Balls Letter was sent me by Master Lane, which is as followeth.

MAster Courthop, my heartie commendations to you, and all the rest of your companie, with my prayers for your health, and happinesse, &c. Tours of the eleuanth of Aprill, by Master Thomas Spurway, and the thirtieth of lune, by Master Stacy, I received understanding thereby of the Occurrences happened in Banda, which, albeit in many things contrary to our expectation, yet as now not to be anoyded, nor by any faire course hoped to have it amended, was it to be doubted that surrender being made to his Maiestie of England, of those places, and his subjects in possession, that in so apparant and inst cause; the Flemmings durst have fallen out into open Hostilitie with vs, in taking the Swan, and making themselves Owners of the Defence, with the imprisonment of our men, but now we have too manifest a proofe of their insolencie, and that they dare doe any thing, that is not about their forse, and make the best them of a bad meaning.

They pretend contracts with the King of Ternate, for defence of his Countries, and with his subjects for their Epices, and all Trade what soener, even to the exclusion of all other Nations. Instice is too weake to deals with force, and consequently, no pleading with them without force, which I hoped wee Should have beene able this yeare to have effected, albeit that it fals out to the contrary, but the next I doubt not, but we shall have force to make them know, that free gift and possession is better then contracts, and that they are not to conquer Countries to themselves, under pretence of defending the King of Ternate, being to them in nature of a Prisoner; that are in no command of him, in the meane time our indeasour must be: for the right of our King and bonour of our Countrey, to make good what wee 60 hane; Master Spurway in his returne was charged into Botone by the Flemmings, and so belaid for , that had not the King of that place stood his very good friend , hee, and his companie had fallen into their hands : but by this meanes while the Flemmings waited before the mouth of the River for their comming out, they were conneyed oner a necke of Land, and so escaped for Maccasian, where meeting the Attendance they tooke passage, and came buther, Stacie that Onle, blind in his silie will, cast awas his Praw open Botone, the goods all lost, the men only saued, where he left the Bangamil, colf and the fram upon dutinit, the given in 101, the military promotion experience of the Banca-neces, who chops to flay there, in hope to fine femething for thinfilines: and to the Kings former get a Praw, and came thinber by the may of Maccaster, all the Bills of exchange, only the humarda Russ of Peter van Loaic: I paid also the Honourable our Imployers, less one quarter thereby, the Cattee of Peter van Loaie: 1 paga digo 100 Laure of Mace tiken there at a Riall, and for him the faid va. Loare, as he came to you an estie in that place, so at his best oportunitie hee left us here ; leaung, though very loth, his money behind him.

n, his mone; returned to the cloud for England , Christmasse last ayeare, and Captaine Captaine Captaine lorgane upon an analysis of March past there arrived the Fleet of Captaine loleph, 10 but not himselfe, being slaine about the Ilands of Coniora, in fight with a Carracke; who having no meanes to escape, runne ashoare and fired, there was in her besides goods of disers Fabriques, three and twentie hundred thousand pieces of eight, a prettie Cargazon, and would have done well in our Factories, but it is fallen out, a lasse, to the Portugals, and no gaine unto us neither in purse nor credit, as you may understand by others.

It is given us to understand, by Letters from our Honourable Imployers of a second joint Stocke. subscribed for twentie bundred thousand pounds; It began the first of this yeare, the first iont Stocke ended in the Fleet of Captaine Pring, confissing of Jenen Shippes, whereof two, to say, the Hope, and Hound came directly bither, the other five went by, by off Surat, I pray God to bleffe them, and that performing effectually there, they may arrive bother in safety, the Governour of the Flemmings hath beene here, but we conferred not together, the cause proceeding of pride in them, and no submission in me: but to be short, as they began, which you fee they have continued unto us in Hostile manner. The fixe and twentieth of November, the Speed-well, Robert lackfon Master, bound for lacatra, wastaken, and the men all (but one that was flaine in the entring her, and one that is since dead) are in Chaines, the Conservour after the taking of this Pinnasse came with sixteene slips into Bantam Road, to brane vs which we were content to suffer, in respect of their too much advantage. And now you may understand I have dispeeded these two ships, the Salomon and Thomas for Maccaster, to lade Rice alreadie provided for them, with a good Cargazon of goods, besides of cloth, of disers sorts for Banda, according to the Invoyce here inclosed sent you, whereof not doubting your care and diligence for Sales and Returnes, I omit in that respect to insert to your memory. For other Newes and Occurrents here passed fince your departure, I commend you unto the Bearers bereof, and fo for this time, I commit you to the might and mercifull protection of the Almightie.

Bantam, the fewenth of Ianuary, 1617.

Your euer louing Friend,

GEO. BALL.

The feuenth of July, I fent Robert Hayes to Lantore, to view the Road, what convenient 40 place our thips might ride in, free from that of Nero Castle, and what place wee might plant Ordnance to defend our ships, and endamage the Hollanders, which returned with a draught of the Roads there, on the eighteenth. The two and twentieth, I wrote againe by a Iaua luncke to Master Ball (touching the taking of the thips, the Hollanders proud wearing our colours at their terus, and a long time neuer caffing from day nor major, at though they had talen built ele-tropic and a long time neuer caffing from the state of the plant first plant built ele-gords in the World. The bind of this prefent, the Generall with fine flory fet faile to the Weftward, finding me word flow four east past before, that he would come by me, and feel me firm flying Miller-fending me word flow four east but before that the would come by me, and feel me firm flying Miller-

gers to know bow I did: but like a bragging, lying, &c.
The second of August, I sent Master Muschamp in a Banda Praw, with the Submids of Pooloway and Inche Tungull, to give intelligence at Bantam : by whom I writ (touching the intelle- 50 rable pride and tyrannie, that the Hollander weeth in these parts upon us both, in bodies, and name, and * M. Courthops that with a good conscience we may proceed in regard of the great outrage and infamie they have offered magnanimous vs in these parts, both in disgracefull speeches to our King and Nation, and in their barbarous tyranne they have vsed to our weake forces, being captinated by them: having written how we may offend them by planting Ordnance at Oretaton, &c.

The thirteenth of August, there came fifteene Portugals borne at Goa , which had beene furprized by the Hollanders, from Nero in a Praw, and I gaue them entertaynment. The litteenth, in bearing the I received a Letter from Mafter Caffarian Danid, in the name of the English at Poolowity, viging to right what was amiffe, and to call conficience to the Barre (words shewing what a hard inprisonment and faire glosses may doe with impotent and impatient spirits) which I answered the next day, both with best reason, and sending them reliefe. I received also a Letter from Maiter Willes, as followeth.

Trom

CHAP.9. $,2. Ludgate or Newgate prisoners more bappy then we. From Pooloway, the fifteenth of August, 1618.

Oning Friend, Master Courthop my lone remembred to you and to all the rest of our good friends, 100. Master Courthop, the vigent occasion at this present is to let you understand, about sending the Blackes ashore was this, first about ten of the clocke the same day, we being chasedby three sayle, for my part I went aboord of the Salomon, to see what they were minded to doe. Master Callarian willed me tresently to goe aboord againe, and to be readie to defend our selnes, and to keepe faire by him, which indeed I did, and also I could have gone from them at first fight if I would, but I could not have gotten 10 the Iland if I had gone at ten of the clocke at night, we were faire by the Flemmings, the Salomon beeing within call of vs. The Blackes that were in the Salomon, were got into the fips Boate for to goe ashoare, then was I called to to have our Blacks, for to make themselves readie to goe with them, which I did, and looking when the Salomons Boate would come, thinking they had beene gone. I gaue them our small Boate to carry them : and for my part faine would I have fent you a Letter or some other thing, but being at that time so employed, that I had not time to do as I would: Faine would I have writ more at large, but that time will no: permit. So I rest, praying to the Almightie to bleffe you to in all jour affaires. Yours to command, I pray commend mee to Master Iones. Vie to his power the Chirurgion, Matthew Willes.

Oning and kind Friend, Master Courthop, heartie commendations unto you and the rest of your Legood company, with all health & prosperity to you in all Affaires: for to relate of our crosse Vojage and misfortunes, it is no newes. But I hope to fee the proudest of them pulled downs one day, although we indure the miserie of it in the mean time. I am glad to beare of your good prosperitie and welfare; the which, I much doubted, long since of your wants: but God will provide for his Servants, although he gines these Horse-turds leave to domineere awhile, who soener lines will see their Pride abated. I must needs fay they doe ofe us well. For I doe not know to compare it neerer then to Ludgate, or Newgate: not an inch libertie nor allowance more, then the worst Prisoner they have in keeping, which was commanded at the receite of your last Letter to the Generall, in the which case I wish you were able to doe us any good : 30 but in the mean time I hope God will proude for us. There is this yeare to come to Bantam the best fleet of Ships that ever came out of England, one Martine Friend is Generall. The Horfe-turd that tooke vs was at the Cape with them, in all five ships : the Royall Iames a new ship Admirall, the Ball Vice-admirall, the Gift reare- Admirall, with two ships more which went to Surat : wee had the last yeare eleuen Ships at Bantam, but the reason of no more comming this way, as I heare was by Master Lucas his comming from the coast, and setting Captaine Ball and Captaine Pepwell together by the eares : because Lucas must have a ship to goe bome : for afore Lucas came Captaine Pepwell was minded to come this way, but time will not permit to write any more, so in haste I take my leane.

I had a Box of slones of your which I did implos for your viein Rice. Some of them, and the Re-mannder I brought backe but all is lost: for I had some necessaries for you, as linnen and some clothes, but 40 all is gone, and not able to helpe my selfe : you shall receive a Letter from Captaine Ball, which I got out of the Salomon after she was taken, but it was opened. I pray commendance to Master Muschampe, Master Hayes, and Master Ford, Thomas Miller.

Yours to my power,

Kellum Throgmorton.

The nineteenth, Master David ient me a Letter from Master Ball, bearing date the fixe and twentieth of Ianuary, expressing his cares and endeuours for furthering the Banda businesse; that the falleth out so late in the yeare before I fend was you hath beene caused through discord betwirt Cap. Diagreeme taine P. and my selfe, who of himselfe weake and extreame couctous, and instigated by his proud of the English. and in solent Masters, did obstinately in sit to crosse our Designes, thinking to bring us under his com- advantagion and missient Angierri, and cortimates may be very me more than the processing of the Banda, to have made to the Ducks! I made I fill for the Company and I fill for Gamma and his Maffert haddeen, they had this searceme for Banda, to have made to the Ducks! I further tryell of the fellowings, that the extent fire and found had have fell on only two or three flowers had the whole the first tryell of the fellowings, that the extent fire and found had have fell on only two or three flowers. Letter, which that are worst able to hold out; which if not catched up by the Flemming, will be sufficient. But if ta-being long I ken, the losse will be the lesse unto us. I shall not be able to send you Beefe, Porke, or Powder for your house expressed reliefe, because I can get none from these new-come ships, how much it doth grieve us, that wee are able this onely. 6C to doe no better, O'c.

The Commander Captaine Derickson vied the English Priloners with fome kindnesse, and Some of the more would, but for Rial's thrich command : him therefore I did write vnto, with thankes, &c. the Estille. who also passed on the three and twentieth of August, by the Hand of Neglackey, and strooke mind is nor more scene in the Hollanders his Countreytently viging

kının ffe.

674

his mayne top-fayle; and there was shot in kindnesse betwixt vs on either part some fue or sixe Peeces; he going for the Moluccas. The fix and twentieth, the Hollanders Frigat fetching water at Salamon, were beset by Lantore men, one killed and divers hure, and had beene all taken but for differency by Salamon men. The tenth of September, I sent Will am Newbegin with supply of two Goates twelue Hens.

to the English.

The Captaine Mackerell, Oranges, and other trifles to the English at Pooloman. The Messenger returned with a Mackerell, Oranges, and out the Mackerell, Oranges, out the Mackerelll Letter Hom Maiete Leijarin Danne Common Some Jog vi a supame jince the departure of the Commoner, in what he might be bold without offerinding order preferbed who him, that the Saloo mon and Thomas were feet away with goods and without, and one and inventile days after the Attender of the Common source of the Attender of the Attende English diffen. mon and a normal phase pay course directly for Poclatoone: but by reason the Salomon and to Thomas both ware their flagges in the mayne-top, and that in fight, in going out of the Road of Bantam, the President thinking it done in pride by the two Ship-masters, as also shaping a forbidden course for water at Pontang: therefore it was decreed that I should first goe to Maccaster, there to take the for water at FUILAID, "overgrowth and diffels them after the order of a Fleet. If it had not been for firming government of the three loops and diffels them after the order of a Fleet. If it had not been for firming for amboritie betweene Captaine P. and Captaine B. You/hould have beene vifited hit year with the Charles and the Vnicorne, and other good Jhips. But multitude of Commanders maketh a confused goo uernment, which is the only cause of ours, and your faring the worse this yeare, &c.

Here followeth also a Letter from the English at Amborna, to Master Danid.

Apraine, I heartily commend me unto you and to our Master and bis Mate, and all the rest of the Companie, this is to let you understand, that I am in good health, and all the rest of our Company, only Andrew Keele and Thomas Sweet is dead, but all the rest are in good health, but weed very basely : for we are kept in Irons night and day, and if we have not a Releasement the sooner, I thinke it will make an end of vs all. I maruell much we could not heare from you by the Frigat, which made me the more forgetfull to write vnto you. No more at thu time, but the Lord have you in his keeping. From Amboyna, this third of October, 1618.

> Your Friend to command to his power, Richard Nash.

I received Copies of certaine notes, The first a petition of the English for Shift of clothes and to be freed of Irons in the day time; which was in some fort granted. The fecond, that each man miche come before the Generall to speake for his libertie, which would not be granted. The third, that the the Datch Ge- Dutch Generall might give vs an old flip, Pinnaffe or Praw to carrie vs to Bantam; or that bee would nerall cruelly fet a ranfome on the English Prisoners, which he would neither grant nor heare of ; but answered, that he would keepe vs Pritoners fo long as any English were vpon Poolaroone. The feuenth 40 of June we were fent for Pooloway. The fourth humble petition of the Prisoners in Nero Road. The fourth of Iune, 1618. Humbly shewing vnto your good Lordship, that whereas your Lordships pore Petitioners and Prisoners, being altogether doubtfull of any speedie Releasement, and desirous to anoyd the dangers of ficknesse and mortalitie, incident to all men in these vnwholsome Countries, do therefore befeech your Lordhip, that it may stand with your Lordships pleasure to grant unto your Lordships Said Petitioners, license & fauour to go for Holland this yeare in your Lordships Ships. And so your Lord-Ships poore Prisoners shall dee our best endeuours to doe your Lordships service in our passage, wishing there may be a good end of all these differences; and thus hoping of your Lordships fauourable charitie berein towards us poore Prisoners; we will pray for the prosperous successe of your Lordships Affaires. The Petition would be granted. The fifth, on the second of July, Humbly (beweth unto your 50 Lordship, that we poore Prisoners now in this Castle of Pooloway, doe petition unto your Lordship, that we may be allowed such victuals as may sustaine our bodies without famishment, and that your Lordship will be pleased to spare us money to buy such things as are needfull for us : for our clothing at this time is but very bare. Wherefore we befeech your Lordship to take some course for vs before your Lord-Ships departure from bence. Likewise we be seech your Lordship, that we may be suffered to walke abroad at seuevall times, as your Lordship shall be pleased so give order. And so your Lordships poore Prisoners Shall pray for the good successe of your Lordibips Affaires. Which would not be granted.

III.

d. III.

Other Acts of the Hollanders indiuers places of the Indies: Encouragements from Sir THOMAS DALE, Master IOR DAN and others, and various enents in those parts till his death.

He fenen and twentieth of September, I fent Robert Hayes with a white flagge to visit the English Prisoners, and to carrie such refreshment as Poolaroone affeorderh, who being kindly vied by the Hollanders, returned that night. The eight and twentieth of October, I likewise sent Arthur Athinson to Pooloway with refreshing. The tenth of Nouember, the Hollanders made an ambuthment alhoare at Oretaton, but caught one saue only whom they cut to pieces. The thirteenth of December, heere arrived a Keydupa Newes of the Prow laden with Coco Nuts: the brought newes that the Thomas was gone for the Moluceas, Thomas,

The fourteenth of January, I had prouisions from Lantore; with Abraham that went with Mafter Muftian for Maccaffer, who by the viskilfulnefle of the Pilot tell with Kofinging an Iland fixe leagues to lee-wards to our great troubles, to fetch promition in small Boats anther. He brought divers Letters, one from Master Stanerson, in which is mention of the Hollarders, that M. Staurtons through their brutish vsage and rapine, taking of surches of all places, they have excluded themselves Letter 20 all Iaua, and the Rice Countries, except where they hold by force: for Bantam, Iacatra, and Iapara,

I referre you to the Prefidents Letter.

CHAP.S. S. 3.

The two and twentieth of November List, here came three of their great ships brazing, to this place, and first came to an Anchor off Tennacooke Castic, without shewing any Colours, And at night, it bing faire Moone light, they came necres into the Road: and one of them went and road under the lland order point lantaun. And in the morning, they commanded two lana Iurches of lacatta, having in them some liftie Quoine of Rice, and by the lana Nochoda, sent a Letter ashows to the King and great men of Maccaller, presending Debts and required fatisfaction for their mens lines murthered two yeares fince, which shey would ballance with so many lives of men of qualitie at Maccaller. The King fort or an invers, what I know not, and they we t agains, but her an inverse not. They bern't one of the land luncker, and as the five and tweateth, fer fayle as we consister for Amboyria. The fast in goods in yeare I wrote what promition I laded on the flip Salomon, one hundred and one Quoyne, three hundred the thips which The security from 5, of Rie: on the Homas faculty five 4, engine from 5, of Rie: on the Homas faculty five 4, engine from 5, of Rie: on the Homas faculty five 4, engine from 5, on the Homas faculty five 6, one thanked minute three 4, two hundred thrite faculty) of the homas have faced fixite faculty of Area for the Homas faced from the form of the Homas faced for provision was laden from Bantam and lacatra, * I know not, &c. The last year. happened great mor- goods from taluie; there died out of the Hope, Captaine Newport that worthy Scaman and Commander, alle thence which Henry Rauens Master, and fortie more of that Stippes company. Out of the lames, Captaine by M. Eall, 40 Childe, co. He lent to me Mafter Balls Letter to him (wherein is relation of Mafter Tacklons loffe with nys of Captain Juncke, goods and laues, except three which faued themselves by swimming, as by writing from his Seamords and Father appeareth. For maning Rice and necessaries he put into Intan to the number of three and twe: Paringalisa tic, under colour of bringing promstions about, entred the luncke, and killed him and all his company but 10 tan kill M. three which lept over-board, and carried the luncke away: the rest of the Port remaining shoare are lacked. Prisoners to the King to answere for their fellowes. The Flemmings landed at Iapara by night, fired the lay vituoyled Erisoners so one King to answer eportiser seasoner. The exemitings tanded at tapara by night, pred the Towne, and seun or eight sunckes in the roade. The people shed to the Mountaines, they have serially have an infinite. built a Fort opon the mayne at lacatra, and another opon the Hands ouer against the matring place; the which makes the Pangram of Bantam, looke about him.

The feuen and twentieth of January, here arrived a small Pinnasse called the Francis, with ,50 adurce from the Fleet and reliefe, Master Robert Iackson, Matter.

Sir Thomas Dales Letter, as followeth.

M. After Courtings, as unknowne I remember m lone, which I will alwayer be readie to expresse, in the lower of our Country, and benefit of our Honourable Employers: und doc defire you o proceed in your good resolution, with the rest of your honest Companie; nothing drubting but that the Company will recompence your deferts to the full. I have fent you by this 60 mining dividing, without the Company poin recompany of mining divided in the Prefidence Letter and will, Beare, only to Jupply your perfort mosts; the proceedings of the mining of the dividence of the divide if God pare me life, tho ils fall w my flay ver gonly, to reine age in part the abuses received from them, having now an oro tunite by a differe ce be wirt them of the King of Licatra to put them from thence if God gare the vis ji 1g, which I intend for the with to put in execution: If it hall please God to give good swe cesse, I shall leave all safe behind me, and may proceed with the better resolution: if otherwise, yet I must celle, I Danieland and John them there, although I leave an ill Neighbour behind me. I have already given them a taste of twelve hundred great shot from six of our ships within the space of source hours, betweene Bantam and Iacatra: which they did so much mislike, that they left us in the plaine field, and betweene BARCAM and ELECTRICATION OF the property of the companies of the companies of the defer very to the Eleft want thrown the Bay of Tacatta, in fight of their Caffle Reall. For other newes I referrey on to the Prefident Letter, not adminish but that he hath fait spea you at large. And thus with my best wishes for your health and safetie. I take my leane untill I come.

Remayning your affured Friend,

Io THO. DALE.

The PRESIDENTS Letters.

Master Nathaniel Courthop, we heartify salme you with the rest, wee have thought it good at present to send you this small Pinnasse, the Little Francis, as an Adviser with such provisions as he is able to carrie, thereby to comfort you and your Company in the interim, not deubting but as you have begun, so you will continue with a conflant resolution to desend the place: when you are also to incomme 20 the Countrey people of Pooloway, Poolaroone and Lantore, and for the better fatisfaction of the Countrey people we have fent in the Pinnafe one or two of the Bandanezes; to relate unto them the infl wars that we have with the Dutch. For shortly after our arrivall at Bantam, the two and twentieth of November, with fine Ships, wherein is Admirall for the Sea, Ser Thomas Dale Knight, wee understanding so many insuries and insolencies done to our Nation, aswell in those parts as in all other places of the India, we tooke one of their Ibips called the Red Lion, laden with Rice, Pepper, and other Commodities. Whereupon out of their great pride they imprisoned two of our Merchants at Iacatra, and chayned them in their Gate-boufe, to the view of all the Countrey people. And not content herewith, their house being strong fortified with much Ordnance in it, shot at our Goodoung, and set fire to it and burnt it to the ground as also they shot into the lava quarter into the Kings house, and killed many lavas, and raved the China quarter to the ground with their Ordnance, and with fire. And the King hath shot some Ordnance against their house or Fort and hath had many Skirmilees with them, so that of both sides there hath beene flaughter, but most of the laurs. Now the King of lacatra feeing himselfe in a straite, sent a Meffenger to Bantam, desiring ayde of vs. And calling here a Councell, concluded to send a fleet of elemen Sayle of Ships, wherein goeth Sir Thomas Dale, and Captaine Pring Commanders, not only to surprize their ships, but also to destroy their Fort, if it please God to give a blessing thereunto. Which beine once effected, by God, grace, we determine to proceed for Banda and the Moluccas, hoping in God that we shall be able to lay some part of their insolent pride. If not altogether this yeare, yet the next we expell a farre greater fleet thereby at once to finish all. And whereas the proud Laurence Reall (the Dutch Generall that was) hash fallty reported that he hath Letters Patents from his Maiestie of AD England to furprize vs in those parts of Banda, and the Moluccas, we takenotice theref, and will put it in print amongst the rest of their lyes, out of whose mouth there commeth not a true word. We like very well of your former proceedings, and of your large adult concerning tole parts, praying you tecement the theory, and with a stellar relation, with which a the distinct with the theory of the the stellar relation, with which a stellar relation, with the Hollanders threatning, to defend the place until we fend further and a. And no doubt, but the Honorable Company will highly remark you and all those that faithfully and truly doe their endeuour in their affaires. Thus leaving further to infert at prefent, referring all things to our next, in which God willing, we will write you more at large, praying God to profper your proceedings to his glory, and your hearts defire.

Bantam, the three and twentieth of December, 1618.

Your louing Friends,

50

John Jordan, Augustine Spaldwin, George Ball.

Polt-script of He Iames and the Bantam arrived at Bantam from Iambe, the one and twentieth dicto, by whom Master Iordan. The understand of the death of Master Richard Westly, murthered there by the Dutch, they inmiting him to their bouse, to give him his for, he being bound for Bantam in these ships, and there ended 60 his life. The three and twentieth dicto, I fet faile in the lames, Hound and Petty France from Bantam, towards the Firet, which lay about the Ilands of Incatra neere the Holland firet, hoping to have beene with them before they had begunne any fight. But the very same day in the morning, the Fleets had a very bot incounter for the space of source boures, our men valuantly fighting, and they no less defending our Fices having flot about twelve hundred flot to the Hollanders; fo that they have had such a breakfail that they will not abide a second, but flye before us, as we suppose, only to draw us to the East-wards from their Fort, supposing that wee skall not bee able to come up thus Monson. But wee have not followed them further then the Easter point of Iacatra, whereas wee have lost sight of them, and know not as get which way they are gone either to the Eastward or to the Westward.

CHAP.9. $ 3. Surrender of Lantore. Bachan taken by the Spaniards.

Your louing Friend,

Iohn Iordane.

The second of February, we by councell ordered that the Francis should ride under the Fort, to releeue fuch Iunckes as should come thither for reliefe: divers of which with some Praw or Curracorra they had intercepted, so to starue the Inhabitants. The fift, came a Praw from Poo- Letter from loway with Letters from the English Prisoners, deploring that lying in misery and irons many of the Prisoners them have lost their lines, who if they had beene at libertie might have beene aline, and have done complaying their King and Countrey good feruice, and praying to supply their wants by that Praw with money and of miny of what elfe could be fent, not knowing whether they might bee suffered hereafter to fend or no: which I them dead by answered with Certificate of the newes and prouision.

The thirteenth of February, there were three ships in Nero Road, one whereof had her beak 20 head shot off, and shot thorow in fortieplaces. I ghessed it one of the ships which were in the

The eighteenth, I received a Letter by a Praw from Wayre, from Bartholomen Churchman, wherein with thankes for things fent, he certifieth that the Angell came from Amboyna that night, where they left their Generall to get all their forces together, which will bee fourteene or fifteene Dutch propa-Ships with the old Generall too, that commeth from Ternate: and Shortly they looke for their Fleet from to ion, the Maneelos, which is ten lips. And they fay they will goe all to Iana together, and where they had the ouerthrom, there againe they will fet upon our ships to recouer their former losse and disgrace in sight of all the Iauas. But I thinke they will be hanged before they meet upon equal tearmes. Three dayes after wee had received your Letter, they brought us all to Nevo, where they doe allow us now more viituals 30 and libertie, then they did before (God be thanked therefore) and within two or three dayes we are to goe for Amboyna in the Angell &c. The two and twentieth of Aprill, 1619. I did write to Mafter Stauerton at Maccaffer, and alfoto Master President, certifying that at that time there was neither Holland ship nor Gally in Banda: and had the English thips comme as they promifed, I verily thinke there would not at the end of this Monfon beene left one Hollander, enemie to vs in Banda, by reason, I know, the World was neuer fo hard with them : their wants being extreame, both for men and victuals: likely that few of their Souldiers but would have fled to vs : wee having neither flocke nor vi-Etuals, but bare incouragement of words, &c.

The eight of June, the Pinnaffe fet faile for Serran, and returned the fourteenth of July, with 40 fiftie thousand Cakes of Sage.

The three and twentieth of August, I sent her thither agains. Shee returned the five and twentieth of Nouember, fo full of leakes, that the third of December we haled her on shoare, and found her fo rotten that we faued what we could, and fet fire on the reft.

The fit of December, there came a Lantore Coracora, which brought newes that foure dayes before they had taken a Holland Praw rowing from Nero to Poolowar, there being foure Holland Prawes in company, bound for Pooloway, who came by Lantore daring the Banda men to come forth: who manned two Prawes, and followed them almost to Pooloway, and tooke one of them, and killed all the mon, being twentie Blackes and nine Hollanders. The Lantere men are now in heart : and now I have gotten the Banda men to repaire the Fortat the Hand, beeing 50 much out of reparations. The foure and twentieth of December, heere arrived a luncke from Maccaffer, which brought vs tome pronision, but no newes from the West. That day Master Iackson milie-behaving himfelfe to the Captaine was centured.

The twelfth of Innury, an Holland Coracora which came from Ambogna with Letters to the Captaine of Nero, put off by a guit, was taken by the Handers. The Letters contayned their loging of Bachan to the Spaniards, and their troubles at Amboyna and Luho, but no newes from the West. The thirtieth, I fent over Robert Hayes with the Priest of Pooloway to Lantore, Surrender of to conferre with the Orangaias there about the furrender of their Land to the Kings Maieltie of of. England; to: which they all agreed, that the Sabandar of Lantore should be the man to come ouer and agree with me about that businesse. And that whatsoever he should agree upon, the whole

60 Countrey would affirme vnto. Also I sent to them concerning their making Islams of all such Hollanders as came running from Nero, which caused so few to come. They promised it should be no more so : but hereafter, as they should see cause, they would either kill them or send them Making Mores only a Boat came aboord her, and whither she went I know not. I ghessed, they brought no only a Boat came about net, and written in the transfer and a guerre, they being reliefs, and therefore would not flay for fear of Mutinies amongli the Souldiers, they being the souldiers are all little fit for vi Angle Whiles Mafter Harve was guerred. I state that they being in great want and diffress for victuals. Whiles Master Hayer was over at Lanter, the Hollanders brake league with the Solamon men, taking three Prawes of theirs.

The eight and twentieth, went by a Holland ship, and neuer touched at Pooloway, nor Nero;

The thirteenth of February, came in a lana luncke, and a Praw of this lland, with Sago from Euro. The Janus could tell vs no certaine newes of our flipping, but they reported that reported that from p.m. The man count can should have a man and that hitteene English flips were gone thorow the thirtee to Stronda: and thought that no English thip would be here this yeare: which was cold comfort to me, which had neither direction nor flockes. Many Junckes arrived which could tell comfort to me, which has been a personal frigat, and in her Matthews a Blacke whom I had first the last 10 Eafterly winds to Mucaffer, which brought Letters from thence, but Iuncke and Letters ere cast away. He came in this Frigat which was bound for the Moinceas, but having stricken on a Rocke and leake, was perfwaded to come to Poolaroone. I tooke vp all his lading, God make mee

The twentieth of March, I received a Letter fent from Mafter Stanerion at Maccaffer, dated the feuenth of February, wherein is mentioned the report of the Hound and Samlon, taken at Patania by the Dutch, the iscare, Role, Hope, and Dragon at Tecoo; and at Bantam, a flor cal-Sunn Englin led the Starre, new come out of England : complaying also of wantsthere, by neglect at Banimpressents duers places tam. The two and twentieth, here arrived a Praw from Maccaffer, with one Guilliam Gualtier by the Hekin 2 French-mans goods tent me to fell for him. The lose of the ships aforesaid, I thought good to 20 adde out of a Letter of Mailer Muschamp, to Mailer Courthop.

Laus Deo in Iacatra, this ninth of March, 1619.

Orthy and respected friend heartie salutations: my hope was to have beene my owne Mes-senger, but there was an 1 nsortwate change, and time spent to little purpose, the manner treferre to future relation, not being desirous to censure my superiours, only to cleare my selfe of the trust you imposed oven me, which I prosecuted with all: Jendenours, and to performe my promise in returning, freed my felfe from the chiefe Merchants place in Bantam. After all hope was past of comming to you I was appointed chiefe for Siam, and went with the President for Patania, where we fell in the hands of cur Enemies, and in the defence of our ships and goods, performed what we were able: but the Elements fought against vs. for contrary to the common course, we had neither wind nor tyde to thwart the ship to bring our Ordnance to beare, and they breathed themselves to our great disaduantage, which wee might have helped our-night, if the President had not stood too much upon points of bonour in the sight of the Courtres people, which in his owne person be endenoured to maintaine, with as much resolution as ener did my Comma der, and most part of vs seconded with our best endenours as long as we were able, untill many of warer killed and burt. Then the President Sounded a parley, and in talking with Henrike Iohnion, received bes death's wound with a Musket, and they presently surprized our Ships, made pillage of all we had, but gave most part of vs our libertie, by reason of our wounds, where I continued foure 40 menethes in miferable torture with the loffe of my right legge, ( fhot off with a Canon) for want of Medicines to apply to it. Afterwards we came to feeke our Flect in three Prawes, and left two of them with Master Weldin, and fortie men for the defence of our Factorie at lambe : the refidue beeing fixe and twentie with my felfe, came for Bantam, this king to have found our Fleet, where wee were surprized with their ships and boats, and now remaine Prisoners with them, which is more grienous to methen the rest, by reason of the want of my legge, and vegeth me to solicite to got home in their ships, which will be an unseasonable and discontented passage at this time, but in the case I am in , I doe not much value my life, and have every day leffe comfort and courage to remain in thefe parts for either you or my felfe, how foeuer I make no question, our honourable M sters will stuly value your deferts. God fend you well home, His name Ro. to receive the guerdon thereof, and the comfort of your friends, who as I beare are very desirous to see 50 bert Holdings you, and your eld r brother wished the Pursers Mate of the Statte to tell you, that you should come now at la arra. home with the first, and that while he had a peny you should not want to receive it.

The newes tince our taking, as followeth. The Starre comme out of England, taken in the Straights of Sunda: the Dragon, Expedition, Role, and Beate taken at Tecoo, with fixe of their flips, they came voon them unprovided, and the Deckes of the Dragon was fo pestered with Pepper and other things, that they could not whe one quarter of their Ordinance, so that they were taken without any great resistance: the residue of our Fleet are at the Coast : viz. ten flops, where it is supposed they stay to some with seven ships that are at Surat, and three of the King of Denmarkes Ships, which will be of force sufficient to revence our invaries, if God be of our fide and that they have no new force out of Holland they have now not above fourteen ships be- 60 fore Bantam, and the Pangram continues their mortali Enemie , all the forces they have (which was thirtie (ayle at one time) cannot bring him to any composition, but wholly relyeth upon our Fleet, and bis owne strength, which will much advantage the Companies Trade, if they be of force to make their owne way, and affist him according to expectation.

Excuse my unperfect admise, for I have neither time nor place to write as I would, when occasion fall serve, you shall find me alwayes readie to deserve your love and friendship, remember my love to Master Hayes, Master Iones, Iohn Elmor, Thomas Dobins and all the rest, with my dearest affection to your selfe: I rest now and ener

Your faithfull friend to his power,

George Muschampe.

The eight and twentieth of March, 1620, here arrived a luncke from Iorian, laden with Rice. The third of Aprill, three Holland thips fayled into Nero Road.

This yeare I had no Letter nor any addice from our Commanders at Bantam, nor any supply: and am enforced to take vp all my mens goods, to buy victuals, to pay fiftie per cento, per annum interest. The thirtieth, I sent a Letter to the President and Commanders signifying my wants, and if the Portugall Frigat had not come in, I must have given over the place, whom yet I am enforced to fend to Bantam for his payment on my Bill. God grant mee good getting out of these Countrie peoples hands : for they have spent their Gold and estates, beggering themselves : and duers of them loking, some their lines, others their liberties in holding out in expectation of the English forces. Can the Heathens Suile to and againe, as also all other Nations, French and Portugals, 20 and only the English feare to adventure the Companies goods, passing over the matter with rub out another yeare we have rubbed off the skinne alreadie, and if we rub any longer, shall rub to the bone; I

The third of May, the long expected I urotinge arrived with his Iuncke, Mafter West dyed of the Fluxe.

The twentieth of June, I fent Letters to Macaffer, with a Letter inclosed to the President and Commanders, adurling to tend a thip with prouitions, and of the Lantore men holding out ftill in expectation, and that except some such course be taken, they should see mee before they should heare any further from me.

The three and twentieth of September, Iurotinge fet faile for Maccaffer, whom I fent to fetch 30 Rice : and with him three China men, which ranne from Nero to the Blackes at Lantore, which but for me would have forced them to turne Slammes.

CHAP. X.

The continuation of the former Iournall by Master ROBERT HAYES, contayning the death of Captaine COVRTHOP, Succession of ROBERT HAYES, Surrender of Lantore to His Maiefile, newes of the peace, and after the peace Lantore and Poolaroone feized by the Dutch, with abominable wrongs to the English.

He eighteenth of October, 1620. Our Captaine Nathaniel Courthop came to me Robert Hayes, and faid that he heard fay, there were two Prawes gone into Lantore yesterday, which were Key Prawes as hee thought (yet were not) and in regard of former abuses to Invotingee, hee would goe and reuenge the fame. I This Invotinge prayed him to flay till he heard from thence whether it were fo or no : But hee M.Stauerton refuled faying, if they were not of Key, it were but so much labour loft, & now a Letter of his he might go with the Prieft. Thus went he ouer that night withhis Boy william, wel fitted with which I bane, Muskets and weapons; promising to returne in fine dayes, and bidding me lend for water on the call charves and weapons; promising to return in fine dayes, and bidding me lend for water on the following three and required which I fall but he came not, and for me word her woods come to follow the following the control of the control three and twentieth, which I did, but he came not, and fent me word hee would come the fixe (as heere hee and twentieth at night. Hee came accordingly part of the way, the Priest staying at Lantore, proued) seebecause it was a great Feait with the Blacks the next day. There were one and twentie persons in ming a blacke the Boare with fixe Muskets and Fowling Peeces of the Companies, and goods of the Captaine blacke Deuill. to the value of one hundred and fiftie Reals of eight or vowards. Comming thwart of Poolomay, about two or three a clocke in the morning, they met with the Hollanders Corneora and one Praw more with some fortie small shot, and comming vp with them sought with them : where 60 the Cap aine behaued himfelfe couragiously untill divers of the Banda men were slaine. And the Captaine also receiving a shot on the brest sate downe, and with all his Peece being cloyed Captaine Cortthrew it ouer-boord, and then leapt ouer-boord himselfe in his clothes, the Praw being too hot be wounded, to flay in. And what became of him I know not : but the Blackes fay furely he there funke, by lenes ouerreason of his wounds and his clothes all about him. There came of those one and twentie per-boord.

60

fons, seuen ashoare, who had not beene wounded, and were strong to swimme, the space being fone fine miles. The fame night Riall a Dutchman (formerly turned Moore) ranne away to the Hollanders with a fmall Praw.

Mafter Hares

New agree-

people.

ment betwixt

The seuen and twentieth of October, I went to the Fort at Neylackey, and calling the Company together, demanded of them their purpose: and they all promited that as formerly they had beene ruled by the Captaine, so now they would be ruled by me Robert Hayes, as knowing before that I was to succeed in case of Mortalitie. I tooke order concerning better watch, ha uing but twentie three men on Neylackey, and two barrels of Powder with that which was in the Gunnes. The one and thirtieth, I fent a small Praw to Lantore, with four men to certifie Robert Randa: of buincile. The fame night the Sabander Rato, came with a Coracora and an O-10 ranker, well provided to bring ouer the Priest and Robert Randall with them. So all the chiefe the new Capthe new Lap-taine and the of the Countrey came to the Forton Saturday in the Edening the fourth of November, and called all our company, demanded whom they should now (our Captaine being dead) trust to take charge: they all answered, Master Hayer: they further demanded, if they would stand to that which I should promise, because they were not to make agreement with a multitude without a head. They all answered, they would performe all my agreements and promises to the vemost of their power. I then being settled in my businesse, demanded thirtie men each night to come to watch with vs, viz. fifteene at the Hand, and fifteene betwixt the two Forts; for that I feared affault in the night : and it was agreed.

The fitt of Nouember, the Sabander Rato came with the Prieft to me, to know my determi- 20 nation about foure Peeces of Ordnance, which the Captaine had promifed to Lantore, as Master Randall knew & my felfe; and perufing the Prefidents Letter to go thorow with them of Lantore, as we had done with them of Poolaroone and Pooloway; I answered, that if the Chiefe would come ouer and agree with me, I would performe their request. The feuenth, Robert Randall went backe with the faid Sab. Rato in the Corocora, which Rato faid hee would certifie the S.b. of Lantore and the Orankayes of my answere; and that within three dayes I should expect them againe. At prefent here were feuen Ker Prawes in the Road, and the feuenteenth, I manned our Oranbay with a Murtherer, and feuen Muskets, and went with other flue Muskets on the Flanker at Foriat, and fent to the Key-men that two of their Chiefe should come and conferre with me about the cloth stolne from Iurotinge: But they all swamme on sheare, till the Coun- 30 trey people tooke vp the matter, and gaue mee two Key-men pledges, whom I kept at Ney-

The foure and twentieth, came three Corocoras with other Prawes from Lantore, for the Guns promifed : and vpon their demand of ayde of vs, and agreement to furrender their Land to the Kings Maiestie of England, I gaue them two Sakers and one Demiculuerin. The same day Lantere furren. the Key-cafe was ended. And the same day they of Lantere furrendred the Land to the Kings most excellent Maiestie.

dred to the King. Dutch Aduifor

The fixe and twentieth of November, we faw a faile to the West, and all the chiefe of Banda being here put off with thirteene Coroccras, and came vp with her, being a Holland Aduifor from Iapan and Amboyna, with Letters for Banda. They killed foure and kept three alive, beeing in all feuen Hollanders. The Letters they brought me, but I could not attayne to the full contents by want of the Dutch Language. Only thus I found that the English and Hollander were agreed at home, and I read the thirtieth Article of agreement betwixt vs and them : fo that I thought it not write to fend the Letters to Pooloway. I would have kept the businesse from the Banda men; but then it would have beene worfe for vs. I therefore diclosed it to the Priest of Pooloway, fo to frame our answere to the whole Countrey, namely, that shippes both English and Dutch were to come thither to end the bufineffe, and that it were good those Writings should be fent to the Hollanders to redeeme their three men with fixe Blacker. Wee were glad of the agreement, but knew not how to cleere our felues of the Countrey people, in case of

The eight and twentieth, I fent Robert Munday with fixe Banda flaues to Pocloway with a flagge of Truce and that packet of Letters, and to redeeme their men, and to fend word whether they would perfift in their rigorous courses, or bestill till ships came; which if they refufed, that they take notice that the Banda men are in hand with a stratageme against them (f. r they purposed to make vie of their Ordnance, and besides, to set on their Frigat, but I would not disclose the particulars.) The nine and twentieth, my Messenger came backe with a Letter

> To his louing Friend Master Robert Hayes, Factor for the English vpon Poolaroone.

J'Orthy Sir, your Letters of the eight and twentieth of November, we have received, also the packet of Letters which were by it, and have with great toy and gladneffe understood the friendhip and agreement betweene both our Masters : wherewithall is ended warre which was begunne friendling and agreement octoreene out on any extension as tomes more more more more than the letter of with great boald fledding, not friing for two Nations which base been fig oned friend, as yours and our. The Letter of base beene, We base further maderfleed with Cabelle the loft of the Campas and the killing of foure the Durbes to the Campas and the killing of foure. men at the taking of her: likewife of three which are the Banda mens Prisoners, for the redeeming of bout the peace which they will have fixe men: how foeuer, I will not leave them on-redeemed. The Captaine Nathaniel is killed in the Prow, for which God knoweth I was heartily forie. We have buried him fo flately and ho- M. Courthop nestly as ener we could fitting for such a man.

He proceeds with defire that Mafter Hayes and an Orankaia should come that they might Durch. conferre upon some truce with the Bandanezes till the ships comming, wherein they should well 10 agree if they would let them have Mace and Nuts for their money : with promife of fecuritie, a prefent, thankes and commendations.

Dated Pooloway, in the Castle of Renenge this ninth of Decemb. Anno 1620. Stilo nous.

Your louing Friend William van Anthon.

The second of December, the Priest was content to take man for man, but freemen; and if they had not, so many hundred Rials of 8. for the third. And I writ so by Ed. Twelues, and aduised them of going betweene Lantore and Guning Apee, and of an action in hand, &c. The third my Messenger returned with a Holland Prow rowed by Spaniards, and two Hollanders, the Minifter and an Ancient-bearer which brought Nocoda Ismael, Mirnie, and one hundred Rials of eight. And I suffered no Banda man to come to the Iland but only the Priest, and exchanged the Prisoners. I entertayned the Hollanders in the best manner I could, but would not suffer them as they defired to speake with a Banda Orancaia, suspecting it was for trade. In the Letter of van Anthon, he writes, Touching the truce of which you write, is not only betweene Yours and Our Masters made a truce, but a' so a good and sure peace. Therefore there is nothing to say betweene you and us. When it please you, you may goe where soener you list, &c.

The fift day, the Welterne Monfon blew with raine, God be thanked, for wee had no water Monfons. fell to any purpose, since the beginning of June last being fixe monethes, so that wee went to Want of water Lantere feuen times for water, besides that I hired the Key-men once. The same day came a Praw from Beynamre, and told of twentie Corocoras gone from Seyram to Amboyna against the Beynamre Hollander, befides many small Prowes. There came ouer the Sabander Rato, and Sab. Lantore with a Coracora and two Oranbaygs for their other Gunne : and told that the Hollanders fued for peace and Trade with the Lantore men and those of Salomon, but were deferred till tenne dayes for answere. I bade them remember their Surrender, and how they had promited in writing to fell no Spice but to the English. Thus the Hollander fought by policie what he could, notwithflanding the newes was publike.

The eighteenth, I had word that the Hollanders came to feeke for Trade with the Lantore men, which would not agree except they would reftore them one of the Ilands of Nero or Pooloway : whereupon the Hollanders Meffenger returned to Nero, and pulled downe their white Flags which had stood some ten dayes, and set red in place, and sent the Frigat to shoot into Lantore. And at night the Lantore men fent three Blackes in a small Praw to Nero, which killed a Hollander in a house without the Castle. And the Sab. Rato sent me word that they would keepe their Spice for the English only.

The one and twentieth of December, here arrived at the Lucon a China Iuncke from Maccaffer, with a little Rice and Racke from the Factor and Letters, but no newes from the Well; fo that we knew more Newes here then they there. He also protested in his Letter, that hee had that on truft, having no meanes left but borrowing, the people centuring and the Portugals laughing hereat. Dated the nine and twentieth of November, to Captaine Courthop.

The nineteenth of Ianuary , I fentouer the Sewes to fetch Letters from Mafter Stauerton, in a Portugall Juncke. I heard then by Master Randals Letter, that the Hollanders had burned the great China Iuncke with our Flag in her, and tooke our Letters and all the China men Prifoners : but the Lantore men will redeeme them with two Hollanders, they tooke in a small Prow, Dutch cunning having killed the third. But the Hollanders care not fo much to redeeme their men, as to have Trade with the Blacker. They doe what lyeth in their power to fet the Banda men and vs at difference. For any Sailes they fee they purfue, under the reach of Ordnance : and being purfued by Banda Coracoras, put out a white Flagge to vs: which I thinke hafely done. They 60 were intreated by mee to bee still till the Fleetes came but they will not, though themselves goe by the worst. They professe friendship to the English, and skirmish with the Bandanezes, with whom we liue. The Letters which I received from Hoia Mund, was the Copie of a Letter from Master Haymard the Factor at Succadania to Malter Stauerton of the place. Dated the feuen and twen-buried by the

Dutch hostilitie to the English, Seran treacherie. CHAP. TO.

The thirteenth, the Fifea !! came to fee if the Blackes had pulled downe their wals, and was at them to pull off our Gunnes, and left their flagge Randing vpon one of the carriages of our Gunnes which were at the Towne, the fame time Mafter Welden went to Nero to the publica.

tion. The fourtenth, came in the Exchange, and I related to Captaine Fuzherbert of the Oc- Captaine currents here, who wished hee had beene here fooner, and that night fent one of his men on Fizzeniate. there, and carried a way the flag into Nero Road the next day : and fent word backe to fend the Searre prefently away for Nero, which I did as foone as I could on the eighteenth. The twentieth, the Fifcall and the Captaine Solar came with twentie Soul liers, and threw downe all our Ordnance of the mayne Hand, being nine Peeces, and broke them, and carryed Dutch haftling 10 away the Peeces thereof. Also they tooke away a flagge from one of the Forts, and carried a to the English. way a Coracora of the English for Poolomay. As for the little Iland they medled not with it at all, but as we had it, to we might keepe it. The flagge which they tooke, the Fifcall faid was in revenge that Captaine Fitzberbert had taken away their flagge. The one and twentieth, the Clam arrived from Amboyna. The fixe and twentieth, 1621. the Generall of the Hollanders fent to the Orankaies of Poolaroone, commanding them to fell Imperious

The found of Aprill, Master Bate went to fettle at Poolaway. The Pinnaste was sent on a Voyage to Seyran, to buy ilanes and Sago. The eight and twentieth, we heard of a strange Mas- Dutch Empires; facre, that the Generall cut in pieces fortie foure Orankaies of Lantore for Treason. The second of May, the Generall signed Articles of agreement with the Poolaroone men, which were all one in effect with our Articles formerly ligned with them ; only , that they must pay Tenths to the Prince of the Countrey. The fourth, hee fent to take the Orancks of Seran trea-Poolar owne their Oathes to be true to the Prince of Orange. The two and twentieth, I heard of thery. the Clawes misfortune betrayed by Seran men, losing twentie two slaves and halfe their Sago, for Hollanders being glad to get aboord themselness lost two men and all whatsoeuer on shoare. The cause saults, fprang from Lantore men that ranne thither, faying, that the English and Hollanders were all one and had mafficred their Orencaise The fift of Iune, I went in the Claw from Poolaroone to Amboyna, where I went ashoare on the ninth.

I have added to this Journall of Master Hayes (by him kindly communicated to me) a Letter of Matter Fizherbert to him, forting with thefe Dutch Affaires.

I have added Master Fitzherberts Letter here printed out of the originall, because the Datch in their Answere make him an Approuer of their Deffignes.

40 M After Haves, thefe we to require you to difther gestock three Dutchmen out of the Companies
I fruite, and to disjuich them of the Ilead, for formach I bour promifed outs the Dutch Cometall note in sumb offended with time, that be faith, be will beaut kepin bourfeare. It dats frame mee to turne away the Companies Seruants in this manner, preferring in my minde the time of our infortunate warre before a troubled peace. Other newes I could write, but I referre it to better occasion. From aboord the Royall Exchange in Nero Roade, the eighteenth of March, 1620.

Your louing Friend,

Humfrey Fitzherbert,

FOr the Readers more full Satisfaction in these Affaires of Banda (the originall of the Warres betwixt the English and Hollanders in the Indies) I have re-printed three Letters before published : as also the Declaration of the Hollanders in answere thereto; and the same resuted by certaine Mariners, together with Depositions touching the Premisses. And lastly, the state of the Quarrels betwixt the Dutch and the Bandanezes, and betwixt ours and them, 60 is more fully cleered by the Authour.

tieth of Ochber. It was vnder-written by Master Stanerton, with promise of reliefe, his best endeucurs, the Copie of the Articles lent from our Commanders at Jacatra, vinder-writtenby Captaine Farresland Prefident, Matter Brokden, Master Spaldin, &c.

The fine and twentieth of lanuary, Mauthew Richards was centured for mildemeanour, in polling downe the Orders fet vp in our place of Common Prayer and vncissil speeches, by con-

Hellanders pre-

nt or Countern.

The muth of February, the Dragons Class arrived and brought vs Letters and a Cargazon. The cleuenth, came by eleuen Holland hips, and I fent my Prow aboord to heare of our thipping. I receiued a Letter from Master Bates from Ambona, wherein I was certified of the Hollanders receited a Letter from Market pages, from a suppliers, befales a thousand more of all Nations, pretence to take Lantors with two thousand Souldiers, befales a thousand more of all Nations, 10 which was strange newes to vs, expecting nothing lesse, in respect that Land was surrendred vnto vs, and we had a Factory there, with men, Ordnance, and goods. I expected directions from Incura concerning this affaire, but I had no knowledge concerning it. Three dayes after,

The fixteenth at night, I wrote a Letter to the Dutch Generall, to give him notice of the furrender of Lantore, and of our men, goods and munition there. The eighteenth, my Messenger General which returned certifying me that the Dutch Generall read my Letter, but would not answere it, but wead gueso bid my Messenger egone. Now the Dutch sent to the Lantore men to yeeld up their Countrey to them, and to put the English from them; but they would not. Neither would I fend for them to come of, for I could not answere it, namely to forfake the Companies goods there, or 20 to leave the Land fo furrendred to the Kings Maiestie. The Lantore men sent ouer to mee, to know what we meant to deceive them, and not to fuccour them as we had promifed. I fent ouer my Prow with men in her for the defending of the Companies Spice there But for that the Countrey faw I could not relieve them, denyed that we should put out our Flagge, in regard they must defend themselues for all vs. So all the men returned except Robert Randall, and two

Hollanders inuade Lastore, and burne the The English

The first of March, the Hollanders forces went on shoare at a place betwixt Loquee and Mande Anginy, and so marched to Lantore, and tooke the Towne and fired it; there being small bloud-thed on either partie. The Inhabitants fled, and Matter Randall & the other two English standing by the Companies goods were taken and stript to their skinnes, bound, beaten, throwne ouer the Towne-wall; and carried aboord the Generall, and put in Chaines. They tooke all the Companies spice, goods and monies by accompt of Robert Randall, three and twentiethousand foure hundred pounds English, of Maces, and one hundred and twenty thouland pounds Eng. lift of N. its, Monies, fine hundred Rials, Cloth and others to a small quantitie.

Duich flights,

The third day t e Starre arrived here at Poolaroone: fo I went about and made Master Welden and Mafter Bates acquainted with these Occurrents. The fift, they went ouer to the Generall 2. Nero, to know his pleafure about fetling of Factories in Banda: but hee pretended bufinesse for three or four edayes, and then we should heare further. At Master Weldens being there, he spake with Master Randall with much adoe, who told of his viage. But release could not be gotten for our mon. Further, the Generall demanded, if we had Poolaroone men in Subjection, as he had the Lantore men; otherwife he would come and doe it. His pretence (as I suppose) is to picke a Quarreil with the Poolaroone men to get vs out, and after to lettle vs under them. The fixt of March, the Hart came and anchored at the Lucon, and twentie fue Prowes con-

Now the Countrey people came flocking to know what these Prowes meant, and whether they

Countrey being afraid that we could not withfland the Hollanders (as indeed then we could not) they went to the Generall and told him they had brought the Land vnto him , but it was not theirs to give, being formerly given the English : therefore let them and the English try for il at

as we would. The ninth, came the Aduocate with certaine Souldiers and Amboniczei, to command the Blackes to pull downe their wals, and deliner up their weapons, which they did: and without bushes on it (mening by vs. that then he would come with his forces So by their policie they fet the Blackes against vs to cut our throats as much as lay in their power.

afterwards bid the Blackes take off our Gunnes from the Land; but the Orankay answered they 60

Hollanders arts
at Pane Anne, the Hart came and an entertaint and the Fifcall came about the Starre. The Fifeals came in peace or watre. The Fifcall intreated Mafter Welden to goe afficare with him : but Mafler Welden faid he had businesse aboord, defiring me to goe on shoare. The Fiscall then teld the Country people they had nothing to lay to vs: but as for them, if they did not come and fubmit themfelues presently to the Generall, that they should fare as those of Lantore: & would know how they The people curit furrender Poolaroone to the English. The Countrey faid that they knowing it to bee peace Pleade fubie betwixt them and the English; and they themselves subjects to the Kings Maiestie of England, ction to his doubted not that the Hollander had ary further to fay in this matter. The Aduocate replyed, High-way-law. that if on the morrow they would not cone ouer and furrender their Land to the Generall, that then they would come with their forces, &c. and sohee departed. And the ienenth day, the Sententias lo- could not doe it by reason of former agreement. Then the Fifcall would have mee to take them quina Camifer. of, but I would not. The Fifeall faid that if the Blacker would not give them the Land cleare

CHAP. XI.

A Letter written to the East India Company in England, from their Factours.

Bout the moneth of December, 1620, the Dutch Generall having prepared a force of fixteene ships, declared to our President, that hee entended an exploit for the good of both Companies, without mentioning any particulars of his Designes.

And feeing vs to haue no fuch forces readie to loyne with him, hee faid hee would attempt it alone. And the third of Ianuary, 1620. he did fet fayle from Inquatra with his faid forces, and arrived at Banda about the third of February following.

Presently upon his arrivall, he made great preparation against the Iland of Lantore, which Iland was formerly by the Inhabitants thereof delivered over vnto our people for theyle, and under the subjection of the Kings Maiestie of England, whereof our Captaine of the Ile of Polaroone had taken possession, and had also settled a Factory there.

Hayes, Captain

When our chiefe Factor * in our said Ile of Polaroone, heard of the purpose of the Dutch Generall against the said Ile of Lantore, he wrote a Letter vnto the said Generall, aduising him that the faid Ile of Lantore did belong vnto the King of England, and that therefore hee should 20 not attempt any violence against it, seeing there is an accord made in England betweene vs. Which Letter, the faid Generall threw from him in a great rage, scarce vouchsafing to reade it ouer, and caused the Messenger to bee thrust out of doores, requiring him to aduste our Factor of one, and cannot managed a managed and the state of the st mies, and they should fare no better then the Inhabitants.

And within ten or twelve dayes after he landed all his forces there, and fubdued the faid Iland. So long as the fight endured, our Factors and Servants there (being three English and eight Chinees) kept themselues within doores, and afterwards our people came out of their houses, and told them, the house wherein they were, was the English house, and that therefore they 20 should not meddle therewith.

Neuerthelesse they sacked our house, tooke away all our goods, murthered three of our Chines Servants, bound the rest (as well English as Chinezes) hand and foote, and threatned them to cut their throats, binding them three feuerall times to feuerall stakes, with their weapons readie Robert Randell. drawne out, and did put a halter vpon our principall Factors necke, drawing vp his head, and firetching out his necke, readie to put them to death, yet did not execute them, but as they were bound hand and foot (as afore-faid) tumbled them downe ouer the Rockes like Dogges, and like to haue broken their neckes, and thus bound, carryed them aboord their shippes, and there kept them Prisoners in Irons, foureteene or sixteene dayes.

After the conquest of the Iland of Lantore, the Dutch Generall threatned to doe the like vnto Polaroone, wherefore our principall * Factor of Polaroone being there but newly arrived, went vnto the Datch Generall vnto the Castle of Nero, and told him that hee heard that hee purpoted to take Polaroone by force, which he could not beleeue, although his owne Meffenger fent to Polaroone, to speake with our Factors, had given it out also, that the Generall himselfe should say, that if the English did not come presently vnto him, and yeeld the faid Fort of Polaroone vnto him, hee would fend his forces, and ouer-runne all the Countrey, but hoped hee would enterprize no fuch thing against that place, considering the Articles of agreement, and knowing how many yeares (to the great lofte and charge of the Company) wee held possession and maintayned the place to the vie of his Maiestie of England.

The faid Generall made little answere to it, as though there were no such matter intended, 50 whereupon our faid Factor tooke his leave and came away.

But the next day he was followed to Polaroone, with an Armado of twentie fixe Prowes, and one thip, which did put the Inhabitants of Polaroone in fuch a feare, as they knew not what to doe; whereupon our chiefe Factor there asked the Commander of those forces, what his purpole was with such a Fleet there, and that if he attempted any thing against Poolaroone, it was a breach of the Articles it being in our possession. This could not preuaile with him, but said the Land was theirs, and they would have it by faire meanes or force, and as for our profession, they would not acknowledge it (the Inhabitants and not we being Mafters of the place) and so the Dutch Commander went ashoare vnto the Inhabitants.

Whereupon the faid Inhabitants asked vs if we could and would defend them, but perceiuing 60 we were not able to defend our felues, much lesse to secure them: they were forced to yeeld them felues and the Hand into his hands.

The Dutch tooke downe the English colours, and set vp their owne, and caused the Inhabitants presently to bring in all their weapons, and to throw downe all their wals, and would have forced them to have taken all our Ordnance out of our Fort, which they at the first resulted to doe, alleaging that they had formerly given and furrendred the Land to the King of England, and in respect they had lived so long with the English, they would not now offer yeary injurie

And when our chiefe Factor went ashoare to exposulate the matter with the Dutch Commander, he could obtayne nothing at his hands, but that the Land was theirs, and things must be to, and should be fo.

Whereupon our faid Factor went againe vnto the Dutch Generall to the Cattle of Nero to conferre with him thereabouts, but he would give no other answere, but that hee had referred 10 those businelles to his faid Lieutenant fent thither, with whom he might conferre : who in the absence of our chiefe Factor, had brought some of his Souldiers ashoare vpon Poolaroone, and forced the Handers to throw all our Ordnance ouer the Rocke from the place where they were planted (being nine pieces) whereof foure broke with the fall, and were all carryed away by Moreourrour Captaine of Poolarone who had defended the Iland foure yeeres together, going Nathaniel to Lantore (at the request of the Inhabitants) to receive the furrendry thereof for our Kings Ma- courbon. iesties vie (as atorelaid) and returning backe againe about the beginning of November, 1620. was skine by the Duich. And it is very probable, they did it after the time they had intelligence of the publication of the accord at Bantam, in March 1619. For prefently upon the flaid 20 publication, they fent fecretly to the Hands in those parts, where they had trade, to preuent vs of our part of the Spices due vnto vs by the accord. After the faid Dutch Generall had fubdued the fore mentioned Iland of Lastore, hee con-

strayned them to deliner vnto him, the principall of all their children for Hostages: Then hee tooke away from them all their small Vessels and Boates, and then he also required all the men of Lantore to be brought vnto him, and they brought him all the principall men, but this did not fatisfie him, but he would have all the Bandanezes, which had ayded them, as also all their wives and children, small and great to be brought as Prisoners abourd his ships.

Which when the Bandanezes perceived (doubting that he meant to make them all flaves and to carrie them to some other places) they agreed together to retyre themselves into the highest 30 and strongest places of the Land, and there did fortise themselves, whereupon the Durch slue of them and tooke twelue hundred persons Pritoners, most of them being women and children, which they have fince carryed to Iacatra and other places.

> Printed according to the originall Copie the eight of February, -1621. Stilo Nouo.

Reuerendo in Christo Fratri D. Domino Adrian Iacol son Hulsebus apud Iacatranenses Batauos Prælicatori, Salutem & pacem ab Authore vtriusque.

Oning Brother: I have received your Letters, and according to your desire, have returned these sew Lines in answere thereunto. If I have not so fully satisfied the particulars of your Letters, as I wished and purposed, I pray you impute it not to any want of will, but unto my disacquaintance with your Ditch Tongue and hand : I should peraduenture have given you better fatisfaction then now I doe, if you had written to me in the Latine Tongue. But to leave excuses and come to the matter, the thing you touch in your Letter is but too too true, to mit, that the hatred and diffention among Christians (if a continue, as Goddefend it should) is, and will be the cause of much unrecent bloud steeding among it friends, and of estranging the hearts of Heathens, soom the worship of the true God. And therefore that eximite amongst friends may cease, and that such as are yet without, may be allured to submit theresclues to the Scepter of lesis Christ: it standeth vs upon (who are Preachers of the Gospell of Peace) to be instruments of peace, which for my owne part how willing I am to doe, is not viknowne to such as know my selfe, and among whom I doe daily converse. I have alwayes both in publike and prinate, b, Lesters to our Worldingfull Company in England, and by lively voice to our Commanders here in the Indies declared how good a thing t is for vs that are Christians professing one Fauls, one Christ, one B. prisme, to line in peace, and to dwell together in vnitte. And of this my earnest desire to be a Peace-maker, Master Brancraft your Master of the Blacke Lion, who remayned after his taking some weekes abourd of the Rov-60 all lames, can giue evident testimonie and witnesse. And now that you have written to this end, I we'd stirre up my selfe, and et afresh upon the worke of reconciliation. It is pelfe indeed and pride that is the Make-bate breeding strife and discord : for, had not the riches of the Molu cas and the robbing of the Chinese and others by you, under the English Colours, fathering thereby your thest upon us, cash you into a deepe and deadly Lethargie, you would not as you have done, have abused your best friends abroad, that have shed so much of their decrest blood in desence of you and your countrey at home but nom gon are freed from the Spaniard at home, you fall out with your friends abroad. Is this the recompence of our lone and blood shewed unto you, and shed for you to keepe you from the susposed thrasdome of Spaine? OH tone and views and his three Worthies, who adventured their lives to fatisfie his longing of to quench his thirs? Did he not say, Lord, be it farre from me that I should doe this : is not this the blood of the men that went in icopardy of their lines? 2. Sam. 23. 17. Doe you thus require vs , as Lot did Abraham, Who, when as bee with the three hundred and eighteene that were borne and brought up in his bonfe, did reconer Lot and his goods, and women out of the bands of the Conquerors, cared not for him but to ferue his owne turne, and being delinered, did in a manner scorne Abrahams company. Vell. though Abraham being the elder and worthier might have flood opon his right, yet seelded of his interest. 10 that he and Lot might line as brothers, and the rather because both of them at this time societies mong the Canaanites and Phereites, who were ready to take notice of their discord, and so to curse their God and holy Religion. Tet what gained Lot by separating company, but a shoure of fire and brimstone, which rained upon Sodome wherein he lived and would have confumed both him and his if God had not beene mercifull unto him at Abrahams request.

LIII

CHAP.12,

It is not long of the English that we expose our selves to the mockery of Insidels: our Company love peace, and trade peaceably: they have put up for peace fake more wrongs at your hands, then they meane to doe againe. Tou write and publish to the world, that the Sea is free and jet by your encroaching upon it, are not you both the Mothers and Nurses of discord? One of our Commanners, wrote (as I thinke, or at least sent word by one of special note amongst your selves) to Coen your Commander concerning a 20 parley before the shooting downe of our Turret at lacatta : but the first and last newes we heard of him, was it not the beating downe of our house there, and the defaming of our Nation, with Penoran at Bantam and others bere?

And thinke you that this is the way to make peace?

The present Captaine of your Fort at Incatra premised to the Right Worshipfull Sir Thomas Dale our chiefe Commander, upon the faith of a Christian, that M. Peter Wadden (now your prisoner) Should have free ingresse and egresse in and out of your house to parley betweene us, to returne to our Shippes: and yet is either promise or oath kept? hath he not, and doth be not continue your prisoner to this hower. You remember Ichu his answere it Ichoram, What peace whiles the whoredomes of thy Mother lexabel, and her witchcrafts are yet in great number ? 2. Kings 9.23. No found league 30 of friendship or reconciliation can be made, or being made can continue, till the wrongs which men have done one to another, be reproued, and removed; and satisfaction given by word and deed, where it may possibly be performed; else it will be like a wound or fore, that being cured outwardly to the eye, doth bleed and fester inwardly; many bollow reconciliations are daily made amongst men, which afterwards breake out to the hurt of both parties, and scandall of others : As a wound that is ill cured, by an unskilfull or an unconscionable Chirurgion. As for mine owne part, I would to God that if it were posfible, I might with all my best shell and cunning be the Chirurgion to cure this wound, that cur recon-cilistion, when euer it shall be made, may not be bollow, but holy and firme: yea I wish from my heart, that my very blood might be the milke to put out this wilde fire which now is kindled, and (if it be not quenchedin time) is like to denoure, not onely the forps and goods (as it hash done some already, and is like 40 to doe more) but the precious lines of many of both Nations, and of those also that are as yet emborne. who (it is like) will curse the time that ever the English and Dutch knew the Indies. All standeth not in one side, there must be a yeelding of both sides, if ever there be a sound peace. But you say, both sides are stout, who shall begin? I answere, what anaileth anger without strength to beare it out? What is stercenesse of spirit without wisedome of heart? but even a scoles bolt against himselfe. And to such a one may not the saying of Archidamus to his sonne, being too foole-hardie, be as filly applied as a glone to a mans hand : Sonne, fonne, either put too more strength, or take away fome of this courage : Tou cannot be ignorant that when Herod intended to make warre against the Tyrians and Sydonians, how they came all with one accord, and persuaded Blattus the Kings Chamberlaine that they might line in peace, or elfe they should all of them be starued, Act. 12. 20. Take heede you come not to this when it 50 is too late. Are you so well able to live of your selves in Holland, that you have no need of your neighbour countrey England ! Are you so high about the waters , that the sluces of heaven cannot drowne you? Or are the Seas fo low beneath your Netherlands, that you feare no deluge? Shebna the Trea-Surer, was he not as surely seated as your Grave is in Holland ? or the greatest amongst you here in the Indies, even Coen himselfe? and yet was he not toffed up and downe as a foote-ball in a strange countrey? and were not the Chariots of his glory the frame of his Lords house? Esay 22.18. But I have runne my felfe a little beyond that I intended, and now to recover my breath, by thefe lines I promife, and by word and deed will, God willing, with faile and care labour to bring to passe, that we may line as friends and neighbours both here and at home. Thus I have returned you an answere to that you desire, and looke that both of vs should doe our best endeanour for the good of our present Fleets, and of such as 60 hereafter may line to bleffe us. From our Royall lames riding neere to Bant on Rode, this 20. of A-

Your louing brother Patricke Copland.

From aboard the Bee in the Rode of Jacquatra on the Coaft of Jaua; the fine and twentieth of February. 1620.

Veufi the second 1619 our ship and goods were taken by the Flemings in the Brait of Sunda neere Ships taken by A Vgust the second 1619 our ship and goods were taken by the Flemings in the strait of Sunda neere Ships taken by Bantam, and set ashore at lacquatra. September the eight 1619, the Flemings dispersed us the tiollanders Bantam, and fer affore at lacquatra. September the ergor 1019, for a coming susperfeated into their first, and on the coast of Sumatra the first of October 1619, they took four other English at Banda Because the Coast of October 1619. the over pup, and the Bears, the Expedition, and the Role. And on the fecond of October they had taken the turned vs all assore at Tecoo amongst the Indians, where our Merchants had no trade, but for eight Sman, the Sadayes. We were then three hundred seuentic and odde men, all or the most part undone. About sisteene lomon, the Atno men were killed in fight. They left us the little Role to shift for our selmes.

The three & twentieth of October, 1619. there came into the Roade out of England three other hips, the kept the De-Paligrane, the Elizabeth, and the Merchants hope. From Tecoo me fayled too and fro, and at length gittine knines came to anchor at an Iland called Amyrican, where we had fresh water and some fish, but is no place of betrayed to trade nor is there any man that knoweth of anything that growes upon it. The people are thought to bee them: Likemencaters. After this we returned backe for Tecoo, or neere the same twenty nine of lanuary 1619. we will the Speedneeneaters. After this we returned backe for 1 ecco, O neere the fame twenty nine of tanuary 1019, we met with Finalle met with Generall Pring in the Royall lames, and his whole fact of lings, in number nine. All the fact, they are reporbeing then tweller goodly stips, were resolved to faile for Bantam; and in sight of two Flemish stips, which ted to have me pur posed to take) Captaine Adams in the Ship called the Bull, together with one of the Flemish Ships entred and tacame up with newes of peace. We then failed for lacatra, where by the way met us feuenteen faile of good- ken out the 20 If Flemmith shops, with whom (had not the peace then come) we must have fought it out. But peace be into then concluded herwent the Flemmings and year Foolish Fellowing me according to the wing only three ing then concluded betweene the Flemmings and vs, our English Fastorie was againe settled as Jacatra; ignorant Blacks and the Sips divided Some for one place, some for another.

The fixe and twentieth of Aprill 1620, the Royall Iames, and a ship of some eight hundred Tunnes, of with shill, called the Vnicorne, set faile for lapan, the distance neere about a cleuen hundred leagues. The second suffered her of lune 1620. The Vnicorne was cast away on the coast of China, neere a certaine Iland called the Ma- to be lost : the of the 1020.102 v medicine was some many to the which, and all the men were fauch; for they ran fine would not the lin neere the shore. Most part of all their goods they lost. As we failed for Iapan at a place called strike to the Patanie, we beard of Captaine Iordayne, who being there with two lops , called the Hound , and the Dutch, plea-Samson, there came into the Rode and fought with them three Flemish Sips: Captaine Iordayne was ding treedom 30 flaine in that fight, and the Flummings tooke both their stippes. The semententh of December 1620, in sea, as sub-The great lames being well trimmed at a place called Firando in Iapan, came away from thence: and king. The the fourteenth of Ianuarie 1620. we arrived safely at Iacatra, where she is now loaden for England. The ships that since my comming from England, have beene taken and lost, are the Sunne, cast away ken in the neere Bantam; the Starre, taken neere Bantam; the Dragon, the Beare, the Expedition, and the fraitef Sanda. Rose, taken at Tecoo; the Hound and the Samson taken at Patany; the Vnicome cast away on formance the coast of China; two or three other ships taken and lost at the Moluccas. Men of good command, dead, are, Captaine Parker of Plymmouth, Sir Thomas Dale, Captaine Icr- tweluc.

dayne killed at Patany, Captaine Bonner killed at Tecoo while we were at Iapan. The Flemmings yeelded up againe the Starre to the English, and she is gone to the Moluccas.

Thomas Knowles.

CHAP. XII.

The Hollanders Declaration of the affaires of the East Indies : faithfully tranflated according to the Dutch Copy, Printed at Amsterdam, 1622. Written in answere to the former reports, touching wrongs done to the English. And an answere written by certaine Mariners lately published: with Depositions further opening the iniquity and crueltie of the Dutch.

ò. I.

A true Relation of that which paffed in the Ilands of Banda, in the East Indies, in theyeere of our Lord God 1621. And before printed at Amsterdam 1622.

PSASS Like llands of Banda from the tenth of August 1609. by a special treaty and agreement made with the trankaves, or Magistrates of the forefaid Hands, were put under the protection of the high and mighty, the States generall of the united Provinces, on condition to defend them from the Portugall, and other their Enemies , provided that they of the faid llands, are bound to deliner unto the Fort called Nassau, or unto the Committees of the faid Company, all their fruits or pices at a certaine price, and so forth, as by the said treaty of agreement more at large appearetb. These articles of agreement being for a time by them performed, were afterward broken and violated, as well in keeting backe, and with holding the faid fruns and frices, which they were tred to deliner to the Netherlands Company; as also enforcing and robbing their Ware-bouses, and contrary to solcime treaty and promise; murthering at sundry times and places, divers of the principall Officers, Comnuttees, and Sernants of the faid Netherlands Company, in taking away disers final Shippe prosifion, their open incading of the places and Countries, withflood also lately under the subjection of the High and Mightie the States generall, and in conquering the inhabitants thereof, whom with a strong hand they forced from being (bristians to become Moores againe, or those which with food or gaine-said them. they fold as Slanes, and in committing all kind of peruerfe wickednesse and trechery: during which passages and doings, there was againe certaine contracts on the afore fand conditions agreed opon, with the fain Bandanetes, as in May, in the yeere 1616. by one of the Netherlands Commanders called Lam, and by their Gouernour General! Laurence Reall, in the yeere 1617, which indeed were stortly after broken and violated by the Bandaneles, and that through the animating by the English, who did openly ayde and affirst the foresaid Ilands, and maintained them in warrage, the Netherlands Company with vielyals, and Munition, great Ordnance, Men and Ships, thereby to with-hold from vs the fruits and spices, which the Bandaneles were tyed to deliner. In this wilfulnesse the Bandaneses continued, till in lune 1620. Till that at Iacatra was published both amongst the English and the Netherlands Fleet, then riding there in the Road : the treaty concluded and agreed opon, betweene his most excellent Maustie, the King of great Britaine, and the High and Mighty Lords the States general, for to reconcile upon cer- 20 taine conditions, the English and Netherlands East India Companies.

688

The which Treay, and by conference of handling concerning the Molisceaes, Amboyna, and Banda, all disflutes and difference between the English and the Nechterlands Company concerning the same, were so that, time abolished, and a general force of shapper of Warre was ordained between the for the desired of the companies in their rights, and the commerce which they had obtained in the Inlies.

The Reduction of the wilfull Bandanes's onto the Netherlands Campe, was hindred a yeere or two, (librough the all nal proceeding which the English in Banda is selfe, since the yeer 1616 and afterwards in the yeers 1618. About the oeast of Ilau, and whole India through) by open hossistive did attempt; whereby the asors since the constant of the control of the control of the sound of the whole who whole yee the control of the asors of the whole of the control of the co

In regard of those momenteness, a stort he publication of the contrast that mas made, the Generall of the Netherland Company, in the common Counced for defence, (consssing of Englishmen, and Netterlanders) prop unded the necessity of the taking of Banda, as a slotter rearrising and assuring of those Quarters, and of the trade in Amboyn and Molticeaes, to the white bend, shot the Composite according to the contrast were lound together, to off all the force and power that he could for the refrequency of the face, as much as concerned the trade, for both the Composite. And it appeared by the Ast make is toole of the slat Council for defence, bearing date the first of amount 1011. It this nount, that the English Committees there declared, that the necessities of the business was well known wate them; they matted both power and measure of men and ships, that they could not for that time family any thing to-marked best fame: Where upon, the Necherlands Composin Sourceas General declared, that wish the printershap power of the Necherlands Composin, he would take the same in hand, and effect it in such manner, as God

Bould be pleased to prosper his proceedings.

And it that end spon the l'rient of lanuary, the Governous Generall went from Jacatta to AmJohna, where he writed upon the fourteenth of February and from thence went to Banda, to the Casile of Nailwey fring in the Hand Neto, spon the sene and inventeth of February 1621. In the meane time, one of the English Complish of defence, that had beene at lacatta you to he sigh of January 1621 and that prus to the control made, lying then in Amboyna, when the Governous Generallment from thence to Banda; sint Letters in one more obserts to the English men, sing in the small Hand Polatoon, and made kemme and assented that of Banda; in what manner the Generall of the Netherland Coopary, intended to assist the great I land of Banda; in what manner the General of the Netherland Coopary, intended to assist the standay Banda, with some present of the standay of Nailwe in Banda, he windersood that the Insplithmen in Polatoon, shad added them of the Fort of Nailwe in Banda, he windersood that the Insplithmen of Notono, shad added them of the Towns of Lautone in the great I land of Banda, with some Pecces of great Ordanees; and that if they had had lonof trime, that the currance of the General lot the Netherlands Army into 1 antonees, essible the bad had lonof trime, that the currance of the General lot the Netherlands Army into 1 antonees, essible the for Banda, ours, and (according to the contral) their enemies, but had Generall sequicative sind Englishmen of Lancore to lease the Towns, for the easyles and reasons afore said, as also for that they themselves, according to the Contrail and Order made by the Consolid of Desence, before that town might not buy any Frest in Mollouces, Amboina, and Banda, as after the publication of the Contrail teey may doe, and that onely together, and in common places with the Netherlanders, yet some from the though them of Banda our common nemnes. Nowahlshanding also that the Concrosor general protested, that he was not before to be before, if y that means any now were done unto them, being among and with our common elements, from whom they should and ought to have sparted themselfied.

CH AP.12. S, 1.

First, the Concrovary generall determined to algorithm to the content to the South fide, (by Gonerous general determined algorithm to the south fide, (by Gone called Lanctore, because the principal Terms who called hy land in a place called Luchny, and to the tends to the traction of the theory, and to the tends to that the land to the the the that to anchor the readoust, which has not long there but it must love at hy an English Peece of Ordanice, whereby our men were forced to tou the fail hip with a Galley from the flower, and to lease two Acchors and two Cables behind them, or elfe it had been in great danger of finking or owning, our men alforning vs. that are English Common that flower is the porfessly deferred and faw him, although the Englishmen Jeens to dense it.

Whereby altering of their first purpose, the Generall of the Netherlanders resolved to land upon the ismard part of the lland of Banda, there to encamp: themselues, and then to goe up upon the Hills, and there to plant their Ordnance, and to that end upon the eighth of March, 16a1. landed with sentence Companies betweene Comber and Ortatten, they marched along the shoareside, within the reach of three Peeces of great Ordnance lent then by the Englishmen, and not long before planted there, whereby if they had marched forward many of our men had beene flaine, and so wee should have found no place 20 there to encamp our felues, but the Enemie from the Hills would have domineered ouer vs, no man knowing what consolid to quiet, where you earning in our or you to be Hills. The way whereon about three years to be jore wee had been, being all intrenched, whereupon the General determined to enter agains into his spin with the whole Armie, to take another course. They of Banda not once pursuing after or, but with flowing and mocking let us goe, and so thinking thereby, that they had gotten the upper hand of us, most part of them brought their wines and children againe into Lancore. After thefe two enterprizes, parts ly hindred by the English Ordnance, were in that manner crost. The Generall, for a third resolution, determined to assayle the great Iland of Banda on both sides, that is, on the inner side of the Land with fixe Companies, and on the South fide with ten Companies. That they on the inner fide foould land an house before the others should land, by that meanes to draw the Enemie forth, and so to make place on the other side, while a Companie of chosen men should land on the North side, to climbe up upon the 30 Hills, and others in other places of the Land should also bee in a readinesse, being three hundred and thirtie persons, whereof one hundred and sistie were Musketiers, appointed for the manning and assuring of thirtie boats, which the faid Companie would bring on the South side of the Iland.

This was effected upon the eleventh of March, and accordingly fixe Companies by breake of day, went and and betweene Comber and Orzatten. Captame Voghel with certaine chofen Smildiers merching formard, who climbing to upon the Hill, found face brifflance, that their powder being flower, they were in great danger to be floyled, but being well followed and feconded by the rell, the Enomie was forced to retire: and while this sixtypile continued, the other ten Companies Landing ont of the faid thin its boats, went on shoare upon the South fide of Bania, in a small Bar, some with Ladlers, and others without any resistance but onely shop their gotten up, by marched to the datesfide of Lantone without any resistance, but onely shop that ex upon the first Trapes, being formet on remaine Mussel South fide by the faid ten Companies, while the other shae Companies strongled with those of Banial opon the Hill, and as some as Lantone was taken, those of Madians; Luchny, Oreaten, and Samurit, presents for look of the Trapes in the fail than the when they of Banda san ten deposited three boats, they thought we would have sayled round about the Lund, as wee bud done three times before, wheremon making no reckning of our landing, they were clouding supervised three the other states of the first of the street of signal three the street  of the street of signal threet
At Jone as Lintore with the reit of the places afrocfal were won, the reit of them of Banda, amnely Slamma, Comber, Owendenctr, Wayer, and toofe of the flands of Rolinging, and Poolarone, make composition with vs., which we granted upon condition, that they louded breake downe thin 50 Forts and Walls, and give vs their bobs. Peeces and Muslest, occ. Which by them being done, all of them together, according to their Contrail and promifes, seelded to hold their Committee and Lands; they flowed be commanded, and acknowledge the faul Lords the general States of the vinted Nechetland Provinces, promifing to dow what flower to flowed the faul Lords the general States for their Souraignes, normalish and their former Oaks states with any others.

They eff. Lancore and others being first our come and vanquilled, and that fased them felses among others of Banda, if a sized pardon and fought for Peace, which was granted wns them vyou the condition afvelful, though they have the last, and were commanded by the Ger alter flow them fless all together upon the Strand, that they might be appointed for some most commented the to the as follow the Citizens freet, together, without the loft of their sould which they then bad. Whereventa some of them obeyed, but the greatest part side upon the high Monntaines in the great lland of Banda, to whom also many other Tomes reforced, and some a Necherland Merchant, one other, and aboy, where they were enclished and bracked from without by the will be the contractions of the most of the sould be the sould be the sould be the sould be a few them.

CHAP. 12. S.2.

By this meanes all the Townes and Places in Banda were won, and made fure, onely Poolaroone, which was not medicid withfully because they of Banda therem behaved themselies; paccashy, for the eyels, or rathers the frames of these for Poolaroone. The Englithmen planted nine Peeces of Ordinace upon a familiard in Poolaroone, dualing untrembed the same: and when these of Poolaroone, according to the composition, were to peed up beine Ameri, and distance themselies, as they willingly did; yet one of the composition, were to peed up beine Ameri, and distance themselies, as the prilingly did; yet one of the composition were to peed up their Ameri, and distance themselies, as the prilingly did; yet one of the composition which is the peed of the p

The English Commander, Humfrey Fitz-Herbert, with his loop called the Exchange, home before the Caffle of Amboins, and having intelligence of the General of the Netherlands willorie in Banda, 10 the off fourteent Peeces of Ordinace for log thereof.

This what is formerly declared, is the true state and proceedings of that, which hash beene done now lately, and before in the Island of Banda, wherein nothing hash beene done, but that which succording to the Lang of Nations, and the afterfald Centrall, made, and promised to be sudden, and without your worm done to the Liberties of the English Companie, agreed upon with the Companie of the Netherland might to have beene done.

ò, II.

An Answere to the Hollanders Declaration concerning the occurrents of the East India, contracted sommhat briefer then in the former Impression.

Here was of late two Currents published, bearing date: the one, the eight of Februarie: the other, the eight and twentieth. In these two Currents sundrie, both incredible and intolerable wrongs and gricuances were made knowne, which the Hollanders of the East Indies had initished and enforced youn the English Companie of the East

Indees. Since the printing of these two Currents, the Hollanders have published a Pamphlet, entituled, A declaration of the Affaires of the East Indies. This declaration was published (as by the discourse may appeare) in answere of the two Currents about mentioned, for the whole 30 scope of the declaration tendeth to no other end, but to instifie their owne right in the East Indies, and thereupon to charge the English with wrongs done to them, that thereby the world might be made believe, that whatfoeuer extremities or hard measures they offered to the Englift, they were vrged and prouoked thereunto by the vniust dealing of the English, and the wrongs first offered by them : howsoeuer the English prouoked the Hollanders in India, the Hollanders by this Declaration , doe vrge and prouoke the English to defend themselves against so false and fabulous slanders imposed upon them. Is it not too much that the Hollanders most uniustly oppressed vs in India, but that they must proceed further to slander vs in England. Maio-Ta funt fame & fidei damna, quam que farciri poffunt : The losse of a good name, the losse of trust and credite are losses irrecoverable. But thankes be to Almightie God, who doth alwayes proteet the innocent. This Declaration of the Hollanders intended and published for our otter vndoing and difgrace, offereth vnto vs , in two respects , both hope and helpe , thankes be to Almightie God, who hath converted Hamon his Galhouse intended against Mordocheus , to his owne confusion, like as he hath suffered you to publish a Declaration to cut your owne throats. What could you deuife to write and publish, more opposite to what you intended; more to difgrace your felues, in contincing you of falthood; more to honour, acquit, and cleere the Englife, then this Declaration : All which shall manifestly appeare in the examination of your Declaration, which followeth.

To begin with the very first lines and page; you affirme, That all the Ilands of Banda, from the tents of August, 1609, were by a special Treatie and agreement made with the Orankeyas of the Majstitates of the Ilands, put vnder the protection of the States of the Notherland: how vntrue this is, let all men judge; when as you confife in the latter end of the first page, and in the beginning of the second, were afterward broken and violated; and that the Ilanders with-held their Fruits and Spices, that they enforced and robbed their Ware-hondes, murthered at fundrie times and places, disters of the principal Officers, Committees, and Serunats of the Notherlands companie, taking away their thips and prouison, what could the Follanders say the Ilanders supported an agreement? and what or how could alledge and proue more directly to constince themselves of vntruth them so plainely and largely consessed approached by the Bandanoff a against them: what an agreement could this be, where three was of great an augestion of the Ilanders minds, declared by the hostile deeds which they practiced against the Hellanders; they might perhaps say there was a Treatie, but such hostile practices manisfelly proue there could be no Agreement.

The Hellanders proceed further, from the yeere 1609, to the yeere 1616. where they speake of another Agreement concluded in May, by one of the Netherlanders Commanders called Lam. And another Agreement made by their Gouernour generall called Reall , in the yeere 1617. which they confesse were both shortly after broken by the Bandaneses : but how : Heere commeth in the maine matter; The Bandane fer rebelled through the animating of the English, who did openly ayde and affift them with Victuals, Munition , great Ordnance, Men, and Ships. It were necessarie that the Hollanders should fet down the causes which moved the English to joyne fo farre with the Bandanefes, for the causes doe either lessen or aggravate the charge imposed vpon the English : they must either say, the English ayded the Bandaneses directly against the Hollanders without further respect, which they cannot proue; or they must alledge, which them-10 felues in their Declaration doe proue, that the English did endeauor to defend them with whom they had free trade and trafficke; who louingly and with free confent fold to the English their Spices, &c. who put themselves vnder the protection of the English; who yeelded the Ilands of Poolanay, Poolaroone, and Lantore, under the obeyfance of the King of England: which if they would they cannot denie, for they confesse that the English had mounted Ordnance vpon all thefe Ilands: why should the English plant their Ordnance vpon thefe Ilands, but to defend their Right; how could the English plant their Ordnance vpon the llands, but with free confent of the Bandanefes; at what time did the English plant their Ordnance in these Ilands of Banda? The Hollanders confesse, before they came to the Ilands; for they found them in the Ilands: now, where is the wrong that the English have done the Hollanders? and in what? be-20 cause the English did hinder the agreements so often made betwixt the Hollanders and the Bandaneses, why for eleuen yeeres the Hollanders confesse there was never any, as in the third page they fay : In this wilfulneffe did the Bandanefes continue till in lune , 1620. Thus hitherto it is plainly acknowledged, the Hollanders never had any landing, any Castle or Fort, any trading in the llands of Banda, but what was gotten by force and absolute constraint : If the Hollanders could proue fo much for themselves, as they doe for the English; the English then might have blushed for shame. In all this time that the Hollanders maintayned hostilitie with the Bandane. fes, there is no mention made, that the Bandanefes euer offered any opposition against the Eng. lift, or once denied them their Spices', but that they had trade and trafficke with them freely and friendly: now, if consent and prescription of time be the best claime the Hollanders would 30 haue for the Hands of Banda, why the Englishmen goe farre beyond them; the Bandanefes did neuer violate any agreement made with the English; they neuer kept any pretended agreement made with the Hollanders; the Englishmen in cleuen yeeres were neuer expelled; the Hollanders in all that time were neuer entertayned, but in all hostile manner; the Englishmen had offer at all times of Nutmegs and Mace ; to had the Hollanders neuer at any time, but what they got by violence and compulsion; all which is acknowledged in the third page, and the beginning of the fourth. We passe ouer many acknowledgements and confessions of the Hollanders, because they all tend but to two ends; to inflifie themselves, and condemne the English; and because there is sufficient observation given, that in instifying themselves, they disgrace themselves; and in practifing to diffrace the English, they doe them great honour. Butto deale plainely and truely, 40 not to abuse the world with vntruths, nor to wrong the Hollanders without cause, we doe confefle; The Bandaneses made one famous agreement with the Hollanders, which we well remember, euen in that yeere in which they report they had made agreement with the Bandanefes. In June, 1609. after they had by force taken from them a Towne called Nears, and making them flee to the backfide or the Coast, to a place which they called Nasjaw: Van Hoofe the Generall made shew of love and friendship with the Bandaneses; which they perceiving, and desirous to reuenge the wrongs and cruelties offered vnto them by the Hollanders , did diffemble their intents, entertayning Van Hoofe with vaine hopes , promifing him to come to some agreement ; by which meanes they drew Van Hoofe with threefcore or more of his Commanders and Souldiours, vnto a place in which the Bandanefer had advantage. Now instead of agreement, in warso like manner they fet vpon Van Hoofe, and flew him and almost his Companie. This is the best agreement that wee euer knew or heard the Bandaneses euer made with the Hollanders, during eleuen or twelue yeeres. Presently after this, in July after, Captaine Bitter who among all the Commanders escaped, when Van Hoofe was slaine, attempted to surprize another Towne called Slamma; he was fought withall by the Bandanefes, and wounded in the thigh, of which wound he shortly died.

Where is now any wrong which the English hath done the Hollanders, except it bee a wrong to maintaine them, who with free and generall consent put themselves under the protection of the King of England? or a wrong to defend them, who willingly traffick and trade with the English; or a wrong to maintaine that right which the Hollanders acknowledge the English land of Banda: These beeall the wrongs which the Hollanders doe or can charge the English with all.

But now on the other fide, what extreme wrongs doe the English charge upon the Hollanders? In two Currents printed the eight of Februarie, and the twentie eight, 1612, the Hollanders are charged with most barbarous and inhumane wrongs done to the English, all which they passe oner in their Declaration without any answere at all, whereby in silence they cannot but pleade guiltie : to confesse them they are ashamed, and to denie them they cannot, but in their accustomed pollicie they seeke to awoyd them by way of infinuation, that the English deferaed them in ayding and affifting the Bandanefes against them.

" Vnderstand the pages as they lie in the former impression.

693

There were two Orators of Athens very great and inward friends, before the Judges; the one did accule, the other defend a Magistrate of Athens, whereupon the one Orator did challenge the other that he had dealt very vikindly with him to defend his mortall enemie; and thou as vnkingly with me, quoth the other, to accule my decreft friend.

This is just the like ch llenge betwixt the Hollanders and the English: Why doe you far the Hollanders defend our greatest enemies : And why doe you say the English oppose against our 10 deerest friends? Yet in this challenge there is a difference: for the English have more cause to defend their friends, then the Hollanders have cause to oppose against their enemies; Englishmen have a right by confent, Hollanders have nothing but by conftraint. Iust defence is more honest and honourable then vniust opposition is, either by Lawes of Gon or man warrantable.

To proceed on with the cruell and inhumane wrongs, done by the Hollanders to the English, by so much more barbarous and inhumane, by how much the English of all Nations in the world, did least deserue it. What, deserue any hard measures from the Hollanders? To what Nation vnder the Coape of Heauen, are they so much bound as to the English Who hath fostered and nurfed them vp to this greatnesse, but the English? What Nation hath shed so much bloud, loss the liues of to many gallant Captaines, Commanders , and Souldiers , to ayde and defend them as 20 the English?

What Nation hath lent them, and spent upon them so much money and treasure, as the Englift, have done, when they were in their extremest weaknesse and povertie! When, and where did the English euer fayle them? If for these causes, the English have deserved at the Hollanders hands, to have their thips taken, and made prize, their goods confifcate, and converted to their owne vies : their Captaines , Souldiers , Factors , and Mariners , taken prisoners , held in miserable feruitude, clogged with yrons, kept in flockes, bound hand and foot, tied to flakes, haling and pulling them with ropes about their neckes, fourning them like dogs, throwing them headlong downer rockes and chitts, killing, murthering, starting, and pining them to death, enfor-cing them to carrie lime and stone for their buildings. Landing them amongst the Pagan people, without all prouision whatfoeuer, exposing them to the mercie of Miscreants, of whom notwithstanding they found better viage then of the Hollanders. When as the Hollanders robbed and spoyled other Nations under the English Colours , pretending (to disgrace the English) that they were Englishmen, counterfeiting the Coyne of other Nations, charging the English with the same. Laying the English whom they held as prisoners about hatches, where the Sunne scorched them in the day, and where their ordures and piffe fell vpon them in the night, till they grew more lothfome and filthie then Lepers, barring the English, as much as in them lay, from all commerce and trade in the Indies. As all these particulars are directly to be proued by men yet huing, who either indured, or their eyes faw what is here reported, and will be readie vpon all occations, either with their liues or oathes to inflifie for truth , what they have in- 40 dured, and what they have seene with their eyes.

Let all the world judge, whether Englishmen have deserved these vsages at the Hollanders hands: Whereas some people either affected to the Hollanders, or thinking it too strange and monstrous, that Christians should domineere over Christians with such inhumane and barbarous cruelty, rather tyrannie, except the English bad prouoked them heavily thereunto.

Let all fuch who harbour any fuch conceits, read and confider what is before answered to fuch objections: the Hollanders in their Declaration being charged in the two first Currents, with many of these extreme wrongs inflicted upon the English, they make no deniall of them: make a challenge that the English did ayde and affift the Bardaneses against them; it hath formerly beene alleaged, and tifficiently proued, by their owne confession, that the English did not 50 maintaine the Ilanders, by way of oppoling the Hollanders; but they did as much as in them lay, to defend the right of the King of England, they did defend that right which they had by consent; they did defend that People, who did to freely and friendly trade and trafficke with them; other causes then their so honest, so iust, agreeing with the Lawes of GoD, of Nature, and Nations, they neither doe nor can alledge any.

Some other inconsiderate people, who enuie the prosperitie of the East Indian Merchants will further fay, to close with the Hollanders , that these extremities were offered in India onely, and no where else to the English; for proofe of the contrarie, wee of the East Indian Companie doe challenge all the Merchants which trauaile or trafficke East, West, North, or South, to deliver their knowledge, what indignities they have indured from the Hollanders, in 60 Turkey, in the Straights, in Mulconie, in Greynland, at New-found, and where not: so that not onely the East Indian Companie hath onely cause to complaine: yea, they wrong Englishmen in their owne Seas at home, as is generally knowne. Now, because Hollanders may fay, that they are charged with generalities without particular inflances; generall speeches being a common cause to aggravate causes, and be avoyded except the Generall bee proved by particulars, because they shall find that we cannot want of particulars out of infinite, there shall bee here following deliuered, fome by men yet liuing, who have both feene them, and endured

Relations and Depositions touching the Hollanders brutish and cruell vsage of the English.

SON the Roade of Patany in the East Indies, the seventeenth of July, 1619 the two hips called the Samfor and the Hound, riding there at Anchor, three thips of the Netherland: fet yporthem with might and mayne, after fue houres fight, eleuen of the men in the Samfor were flaine out-right, and fue and thirtie men of the lame ship were wounded, may med and dismembred, at this time Captaine Iordan was Captaine of the Samson, and did hang vp a flagge of Truce, and withall sent Thomas Hackwell. Master of the Samson to the Netherlanders to parlee about a peace.

The Examination of Thomas Hackwell, the fine and twentieth of Ianuary, 1621.

Thomas Hackwell being sworne and examined upon certaine Articles ministred on the behalfe of the Right Worshipfull, the English Company of Mer-. chants, trading to the East India aforefaid, faith and depofeth thereto, as followeth.

O the first of the faid Articles he faith, & deposeth by charge of his oath, that in the road of O the first of the last Articles in cases, or reported by of July, 1619, Iast past, the Samfor, where Teach India, you the fewer the theoreties to the English Company, were forceof this Examinant was Matter, and the Hound belonging to the English Company, were forceably affaulted by three thips of the Hollanders (viz.) The Angell, the Morning Starre, and the Burgarboate, whereof Hendricke Johnson was Commander, and after fine Glasses fight two houres and a halfe, eleuen of the faid thip the Samfon, her men beeing, flaine out-right, fine different bred, and about thirtie otherwise wounded, Captaine Iordane being then in the said thip, the Samson, and Commander of her, caused a flagge of truce to be hung out; and sent this Examinant in the Samfons Boate aboord the Flemmings, to treate with them for a peace, and at the hanging out of the said slagge of truce, and when this Examinant left the said Captaine lordane to goe aboord the Flemmings, he was well; but about halfe an houre after the laid flagge of 40 truce was so hung out, and this Examinant was in parlee with the Flemmings about the faid peace, Captaine lordane not expecting any violence from the Flemmings during the faid parkee, shewed himselfe aboord the Samson before the maine Mast vpon the gratings, where the Flemmings efpying him, most treacherously and cruelly shot at him with a Musket, and shot him into the bodie neere the heart, of which wound hee dyed within halfe an houre after. And this he faith by charge of his Oath.

To the second he faith, That after the faid ships, the Samson and the Hound were surprised by the Hollanders in the faid fight at Patany, as aforefaid, the greatest part of their men, by the command of the Dutch, were brought aboord the Angell their Admirall: and there notwithstanding, divers of them in the faid hight were much burnt with Gun-powder, and wounded with splinters, and thereby surfered miserable torment, yet they the said Dutch most vinchristianly and inhumanely cauled and forced them to put their legges downe through the gratings, and to fe zed them, and tyed them to the Capiten Barres, infomuch that itill as any man had occation to goe and eate him felfe, his legges were fo swelled by reason of the extraordinary hard tying of them, that the Carpenter was alwayes fetched to make bigger the holes, at which they were put downe to get our their legges againe. And this hee faith by charge of his Oath is most true.

To the third he faith, That he knoweth that the Dutch at Iacatra, doe cause all China men, refiding and bartering there, to pay monethly fixe shillings upon a head, or elfe you shall not fell any commoditie there to the English, and this he hath teene divers of China men pay at lacatra.

To the fourth he faith, That vpon the third day of March last was twelve moneth, abourd 60 the new Zealand then riding in Bantam Roade, this Examinant, with three or four others, did heare one Clase Derickson, then upper stearsman of the Dutch ship called the Southern-Indraright iay, that the States in Holland had beene plotting that Warre betweene the English and the Dutch in the Indie feuen yeares before.

To this last Article is witnesse.

Thomas Hackwell. William Shaples. Henry Backtafell. Bartholomen Churchman. Anthony Piccot.

The Deposition of Bartholomew Churchman.

I doe affirme, that they have many times termed vs flaves to the King of Holland, and that we should all be sent to the Moluccus to rowe in their Gallies, and so bee kept bond-flaues vnder them during our lives.

More I affirme, that they have kept twelve of vs in a Dungeon at Pooloway, and foure and twentie at Ambona, by the command of Laurence Riall then Generall, but now returned into Holland, where they pilt and ( ) vpon our heads, and in this manner we lay, vntill fuch time as we were broken out from top to toe like Leapers, having nothing to eat but durtie Rice, and stinking raine-water, infomuch as if it had not beene for a Durch woman, named Mistris Cane, and some poore Blackes that brought vs a little fruit, we had all starued in that place, as many of our Company did, belides the extremitie which they vied to many others which they had in Prison at other Ilands wher they perished, leaving their Wives and Children heere in England readie to farue for want of maintenance.

The names of the ten men which lay in Pooloway, are thefe:

Bartholomew Churchman. Iacob Lane. Kellam Throgmorton. Matthew Willia. William Burris. Cassarian Danid. George lackson. George Pettice. Walter Stacy. Richard Phillips.

At Amboyna, Richard Swanley, William Brookes, and swelue more, whose names I well know not, nor cannot remember, put into a Dungeon, with fortie Indians all in a hole, having no place to eate them felues. Bartholomen Churchman

The last of October, 1 6 1 7. Iohn Tucker firmeth : That the Dutchmen tooke the Dragon, the Expedition, the Beare, and the Rofe, and delivered onely the Rofe, and that there being in the Dragon a Present from the King of Achen for the King of England, called by them a Creeze, (that is to fay) a Dagger, which they doe detayne to this houre.

This is true, I vn der-written doe affirme, and testifie that it was not done by base Rogues (as they terme it) but some of the principall Commanders.

After the taking of these ships, there were about three hundred and fiftie men set out of the foure thips which were on thouse, exposed vnto the mercie of the Indians, where they found more courtesie then of the Hollanders, otherwise they had all perished.

That all these abuses, and many more which wee haue formerly received by them, are true. we will maintayne upon our oathes, and with our lines against any of their Nation, or others that that gain-fay this truth. Yet notwithflanding all this being (by the goodnesse of Almightie Goa) returned into our owne Country, we have no fatisfaction for these intollerable injuries, nor any confideration for two thirds of our wages most barbarously kept from vs.

Articles of abuses done by the Hollanders at the Iland of Moluccas, and other places of the East Indies, aswell against our Soueraigne Lord the Kings Maiestie; as also against Us, and other Englishmen, since the yeare of our Lord 1616. not only before the Peace, but also since, untill the moneth of March 1620. that we came out of the Indies, in the good Ship called the lames.

The fecond day of the mone: hof February, in the yeare of the Lord, 1616, the Smanne was 50 furprized and taken by the Hollanders, at the llands of Banda, and her men kept Prifoners till the eight and twentieth of Aprill following. At which time the Hollanders carryed fine and twentie of the English to the Moluccas , where they were very hardly and inhumanely vied, being fettered and shackelied in the day time, and close locked up a nights. And from the moneth of May, vntill the end of September, they were compelled to carrie flone and lime for the building of Forts there; which if any refused to doe, they were kept in Stockes and Irons till they would worke; and were notwithstanding also very hardly vsed for their victuals, infomuch that the one halfe of them dyed through their hard viage.

When we were first taken, we were possessed of divers goods, provisions and meanes, wherewith to relieue our felues , which they prefently tooke from vs , and left vs not fo much as wherewith to couer our bodies.

Whereof when we complayned to Iohn Ellias, who was Lieutenant to one Garret Derickson in the Trom, hoping that he would have had fome commiferation of our miferies, and long lying in Irons, bad viage for want of meate, drinke, lodging, and other things: The taid Ellias and CHAP.12. S.3. Most horrible and barbarous impietie of Christians.

therest of his Company did thereupon, and many other times say vinto vs., That hee cared not Here divers for vs, nor for any of our Countreymen; and that if they should take vs and hang vs vp, wee words a cohad our deferts : Yea, they vied other groffe and bate speeches, not fit to be spoken off. We affirme, that the faid Iohn Ellias and his Companie faid, that they had little need of Eng. of others of listmen; for they in Holland were able of a sudden to make and furnish twentie source thousand of Daish Dinke, flat-bottomd Boates, fuch as Parma would have landed vpon the English sheare in eightie eight. And also said, that they had of their owne Nation and Countreymen, at the least tortie thoufand ftrong in England, that prefently, vpon the least occasion, would rife in Armes, and bend their forces speedily agairff vs in our owne Countrey.

10 We affirme, that Laurence Riall, who was their Generall, caused Grates and Cages to bee made in their ship, and did put vs therein, and carryed vs in them bound in Irons from Portto Port amongst the Indians, and thus in scornfull and deriding manner and fort spake vnto the Indians as followeth: Behold and see, heere is the people of that Nation, whose King you care so much for. But now you may hereby plainly behold how kindly wee vie his Subjects; making them beleeve that Englishmen were their Vasfals and Slaves,

Besides all this, they kept many of vs fast bound and fettered in Irons, in most loathsome and darke stinking Dungeons, and gaue vs no sustenance, but a little durrie Rice to eate, and a little flinking raine-water to drinke. So that many of our English fainting in their fights, for want of competent fustenance or other lodging at their hands: for want whereof many dyed, who were fetcht out of the Dungeons, and to basely buried, more like Dogges then Christians.

About the fift of May, in the yeare of our Lord 1619, we having over-passed many hungrie dayes, and cold nights Lodging, in cold Irons and darke Dungeons, and thinking it not pollibly able for vs to endure those mileries any longer, made meanes that some of vs came to lohn Peter Socoma, their Generall that now is, and defired his Lordship (which Title hee duly lookes for in the East Indies) that he would consider of our extreame wants and miseries, and helpe vs to some better sustenance. And further we defired him, that he would be so much our friend, as to ease vs of our Irons but for the day time : Whereupon the faid Generall most wickedly replyed with bale speeches, and bade vs bee gone, and trouble him no more; for if wee did, hee would cause vs ail to be hanged speedily. So that we were forced to returne from whence wee came with heavie hearts, having no hope but in the Almightie, to whom wee prayed to turne their hearts, and to releafe vs of our mileries.

Vpon the thirteenth of May, in the yeare of our Lord 1619. the Dutch went ashoare at Iapara; and there they wickedly and maliciously burnt downe the Towne and the English House Lapte, the cruthere, and from thence forcibly tooke away the English Flagge, and in great distance of our elicthere. Countrey trayled our Flagge after them in the dirt through the Towne, and towed it abourd their ship at their Boats sterne; but what they did with it afterwards, we know not.

Vpon the eighteenth day of the moneth of November, and in the yeare of our Lord God, 1619. they tooke one Bartholomew Churchman, and clapt him vp in Irons, and fet him where he fate in the raine and cold stormes of the night, and in the day time where the hot Sunnesshone vpon him, and fcorched him, without any shelter at all : and this they did to him, only hecause hee strucke a base fellow that spake such words against our late Queene Annes Maiestie, as 40 are not fit to be repeated : which words, as also divers other which they spake against our dread Soueraigne, we dare not relate, as being too odious to be vied in a subjects mouth touching his Prince : Howbeit, might licence and freedome of speech bee granted vs, to make knowne the base slanderous and detracting speeches of that Nation against our King and Country, that wee might not incurre any danger of his Maiesties displeasure by the repeating them, it would steffciently make knowne the pride and crueltie of that people, who did not then let to fay that they made no account of our King, nor any of his fabreets. The seuenteenth day of the moneth of March, and in the yeare of our Lord God eucrlasting, 1619. their Gouernour of the Moluccas gave order for the release of the English there , and appointed thirtie of them to be carried to Ambojnas, from thence to be fent into England or Hol. Ambojnas 10 land. But the Gouernour of Ambaynas, perceiuing them to bee arrived, hee veterly refuled to cruelic. discharge them, and forced them to serve in their three ships, that went to the Mancless as men of warre, which if any refused to doe, they were to rowe in their Gallies chained like vnto flaues; in which Voyage to the Manelees, fourteene of our men went in the Saint Michael, which were loft, and never fince heard on, whose names doe follow: Geroge Trigges, John Edwards, Iames Welch, John Crocket, William Nichols, Robert Gilbert, Matthew Gilbert, Giles Lipfcombe, Arthur Tap, Edward Parker, William Vefe, John King, John Ouer, and William Smith Chi-

We affirme, that they having Arrian Ellis, Edward Reade, and William Powell, three English. 60 men Prifoners, in their thip called the Bantam, they chained them in Irons, and layed them in the Beake-head, straitly prohibiting all others to come neere them, to give them any other food then their allowance, which was so small that meere hunger compelled those three Prisoners to throw the Dice who should cut each others throat; and so they did throw the Dice to that end, but were disclosed before any of them were slaine, so that they were thereupon sun-

LIB.V.

They have taken our men, and without any cause have stripped and whipped them openly in the Market place; they have also beaten vp their Drumme, and called the Blackes together

They will not suffer vs to weare or spread in our English houses, in those parts where they hatte any command, any Colours that are our Kings Colours.

The Copie of a Letter sent vnto the Dutch in the East Indies, from their English 10 Captines at the Iland of Monoboca, the nineteenth day of March, 1618. and delinered vnto Captaine William Iohn on Commander of the Angell.

Onfideration in things of difficultie is requifite: and therefore much requifite in these our enchri-Astian-like miseries. But because this hath beene but sleightly respected, wee are now resolved to tell you of all your perfidiousnesse. First, Grippe go: advantage to surprize our lips, and made a vow not to touch life nor goods in any fort. But fince the contrarie hath beene fo much proved , that Grippe and his confederates are now feene to be for sworne, as shortly after their actions did new in taking away even 20 the fe things, which with their confent we did fane, and bring aboord your flip called the Trow.

At that time we being indungeoned at Pooloway, (besides all the Pagan-like of ge of that cruell man, Laurence Riall) we were by Van Hoofe kept in Juch extreme miserie, with straking water, and Rice halfe full of stones and dot (scarce able to keepe life and soule together) that had not Detricks in van Lam granted the English at Poolaroone free accesse to Pooloway to bring us reliefe, nee had beene all ere this time starned for want. But we passed away that time in expectation of better fortunes, which you have all from time to time promifed: yet now againe our miseries are thrice redoubled, for since we came to this place, you have not onely vied vs most basely in other things, but also have taken away from vs even that poore sustenance, which we bought with our moneys: and this hath beene ao e by that envious man the Master, whom your Commanders doe suffer to be then Commander, rather then their Inferiour. If you consider all his altions, the refreshing which we have bought hath beene but Small , that is to say, foure small Hennes and Cockes, and even them hash the Master taken away, and eaten them in the great Cabbin, which dealing of his, if it be Christian-like, we referre it to your owne discretion: and now at last, for a small cause or nothing at all, to be thus handled, is a ten t. mes worse uffile Etion, then ever was inflisted upon us, for to chaine us up like so many Dogs, and to let us lie in the rane and storms of the night, without any shelter, which is also brought to passe by the Master. For (Commander) " we considering your gentlenesse, so that you can dispense with rigour: Therefore that misorie that we indure is not by your meanes, but by the Masters, and theirs that bee of his mind: and this is of a truth, that even your Hogs after their kind, lie a-nights deyer then we after our kind, being Christians: and our griefe is the more, because your men of the Biacke Lion, being taken by our English, were vied the men, and we like abicits of the world, to be thus vied like drys, being Subsets to the Kings Musche of England, and in good restreet with our Employers, But GOD that is about all knowes all and in his good time will remedie all. I hus much we have thought good to certifie onto you, not in the way of increasy, for that we see is vaine, but only that you may know, we now never looke to come al ue out of your hands: for by all manifest appearance, you seeke to take even our lives from vs: and this shall be a true argume t of our grieved hearts, witnessing to all men, how unchristian-like we have beene and are a fed by you for in all this we have not expressed the tenth part of your cruelty; yet we hope, that for this time it justible a sufficient light unto you, for that which hath beene from time to time practifed by you against the English. Ginen at the Iland of Monaboca, the nineteenth of March, 1618.

Subscribed by Callarian David, Bartholomew Churchman, 50 and George Pettys.

Vpon the receit of this Letter, wee three afore-named were layed in yrons for eighteene moneths following, with fuch barbarous viage as is not to bee imagined to bee vied among it

V pon the newes of the taking of our two ships called the Samson and the Hound in Tarania Road, Hendricke lanfon the Commander of three thips, viz. the Angell, the Morning Starre, and the Burger-boat, fent a Letter by the vpper Steref-man of the Starre, (who had but one arme) to their Generall John Peter Sacone then at Jacatra, of the taking of our two thips; He, the faid 60 Sacone then faid, you have now, Hendricke Innfon, given me good fatisfaction, in that Captaine lordagne is dead: and at his returne thither gratified him with fourteene hundred Golders in a chaine of gold, putting it himfelfe about his necke, not leaving any one vinewarded, that had beene at the taking of our two ships, and one hundred Pieces of eight to him that thor him, CHAP.13. Whether the English or Hollander were first cause of breach.

notwithstanding our Flag of truce was hung out. Wee affirme also that the said Generall John Peter Sacone, vpon the newes brought him by a ship called the Hart, from the Coast of Carmandele, of the death of Sir Thomas Dale, then faid ; Dale is dead , and lordaynes blood I have, if I had George Cockins life to, I were then fatisfied.

An Answere to objections made by the Hollanders, that the English were the cause of the first breach in the East Indies.

Hereas the Hollanders affirme that Sir Thomas Dale, and Captaine Iordane were the prime cause of all the differences betwixt the two Companies. This wee affirme and can proone, that both Sir Thomas Dale, and Captaine Iordayne were both in England when the "Se: me flory Defence and the Swan were taken; and also that very inhumanly they tooke the Defence *, when here to be for reliefs being put from their Anchor of Parlament in all and the state of the st for reliefe being put from their Anchor at Poolaroone in a fform, they came into one of their Harbours for fuccour. They tooke the flip, and detayned her men prifoners; likewife in refere, we Syrane 104 following, they tooke a Pinnafie of ours called the Speed-well; going to Iacatra. one of our man coarrows. they flew, and the rest they layed in Irons as prisoners, amongst which one Richard Taylor Carpenter of the faid Pinnaffe, who at that time had the bloody fluxe, who dying in their hands in Irons, they tooke the dead carkaffe of the faid deceafed, and put him into a bush, with his head downward, and his heeles vpward, and faid in most barbarous manner, that there was a 20 Stert-man, (that is, a man with a tayle) with his heeles vpward; and there his carkaile rotted in the bush.

I would demand of them where Sir Thomas Dale, and Captaine Iordayne were, when they tooke the Salomon and the Attendance, it is to be proued, they were then comming out of England, hardly cleere of the Coast, when they tooke both their ships, upon faire terms of Compulition; namely, with promite to give vs our lives, goods, and libertie. They robbed vs of all our goods, and kept vs in lamentable manner in Irons, some of vs three yeers, some more, some leile: in which worull miferie many of our Companie ended their dayes lamentably; for in trueta, they neuer kept any faith, oath, or promife with vs at all, but most proudly, disdainfully, and cruelly demeaned themselves towards vs.

Bartholomew Churchman.

CHAP. XIII.

A pithie Description of the chiefe Ilands of Banda and Moluccas, by Captaine HVMPHREY FITZ-HERBERT in a Letter to the Companie.

Right Worshipfull.

T remaineth that before I leave these Easterne parts, I note vnto you some particulars observed this Voyage in Banda, Amboyna, and the Moluccas: which although I eafily beleeue are well knowne vnto you alreadie, yet as of the letters of the Alphabet well knowne to all men, many vnknowne words be compoled; fo there noted things, either in respect of the time, the matter, or the manner of the delinerie, may bring some thing againe to your necessarie remembrance, to your wife fore-knowledge, or to your further confideration. Leauing laptarra and Maccaffar, I will betake my felte to the barrenest place of the Iles of Banda, that is, to Gonab - Gonabpes one per, at the top yeelding nothing but cinders, fire, and fmoake; on the furface below, woods of the sanda without water or fruit for the full enance of the life of man: neuerthelesse being seuered from burning top. 50 the Hand Nero but by a very small channell, they together with Lantone on the other fide doc make a very faire and spaceous Harbour. This Iland is very subject to Earthquakes, which doe Earthquakes. trouble all other the Hands also, and make the ships in the Road to totter and tremble againe. Since the furprizall of Nero by the Dutch, there being a fearefull Earthquake, the faid Hill One moth. cast forth such hideous flames, fich store of cinders, and huge steames, that it destroyed, burnt, deous and h. rand brake downe all the thicke woods and mightie trees, ouerwhelming them as it were riole. her owne vomiting, to that a greene leafe could not be feene in all that part of the Hand : nor did Nero escape their hellish blasts , which blew these steames and cinders into the Castle and 60 Countrey neere adiopning, in such aboundance, that it inuited all men that saw it to her funerall, burnt up all the fruit trees, and couered all the Countrey about it, and had like to have funke the flips in the road. It is credibly reported by those that saw it, the violence was to great. that it carried flones of three or foure tunnes weight from the one Iland into the other, and into the Road.

A fop for

Mmmm

The

The Castle Nera standeth close on the water-side in the plaine, it is faire, large, and strongly built; but weakely fituate, by reason of the rising of the hill to the landward: within less then Musket that it hath a hillocke higher then it by at the least twentie fathome, which doth command it at pleafure. To preuent which mischiefe, the Dutch have built thereon a small Fort, Caffe weakly but in vain, the fame being under command of another, aswell as the former. The Castle is a mate ter of great charge, both in respect of it selfe, as also in respect of the Souldiers; and altogether vinecessarie, but for dwelling houses and Magazines; the other Fort being great enough, and strong enough for the defence of this place. Here is in this Castle about sortie Peeces of Ordnance; in the other, some eight or ten, the most of brasse. The Dutch have not received the fruit of this Hand fince their comming thither, being alwayes ouer-mattered by the Blacker, both by fea and 10 land: but the gayning of Lantere hath made all things quiet now. I pray Gop make it profi-

Lantore.

Lantore is the greatest and richest Iland of all the Iles of Banda, strong, and almost inaccesfible, as it were a Castle: there is scarce a tree on the iland but beareth fruit. The Bandaneses left it for want of militarie pollicie : but he must have a polliticke pate (I beleeue) that gayneth it againe. The Towne is fituate on the brow of a sharpe hill, the ascent as difficult as by a ladder: while they flood peeuishly to the defence thereof to the Roadwards, the Duch landed with much adoe on the other fide of the Iland, and farprifed them at vnawares. Right ouer the Towne the Dutch have built a Fort on the top of the hill to prevent the like inconveniences, as also to keepe the same in better subjection. It is but small, and while I was there, the 20 foundation scarcely finished. If the English had come thither a moneth or fixe weekes before the Dutch made this spitefull expedition, I dare amough it, they might have neere laden the best ship your Worships haue in India with Nutmegs and Mace from their Ilands.

Pooloway is the Paradice of all the rest, entermitting pleasure with profit. There is not a tree on that Hand but the Nutmeg , and other delicate Fruits of fiperfluitie; and withall, full of pleasant walkes, so that the whole Countrey seemes a contribed Orchard with varieties. They Nonebut rain haue none but raine-water, which they keepe in Iarres and Citternes, or fetch it from the aboutnamed Ilands, which is their onely defect. The fea shoare is so steepe, that it seemeth, Nature meant to referue this Iland particularly to her felfe. There is but one place about the whole Iland for a ship to anchor in; and that so dangerous, that he that letteth fall his Anchorseldome 30 feeth the weighing of it againe: belides hee incurreth the imminent dangers of his ship. How this Iland was won by Derricke Lam, or loft by Captaine Castleton, I cannot well relate. It hath on the Easterne side a faire and strong Castle, a regular Pentagonon well foreified, and furnished with all manner of promisions and Souldiers, and is held to bee the strongest Castle the Duch haue in the Indies, and the most pleasant residence.

The Castle. *Coen the chief Commander of the Duich in the Indies. whose fastigi-feeme fastidi...

Out to an eye

Poolaroone (in imitation of her filters the other Hands) is turned Dutch. There was in her ous Titles may neither pleasure nor profit, yet the ambitious King Coen . hath made a conquest of her chastitie. The Civill Law demeth a violent rape to be incontinencie, because although the bodie be forced, the minde may yet bee free. Recall her againe, and right this vnciuill outrage by your wife and civill centure; although the benefit (which is not to be contemned ) bee divided into 40 shares, yet we hope, your Worships will keepe and enjoy to your selues the disposing and distributing alwayes of your owne. Ambojna litteth as Queene betweene the lles of Banda and the Moluccas; shee is beautified not ltogether cuill : and follow, as I haue icene a copie of them, I know not whether needing a Democritus or Heraelitus; whether to be ranked with T. Coriat, with the fruits of fenerall Factories, and dearely beloued of the Dutch: which the better to declare, they fay they would give thirtie millions there were no Cloues but on that Hand onely. Neptune is her darling, and entertayned in her very bosome, it feemeth that the Water and the Earth are agreed together in vnitie: for at the bottome of the Bay, with one hundred Pioners in feuen dayes, of one Iland it may be made two. It is not about a Flights shot from full sea marke fig. La. c. rr. or on the one fide, to full fea marke on the other fide: nor is the fandie Plaine railed a fathome aof the horifon; infomuch they glale their Prawes and Coraccrries by 50 the long-filled maine force from one sea to the other. It is plantifully stored with Fruit, Fish, and fresh water: nor is there any great want of Fleth. Their Vines both of B.wda, Amboyna, and the Molluccas, are pruned thrice a yeere, and every prunage hath his vintage. A raritie it feemeth to me, in nature, I faw in the Woods of this Hand a Plant, or Tree, or neither, or whether I shall call it, I med, are rec- know not, in fabstance much like to the bodie of our Iuie, in formelike a halfer of fine or sixe inches, in length fine or fix fathems, bare without forig or sprout, the one end fast in the ground, ging, P. Maon, the other fixed to the limbe of a great Tree, a fathome and better diffare from the bodie thereof, 5. Neilschey &c. and fo perpendicular, that it is very disputable whether it grows vp from the ground, or from the limbe of the Tree to the ground: this rope is of firme folid wood without any concauitie, Ahrth- Ilbinus, and yet it yeeldeth excellent good, faire and tweet water, and as fresh as from the Fountaine; 60 Three Vinta nor doth it herein admit any diffiretion or difference, vileffe it be the more delicate, according to your companies cut more or leffe thereof, diffributing every one the quantitie of two foot or the thereabouts, and they shall have sufficient; for every piece will runne to the value of a pinte or Strange spring, thereabouts, and that in an instant; a strange refreshing to those that transile those high and drie mountaines, as my felfe did find by good experience, the Castle of Amboyna is quadrangular, The Castle. will moted and fortified with men and munition, and I ath in it about Pecces of Ordnance. The Dutch have reduced into order the two rebellious Factories, and the people begin to plant anew, infomuch that they expect within thefe few yeeres the fruit will be is at present. Your Worthips shall herewith receive the Draught of this lland, and the adioyning Factories fet out at large after the Dutch fashion , which maketh not mole-hils of Moun-

CHAP. 13. Ternate, feate of diffention be wixt the Spaniard and Dutch.

Bachen is accounted among it the Ilands which are more properly called the Moluccas, and Great Bachen. is the greatest of them all; it is called great Bachan, there is another neere adioyning called old Bachan. In great Bachan the Durch have a Factorie and Caffle, which venting some Com- Old Bachan, modities doth yeeld them Boords, Planks, and Masts for any ship what soeuer; it is the fruitfullest of all the Ilands of all the Moluccas, and the cheapest. The King keepeth neere the Castle without about three hundred persons, the rest being fled to themountains & other Ilands. The Dutch Merchant and others told me for certain, that for want of people the Clones lye on the ground three or foure inches thicke in some places: so as it may be truly said of this place, the Haruest is great and the gatherers few; nor doe I thinke that the Dutch doe defire many. The Caftle is but The Caftle fmall yet firong enough for this place, and contayneth fourteene Peeces of Iron Ordnance, fmall and great, &c. This is a very good Harbour.

Machan the next in order, mounteth her tops about the Cloudes in manner of a Cone, and ad-Machan mits no plaines within the circut of her Confines. It is a very fertile Iland, and yeeldeth to 20 the Dutch the greatest Reuenue of all the rest of the Moluccas llands. It hath three Factories with their Fores in Triangle position; the chiefest is Neffaquia which yeeldeth most Spice, Not. but venteth leffe Merchandize. The fecond is Taffafobo, which venteth more Merchandize, and receiveth leffe Spice. The third is Tabbalolo, which yeeldeth leffe Spice, and venteth leffe Merchandize. The Road where the ships take in their goods is at Noffaquia; at the other places there is no riding : this Caffle also is the strongest; they are all seated high aboue the water, and the way vato them is steepe and difficult, and therefore to the Sea-wards very strong, but to the Land-wirds are commanded every way.

There is in this Hand a Cloue Tree differing from all other in its fruit, which is called The Strange Cloue Kings Close, much effected by the Countrey people both for the varietie, as also for the good- Trees. neffe; nor is there any other but this in all the Moluccas; they are not to be bought for any money, but are given abroad to triends by handfuls and halfe handfuls : what fell to my lot your Wor hips shall receive together with an exact draught of all the Dutch Castles in the Moluccus.

Morr makes hafte to follow Machand, in forme, height, and fruitfulnesse; but not in her Morr. Revenues: nor is shee equall to her in greatnesse. The Dutch hath one onely Factorie vpon this Iland, which is called by the same name, it yeeldeth but little fruit, and venteth lesse Merchandize : here Venus and Voluptuousnesse haue their habitation through idlenesse. Thus Otia stollarge much by the report of others, for I was not there to fee it my felfe.

Tridore doth taxe the Dutch for leaving her wholy to the Spaniards, and destroying the Fore Tridore. 40 called the Marieca. This Iland is great and rich in Spice as any, but because I had not landed here, I referre you to the Draught thereof, and of Ternate, herewith fent to your Worships for Ternate, the greatest of these Hands is the seat of Dissention betweene the Spaniard and the Ternate, Dutch. The chiefest place for the Dutch is Malaijo, neere vnto which is Tallooke, and on the Northfide of the I and is Tycoome, which should have beene destroyed with the rest. Gamolamo, Dangile and Saint Lucie are the Spanish Forts, betweene which is Calamasca leated as a Frontier Fort of the Dutch, which should also have beene destroyed; the whole both concerning the Hand and those Forts will better appeare by the Draught thereof, herewith sent your Worships inclosed in a Bamboo, &c.

Aboord the Royall Exchange in the Road of Lacatra, the 18. of October, 1621.

Your Worships to command,

Humfrey Fitz-herbert.

Because the Authour calleth Coen an ambitious King, you may see the occasion of it in the Titles which hee assumeth, and are imposed on him; as I have seene them written, : intituled by himselfe in his Proclamation for cessing or imposing of Customes at lacatra, in this manner, viz.

Mmmm 2

M Ohn Peeterson Coen Gouernour Generall ouer all the Lands, Ilands, Townes, Forts, Places, Factories, Ships, Pinnaffes, Shallops, and Men, as also of the whole Trade and Commerce in India, on the behalfe of the High and Mightie Lords the States generall, his Princely Excellencie, and others the priviled ged Committees of the United Netherlands East India Company.

To all those to whom this present Writing shall come, greeting. We taking into our consideration, after the Conquest of the Kingdome of lacatra, &c.

By the Queene of Patanie, fending her Ambassadour vnto Him: He was stiled,

The great, strong, and mightic King of Iacatra, and of twelve Cassles, Commander of all the Seas under the Winds, Iohn Peeterson Coen.

If I lad beene able to have given the also those Draughts, Reader, thou shouldest have had them. But such as I have, give I vato thee; namely, this of Hondius, meane and obscure crough, but somewhat more then nothing.

ter fent out of the Indies, but parely the cost, and parely doubt to displease have decayned the publishing,

CHAP.

CHAP. XIIII.

Three severall Surrenders of certaine of the Banda Ilands made to the Kings Maiestie of England, faithfully translated out of Malahan into English; with a Voyage also annexed of Sir HENRY MIDDLETON.

The Contents of the Surrender of the Ilands of Pooloway, and Poolaroone, in Banda, to His MAIESTIE.

His Writing is for the agreement betweene all the Orankayas of Poolomay, and Thiswas trans. Poolarsone also, and the English in manner as followeth, That whereas in the time that Poolarson was not yet simplified by the Hollarders, the most of But the Hallarders the Mallarders the Hallarders the Hallarder time that Poolomay was not yet suprized by the Hollanders, the people of Poolo- condentout may and Poolaroone had furrendred the two foresaid Hands vnto the King of Eng- the Indies to land, and had given ground to Richard Hunt Merchant there, withall fetting vp transferred: the King of England his Flagge vpon the Castle of Posloway, and shooting three Peeces of Ordnance in token of the Couenant of the men of Pooloway and Poolowoone, 20 betweene the English and them, when they did furrender the two forefaid Ilands to the King of England, and had given ground to the English, being done before the surprize of Pooloway, eight dayes: and after that, it was taken by the Hollanders. And whereas at that time there were but two Englishmen upon Pooloway, of weake defence, who beeing not able to doe the Countrey any good, went away to Poolaroone, together with the men of Poolaray in one small Praw, who had brought away with them Earth and Writings for the effablishing of Commants betwixt them and the men of Poolaroone: Therefore now the two forefaid Llands are in the hands of the King of England only according to our Surrender. But whereas at this time through the Affaults of the Hollanders, Poolomay is fallen into their hands and Possession, if it shall please his Maiestie to recouer it vnto himselfe againe, hee shall doe therein nought but Iustice, because the Inhibtants thereof haue absolutely surrendred it vnto Him: and if his Maiesties pleasure 30 be to the contrary, let it be as shall feem e best in his Highnesse iudgement. But this is fire that we the men of Pooloway and Poolaroome, have furrendred the two foresaid Ilands vnto his Maie-Hies power and cannot goe from, or revolt our word agains even to the last day, and having linked our felues with the English in one bond to live and dye together. Furthermore all the men of Pooloway and Poolaroone doe couenant to fend every yeers to the King of England a branch of Nutmegs, in token of their designes, desiring that this offer of all the Orankayas of Pooloway and Poolaroone, being once offered out of their true love vnto the King of England, bee not had in oblinion or rejected.

And whereas King Iames by the grace of God is King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, is also now by the mercy of God King of Pooloway and Poolaroone. Moreover, wee doe all of vs make an agreement that the Commodities in the two forefaid Ilands, namely, Mace and Nutmegs, we cannot nor will fell to any other Nation , but only to the King of England his subjects, according to the true meaning of our Couenants and surrendring of the two foresaid I. lands to his Maiftie, with all that is (in) them to be folely at his difpoing, which is and shall be the reason that we cannot trade with any others. And whereas all the Orankey as of the two forefaid Hands have made this agreement, let it be credited that it was not made in madnelle or loofely as the breathing of the wind, but because it was concluded upon in their hearts, they cannot revolt or swerue from the same againe, Moreover, all we together doe delire of his Maiestie that such ening as are not fitting in our Religion, as vnreuerent vsage of women, mayntayning of Swine in our Countrey, forceable taking away of mens goods, miffe-vfing of our so men, or any such like that are excepted against in our Lawes, that they be not put in practice, being out of our vie and custome; that they may not proue a blemish vnro our Religion, and that we may receive no occasion to deale vnkindly with the English. Furthermore, it any Engtiffman will become of our Religion, wee will accept of him vpon counfell : or if any of our people will become a Christian, he shall bee so likewise vpon like counsell, desiring this promife that fuch things be not done in such manner as may breed discontent betwixt vs and the English, which we doe very earnestly delire of his Maiestie. Finally, at this time all the Orankaras of Pooloway and Poolaroone, doe againe make a Couenant with Nathaniel Courshop, Cap-60 tame of the two ships riding here, Sophon Cozocke, and Thomas Spinway giving ground and sur-rendring the two foresaid slands with the King of England, being alreadie partly in the hands of Nathaniel Courthop, Sophon Cozoche and Thomas Spurmay, and that not only now, but as being done long fince when Captaine Castleton went from Pooloway with foure thips, all the Oran-

kayas of the two forefaid Hands, having a greed with Richard Hunt Merchant of Pooloning, with Mmmm 3

all having fet the King of England his Flagge vpon the Castle of Pooloway, and shot off two perces of Ordnance in token of the Couenant betwenne the Orankayes of Poolonay, and Poolsroose, and the English: and as it hath beene done heeretotore, so at this time we doe renew it with Nathaniel Courthop, Sophon Cozocke, and Thomas Spurway.

Emmon Poolowaye. Sabandar Poolowaye. Sabandar Wratt Sabandar Poolaroone. Sabandar Lamecoe. Naboda Coa.

Hattib Ittans. Hattib Pootec. Sabardar Treat. Emmon Lancecoe. Sabandar Locon.

The Surrender of Rosinging and Wayre to his Majestie.

This writing is for the agreement betweene all the Orankayes of the Country of Wayre, and of the Island of Kolinging, and the English Nation in manner as followeth, viz. That whereas, in the time that the Country of Banda was in trouble, by reason of their enemies, so that they were no longer ale to withstand them, they therefore agreed with Nathaniel Courthop, Sophonie Cozock, and Thomas Spurway; thus much in effect, that is, that they doe furrender the Countrey of Wayre and the i - 20 land of Rolinging, unto the King of England in respect that they are not able any more to stand for the Selues against their enemies : that now the Sayd Countrey of Wayre, and the Iland of Ro. inging is onely in the power of the King of England. And whereas the agreements is once made, we the aforefaid Onthe power of we way, surjourned or an area was necessarily and extensive meter agerefut we makeyee causet more Confirment shighest againe, but that it hall last for our until the last day doom: And that the English shall be as the men of the Countrey of Wayre and It Pruisedes. Furthermore, the men of the as or affect (country) of Wayre, and the Hand of Rollinging, doe promise and agree to fend unto the King of England, one branch of Nutmegges at a token of there fore faid agreement of all us the aforesaid Otankayes concondition that the said token of our agreement be not out of memory nor disolned, nor we dis-esteemed. And we doe wish that Almightie God would vouch fafe to give profperitie to the King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland: and now by the grace and mercy of God, the King of the Countrey of Wayre, and the Hand of Rolinging, and that more, we will floope to no other King or Fotentate, but onely onto his Maiestie: and after him to all his posteritie. Furthermore, as concerning our trade, we doe all truely agree, not to fell any of the Nuts or Mace, which the afore said Countrejes,do. fford to any other but onely to the King of England his subjects, because we have wholly onto him surrendred the soresaid two Countrejs of Wayre and Rosinging, with all that therein is, or what-Socuer it doth, or shall yeeld, it is the King of England his owne; and this shall stand for a reason that we earn t trade with any other Nation. Moreover, we intreat the King, Maiestie of England in earnest manner, that such things as are not besitting to our Religion, as unmannerly usage of our women, maintaining of Swine in our Countrey, beating and abusing of our men, or taking away of them personce a-gainst their will, as if they were their own slaues, or any other such like attempts, that are held unbessening 40 in our lawes (we say) that we doe intreat his Highnesse that none of these or such like be put in prastise by his subjects, because they are things disallowable in our lawes, and so being committed, will redound to the ouerthrow thereof; and we thereby might be forced to deale unkindly with the English therefore. Moreouer if any of the English hereafter hall have an affection to be circumcifed, and become as one of vs, st shall be done upon sufficient Counsell betweene the rest of the English and vs, or if any of us will become a Christian in that cause, the like counsell shall be held, and this shall not be done for any mislemeanour of the partie willing so to turne : because that may breed a discention betweene the English and vs. And whereas this agreement was made in the presence, and by the consent of the King & Sabander, of Wayre, the Sabander of Rolinging, Emmon Hattib, and all the rest of the Orankayes, of the Countreyes of Wayre, and the Ilands of Rolinging : This shall be for a testimony that it is not done in madnesse, or in the manner of the breathing of wind, but that it was also aswell thought in our hearts, as stoken with our mouthes, and therefore we cannot, nor will goe from it againe, but that it shall so stand untill the dissolution of the world; Neuber shall there any doubts rife in our hearts of any other, but that we the men of Warre and Rollinging, are onely the Kings Maiefties of England his fubietts: and if any trouble hereafter doe happen in the forefield Countrys, we will be contented afivell to die, as to line together with the English caste me will be fubriest to one King, and this shall stand for a reason, that any being in league with vs. shall also be in league with the English & percontra, be that is neere the English shall be neere vs, because we will by no meanes againe, dinorce our selues one from the other. Finally, at the time this agreement was made, all the Orankayes of Pooloway and Poolaroone were witnesses thereunto; all the Orankayes of Pooloway and Rolinging have unto the aforefaid Premisses set then 60

> The King of Wayre. The Sabander of Wayre. Emmom of Wayre.

The Sabandar of Rofinging. Emmon of Refinging. Hattib of Rolinging.

Translation of the Surrender of Lantore, Cont. in the paper N. D.

In the veere of the Prophet Mahomed 1028. in the tenth day of the Moone Mabarran being Saturday, the yeere is called Aleph. And in the yeere of of Ielus, 1620. in the Moneth of November the 24.day.

10 This is the writing of the agreement of the Sabandar of Lantore, and the Cap. of Lantored, all the Orankayes within the Country of Lantore, with Robert Hayes, after the loffe of Captaine Courthop; That we of Lantore do furrender the land of Lantore wnto the Kings Maiefile of England with all that is therein: So that all the Nuts and Mace within the Country of Lantote, we promife to fell to no other people, other then to the fubsects of the Kings Maiestie of England only. Furthermore, we the Orankayes of Lantore. doe promise every yeere to send to the Kings Maiestie of England a bough of a Nutmeg tree, for the acknowledging of the homage of vs the men of Lantore, to the Kings Maiestie of England. To the intent that this agreement of Surrender betwixt vs be not foreotten, to 20 the end of the world: and to the intent their be no difference or falling out betwiet vs. Furthermore, we doecrane of his Maiestie of England, concerning such things as doe not agree with our Religion, that they may not be done in the Countrey of Bandan , to the end that fuch things being restrained, there be no offence given betweene the Bandanezes and the Englishmen : As to enforce our Women , our Wives or Daughters , or to firike any of vs, or violently to take any thing from vs, or to let swine loofe in our Countrey, or any such like thing as doth not agree with our Religion. These things we onely except (because those things tend to the destroying of our Religion) to the intent there be no falling out betwixt 30 the Bandanezes and the English, unto the end of the world. And whereas it pleaseth God that Iames is King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland; fo now also heis King of the Country of Banda: fo then the Country of Banda is in Subjection to no other King then to the Kings Maiefile of England onely in this world, excepting our Religion. For our Religion of Islam doth not agree with the Christian Religion, neither doth the Christian Religion agree with our Religion of Islam; and this is the purport of our agreement. Further, if it shall happen and English to runne to vs, or any Banda man to runne to the Englifth, it may not be tolerated without the confent of the chiefe of the English and we of Banda : because such things are contrary to our Religion, and tend onely to falling out and 40 brabbles betwixt the Bandamen and the Englishmen. At this time we were together in consultation, all the Orankayes of Lantore, and the Orankayes of Labetacke, and the Orankayes of Nero Pooloway and Poolaroone, and have put too our hands, and this is the intent of this writing.

> Sabandar Lantore. Sabandar Ratoo.

50

The Voyage of Master Henry Middleton to the Moluccas, (having sent Captaine Colthurst in the Ascension to Banda Fwith letters of the Kings of those parts to his Maiestie.

H Auing taken leaue -f the Company, being furnished with all things necessary, we depar- of the Comted from Grawsend the five and twentieth of March, 1604. and about the twentieth of then had had December following, after many various accidents, we arrived (our men being very weake) in it: but better Bantam Roade; where after many complementall falutations betweene vs and the Hollanders, late then newith interchange of great Ordnance on both parts, the Generall of the Hollanders dining the uer. And for 62 laft of December aboard our Generall: The day following our Generall went on shoare with a well agrees Letter from the Kings Maiestie of England, to the King of Bantam, which with a present sent, with his place was by him received with great ceremo.:ie, he being but of thirteene yeeres of age, and gover- alo ned by a Protector. The fixteenth of the faid moneth, our Generall came aboard from Bantams His Maieflies to proceed on his voyage for the Molucenes, appointing Master Surflet to goe home in the He- King of Bantam

This should haue come in motedue place-before being the fe-

cond Voyage

LIB.V.

Varanula.

Elor. The fewench of January following 1605, we anchored under the Shore of Veranula, a people that deadly hate the Portugals, and therefore had fent to the Hollanders for ayde against them, promifing to become fubicet vnto them, if they expeld the Portugali; in fumme, the Hol-Linders prepared to affault the Castle of Amboyna, and the Portugals to defend it, the one purpofing to recourer, the other to hold it; The Hollanders fummoning them in the Prince of Orange his Caffle of Am- name to deliver it that day by two of the clocke, and the Portugals denying it. Yet in the end after many attempts and defences, it was yeelded to the Hollanders by composition, wherevoon the Gouernour of the Towne, after the furrender of the Caffle, bard vs of all trade by the com-

The warre continuing betweene the Tarnatans and Tydorians, the first assisted by the 10

Hollanders, the other by the Portugals, shortly after we got under the land of Tydere, where we might espie betweene Pulocanally and Tydore, two Gallies of Tarnata making great speed to-three Dutch Merchants were, being full of feare, defired our Generall for Gods fake to faue them from their enemies the Tydorians, from whom they looked for no mercy if he did not help them, & withall, that he would be pleased to rescue their other Coracora that came after, wherin there fifted not but boarded them within shot of our Ordnance, and put them all to the sword, but three that faued themselues by swimming, and were taken up by our men into their boat.

were diaers Dutchmen who were to expect nothing but death, if he did not releeue them. 20 wards vs, weating vnto vs with a white flagge to strike sayle and to tarry for them. At the same time came feuen Gallies of Tydore, rowing betwixt vs and the shore to assault the Tarnatans, our Generall feeing the danger they were in, lay by the lee to know what the matter was ; The formost of these Gallies or Coracoras, wherein the King of Tarnata with divers of his Nobles, and mand of the Hollanders.

Tydore Gallies, Whereupon our Generall commanded his Gunner to shoote at the Tydore Gallies, yet they de-

Our Genenrall being determined to goe for Tydore, the Dutch defired him that he would not let the King of Tarnata and them fall into their enemies hands, from whom he had so lately delivered them, promiting mountaines of Cloues and other Commodities at Tarnata and Maken, but performing Mole-hils, (verifying the prouerbe, The danger escaped, the Saint is deceived. ) One thing I may not forget, the King of Tarnata comming aboard the Generall, trembled for feare, which the Generall supposing to be for cold, put a blacke Damaske gowne laid with gold lace, and lined with vnshorne Veluet, on his backe, which at his departure, he had not the manners 20 to restore, but kept it as his owne : But see how this kindnesse was shortly after recompensed by these vnthankefull men. Our Generall arriving at the Portugals towne in Tydore; the Tematasfraud. Gouernour of the Fort sent one Thomas de Torres, and others with a letter, the effect whereof was , that the King of Tarnata and the Hollanders reported, that there was nothing but treason and villany to be expected at our hands, but that he conceived better of vs, beleeuing their reports to be nothing but malice. To fecond this, not long after, our Generall arriving at the Kings towne, fent Master Grave aboard the Dutch Admirall, who found but could entertaine. ment at their hands, affirming that we had affifted the Portugals in the last warres against the Dateb vakind. King of Tanata and them, with Ordnance and other Munition, which our Generall proued to thinke it to be true.

in their authors no:with-Pecu:fhneffe of the Dutch. Their bragges and lies.
* Vnderstand this of the Merchants Helland, Loo-fers will haue leaue to peak: & Merchants enuy each o-

To fill up full measure, not long after the King of Tarnata seeming to affect our Nation, they threaned him that they would for lake him and loyne with the deadly enemie the King of Tydore, if he suffered the English either to have a Factory, or any trade with them, affirming that the English were theeues and robbers, and no other he should find them, and that the King of Holland was stronger by Sea, then all Christendome besides, with many other disgracefull specches of our Nation, and all other Christian Princes (a just consideration for all Nations to thinke what this infolent frothy * Nation will doe, if they attaine to the possession of the East Indies ) To which infolent speeches our General replied: That what Hollander soeuer he were that so reported, he lyed like a traitors and that he would make it good against any one that should so report; affirming that if the Queenes Maiestie of England had not taken pitty of them, they had beene veterly ruined by the King of Spaine, and branded for flaues and traitors. The particular wrongs done by them to our Nation, if they were laid open, would fill volumnes, and amaze the world to heare. I will conclude, to shew the esteeme had of our Nation in the East India, with the whole land the true Copies of fundry letters seni by their Kings to his Maiestie of Great Brittaine, and first orbest men of of the King of Tarnata.

the contrary by some Portugals that were taken prisoners by them in that conflict; & then being assamed of the slaunder, the Generall affirmed he had it from a Renegado Gussarat, but did not 40

The King of Tarnatas Letter to the King.

Earing of the good reports of your Maiestie by the comming of the great Captaine Sir Francis HDrake in the time of my father, which was about some thirtieyeeres puff: by the which Captaine CHAP. 14. Kings of Ternata, Tydore, & Bantam, their letters to his Maiestie. 705 my predecessor did send a Ring unto the Queene of England, as a token of remembrance betweene us : Fame of Sir which if the aforefund Drake had ben living, he could have informed your Maiestic of the gress love and IV.n.is Drake strendship of either side: he in the broadse of the Queene, my Father for him and his successors: since which time of the departure of the forefaid Captaine, we have dayly expected his returne, my Father lining many yeares after, and dayly expecting his returne. And I after the death of my Father, have lived in the same bope, till I was father of eleuen children : In which time, I have beene informed that the Eng. Quista'erit in the fame copering was passer of common section in the fame not as peaceable Merchants, but to disposse of Craches defe-lishmen were men of a bad disposition, and that they came not as peaceable Merchants, but to disposse of the cameno. vs of our kingdomes; which by the comming of the bearer hereof, we have found to the centrary : which we greatly reioyce at. And after many yeeres of our expectation of some English forces, by the promise of to Captaine Drake, bere arrived certaine flips, which we well hoped had bin Englishmen, but finding them contrary, and being out of all hope of succour of the English Nation, wee were enforced to write to the Prince of Holland, to craue aide and succour against our ancient enemies the Portugals; and according to our request, he hatb fent bither his forces which have expelled the Portugals out of all the Forts which they beld at Amboyna and Tydore. And whereas your Maiestre bath sent to me a most kind and friendly letter by your servant Captaine Henry Middleton; that doth not a little reioyce vs: and whereas Captaine Henry Middleton was desirous to leave a factorie heere, we were very willing thereunto; which the Captaine of the Hollanders understanding, he came to challenge me of a former promise, which I had written to the Prince of Holland: That if he would fend me fuch succours as should expell the Porcu- A friend at a gals out of these parts, that no other Nation should have trade there, but only they: so that we were enforc's Pinch. 20 against our likings, to yeeld unto the Holland Captaines request for this time, whereof we craise pardon of your Highnesse , and if any of your Nation come hereafter , they shall be welcome. And whereas the chiefe Captaine of the Hollanders doth solveite us not to hold any friendship with your Nation, nor to give eare to your Highnesse Letters, yet for all their (uit, if you please to send hither againe you skall be welcome : And in token of our friendship which we desire of your Maiestie, we have sent you a small remembrance, a Bahar of Cloues, our Country being poore, and yeelding no better commodity; which we pray your Highnesse to accept in good part.

Tarnata.

The King of Tydores Letter to the Kings Maiestie of England.

His writing of the King of Tydore to the King of England, is to let your Highnesse understand, I that the King of Holland hath sent hither into these parts, a Fleete of ships, to wyne with our ancient enemie the King of Tarnata, and they jointly together, have over-run and spoiled part of our Countrey, and determined to destroy both us and our subjects. Now understanding by the bearer hereof, Captable Henry Middleton, that your Highneffe is in friendfhip with the King of Spaine, we defire your Maiestie that you would take pitty of us, that we may not be destroyed by the King of Holland and Tarnata, to whom we have offered no wrong : but they by forcible meanes, feeke to berease us of our Kingdome. And as great Kings upon the earth are ordained by God, to succour all them that he wrongfully 40 oppressed; So I appeale vn. to your Maiestie for succour against my enemies; not doubting but to sinde reliefe at your Maiesties hands : And if your Maiestie send hither , I humbly intreat that it may bee Captaine Henry Middleton or his brother, with whom I am well acquainted. God enlarge your Kingdomes, bleffe you and all your Counfels.

Tydore.

The King of Bantam to the King of England.

A Letter ginen by your friend the King of Daniam, who king of Daniam has and more, and all your Countries and the second of the property of the land of the second to we in health Letter given by your friend the King of Bantam, to the King of England, Scotland, France and fell. And whereas your Maiestie bath fent a Generall, Henry Middleton, he came to me in health, I did heare that your Maiestie was come to the Crowne of England, which doth greatly reiosce my heart: now England and Bantain are both as one. I have also received a Present from your Marestie : the which I give you many thankes for. I doe fend your Majestie two Bezar stones, the one weighing sourteene maffes, the other three : and fo God have you in his keeping.

Bantama

CHAP.

CHAP.15.

706

CHAP. XV.

The Dutch Nauigations to the East Indies, out of their owne lournals and other Histories.

Orafmuch as Banda hath beene almost the bane, and as it were the Troiane Horse to our Indian Ilium, whence an Iliade of miseries and mischietes haue iffued to that Societie; whereby their wonted gaines have beene suspended (with a Xanthat observer; wherevy that would say of, their shippes and goods taken and 10 stayed, the persons of many Christians, Brethen in Armes, Arts, and Religion;

exposed to the bateft of contumelies, and cruellest of deaths, as the premisses declare; and that amongst the Infidels, whom by word and example of life they should have fought to connere; whose states also are hereby subnerted, and their faith farther percerted (thorow you, the wrong-doers in this case, is my Name blasphemed amongst the Gentiles) I have thought good to fet downe the true cafe briefly, as out of divers Witnelles, Christian and Heathen, English and Dutch, I have gathered it; no whit feeking the dishonour of either Nation (for what Nation hath not some ficke, some rotten members :) but as an Historian ought to deliver the truth : which haply the industrious out of the formall materials can fee to doe without helpe, but the vulgar will need Spectacles. And herein for the more honor of the Duich Na. 20 tion, we wil begin with the beginnings of their Indian Nauigations, and by briefe steps descend into these broyles : wherein if the Merchants have proved Martiall, if some of their Commanders haue beene insolent, if others of the baser Rascalitie with Pot-froth or Sea-froth, transported to blaspheme Kings and higher Powers: & that Dutch-Indian disease hath lately grown Epidemical in those parts, & turned into a general Contagion wher with their greatest numbers tumes dabit, there haue beene infected : yet the head and heart here at home (I doubt not) are found, and dat, becomes will foone (my hope tels me) purge these maligne humours from those remoter members: will and the set of the set for heat contame. For who can suppose that they will make others wrong deeds theirs by conniuence or countenance! that their Iustice will not doe that which is just! that their wisdome doth not reafon in season? that their mature forwardnesse hath not done alreadie that to, and for the English there, which came thither and about the World by English helpe; by their examples in Drake and Candish instigated; by their Pilots, notes and instructions, as before appeareth in Melis, Adams, Dans, and others not a little furthered; and by their support at home enabled to looke abroad: so many gallant English spirits exhaled, so much English Hist Amsteld. Treasure exhaust, in defence of that Belgian libertie: wherein the Hollander of all men will Ioh, Ifary For- not take it to fee their vertue imitated by the Bandanezes, who likewise there affected it tani, 124.18.0 by feeking English protection, and effected by furtendring themselves in subjection to the English Crowne ? And as for their freedome then when they offered it, I am not willing to 40 make a comparative quere betwixt the Dutch and them * whether were freer States: whether more obliged, these to the Durch themselves by any act of former subjection, or to the pretended title of Ternate, (in both which, the Dutch owne Hiltoriographers, as heere will appeare, free them) or the other to. But I will to my Historie, or rather to theirs, both in respect of the subject and authors, and occasioned by the eurll of some, will honour the worthier spirits of that misef allo you Nation, out of their owne Iournals and Relations, delivering a briefe of their Marine Exploits.

Hen the King of Spains had made many yeeres warres upon the Hollanders with V exceeding expense and force, permitting means whiles the Hollanders ships nevertheof the Flex in V x exceeding expense and rorce, permitting means in the third part leffe to trade on his Coalts, he was at lait counfelled to bring them to fubication, by hindering 50 the third part, their Nauigation and intercepting their thips by arreft. Thus were they prohibited the thoares and or. of Spaine and Portugall, tome put into their Gallies, their goods confifcate, and the Hollanders began to thinke of other Trade, and to make tryall of the Indies. And first began those of Amflerdam to let forth eight flips by confent of the States and Prince Maurice : foure of which lished in divers were to goe the wonted way (by the Cape of Good Hope) to seeke and settle Trade in those parts especially of the Indies, where the Spanish Power was not admitted; The other foure (of allo the Tomes which two were of Amiterdam, the other two of Zeland and Enchusen) attemped by the North to discouer a passage to China, Cathay and the Moluccas, as by a farre shorter cut; this way from Holland to Inpan being not aboue one thousand two hundred thirtie fine Durch miles, transa, pag. 594. Whereas by the Portugall way it was two thouland nine hundred thirtie two. Of their Northerne Expeditions ellewhere : the other foure ships by a fafer and more frequented way set In the eight forth in the same yeare 1995, and laid foundation of that which since is reputed by them a mi-Booke of his raculous fructure, and taking occasion from being forbidden Spame, to make themselves way first to the East, and fince enterprizing also the West Indies. The ships were the Maurice, the Holland, the Amsterdam, and a Pinnaste, the persons two hundred fortie nine: the Societie called, De Compenie van verre: the whole charge was two hundred and ninetie thousand Florens, of Societas languawhich one hundred thouland was in readje money and Merchandize. The Maurice and the qua scientis. Holland were of two hundred and eightic lasts, the Amsterdam one hundred and eightie, the Pinnaffe twentie. The Captaine of the first Bernard Heynck; Cape Merchant, Cornel us Hontman, John Miller Mafter, &c.

First Voyage of the Dutch to the East Indies.

The fecond of Aprill, they fet faile from the Teffell. The fecond of August, they had fight of the Cape of Good Hope. The two and twentieth of September, they fet two men on shoare for To mutinie. On the fine and twentieth, they came to Saint Augustines Bay in the Ile of Saint Laurence. The tenth of February, to Anton Gill.

In May they came to Dampin in Sumatra, in lune to the Straits of Sunda, where certaine Portugals from Bantamvilited them. On the three and twentieth and foure and twentieth, diners Chirois, Malabars, and men of other Nations came to them, fome of which had beene in Constantinople, Venice and Rome, and one of them faid, heehad foure monethes past seene their Lad and God (meaning the Pope) whom they answered that they were Christians, and cared not for the Pope. On the fixe and twentieth of June, Captaine Heyne dyed of the Flixe. On the nine and twentieth, the Pangram of Vice King came abourd the Mauritius. The first of Iuly, the Pirnces Letters (written in Arabecke and Portugall) were read, and Couenants confirmed 20 by Oath on both fides.

On the fixt of Iuly, they were warned by their Interpreter, from the Vice-roy or Protector, to take heed of the Partugals, which (notwithstanding coloured friendship) sought their ruine, and had agreed with Cafar (whose father had ruled all Iana, but he himselfe was brought into Portugals treafiraites, and enjoyed little but a name, having also a Portugall Wife) that he should invite all the chery to the principall Hollanders to a Feast, and the Portugals, meane-while, with fiftie Souldiers and o- Hollanders thers of Cefar: Houthold should inuade their ships, Cefar to have the spoyle, and the Portugal; Rays Duina & to give him three thousand Ducats for the ships. This Cefar was so called by the Portugals, of Cefar. the people Raya Danina : but the men of Bantam rejected his Dominion because he had lived at Malacca, and favoured the Portugals, to whom they feared left he should bring them in subjecti-

30 on. Yet was he acknowledged of many, even Kings themselves speaking to him with their hands infolded one in the other (the gefture of Slaues) hee had also beene aboord with his children on the second of July. He told them also that the Portugals sought to perswade the Vice-Roy to the like, and befought and bribed his followers thereunto, affirming, that they were not Merchants but Pirats, and if they had accesse now in ten or twelue yeares they would returne and subdue their Countrey : and this sparke, if now virquenched would set the whole East on fire. Moreuer, they were enemies to the King of Spaine, whose enmitte would by their entertainment be procured : and that they were but Spies. The Hollanders fent one of their Cap- Hereby appear taines into the Towne to fearch the truth by conference with the Protector or Vice-Roy, who rith the diffurther counfelled them to shoot into the Towne when Casar went about the ships, promising Casar and the 40 to reueale all things to them: He found also in the Sabanders house Gun-powder and other ho-Bantamiens as ftile prouision. They fent Cafar a Costlet and other Presents, and he accordingly sent to invite farre as they all their chiefe men and Musicians : but now by their Present seemed to bee wonne to better dura.

thoughts, blaming the Portugals. After this Cafar went to Iacarra, and the Protector and Hollanders agreed about taking a house for their better Traffique, which was done, and Rainer van Hell was appointed chiefe, who yet found nothing but fraudes and flifts in the Protecter and Bantame les. As for the Portugals they murthered Peter Tayda a Meflizo of Portugall originall and dwelling at Bantam, for holding familiaritie with the Dutch, by the follicitation of their Prieft. The Inhabitants were by Proclamation inhibited to fell Rice to the Hollander, and prefently after they were told of an af-50 fault, thould be made on their thips : and when fome of their Companie had gotten aboord, the reft were detayned; which when by no interceif on they could recour, they affayled the towne with their ships, and tooke three Innekes; a fourth was set on fire by the Portugals to preuent

At night Houtman the chiefe on sheare writ to them that they had halters about their neckes, and were presently all of them adjudged to dye, if they continued further battery and spoyle. A dayes truce followed, and after that the Warre renewed, which continued aboue a moneth, and peace was concluded. As for Houtman and his fellowes, they were fentenced to dye, but the various opinions of the meanes protricted their lines. Perfwaded by the Portugals who had fenger is faid fent purpotely thither from Malacca, * the Bantamians after a little space broke off Trade a- to have given

60 Saine, which the Hollanders supplyed by taking their lunckes. After this they were affaulted by 100co. Rials to a ship of Indians, with poyloned Arrowes, the venom whereof could not be cured but by cutting deliuer him out the affected part : this ship also the Hollanders tocke. The Portugals exposulated with the the Hollanders, Protector that so little had beene done, and they both grew to hot words, the fuell of a great of the Trade, * Dabit, Len-(may both Englift and Bandanese aldignus qui fa-

Prefat.in 3. Part.Ind Orient Diarium Nauticum in Ind. Orient ap.10. lanfon, Arnbewhole Voyage things fee their feuerall

Galpar. Ens. Got ATINS Me-

of the E. J.

The Portugals reward. Tuban, Cydaio. Brandaon and Ѕитиђата а: е

Madera.

Ballabua, or Balamboan, here Cand fb had beene. Baly called Hellandiola in cigh: degrees of South lati-it nourisheth 600000 peo-

The feuenth

fire, the Portugals feizing on some China lunckes for their fatisfaction, which the Protector a while diffembled but afterwards revenged with the destruction of the Portugals; under colour of a great Mariage at Iacatra, fetting forth a Fleet, wherewith he invaded the Portugall Gallies. flue the men and divided the spoyle, the other Portugals slipping their Anchors and sleeing to The Hollanders came to Iacatra the thirteenth of November, and were received with much kindnesse, whence having furnished themselves with necessaries, they set sayle, the Amsterdam necreeach o. running with full layles on a Rocke before they had fayled a Dutch mile. On the third of Dether, on Isuz. cember, they came to Tuban and Cydaia, where they bought Nutmegs and Cloues, and the Sa-The Bird Eme. bandar gave them a great Fowle called Eme, aboue foure foot in height, somewhat like an O-10 Another trea-firich, fauing that the feete were not clouen. Here vnder colour of friendship the Cydapans (let on, as they learned after, by the Portugals and Bantamians, with fixe great Prawes affailed the Amsterdam and the Pinnaffe : where they flue in the Amsterdam twelue, and wounded two, but the other thips comming in, they fled, loting an hundred and fiftie of the Iaxans. The Hollanders departed thence to Madura. Here the King would needs have leave to come aboord, which he was permitted if he came with fixe followers, and to one of the greater ships : But hee comming with one hundred, and to the Amsterdam, was slaine, with the Priest and most of his Companie: his young fonne and others taken: by whom they learned the ill intent that the Madurians had to take their thip Amsterdam, which themselves soone after fired, taking out of her what they found viefull. And now having loft many of their Chiefes they confulted about re- 20 turne, and by force of winds were put into Ballabua, and the ship Holland entring the River of Baly an Ile nine leagues off, was put back with the viclence of the fireame. The King of Passaruan a Mahumetan had marryed and flaine the daughter of the King of Balabua a Gentile, and now held him befieged to inforce him to exchange his faithleffe faith. The King of Baly affifted the Gentile, but his Captaine being flaine, the rest returned. These told of a ship there ten yeares before, which was thought to be Master Candifbes, the old King, then supposed one hundred and fiftie to be still living. Baly they called Hollandiola, for the fertilitie; there they watered. They fent to the King, who accompanied the Messenger to the shoare in a Chariot drawne with Buffals, holding the Whip in his owne hands, having three hundred followers, fome with flame-formed Crifes and long Speares, Bowes of Canes with poyloned Arrowes. Hee was 30 feasted in Dishes of solid Gold. The Land is an equall and fertile plaine to the West, watered with many little Rivers (fome made by hand) and so peopled that the King is able to bring into the field three hundred thousand foot, and one hundred thousand horsemen. Their horie are little like Islanders, their men blacke and vling little Merchandize, but with Cotton Cloth in Prawes. The Iland is in compasse about twelve Germane miles. Their Religion is Ethnike, ordered by the Brachmanes or Bramenes, in whose Disciplines the King is trayned up. They have also Banianes, which we are about their neckes a stone as bigge as an Egge with a hole in it, whence hang forth three threds; they call it Tambarene, and thinke the Deitie thereby reprefented : they abitaine from flesh and fish, but not (as the I anan Pythagoreans) from Marriage. Once they may marry, and when they dye their Wiues are buried quicke with them. Euery feuenth day they keepe holy, and many other Holidayes in the yeare besides with solemne Ceremoday boly.

Dratti Streight mes. Their Wines burne with their dead Husbands. Here they heard of Captaine Drakes being there eighteene yeares before, and called one Strait by his name. The King observeth state, is spoken too with hands folded, by the best. The Quillon hath power there as the Chancellor in Poland. Two of their companie for fooke them and flayed on the Iland. And of two hundred fortie nine there were now left but ninetie. In February they began their returne. The foure and twentieth of Aprill, 1597, they came in fight of Terra de Natal, and the five and twentieth of May, of Saint Helena, where toure Carracks made them afraid to aduenture. The eleuenth of August they entred the Teffell : the ship Holland having not men left to weigh their Anchor, and forced therefore in a storme to cut their Mast ouer-boord.

The second Voyage.

A Lthough the gaine of this Expedition were lost of men and perhaps also of money and wealth, yet did it encourage with the strange. Noveltie and hopefull probabilitie many Aduenturers, both of the Hollanders and of English also that way affected, aduenturing with them. This we have observed in the Voyages of Master Danis, * Pilot with Houtman, with two ships; and of Master Adams with Laques Maybay, in a Fleete of fine ships, and of Melis With Oliver Noort, in a Fleete of fourethips, thefe two last fayling by the Magellin Streights to the Indies, following the Sunne to fee his rifing and feeking the East Indies by the West: all 60 were fet forth in the yeare after the others returne. Anno 1598. The fame yeare was by the Indian Societie of Holland let forth a Fleet of eight ships, the Holland, the Zealand, the Frisland, the Gelderland, the Virick, the Oner-Ifell, or the Done, the Maurice, and the Amsterdam, furCHAP. 15. Mauritius Iland. The Dutch first Trade at Banda.

nished with fine hundred and fixtie men, James Neccius Admirall in the Maurice, Wibrand War wicke (whom we before have honoured for his love and honour to the English) Vice-Admirall in the Amflerdam, and feuen Commissioners adjoyned. On May-day they fet forth from the Teffell, and kept together till they came to the hopefull Promontorie, where they by ignorance and foule weather parted, the Holland , Maurice and Over-iffell, holding their way to the He of Saint Marie: the other five to the Hand De Cerne, by them named of Prince Mauritius, about "Mauritius Itwentie degrees South latitude, neere to Madagafear, mountainous, full of tall trees of blacke, land. red and yellow Ebonie, and Palmites, having a good ayre, Tortoiles able to goe with foure men on their backes, and to hold ten men fitting on the infide of the shell, (vikind Guests eating their Host, non hospes ab hospite surue) ftore of Fowles, desolate and dishabited by man or beaft: they left there Hennes, and fowed a certaine Plaine with divers feeds. The other three thips Decas. 1598: having watered at Saint Maries, (able to yeeld little elle) came to Bantam, in the end of the yeere, who suspected them to be the same which formerly had beene there, and resuled Trade, till they fent Abdol a Chinois (carried into Holland by the former Fleet) with Preferrs to the King then an Infant, and Cephate the Protector, and procured Trafficke. Foure weekes after came in the other fine ships, many of them ficke, and thirtie fine dead. The Bantameles having eiected the Portugals, now brought them store of prouision, vied them kindly, admired their Pewter, and for one Spoone gaue as much food as would ferue a man a weeke. But Abdols telling of the other ships to come raised the price of Pepper. Foure ships being laden were fent

Inccas, and Neccine being returned Warwicke was their Admirall. These set sayle from Bantam the eight of Ianuarie. On the one and twentieth they came to 15. M. Tuban a Towne of Iaua, the King thereof potent and pompous, the People delighted in ri- Tuban. ding, their filken Saddles pourtrayed with Deuils; they vie exercises and games on horf-backe. Here having gotten provision, on the eight and twentieth they came to Madura an Iland lying Northward from Iana, fertile of Rice, the People living ingreat part on robberie. Heere they divided their Fleet, two ships the Gelderland and Zeland for Iortam in Iana, the Utricke Iortan and Amsterdam to Arosbay a Towns on the West of Madura, where they had no sooner landed Medura their men to feeke promition , but they were taken , spoyled and captived by the Inhabitants ; 30 and after them three others fent to fee what was become of their fellowes. They demanded for their libertie two great Peeces, one thouland Rials and other commodities. But the Admi- Treatheries rall having called the rest from Ioriam put on land one hundred and fiftie men to recover them by force on the fift of Februarie, and faw many in Armes, two Portugals being their Captaines. Whiles they were in fight a ftorme arose, which made the Hollanders mind their ships, but two boats in their returne were ouerturned with fortie nine men, of which twentie fue drowned and flaine, the reft were kept prisoners with their fellowes, in all one and fiftie; for which they payed in money and wares, two thousand Rials of eight. On the seventeenth, they had fight of Celebes: on the nineteenth of the Ile Camboyna: on Disers Hands the one and twentieth, of Cebefa, betwixt which and Botun lie shoulds, which they happily 40 elcaped: on the five and twentieth, Bur : on the fixe and twentieth, Blan: the first of March, they faw three Ilands adioyning Atypoly, Manyba, and Gyta, before Amboyna, to which they came on the third. In Amboyna, are store of Cloues, Oranges, Limonds, Citrons, Coquos, Bonanas, Sugar canes: the Inhabitants simple and poore, their weapons long Pikes hooked, which they dark very fure. Their Coracoras or Boats have fome representation of a Dragon, of the head in the prow, and the tayle in the sterne, adorned with Streamers. Heere they agreed for trade and a house. But because here was not sufficient for all foure ships, therefore the Zeland The Dutch first and Gelder land were fent to Banda. On the fourteenth, they passed by Polo Setto, an Iland not trade at Banda. inhabited, fine leagues North-well from Banda: whereof also they conceit I know not what 1599. deuillish possession, insomuch that their foolish Indian Pilot, with a terrible gastly countenance Palo Settom (when they came against it) thrust forth the boat-hooke with like gesture as they doe in boats, as if he would thruit the ship thence, and being wearie layd it by him with the hooke forward. feeming to triumph of his Deuill-conquest when he was past.

On the fifteenth, they came to Pooloway, and had fight of Poolaroone, and anchored that night Poolarone at Banda. The Sabander came the next day to conferre with the Admirall, and agreement of mutuall trade was made betwixt them, a house also taken for that purpose. On the three and twentieth, came the first Merchandile from Ortation: on the four and twentieth, they began to buy and fell : on the fine and twentieth, the Vice-Admirall went to the other fide of Banda which is most frequented, to hire a house there: on the seuen and twentieth, came goods from Nera. On the fourth of Aprill, they had Letters from the Admirall at Amboyna, that by reason 60 of the Inhabitants Warres with the Poringals he had yet laded few wares. All May they were buffe in buying and filling.

On the fife of June, the men of Labetacke (about an houres journey diffant from Nera, but Civil watres in heart vinneafurably different, made a fallie or skirmish, in which some were slaine. On the among the fournteenth, the men of Nera with those of Lantore and Pooloway went over to Warre and kil- Bandanfes, home, and arrived at the Teffell, the nineteenth of July, 1599. The other resolved for the Mo- Speedy Voy-led many, whose heads in differece of Labetacke they faitned on their boats, and at their returne with their fivords yet bloudie, made glorious muster of themselues source or fine dayes together. They brought some women captines, one of which they cut asunder. Yet did they after burie the heads in cotton clothes. The Zeland received in her last lading on the nine and ewentieth of Inne : and the Gelderland on the first of July. On the second, the Vice-Admirall intreated good viage to those he should leave behind him in a house built by them, and having given gifts to the Sabander and the Orancayes, he tooke leave: (Regem nullum agnoscum) for the Bandaneses ac-They are the knowledge no King, sed fuis institutis vinentes, ad Seniorum Catus, vbr consultatione opus est, res words of Isis referent: they are ruled by their owne States or Orankayes. The Inhabitants are Mahumetans and very denout, that they begin nothing, neither Diame nor Humane, before they have pray- 10 2.6.15, of his History of Ain. ed in their manner. They are a collectitious Nation of many Peoples compounded. The Ilands History of Am-fardam, Secal. are divers, Banda the chiefe, in which are fixe or feven Townes continually disagreeing. The to pars, Ind. chiefe is Nera, to which Labetacke, Comber, and Wayre are enemies: Lamore (on the other fide of the Hand) and the two Hands of Pooloway and Poolaroone are friends to Nera. The cause of words are to be words are to be these I arres and Warres is, the casting downe of certaine trees many yeeres since, in the territorie of Nera, by the men of Labetacke: whence they fill kill one another like Dogs. Their banpretext of Ter- quets publicke, Meskit ceremonies, and foot-ball tennife, I omit. They are nimble, and some nate, or dulabi- very aged viito one hundred and thirtie yeeres. The worke in dreffing their Nutmegs, Mace, line of turren- and otherwife, is the womens burthen.

* Peg.117.

* Pag.125.0

CHAP. 15. Portugall infolence. Iohn de Austria, bow King of Candie.

On the fourth of July, they fet fayle from Banda, and on the fixe and twentieth came to Id. 20 catra. On the eight of August to Bantam, from whence they set fayle on the nineteenth; and the twentieth of Aprill, 1600, arrived in the Teffell. The two other ships, Amsterdam and Utricke, after two moneths flay at Amboyna, let fayle thence the eighth of May for the Moluccus; and on the two and twentieth, cait Anchor neere Ternate. Here they held trade with the Kings leave and love, till the nineteenth of August; and then leaving some in Factorie they departed. The nineteenth of December, they came to Bantam, whence they fee fayle the one and twentieth of lanuarie. The fixteenth of Februarie, John Peters an Englishman their Treasurer di-Ishn Petters an ed. The thirtieth of May, they had fight of the Ascension, from whence the next day they made hafte homewards, much preffed with defect of victuall, and fafely arrived at Am-

Many Floers Zeland.

BVt before the returne of any of these ships, in the yeere 1599, the Dutch Indian Companie set forth another Fleet of three ships, whiler the command of Stephen van Hagen, the fourth of May. Likewife the foure thips of the former Fleet, which had made fo fpeedy a Voyage, were fent againe forthwith under the command of Iames Williams. And befides the former Companie, a new Companie of Amsterdam and Brabast sent forth a Nauie of foure ships under Peter Bot. Thefe fet tayle from the Tellell the one and twentieth of December , 1599, which returned two yeeres after richly laden. Also this last Society prepared two other ships, A. 1600. to which the former Companie added fixe other of fine hundred tunnes the piece, under the command of Neccius, which making happie returnes, means whiles the Zelanders entertayned 40 the bufineffe. And in the yeere 1601, thirteene thips departed from Amfterdam, on the three and twentieth of Aprill, under the command of Iames Heemskirck, foure; and foure under John Grenier, and foure under Wolshard Harminim. Against thefe the Spaniard fet forth a ftrong Armada of thirteene Sayle, which encountred eight thips of the Durch, before the reft were come to them ; a fight followed, wherin a small Hollander Pinnasse was to battered, that they tooke out her wares, and fent her backe.

See Davishis How Houtman was flaine at Achen, is elsewhere delivered. This King being by Portugall first Voyage, wiles further instigated, did giue good entertainment notwithstanding, this yeare 1601. to pag. 117. This flaughter Some Zeland thips vnder the command of Laurence Bicker, as also to George Spilberg. He fent his Amballadors alfo to Prince Maurice, with Bicker, one of which died at Middleborough, whole 50 Epitaph in greater letters hath, Hic fitus est Abdur Zamat Princeps Legationis à Rege Taprofome afcribe to the Portugal bana feu Sumatra Soltan Alciden Rasetra Lillo Lahe Felalam miffa : ad Illustriff. Principen Mauri-Wiles partiel. tium cum duabus Nanibus que in dedit, accepere Liburnicam Lufitanicam. Vixit 71. obist Anno CID. ID. CII. Prafecti Societatis Indica H. M. P. C.

Companies

See Pontan. Pag. 104. Others fay Wibrand War-

of Heutman

But when as it happened by the divertitie of Stockes and Companies, that great loffe enfied to the Aduenturers, it was by common confent concluded, that all these seurali Companies should be united, and by Proclamation forbidden to all but this Society to adventure to the Indies for one and twentie yeeres space : and that Amsterdam should in the expeditions of new Fleets, beare halfe the charge; Middleborough a fourth part; Delfe Rotterdam, Horne, and Enchufen each a fixteenth, &c. Presently after, this vnited Companie made readie a Fleet of four. 60 teene thips according to these proportions under the command of " Stephen van Hagen. The caloweth of Her-The Portugals which alone before enjoyed the Indian Trade , did much enrich the Dutch by their opposition, which while they fought to make prize of the Hollanders, were often surpri-zed, the Portugall decaying in those parts vnto this day. Wolphard Harminius before named Admirall of flue thips in the Straights of Sunda, a was told by a China Iunke that Bantam was be- a Querewhefieged of a Portugall Armada; vnder the command of Andreas Fortago Mendoza, b conflitting of ther his name freged of a Portugal Armada; vnast the command of anarem rorsess in accounting of the policy of the tooke two Frigats and three Ships , fome he funke, others they let fire on themselves; the rest that is a Straige departed to Amboyna, and there slew divers of the Inhabitants, for holding trade with the b Ot him fee Duch, and (as having an enill eye at Natures good eye, and angive with the very Elements) ent Pag-411. downe their Cloue trees, which the Moore had no where done in their most deportural oppositions here.

10 took to the Portugall proceedings in the East.

10 took to the Portugall proceedings in the East.

10 took to the Portugall proceedings in the East.

10 took to the Portugall proceedings in the East.

10 took to the Portugall proceedings in the East.

10 took to the Portugall proceedings in the East.

10 took to the Portugall proceedings in the East.

10 took to the Portugall proceedings in the East. for Ternara and Banda, and hearing that the Portugal; were gone to Tidore, where they had a naughric Chris Fortrelle; they divided their Fleer, two for Banda, three for Fernata, where they found Francis flian is the Verdassia (whom the Dutch had left there) in the great Faustia feet King. And hading well worth mind there libra at Terman, they see the feet Faustia to the reflor their Bleet, where Verhal and quiet their Factor was well, and had provided flore of Mace and Nutmegs, in that they prefently fent trace at Banda home three thips laden, the other two stayed there till Cloues were ripe.

Emikirk with twofhipstocks a Portugall Carricke of Macor Valued as divers millions of the largest the was of four teene hundred tunnes, had eight hundred men (one hundred where of were women) her lading Silke, Sugar, Cotron, Masker Tintinago, her name Saint Katherine, which first hung forthe a bloudie Banner, but being shot betwiret wind and water's exchanged it into a white: feuentie men were flayne, the rest according, to composition fer on shoare. Hee returned, 1604.

C Pilberg returned the fame yeers. He had fought with three Portugall Caraucis at Cape Verde. Spilberg going In Zeilan he received of the King honounable entertainment with libertie of trade, first with to zeilan. the King of Batecols, and after with the King of Cander, intitted by him and accommodated with an Elephant to carrie him by the King of Batecols, met by the King of Candes his Ele-30 phants a dayes journey on the way, and a Litter with coffly furniture of Arras, and after that with more honourable accoultrement and attendance of the Captaine Graced with Bunners and Coloure taken from the Portngal, their professed enemies) to the Citie. For after the death of Darma King of Zeilan, this Fimala of Candes (educated with the Portngal) in the Portreste-Columbo, and baptifed by the name of lohn de Anstria) by the helpe of his friends made him- columbo felie King, and expelled the Portugals. There remayned a daughter of the decrafed King ; baptized by the name Catharina , whom the Partugals intended to make Queene , and to mairie her to Peter Lopes de Sofa Gouernour of Malacca, and with a great Armie brought her to Candes, and made lohn de Austria hide himselfe in the woods, who did beleager the wayes meane Iohn de Austria while, that no prouision might come to the Citie, slaying the Portugals which came in his reach, or Finala, how 40 Whereupon Lopes was constrained to take the field, and trie it by battell , Anno 1590, in which King of Condey he was flaine, and Catharina then nine or ten yeeres old was married to Fimala; who subuerted or Canal. the Portugall Forts , and every way fortified himselfe against them.

This King, the next day after Spilbergs arrivall fent him Horses to come to the Court, which went thither with some Presents , Prince Maurice his Letters and Picture , and the Portraiture of the Battell at Newport.

The King questioned much of these parts, faying, hee had thought that there had beene no white men but the Portugals. Hee fealted him in a roome furnished with Arras Hangings, Chaires, a long Table, and other furniture like the Portugals. And as for league, he faid that he and the Queene with his Nobles were readie to carrie morter on their shoulders , and stones to 50 erect a Fortresse in his Kingdome, where and whensoener the States and Prince Maurice pleafed. Spilberg allo to gratifie the King, tooke three Portugall thips not tarre off , burned the Velfels and gaue the Captines to the King. Hee gane him two Mulicians alfo, because he faw him therewith delighted; wherewith he was so pleased, that he made one of them his Secretarie, would needs learne the Durch Language, and have his Kingdome called New Holland. Spilberg New Holland. brought thence first Cynamon and Precious-stones , amongst which a Pyropus (a kind of Carbuncle) fo great as had not beene here feene, weighing foure hundred Carats. This Hand from Orthis Hand North to South is two hundred and fiftie miles, broad one hundred and fortie, fertile of fruits and the veneand odorilerous plants, abundance of Cynamon, gemmes, both by fea and mynes, and Elephants. Jation of their It is duided into feuen Kingdomes, one whereof is principall, the chiefe Citie Columbo, now others of other 6. wholly peffeiled by Fimala, except the Fortrefles of the Portugals. For the Readers further de-pares &c. tee light, and because I find little Trade of our English on this Hand, I have borrowed hither Hun- Lingtoneen dua Map of Zeilan.

Nnnn 2

Neccius his voyage to them. See the King of Tirnatas Letter to the the Kiny and Sir H Middletens firft Voytar Kingdoms, name not Banda: which be-

Ames Neccius before mentioned, setting sayle the eight and twentieth of Iune, 1601. in the end of March came to Bantam, where he found Paulus à Carden. He spake with the Gouernour, who willed him to beware of the Portugals, telling that one had beene with him from the King of Tuban, Ragielella a Portugall borne, to folloite for leaue to assault the Dutch in Harbor, English, is here for which purpose they had a Fleet of fortie lavle at Iacatra. The second of Aprill, he departed the Peringals of from Bantam for the Moluccas. Here as Ternata he found Verdussus aforesaid, and Peter Lindius the Captaine of a Fleet which had paffed the Magellane Straights, which here at Ternata had bilged his thip on a Rocke, but faued her goods. By their Neccins heard of a thep of Mabus Fleet at Tidore taken by the Portugals, or betrayed rather, and their Captaine treacherously flain: with all his Company except five. They had also belabored the King of Ternata against the Hollanders, faying, they were impious, perfidious, without God or goodnesse, Sodomites, of whom for their loue to the King, they gave him faire warning, promiting also rewards. The Hollanders in re-uenge fet upon the Portugals at Tidore, where Necenus was wounded on his right hand, eight or 50 nine of his Companie loft, and the Dutch going by the worft, retired. Some of his Companie he left at Ternata, and after festivall entertainment for want of merchanvize, he was forced to King of Terna feeke Trade in China, or elfewhere.

This King of Ternata was called Scipidice, Lord of Ternate, Machian, Motir, Amboni, Gulolo, &c. he stileth himselfe also King of Celebes, although he possesset nothing there but some forforetheir Au- ced places: and in Mindanao, Sokens, Menos, and other Hands.

Neccius came to Coyo one of the Philippina in eleuen degrees, tributarie to the Spaniard, where free State and they had kind entertainment. After that they came to Mendare not farre from the Bay of Mani'a, and eight dayes together were endangered among the Rockes. The twentieth of September, they came to a Land vnknowne, and then were encountred with a terrible tempelt. 60 This was one of the Ilands before Canton. When they thought themselves twelve or fifteene easily have pa- leagues from Macao, they proceeded three or foure leagues, and saw buildings at the foot of a ched; beides hill, and certaine boats with one man and one woman, befides children, in each of them, as if they had beene fo many Families dwelling therein. They questioned with them ( for none would come aboard) of Macao, and they pointed to the mountaine : but they not thinking it to neere, fet some ashoare, whom when they could not see returne at night, they missoubted and found too late that it was Macao, and their men there detayned. Seeing feuen and thirry hule Islands before them, they fent the Master to see if he could find any sure harbour by founding, who was also intercepted with boats from the towne, together with his conforts. Thus were twenty men loft, amongst whom the Treasurer and the Captaine of the souldiers, which was also Master. They thought to write, but could get no carrier, and flaying two cayes at Sanchora without hope of effecting any thing; the third of October they departed, and the next day were Pale Comer.

Ternataoffered his Kingdome to the Queene of England. See Sir Fr Drage. Macao. Hollande's loft there.

10 carried on the shelfe of Pulo Cynon, and in danger to be carried upon Cauchin China. After that endangered with tempest and the shelues, and the swiftnesse of the Current to the Cauchin China South, they came to Quami, where finding nothing but Woods, Deferts, and Bulals feetings, they passed to Auarella Talca in eleuen Degrees, and thirtie Minutes. Heere the Generall with Auarella Falca. twelue others going on shoare, came to an open field, encompassed with goodly trees, where he found many Buffals feeding, and flore of Birds, but they could get none. Finding then the tract of a cart, they followed it to spacious woods and fields, footings of men and beaks, but no habitation, which made them thinke that they lived like the Tartars. They called the place Sotternym of a destraction which they got by eating a certaine fruit, enery mandistracted for Sotternim, a time with a madnelle answering his proper humour, feeing angels, deuils, ferpents, all things, 20 and nothing. The one and twentieth of October they passed by Polo Condor, the next day by Polo Condor, Sangora, and the feuenth of Nouember arrived at Barane, where they had excellent entertaine- Sangora. ment; procured trade and a house, and by the Queenes fauour left there eight in factory. This Tradea: Pats.

ther allo came Heemskirke, who told them of his taking the Portugall Caricke, and therein of a nia. letter that Don Paulo had hanged fifteene of the Hollanders taken at Macao; the Queffer and Ma Dutch elecufler were fent to Gon; which aet before they attributed to the Chinois, now faw it to be the Por- cut d. ingals, although (as they thought) by helpe of the Chinois.

In Patania they vie the Malayan, Syan and China language : the Malayan writing like the A. Patanian dirabecke, the Syan like the Europian; and all most in Latine Characters, the Chinese from the gauge and right hand but downewards. Adultery is punished with death inflicted by their parents in writing. 30 what kind themselues chuse. Common women are commonly offered to strangers to do household feruice by day, and other offices at night. Some of the Syanites weare two or three filter balles (or of other mettall) in their yeards, inferted betwixt the skinne and flesh, as big sometimes as a Tennis ball. The Countrey is fruitfull and wholesome. Their Geese and Duckes lay Ballein yards? twice a day : the woods are flored with wild beafts; there are Turtles with faire feathers like One curout Parrets. They take wild Elephants in fight with a tame, put into the woods of purpole, whiles one our of his both are faitned by the teeth, some men behind with ropes capting the will. They arrived at Cap, Saria and the Ramekins the lifteenth of July, 1604.

N the yeere 1602. a Fleet of fourteene faile were fent out under the command of Wibrard Hermandelite. 40 I Warnele Admirall, and Sebali de Wert Vice-admirall: the Mauries of foure hundreth tunnes, Werts Voyage, the Holland three hundreth and fittie, the Noffan three hundreth and fortie, the Sunne two 10 Selan. hundre hand eightie, the Moone two hundre hand fiftie, the Starre one hundreth and eightie, the Parret a Pinnasse of fine and twentie; all by Amsterdams. Three Zelanders, one of four hundreth, the Flushing two hundreth and fiftie, the Goose one hundreth and fourtie: by the Enchafeners two, the Hedge two hundreth and twentie, the Vrgm one hundreth seventie and five : by the Roterdamians two, the Erasmus two hundred and fiftie, and Roterdam eightie. It was desermined that the three Zelanders should goe for Zeilon and Achen, the Munice and Moore to the Moluccas, the Nasau and Erasmus to China the Holland. Hedge and Starre to Achen, the Sun, Virgin, Ge. to Bantam. In the Hedge, Herman de Bres was Cape Merchant. Thele ail, (but the 50 three Zelanders which went three monthesbetore (let out from the Teffell the leventeenth of June, 1602. The tenth of March they came to Aches. There they found the three Zelanders, and Spilbergs two ships. Sebalt de Wers the Vice-admirall, the eight and twentie of November, 1603. came to Zeilon, & went with fixe Elephants fourtie leagues journey to Candes or Candy, & had beene honourably entertained with his fitteene followers. He was brought into the City as if he had beene a King, the Citizens and Souldiers making a ranche halve a * mile long on both * Dutch fides the way, and fuch a thundering of Ordnance, and found of trumpets, that none could bee flood in a place by himfelfe with his children, before whom he fell on his knees, and was taken 60 vp prefently, and demaunded what Countriman he was, and wherefore he came: who answered, of Holland, gouerned by that Prince there pointraied; whereat they all reloyced, having placed it there to trie whether he knew it, and the truth of Spilbergs relation. He added that he came for trade of Merchandize. The King protested much his hatred to the Portugall : and after asked how he durit without pledge or any affurance, aduenture to farre into that Country : hee heard speake. To the Court he was had with like pompe, where he saw the Royall Counfell, & Prince Maurice his picture, with a stately Carpet before it to receive his Prefents. The King answered, because the Portugals were hated alike of both their Princes; whereat they laughed. In more private conference, he promited with twenty thousand men to beliege the Portugall th: Hollanders. Cattle Columbo, if the Hollanders would prevent helpe from Goa: and would give the Hollanders all their Cattles which he should take, and would referue his Merchandizing for them. The next day he feafted him, gaue him before a golden tooth-picke, now a bowle of gold wherein he made his little daughter to drinke to him; and if his sonne were old enough, faid, he would fend him to Prince Maurice to be instructed in Martiall discipline. At his departure he gaue him twenty fine Contals of Cynamon, and fixteene of Pepper, and honourable connoy to his ships. He notified these things to his fellowes at Achen, and counselled them to embrace these op-

Two French Sir lames Lancaffer.

Motecalo.

portune promifes. For they could not early be prouided of Merchandize. They had heard of Io two French ships, one shipwracked at the Maldana, the other returned with a small victory: as also the state of the English there, which had taken a prize, and built a store-house at Achen. Thus fixe ships with a Pinnasse, set foorth the third of Aprill, not a little heartned by the old and young King of Achen, who fent an Embaffadour with them to Zeilon. They loft many in the calmes betwire the fixteenth and one and twentieth of Aprill. On the foure and twentie eth they arrived, and marched in battell array on the fixe and twentieth to Motecalo. The king there entertained them well : but their Religion prohibiting to eat Beeues and Buffals, whereof they had great y lenty; they would not fell any to the Hollanders. They were disquieted with Flies alto and Gnats which would not fuffer them to fleepe; against which the Natiues make The facilitie fire and smoake all the night the place where they sleepe. Some varuely persons caused great 20 diffuroance by killing of certaine Kine, and could not appeale them with offering latisfaction: and feeking to make the King intercessor for them to the owners, he also tooke it to heart, and faid the Portugals had neuer offered fuch indignitie, neither could be any longer tolerate fuch wrongs: some for footh, imagined that the soules of the oxen (had themselves any !) thus slaine were precipitated to hell. Yet at last upon promite of better abearing, he was intreated.

Vatane.

Seb.Wert and

The thirteenth of May, they had answere of their letter to the King of Candy, now encamped at Manacramari, defiring the Hollanders to come with their ships to Punto di Gallo, promifing to beliege it first, and to give the Hollanders that which he had promised, and one thousand Quintals of Cynamon, and as much Pepper for tribute, that being wonne. He defired also the Vice-admirall to meet him at Vintane, halte way betwixt Matecalo and Candy. Meane while the Hollan. 30 ders tooke three Portugall Ships, two of two hundreth tunnes, the third of feuentie, and after that a fourth of eightic, but the goods not worth the while, except to gratifie the King of Candy: two of them they fent away with the Priloners according to promife, which was very diffaltewrite that the King. The first of lune, two hundred choise men were set on shoare to meet the King in best array:but he defired the Vice-admirall to stay with him and fend his men aboord, to come in like manner the next day. Thus they which made speed, faued their lines; the rest doubting no suill, were most of them slaine. The next day they understood by a letter from the King of the death of the Vice-admirall with his retinue, pretending his infolence, and offering good

The fixteenth, they had letters againe by a Germane of Candy from the King, fivearing all 40

fwered, they were ready to trade at shoare, but for the fortresses their ships were, some gone, and they what at prefent for that which might in fitter time be done. Many mellages passed betwixt them, but little truft or trade. The nine and twentieth of July they departed. These Zeilonians worthip Pagodes, of which the Hollanders law some in Candy of fine or fixe fathems, reprefenting Adam, as the inhabitants affirmed, proportioned by artificiall fymmetry to the footprint of Adam in a mountaine neere. The Kings of Panane, Matecalo and Poligamme, acknowledging the King of Candy their foreriour, who is thus reported to have attained * the Scepter.

A certaine King of Sitabague fifteene leagues from Candy, about thirty yeeres before had taken Candy, the King whereof with this his sonne and daughter fled to the Portugals, who at Gos so baptized him by the name of Iohn of Austria, (as is beforefuld) and brought him up in Columbo. But Candy rebelling against the other King, the Portugals fent him after that Kings death to Candy, where he was acknowledged King, and then followed that which before you had of the Kings daughter (of Sitebaque.) To returne to the Duich, they returned to Achen, and thence againe to the He of Daru neere Sumatra, and thence after divers Portugall prizes taken to Mac-caffer. They learned of an Iland called Ende, famous with a Vulcano or burning hill called Guno-

api. At last, they (not knowing whether to goe) came to for, where they helped the King 2-gainst the Portugal Fleet. Thence they went to Patane, whether they came the first of Nonem-him of treaion, as intenand thip him: iome imputa it to the deliuery of the Portp.i oners: kindneffe before promited, if they would helpe him take Gallo and Columbo : to which they anemptory words v.ed to the termes or warre, as they pleafed.

*See before

Maceffer.

Ornelius de Vena in another thip of that Fleet, faith, they came the twentie one of Line to Pulo Timon, on the three and twentieth to Puban, where the King received them kindly, on ber, 1603. Here they heard of the Erafmu and Naffan, there toking a rich thip fayling to lapun 60 neere to Macao: after they had pilliged her, they burnt her. After trade here they returne to Bantam and home.

CHAP. 15. Amboyna and Tydore taken by the Dutch. Mateliff at Malacca, 715

the first of July to Parani and agreeing with a Chinese to conduct them to Canton, then set falle on Parani Patone, the eleventh, and found no matter of great note till the thirtieth, when they came to Macao, or Parania. and tooke a Portugall thip bound for Iapan, the Portugals fleeing and leaving them their thip with the goods and twentie Blacker; these they set on thouse, and having lighted the ship on the tenth of August fired it, and let faile for Bantam. On the eighteenth of September, they encountred a great Ioncke which they supposed to be Portugals, and after a hot fight fore d her, found them Chineses, and were forrie that they had ignorantly hert their friends ; seuentie of Great chica which perished, one the Captaine, whose valour lost himselfe and them : they let them depart Juncke. with their goods in friendship. The fixteenth of December, they arrived at Bantam, and the 10 thirtieth of August, 1604, at the Tellell.

"N the yeare, 1603. twelue ships were sent under the command of Stephen Verhagen. They Verhagens If faile the eighteenth of December. On the feuen and twentieth of June, they came to Mo- Voyage. fambique and anchored without the Castle, in sight and spight whereof they tooke a Portugall thip in the Harbour, and after that divers other Veffels. But not able to doe any thing memorable against the lland; On the five and twentieth of August, they departed, and the fixteenth of September, came before Goa, but found the Portugals 10 prouded that they imagined themfelues before betrayed, and their defigne bewrayed in Europe.

On the fourteenth of October, they therefore departed for Cananor, whither they came on Cananor. 20 the lixe and twentieth, but by in ercellion of the King they removed to Calecut, where they calcut. tooke a Portugall ship with Pewder and Prouision bound for Zeilan.

The third of November, they had fight with nine Portugal thips in which many were flaine, none taken. The eighth of Nouember, they entred league with the Samorine, ratified by Oath and Instrument in writing.

It was ordered that the Zeland and Enchusen should goe for Cambaya, the rest to Cochin, be-Cochin. fore which they came on the fourteenth, but attempted nothing. On the two and twentieth, they failed before Columbo, and shot at the Casile.

The second of January they came to Bantam, the Delffe staying at Achen to returne their Embaffador. On the seuenteenth, they departed for the Moluccas. The one and twentieth of Fe- Ambonia. 30 bruary, they came to Amboyna, and affayled the Caftle, which without further adoe was deli- Caftle taken, uered on composition of free passing for such Portugals as would, and such as would to flay, the See Sir H. Mid. Caftle and Ordnanceleft to the Hollanders, which presently received the Dutch Colours : forty of this whom Caffle and Ordnancelett to the Hollanders, which presently received the Daton Colours 1015, fixe marryed Portugals flaying and swearing alleageance to the States, fixe hundred others deforefishing

Fine thips were thence fent to Tidore, the Horne remayning here, and the Admirall going to Ciffe of Ti-Banda. Those five arrived at Tidore, on the second of May, 1605. On the firt, the Vice-Admi- dore wonne, and rall furnmoned the Cattle to yeel I, which the Portugals refuted and manfully defended their the Portugals honor against the Assalants, till an vnfortunate fire, (how or whence vncertaine) lighting in the Molucca: their Powder blew vp a great part of their Caflle with fixthe or fenentie of their men. This tor- fee the later 40 ced them to yeeld, and confequently, they were dispossessed of all the M luccas, except Solor. State in Capt. The King of Ternata with fourteene Corocoras, contaying each one hundred and fortie Soul- Sain, 14, 1.1. 6 diers, aided the Hollanders, and hell fait the King of Tydore, both procuing Spectators of the SpiberE. P 87.

European Prize. They razed the Castle. This yeare 1605, the King of Spaine had made a terrible Edict egainst the Hollanders, forbidding Trade with them under grieuous penalties. But prohibition without inhibition is vaine : and the Foxe the more he was curfed, thriued the better. For in the same yeare, they fent forth Cornelius Matelinius with twelve ships, foure of which were seven bundred tunnes each. The next years Paulus à Caerden was set forth with eight other in May, 1606. Anno 1607. the Peace or Truce being in treatie, they fet forth another Fleet of thirteene fayle under Peter William fon 50 Verbuef. Anno 1608, three thips returned laden with Spices, three hundred tunne of Cloues, one hundred of Nutmegs, fiftie of Mace, &c.

M Ateliains having in charge to enter league with the Indian Kings against the Portugals, in Marilifi Ex-the end of Aprill, 1606 fent to the King of Iorian * to ayde him, who came with two pedition. thousand Blacker, and on the tench of May, they both went on shoare against Malacca, and Malacca, and Malacca bepossessed the Suburbs. But continuing their fiege to little purpose, and hearing of the Portugal fieged. Fleet comming, they grofe & on the feuenteenth of August fet faele to encounter the Armada confifting of fourteene great flips, and as many imaller. A terrible Sea-fight followed, in which the Hollanders were forced to forfake the Mauritius one of their best ships , and Mateliff him- Sea fight, 63 felte was in great diffreste by three Poringall shippes (together with the Midleborough) till others comming into his helpe with fiere that, hee freed himfelie : but the Midleborough with two Portugall hips fastened to it were burnt together, the men fauing themsel ies in the boats (as well as they could) of other fhips. The Hollanders diverted to their confederate Kings, the Secof this Portugals going to Malacia, where having left feuen of their thips, the refereturned. The Dutch fight, pg411.

716

Scales skinnes on of this digreffion, you may fee in divers of ours, also Relations of the Dutch doings and fuffeand Ose bides: rings there, as 1606, some of their men slaine whiles they sought Trade, and of the quarrels betwixt the Handers and them continuing long after : and I have thought good briefely to adde brought home the Historie of their forcible policifion thereof by Verhuef, out of their owne Relations. Scale skinnes, and soo. (vafa) 80; theads of tray ne, &c. Sup. 5. 285. Kce'ing, Mid. dleton,&c Pe. ter W. Hum for Valuef, or Verb ef, or Mo (ambibe ta-Samorine.

Ratifort King

one of the Portugall thips, flue the men, fired the Veff-II; two others fighting with the Dutch Vice-Admirall, tell both on fire and were confumed in both Elements, Anger: a fourth alfo yeelded; the rest were fired by the Portugals at Malacca, being before disfurnished, left they should I omit Admirall Peter Both, fent with a notable Fleet, Anno 1609. with Garifon Souldiers, with women also and tamilies sent to inhabit; and a ship that returned from Ispan, 1610, where the had the Emperous licente of Trade and had left a Factorie and another thippe fent thither, The Datch also 1611, and the fortie tunnes of Gold which that lapan ship and another are faid to have brought The Dath alfo 1011, and the correct names of Good which the Assignations, to flow the beginnings as of the 10 Space/h and Portugal before, so here also of the Dutch Plantations in the Indies, and in the course the Circo: God Eoc, fer of our English Voyages we have many of theirs interlarded, thus many Rivers bringing vs into tayne Oyle & an immenie Sea of their prefent Trade. But because Banda was the banefull and banned occasi-

VErbuef with a Nauie of nine ships and foure Pinnasks, the three and twentieth of December, 1607, set faile from the Tessell. The thirteenth of Iuly, 1608, they saw the Land 20 cf Sofala : on the eight and twentieth, they came to Mazambique, where they tooke a ship vnder the Caitle moit of the Portugals having runne away, very rich, but casually or by the Por-See Horis 321. Ingals let on fire the next night whereby great part of the goods were left. They tooke also two Pinnaffes. A thouland men they fet on thoare in fixe Bands, commanded by Captaine Bater, on the nine and twentieth, but found none in the Towne but fine or fixe Portugals, and a few olde folkes, children and Blacke flaues, three hundred with fiftie Turkes, whom they let at libertie and fet on shoare in fafer places. The Towne they found great, with convenient houses, wals, two Churches and Monatteries. The Merchants had conveyed them selves into the Castle, but left much goods behind to the Dutch prey.

The frit of August, they began to batter the Castle. On the tenth, they went into the con- 30 Caffle befreged timent and destroyed two Villages. But the Monion being neere, they rayled their flege the Bon loss taken, eighteenth, fortie of them being flaine, and an hundred wounded; and having burned a Towne and Monasterie in an adioyning Iland they departed. They tooke a Poring all thip called the Bon Iefia, on the one and twentieth whereby they understood that nine Gallions and fine other great ships had beene sent from Listone, towards the East Indies, of which Company this ship was separa ed from her consorts by foule weather. They fought with the Dutch nine houres, who found in her remayning, one hundred and forcie Souldiers of one hundred and ninetie:

On the eighteenth of September, they anchored before Goa. On the fixe and twentieth, they fent the Arnold to Coromandel where they had great trading. The fift of October, they fayled along the Malahar Coast to refresh themselves neere Cananor, and on the eight towards 40 Calicut. On the eleventh, the Admirall with two hundred men visited the Samorine, who on the thirteenth and fourteenth fent out Hunters which killed about fortie great Boares, and gaue to tie Hollanders. He delivered to the Samorine the Captaine and Cape Merchant of the Bon Iefee; the ship they had before sunke. On the sixteenth he set saile, on the two and twentieth came before Zeilon. The two and twentieth of Nouember, they came before Malacca, where they tooke a Portugal thip, and fired it, the goods beeing by the Inhabitants before carryed a-

On the foure and twentieth, they fent to the King of Ior to acquaint him with their purpose to beliege and take the Towne and Castle of Malacca. On the fix and twentieth, they set men on shoare in the little Hand of Saint Peter, where the next day the Portugals fet on them 50 and loft their Admirall with three Captaines and fixe prime Officers, belides many of the meaner. Of the Hollanders feuen were flaine and three taken. On the eight and twentieth, fifteene Frigats of Blackes Pirats adiovned themselves to the Hollanders. But the King of Ior could afford no helpe, his Fleet being then abroad. Some Veffels being taken and their three men recouered by exchange of Prisoners, they departed on the nine and twentieth.

The tenth of Ianuary they went to lor, and the King with his Sonne and Brother with twelue Frigats came to the Fleet on the fourteenth. His name is Ratifort: he had on a white Cotton Wastcore to his knees with a fringe hanging to the feet, silken "Sandals, a blacke Shash on his head, three Gold Chaines about his necke, with many lewels annexed, two thicke gold Rings on his left ar ne and one on his right, fixe on his fingers, a Criffe very artificiall in theath 60 of fold Gold fee with many Dia nonds, Saphires, Carbuncles (valued at fiftie thousand Florens) of meane stature, comely shape, moderate speech, whitish complexion, having with him thirtie Wives; his Frigat adorned gallantly with a Tent, borne vp with foure golden Pillars. His feat

T e fourteenth of February, they came to Bantam. On the second of April, 1609 they came to Teraltus twenty foure leagues, from which is a Rocke burning in the Sea, halfran houres murn, y in circuit, with a huge opening in the top alway imoking. On the eight arrived at Banda. There he found Captaine Keeling in Trade for the English Company, with other Dutch thirs for theirs (the English having begunne and continued Trade ever fince the beginnings in manner of that Societie, Captaine Coliburst who went with Sir Henry Middleton, in the fecond Voyage, hauing spent one and twentie weekes in trading at Banda.) The Duich ships belonged to the Flees of Paul van Caeraen.

CHAP.15. The Hallanders will doe no right, nor take no wrong.

Thefe llands of Bands faith Verkins, the Author of this Journall, and one of the chiefe Com- Seel, co. 6 10 manders, are-feuen in number, about ten leagues in circuit, eightie leagues from the burning Sectord, Orage. Rocke : the best Hands in all the East, producing Mace and Nutmegs to serue the whole World. [41. 110.1]

The people in them are supposed ten or twelue thousand. Banda libera est Respub. faith Pon- Pag. 116. tanus, in his Historie of Amiterdam: Banda is a free Common-wealth (as before, Regem nullum agnofcunt, they acknowledge no King, or in Dutch English, They are Free States) and for the King of Ternata, Ifacius lleights it oil as a trifle, quamus. Ternatensis partem aliquam territori; vindicare fibi videatur : Some feeming of fome challenge of fore part ; that is, some nothing. Thus the Story of Amsterdam written and printed of , and at Amsterdam , purposely handling these Indian Affaires. Neither did Verbuef now challenge that or any right, or have any of their Journals which I haue feene published, so much as mentioned any such challeng or broken title. on that Kings part, or fuch acknowledgement on theirs, that any should now become redempter 20 litium, or incurre a Writ of Champertie in his behalfe, which yet the English might best doe, as appeares in Sir Francia Drakes Voyage. Their cruel warres which the Hollanders tound betwint them at their first comming before mentioned, shew that no Superiour interpoled (as was inft cause) to command better abearing. Verhuef on the ninth (as Keeling hath it, or after their Story, which I follow, all these Relations of the Dutch, and after their New fule, mneteene) went on shoare at Ortation, where the Orankayas, or the States and Gouernours affemoled: Here he caused Prince Maurice his Letters to be carryed beforehim in a filter Dish couered, and was met by an Orac kaya, and commayed vnder a great Tree, where were two hundred of the Chiefes fitting croffe-legged like Taylors (after their manner) and he conveniently fet, and his Letters read in Portugall Ent, and after in Malayan. The Contents whereof were, that Prince Maurice understanding that the llanders 30 bad not kept promise with the Hollanders to have Trade onely with them, who had now traded there size Sec of this h yeares and beene at great charges, and were often much abused; did therefore desire them to permit the Heremarkeno Hollanders to build some Castle in some of those llands in place most fit for them, not thereby to en-right of the Amminage any way the Inhabitants, but to defend themselves and the whole Country from Portugals, Hollandersor domining any may the innouncest, one to agreem companies made to the control of the major and the major and the major come inhibit enging inhibit come inhibits in the Hollanders being to faithfight been for the place and for finite and ded all appartenances to the firstline, and no way to be troublefome to the Inhibitants. Their Lettershow See to the ing read, the people were in an vprore, and but for feare of their shipping would have shine the Duch alegati-Hollanders, as after appeared, But confulting among themselves in present, answered, that he onsto Keel at should depart abourd his ships, and they would communicate the businesse with the rest of the 202 0 203. Ilands, and in three dayes guie him an answere; which was given on the two and twentieth. The Hollarders and proved a the Negative. What may not the Hall under commit to the ordinary of the what they can what they can 40 and proued a flat Negatine. Whereupon the Hollanders prounded themselves for fight, and some not get by in-

went on shoare and fought with them the same evening: One ship also and two Pinnasses they trease, seeke tent to Nera, that the thip Companies might forrage that Iland at pleasure. On the foure and twentieth, the Ilanders came to the Admirall and defired three dayes re- force. fpite, which the Hollanders denyed, but faid, they would next day try by force their fortunes with them : which answere received, they soone returned with answere, that the Handers thought better to abitagne from batteil and to permit them to build a Caitle on Ners. On the fine and twentieth, fixe Companies of Hollanders (each one hundred and fiftie) went to Nora and found the Inhabitants of it and Rate, fled to the other fide of the Iland : wherefore they kept good watch.

The third of May, was a great Earthquake (not vnufuall in those parts) and the fourth they began their Castle in Nera, or Nero. On the one and twentieth, the Ilanders I nt to the Admirall defiring him to appoint a place where they might meet and conferre. The next day hee went with one hundred and fiftie Souldiers to a place neere Rato, halfe an houres way diffant from the New founded Caille : and the Fifcall went to the Handers to bid them find fome with full power to treate. They sent to delire the Admirall that he would meete their Orankeras or * The Breis-State-Gouernours in a Groue; for someof them feared his forces there where hee was , left the Martill beet Souldiers should ofter them violence.

The Admir Il hereupon with his Militarie Councell, two Gunners and two Boyes went a achisdesth, The Admir-Il herespon with his mittain Counters, we command the feeture. But which y mongh them, commanding the Souldiers to look to their Armes and expect his returne. But which y which y have been shiftly, thinks more they within a quarter of an houre hearing a great cry * in the Wood, and two Peeces difchar-thinks more ged, lent Vercom to be what was the matter, with fixe Musketiers, who had fearfly gone thirtie paces into the Wood, before they were incountred by a great company of Blacker, at whom trans.

CHAP.15.

Purheef, he Notice Callle 10 3004

against their Sepulchres & Meskus. polely against D. Middliton. third Book: before, with this bulineffe they discharging their peeces, the other fouldiers came in and rescued them, putting the Blackes to hight, and in the chase found the Admirall and his Company flaine, whom they brought on their inculders to their new founded Castle. Of the Hollanders were that day slaine in all forty two perfors. On the three and twentieth, they flew the Dutch Fifcall with diners others. On the toirtieth, the Hollanders with two Companies spoyled all they could in the Iland. On the twelfch of lune, the Dutch killed fiftie Blackes in a lunke, On the thirteenth, the Caffle being well-nigh fimithed, was named Nasjan, of James Bitter the Captaine;

On the three and twentieth of July, the Hollanders attempted Slanga, a towne of the ent.

On the since and with the loffe of thirtie, and one hundred hurt: Butter himselfe having his

Mink: the v. Blacks, but returned with the loffe of thirtie, and one hundred hurt: Butter himselfe having his Mike the v. Blacks, but returned watch to the four teenth of August, the llanders fent to treat of a figer alledged legge broken, where he after died. On the four teenth of August, the llanders fent to treat of a figer alledged legge broken, where he had sign had shaded the Hallanders in tilling the Admirell and ships. 10 peace, faying, that though they had offended the Hollanders in killing the Admirall and chiefe men, yet they also should remember what harmes they had done to the Handers, in subverting their Citties ' and Temples, firing their Villages and Forts, with great slaughters enery where, Therewas no The Hollanders answered, that they would grant peace, on condition they would sweare that Empire Nati- they would thereafter have trade with none other Nation " what focuer it were, but fell all their Nuts and Mace to the Hollanders onely ; who on the other fide promifed to defend them from their enemies, and to prouide them of Rice and necessaries for food, with a reasonable price for their wares. On these conditions, peace was concluded, and by oath on the Alcaron confirmed. was don pur- the fifteenth of August.

How brittle this forced peace was, appeareth before by the Journalls of Captaine Keeling 20 then there, and David Middleton foone after, and by the Dutch owne stories, which complaine of thenhere, and their trade with Captaine Middleton, their confpiracie also against the Hollanders, the Hollanders ders tacking of Comber, the Blacks killing divers Hollanders in a wood, of a kinde of Siege of their Caille, bloody fight, the Caille almost famished, all in the same yeere that this peace was conclu.'ed. So little force is made of Force, when any enasion appeareth, especially when Mercury is turned to Mars, and men begging trade will force Forts vpon free States and Gouernours. No martialle if hereupon they found the Hollanders perpetuall worke, as you have before read in Floris, and at last fent and obtained trade with the English , ratifying the fame by refignation of to many Hands to his Maiestie : which Soueraignety the Dutch stories (by me traced, and faithfully followed in the former relations) doe no to much as mention by them fought in 30 articles of treaty, or to them by the Handers offered. Hence the warres betwixt the English and Durch: and the hatefull difatters before recited : the Hollanders making a bridge of English thips to get ouer English bodies and blood to these Ilands, even without denutiation of warre. fore heard of.

Having now gathered this out of the Dutch owne Histories and Journalls, I prefume not dispute (for even they themselves and these their Historians being judges) who seeth not the flate of the cafe. Bat I have thought good to adde for further illustration; this relation of their gaine by that trade, as one of that fociety hath lately published : after which I will give you the teitimeny of the Priest of Poolaroone (a man there of great esteeme) touching the Banda case, 2 Discourse of mine owne added for illustration : and that men may not misconstrue these things, 40 to the diffaite of the Hollanders in generall, but rather of some of their Majors or Commaunders and Committees there (which you may vnderfland also in like differences with the Portugals) I have added (to end this buineffe) an extract of a little Booke translated out of Durch, which as he speakes meanely of their gaines by this trade; so hee imputeth the fault to the ill gouernment and Gouernours.

The gaines which the Hollanders had gotten by the East India trade, taken out of a Booke Translated out of the Dutch, perswading to a West Indie Trade.

N Ow to let you fee how much we should be bindered, if we should leave off the East Indian Trade, & the like hinderance, we should consequently also faile of touching the power and strength of these Countrejes. In the Records of the East Indian Company it appeareth, that from Anno 1000 to Anno 1601. included, they sent out fortie and fixe lips, whereof there arrived three and fortie agains in these Countreyes richly laden. Ships that brought for returne, (all charges deducted) two hundred and thirtie Tunnes of gold, cleare gaines for the Merchants of the jaid Company. Further, by the Records and Bookes of the faid East Indian Company: it is also shewed, that for the space of eleuen yeeres we had still about therie Ships continually in East India, with five thousand Sea-faring men, and that they expected to receive from thence at least three hundred Tuns of gold in capitall, besides that which they had in the land. 60 Now I refer it to your sudgement, what the faid Company in the last ensuing tenne yeeres until this time hath gained? who within the time of fixe moneths, have had a good returne of fortie Tuns of gold, I doubt not but you have heard of the rich lading that the two ships brought hether, within the space of a moneth, being valued to be worth four e and twenty Tuns of gold, in such manner that the particular partners from Anno 1605. (enery mans full aduenture being delinered in) have gained open enery hundred Gilders, unto this day in ready money, the summe of two hundred Gilders; and whensoener any man will sell his Stocke (which at this time he hath in the Company) which he may doe when he will, he may for every hundred have two hundred and thirtie Gilders: whereunto adde the Interest, which the pareners (from the first money received) to this present have gained, which also is halfe a capitall, there resteth to the pariners privicularly, upon enery hundred, if they have ventured and traded fixteene seeres in the East Indian Company, in cleare quines aboue foure hundred Gilders. I speake not this by report, but at a mitnesse thereof, being one of the partners, that have received my part of the gaine, and may have the rest within eight dayes, if I will fell my stocke, which I may at all times doe.

Dutch garnes, and present state of their India Trade.

Secondly, we may by the Frade veed by the faid Company, ventill the yeere 1614. included , declare and prone, that the custome houses of the Countrey, by meanes of cinuoyes, licences, tolls, and customes, which the faid East Indian Company have, and pay, inward and ontward, have profited and received aboue fine and thirtie Tunnes of gold, for the which the States of the land, have at some times (as neede required) ayded the faid Company towards their warres in India, with money and Imps : partly to eafe the Said Company of Some portion of their charge. Now, what they have received in the custome-houses of the Country, from Anno 1614. to Anno 1621. without doubt it is a greater summe, and much more then the former, noting what a rich returns they have made within these seven yeeres. Now to shew what furtherance and benefit the common people have had and gotten by this East Indian Trade, we must note, that a Fleet of twelve ships, doth cost in money and all other things thereunto belonging, about 20 eighteene Tunnes of gold, to set and send it foo the and commonly there is not above fine or fixe Tunnes of gold in ready money fent out with it: a litbe rest is bought and prepared here in the land, to the great benefit and welfare of the Countrey, and gained by the Inhabitants, that sell and deliner the same. And enery ship that comes home againe, one with another, payeth about a Tunne of gold for monthly wages, whereby the Officers and Saylers also are inriched, which also is gotten and spent by and among the Inhabitants : whereby it is manifest, what the common people have profited; besides, the great number of so many thou and people, that by meanes of this Trade aforefaid, are fet on worke, and well paid for it, to the great comfort and benefit of many poore people.

Thirdly, to show what the publice Common wealth bath yet further gotten by this Trade, you must vnderstand, that the greatest profit of the land consistet but the most great hurs and damage which the ene-30 mie bath first and last endared, and yet endureth in East India: fir since that we were probabiled to Trade and Trafficke in Spaine, and other of the Spanish territories (which notwithstanding against his will, by other Nations we doe continue with good profit ) from Anno 1 596 we have overcome and footled eleuen of his great huge Carrackes, Gallies, and other great ships, and have made about fortie of his ships unseruiceable; besides those, that in the last ten yeeres ensuing, we have spoyled and taken: whereby our enemies trade there , hath beene greatly impaired, and ours , by Gods bleffing (who onely is to be prayfed therefore) to the admiration of the whole world, is greatly energafed. In fuch manner, that the Staple of all manner of Spices, and other rich and costly Wares, which for the space of two hundred yeares together was in Venice, (whereby the faid Towne encreased and became exceeding rich) and after that by meanes of their Nauigation, was in Portugall, for the space of one hundred yeares : and lighty, for 40 fine and twenty yeares hath beene in Holland and Zeland, and fines that by a good agreement made, the last yeere was also brought into England : in such firs, that the King of Spaines Merchants , were for- He teckoneist ced in the geeres afore aid (contrary to all mens expectations) to buy Nutmegs, Cloues and Mice of vs. the Kings loss I will briefly declare, the present state of the said Company in East India. You must under- yeerly about stand, that matter of Trafficke is in very good termes, which we bope by Godskelpe and bleffing, one hundred tunne of cold, shall from yeere to yeere still be better and better, now the Englishmen (by meanes of a contrast made besides whi with them a yeere fince) toyne their forces with ours: and we for our parts have in East India, that are the Portugalls comming home and here in the Country, aboue fiftie ships, double surnished with lusty Sarlers, as also loice. all other things sit for the War, and for so long a Voyage, and about ten strong Forts, whereof some we brue taken from the Enemie; the rest have beene cretted at the great cost and charges of the Company, and 50 made defensible, which for the securitie of our owne people and goods, as also for the defence of our confederates are sofficiently provided. Lastly, when they of Bantam began to lay an extraordinary toll upon our Nation, and caused us to pay siftie per cento custome, and yet we could not for all that obtaine licence of them, to build a Ware-house of stone and Morter, for the securitie of our Wares and Merchandizes, for that being of wood, it was twice burnt : we were constrained to transport our Trade in Bantam to another convenient place, which is a firme Iland, and bath many good and convenient Havens in it : for in my writings I finde, the fine yeeres past Mataram the great Emperour of Iaua, who is able to bring three hundred thousand men into the field, dwelling about one hundred miles distant from Bantam, had also sought to make some contrast of alliance with vs. offering to deliner vs Pepper toll free, and licence to to build us a Castle of Morter and Stone, with all things convenient in Iapara, which was not well 60 liked off by the King of Bantam and his Lieutenant. At last our Nation built a convenient Towne about Iacatra, reasonably well fortified, and called it Batauia, where there are about one thousand houses of all Nations, there to Trafficke and deale in Merchandize, which is defended and gonerned by a Gouernour, Scout, and other Officers, for the maintenance of good government and prlicy, and to administer suffice ento enery one: and to the end that before all other things, Gods ser-nice and honour might be maintained, whereby the blind Heathens might be brought out of their great fany surgeons unaversely of the first also they did, which with great benefit and encrease, have seat county and the Gospell of Christ in their owne language, as well as unto our men in their lan-

Letter uno the Prince of Otange, to have them brought up at Schoole, and taught our language, and

Christian Religion, that they might at their returne into East India, be a meanes of planting the Church of Christ there in India, and learne how to defend their owne native Countres.

them Wives where they lust (will not Woo with trafficke, but randh by force, nor make their Voyage Geo.6; but a Conquest ) is it any maruell if the iffue proone Giants, and the Earth be filled with violence? (Euen the Poets also fabled their Giants to be Neptunes Sonnes.) Hence is Commerce Dinine and humane empayred, Peace blowne up, Charitie blowne out, Rights of neighbourhood, and Rites of hospitalitie exiled; Merchandite in vulawfull copulation with Mars procreating, I know not how, many

CHAP, 15, Banda case (cause of the Dutch-English-Indian Wars) discussed. 721

Baftards; Juch are Viurpations, Oppressions, Insultations, Italousies, Treacheries, Inuations, Lies, Force, Fraud; and therest of that restlesse blacke Gard, hatefull to God and man: Which here I base historically expressed, not delighting in Tragedies, but (forfan & hæc olim meministe innabit) it will be delightfull to some to have escaped such disasters as have swallowed so many others, and pro-10 fitable to posteritie, to present like mischiefes in the like beginnings. The beginning of this quarrell was first a strangenesse; whereof Synerson a Dutch Captaine is See Scot Sup. charged to be the author, whose uncivill conditions infected the rest, and made them withdraw their fa- pog. 180. 6 sign. miliaritie with our Nation, which before they had kindly vsed. When this Sunne of Charitie, shining in louing Society, was fet in this cloud of itrangenesse, stormie weather followed, and darknesse, and it was Pfal. 10.420. night, wherein all the beads of the Forrest crept forth, the young Lions roared after their prey; the ghastly ghosts walked abroad in the darke, and the Rulers of the darknesse of this world amongst the Eph.6.12. children of Night and of darknesse domineered at pleasure. This Strangenesse, as the darknesse of Hell, 1.1h.5.54 opened a passage to those Hellish fires following, and was the Wombe of those Hell-bred Monsters (as privation is a preparation to habite, and corruption to generation) which were indeed many, but their 20 three Captaines were Drunkennesse, Couctouinesse, and Pride (this that threefold Head of Curberus, and triple (rowne of Furies, before mentioned.) In the first, Bacchus made a new expedition into the Indies, with a band of Racke, Rackapee, and other hot drinkes, defplaying the Colours of the Fleih, oppugning the Spirit of GoD, and expugning the Reason of Man: whence so many Frayes, Braules, Scott bisup, and sometimes Blowes, and Wounds; this Wild-fire or Ignis Greecus burning most in moisture whiles occ men played the Greekes. After this Vant-gard of Bacchus and the Flesh , followed the Maine battell lead by the World, arranged under the Colours indeed of Couctoufnesse, which finding some sweets of gayne, with an euill eye grudged at any partners; cohibited them by undermyning wiles, lies, pretenses; prohibited by open Proclamations; inhibited by confi scations and surprizals, attended with Chains. Fetters, Prifons, Tortures, Famine, and manifold Deaths. God beloe the man that comes under the Plurima mortis 30 power of Couctou [nesse: an ouer-drie, euer-thirstie fire of Hell, kindled from thence, and burning thuber, imagefill flaming on the Altar and before the Idol of the golden Calte, and kindling there (that is in the cone- The Gordian tous mans heart) (uch zeale of that denotion, that he knowes not , hates , perfecutes , what sever stands knot. in his way; and if he be able, answeres all objections with Ius in armis, like another Alexander, chopping that knot infunder by force, which neither wit, learning, nor Religion could entrye. After these battalions of the Fleth and the World, the Deuill followes in the Rere, (though as Generall of the Field.

milicet) His Standard is advanced by Pride, which having cast Angels out of Heaven, and Man out of Paradise, would dispossesse Mankind of Humanitie, Christians of Societie, the inst Merchant of his Trade, and the World of Inflice. Hence inordinate confusions, and the confused confounding orders of 40 contentions, (onely by pride doe men make contention) combustions, supplantings, neglects, con- Pro13.10. tempts, scornes, indignations, vexations, persecutions, exultations, infultations, infolencies, cruelties, hells. He that puts off himfelfe in drunkennesse, and puts on the world in couetousnesse, shall lose both, and find the Deuill, readily blowing these parker of Hellwith the Bellower of Pride (the duitions of Ruben are great thoughts of heart) still both he and they are encompassed with the vn- jud, 5.15.

be generally infuseth himselfe, totamque infusa per artus Mens agitat molem & magno ie corpore

quenchable flames of Hell. Drunkennesse began with Bantam frages, (search the Authors in the former storie, ) Conetousnesse proceeded with probibition of profitable Trade, where somer it could hinder: and with the helpe of Pride, raped Soueraigntie, and reaped an enforced Inviduition, violently exercifing the same against all gain-fayers.

This, as in other places, so principally in Banda. There the Stage of this Tragedie, and out of that bur- The parcels 50 ning hill this burning hell of Diabolicall fires first (as is faid) seemed to breake forth; the first originall summed and beginning with Apostacie (as you have heard )in some Dutch Fugitives which perhaps to escape descrued a true account nilbment, denied that which they never had, Faith. Secondly, others in uniust Iustice punishing the same given of the with murther (expressing Piety with oppressing Impiety, blind Zeale being a hell five indeed, a burning cause of the fire without any (hining light.) Thirdly, the Bandaneles in their supposed sanctitie of Religion profa- warres ours ned and Santtuarie of their Priests house violated, see no meane in revenge, and repent at leisure what and theirs. was done in hasty furie. Fourthly, this being somewhat composed, and peace made (when Resenge is asleepe) Conetonskesse awakes, and in cold blond, by force (which intreatie could not procure) erects a Fort (that is, a Prison to the Libertie, a Store-house for the Wealth, and a Gibbet for the neckes of the Inhabitants, ) that I omit the supposed sacriledge and wrongs to their Meskits and Sepulchres. In the 6; fift place, they mable to renenge by force, borrow helpe of treacherous fraud (dolus an virtus quis in notte requirit!) and kill Verhuef and the Dutch. This being pursued by Warres, is sodired a little while by Peace, but (for ought is extant) neuer kept on either fide, and the Dutch continued Mafters in their Holds, the Natines elsewhere. Which yet prouing burthensome to them (as the Dutch know, other Nations have done) they finght protestion of the English, and upon Composition surrendred them

The Relation of the Priest of Poolatoone, touching the beginnings and occasions of quarrells betwixt the Dutch and Bandaneles, written in the Malayan language with his owne hand, in a very faire Arabecke letter, and the sense rendred to me in English by M.Rob. Haies.

His is the beginning of contentions betwixt the Hollanders and the Bandanefes. Two Hollanders ranne from them and turned Slammes or Mahumetans, and in the Priests houseat Nero were flaine by three Hollanders , which in reuenge were flaine by the Natines , who flayd 20 not there, but in the fury flew other three Hollanders. This was ill done of them, to adde a double reuenge. Soone after the Generali of the Hollanders came thither with thirteene ships, and demanded satisfaction for the slaughter of his Countrimen. The Bandaneses offered Diet (that is, the wonted satisfaction there vsed for man-slaughter, in money) for those last three. But the Generall answered, that he came not now to demand satisfaction, but to make peace and league with them, which was done. The next yeere came another Holland Generall. Peter william for Verbuef, with fifteene ships into the Hauen of Nero, and asked leave to fet vp a Fort at Taniung Ratoo, or Ponie Ratoo, which the Bandaneses granted; but then he refused it and demanded leave to erect a Fort in another place at Tanung Minangis, which they refused But he comming before the Castle of Nero, with his ship and Ordnance, terrified the inhabitants, which fled away, and he possessed the Castle, and fortified there. Then did the Bandaneses subtilly diffemble friendship, and shew the Generall, and sifteene Captaines, with others about one hun-

A discourse of HEnce the Warres betwint the Dutch and Bandaneles: and hence the Warre so portentions in those warres, the midst of peace (not betwint the two Nations their Princes and States, which hold confedentially the states of the stat and the effects racie and amitie, but ) betwixt our Merchants and theirs, our Mariners and theirs, our Sea-Commanwith their cau-fes, his hype-fes, brishype-ment in a medicino of those fiercer Nations, changing their conditions more then their complexions, transling tented in a from themselues in so farre Nauigations, putting off with their warmer clothes in that botter Climate, 40 their solid vertues putting on Heathenish qualities with their commerce; putting up fierie ferity with their hot Spices, putting out in great part humanitie, civilitie, Christianitie, in those various Currents and diversified Seas, Shoalds, Ilands. And who can but be amused and amazed with wonder at such prodigious transformations, that so neere Neighbours in Region, (parted with a narrow Channell) neerer yet in long focietie of Armes, (fealed with so many lines and deaths against one enemie,) and neerer then all names of neerenesse, in the neerest, deerest, and sweetest of names, Religion (both professing in substance one Reformation, ) that this threefold Cord bath beene so eatily broken; their retormation in Religion become a deformation of Religion among it unbeleeuing Ethniks and mijbeleeuing Papists: their following the same Armes by sea and land become a trayning to greater harmes to each other by sea and land : that propinquitie of dwelling should make remotenesse of Neighbourhood; 10 and what neither Portugall policies, nor Infidell treacheries could doe, themselves might doe, to their owne undoing with their owne hands; and the hearts of both Nations at home might bee in danger of discioning, by the discionted parts and Fattions abroad; the sparkes of that are of Hell seeming berts Relation, to breake out at Goun Apec with that terrible Earthquake before mentioned, unto a more terrible heart-quake, there to fet that world on fire, and here to endanger this. Spiceres have been hereby turned to Speares; Wares (with addition of a canine letter) to Warres; Words (with a new hilling found from that old S. rpent) into Swords; Ships charge of fo many Tunnes in freigh: to discharge of so many Gunnes in fight; Merchants to Martialists, exchanging their gayn-good (or gayn-god) Mercury, for those payn-gods or deuils Mars and Mors, or that wonted function which Poetical Disunitie ascribed to Mercury, of patronising Merchandise, for that other of conducting Soules to Hell. Hercules 60 hath brought up Cerberus that Hell-monster, and set him unchained on the Indian shoares, with the three Infernali Furies crowning his triple head; and hence have me had this Hell voor Earth. Such is Watte, and especially when the sonnes of Peace make Waves, when unchristian Coristians watre together: when the fonnes of God fee thefe faire daughters of men (the riches of Infilial) and take selnes to his Maiestie. The English name before distasted, was now detested and contemned of the Dutch, (who before had growne strange, and with whom bralls and factions had not beene strange, to. wards ours, with hindrance of Trade and the like) they seize our stips, goods, men, and vietbem as After which the English pretend by inst force to recover what by uninst force they had lost, and Sir

* They tooke Thomas Dale long after *, with Captaine Pring and others fought by offence to defend: wherein their

promesse at first succeeded, but their missoriumes after exceeded, in the casuall burning of the Blacke Lion, and in the death some after of a more heroike Lion, Sir Thomas Dale (whose valour baning shi-1616. the Salo- ned in the Westerne, was set in the Easterne India; so farre as Death can be a solftice to Honour, whose mos and dited to loffe the loffe of the Sunne, at Engano feemed to prefage) after which followed the surpriscall of source 10 1613.113.3 peeus jusp an warre so prepared to take their opportunities of dispersed, busiced, emprousided Merchants. I would I could not adde, spolia ampla referris, except in another sense. But the Companies of both Na-Dales first light and their wifer Governours at home came to a composition, and agreed on Articles of Peace which Lion of theirs was on both fides there (alreadse wearied) received with ioy, and published with approbation. All this was in Decem. notwithstanding, in the midst of this calme and faire weather, there arose a new storme at Banda, which as a beautifull and rich Eride was enuied to English Armes, and Seemeth by the cryes on both sides , to haue beene lately raufhed from her new Husband, vowarned, vnarmed, I know not whither by greater force or fraud; or whither might cause greater indionation, the seizing on the English sellowes and friends the Bandancles, with their owne goods and bodies also, cassing downe their Colours and Ord-friends the Bandancles, with their owne goods and bodies also, cassing downe their Colours and Ord-nance, and abusing their persons, in one place; or the lesting should in another, their Fore, see a face to be Showne in derision, when the Bird was fled or stolne away. This now remaynes, that violent things remayne no: and are not v sually permanent; and (we doubt not ) the bright beames of bis Maiesties prudence and instice with the mature wisedome of Prince Maurice bis Excellencie, and the Illustrious Lords Governows of the united Provinces, Bining on those troubled Indian waters, will like the Great GOD out of darknesse bring light, and chassisfe the wrong dates; nor will permit Personall quartes to become Nationall, or Indian brasse of Merchants to become Nationall, or Indian brasse of Merchants to become European broyles for Souldiers, but cause the remotest Members to communicate in the Heads amitie and foundnesse. This they will doe, this they doe; how some? and it is done, and Amantium ire amoris redintegratio. Nulla falus bello, pacem te poicimus omnes. Amen.

AdmirallofSiz 634. at the He

> Hat it may appeare that we doe not impute the former wrongs to the Holland Nation in generall, nor feeke to make a State-quarrell with the States, Lords, Gouernours, and the estate of that Republike; but attribute the same to private spirits and mis-demeanure of some in authoritie and place of command in the indies, I have added a piece of a Booke translated out

* The former books which prougth this I haue omitted, purpole.

Ill gouern-Dutch Indian Commanders

Secking their

 ${f C}$  O * as the Admenturers have gained nothing neere the simple interest of sixe and a quarter per cent. Oper ann. and ordinary afforance. By this may be gathered what profits the Adventures have ininjed, and how thankefull they ought to be to the Maiors.

Now as concerning the government, it is a thing certaine, that be it good or bad, the profits arife acas lette to our cordingly, for we daily see and find that by negligence and ill government, a great estate is some brought to nought: and on the contrary through a good aligent and provident governing, great gaines arise out of a small flocke or meanes: whereas during all this Patent, so little profit ariseth, though great gaine is ord navily to be made in the East Indies , so as hereby may well be concluded that the same must be so, by reason of the directing or governing the same.

Now as concerning the well gouerning: First of all, is required a good understanding and experience, which I persuade my selfe hath beene and is in many of the Maiors without all doubt, but that is not enough, except there be care & diligence withall. But what care and diligence can be expected from them, who are so continuall, imployed in their publike Office and functions, besides their particular affaires, that they can scarce once or twice in a weeke, spend a few houres in this weightie businesse, which indeed hath need of a constant and continuing sale according as the greatnesse and importance thereof requireth? Grc. Further, is required in enery Major that he by all meanes feeke to procure the common good of that which is committed to his charge, and not his particular: but how or wherein have they hitherto fought the common good of the Companie, so long as they take a libertie to sell the Companies goods vnto themselnes, in which sale they no doubt seeke their owne particular profit, and not the Companies. At sometimes one Maior buying the Companies goods of another Maior; and at another time it happeneth quite contrarie, viz. that he which was at first the buyer is now become the seller to him that formerly was the feller himselfe : one may well consecture bow these things are thus carried, by such, who it may be 60 are not so honest as they should be; what hindrance hereby befalleth the Aducaturers, and what profits to the Maiors, one may well coniecture by the small profits which the Aduenturers have made, and the great wealth which the Mairs have attained onto. When as the M was have bought great quantitie of the Companies goods for themselves, is to be imagined what kind of Adviso they will fend to the Indies concerning fuch goods as themselves have bought, & whether their adusse shall not tend to their particular profits, &c, For might one peruferheir Bookes, no doubt thereby would be found, that many among them have little or no adventure at all with the Company, and it would plainely appeare; that their pro- The Majors sulfon or factory concernes them neever then the profit of the flocke they have there to reflect, and there- have httle or uison or factory concernes them neever then the profit of the stock in the little factory concernes them neever then the profit of the stock in the comhave beene sufficient for Conquest, and fewer for trade from Port to Port: whereof that fleete which went panie. through the straight of Magellane was one, which fleet alone did charge the Company with more then a Capitall. It is likewise the practise of these kind of Maiors, (knowing the choice to be in their owne powers) to prefer their friends and kindred to the government, & excluding those that are great Adven- Preferring 10 turers, take oftimes fuch as are none, but fuch as when they fland in nomination to be, doe then be- their friendsto gin to buy conditionally so they are chosen, then their buying to stand : but if not, then the bargaine to be Southament. voyd : what good ferwice the Company is to expect by fuch nimbling may well be coniectured. Besides, they ofitimes preferrether friends, to be fent as Committees and other Officers to the Indies, although very Committees unfit thereto, whereas it highly concerneth the Company, to have both honest and fit persons there, for her by their T bardly can is be imagined the great wrong which the Company have sustained, therow the having so hase- procurer ent. by vild, and proudly infolent Committees in the Indies Further, what loffe the Company is put varioby the Great ships. building of so great and costly ships (each Chamber striking which shall make the greatest ship, and all for Their employgreat flowage, to cause the greater returne to be brought into their chamber, thereby to procure to them- mint. Jelues the greater factory or provision) carnot well be imagined : for as well might it be done with lesser, and ships not so costly, and so the more stocke to be imployed in Trade, or otherwise to free themselves of 20 their interest money which great sips, are parily veed to carry wood and stone in the Indies for the building of the Fort lacatra, Some being worne and Spent there So as indeed one might have done as well betweene this and the Indies, with halfe as many oreat foips. Alfo many summes of gold have beene front in the making of dixers coffin Forts & Castles in the Indies, the wals being all of stone, being King-like works, whereas to have made them of Earth, as thethey are here in our Countrey the Netherlands , had beene as viefull for keeping the Trade from other Committies of forgaine Lands : so had this needlesse charge beene employed in Trade, might have admanced the Companiemore then a Capitall. Also the Companie Male contents bath freely indured some loss, by reason of the complaint of those persons, who having done the Compa-iccking forneen grees wanted joint little orno Salary for the same. Whereby is befallen that some have put ment. 30 themselves into the service of other Companies of forraine Lands, &c.

CHAP. XVI.

Extracts of a lournall of a Voyage to Surat and to Iasques in the Persian Gulfe, set forth by the East India Societie of Merchants : wherein were imployed foure new ships ; the London, of eight hundred Tunnes, and therein AND REW SHIL-LING chiefe Commander of the whole Fleet; WILLIAM BAF-FIN Master; the Hart, of fine hundred Tunnes, RICHARD BLITHE Master; the Roe Bucke, of three hundred, RICHARD SWAN Mafter; the Eagle, of two hundred and eightie, CHRISTOPHER BROWN & Master. Written by RI. CHARD SWAN.

He fixe and twentieth of Februarie, 1619. all our Fleet fet faile from Tilbury Hope. The twentieth of Aprill, 1620. about eight degrees North latitude, we begin to have a tafte of the Turnados. From the Downes hither we might alwayes have carried a top gallant faile. The ninth of May, we croft the Aquator. We would have croffed it more Easterly, but the Current and Winds would not permit. The tenth of June, wee faw great flore of Fowle. And on the three and twentieth, wee had light of Soldania Road, and anchored there the next day. Here wee found the Lion homeward bound, and nine Dutch ships bound for Bantam; their Commander Nichellas van Baccum a Gentleman, which by report fued feuen yeeres in Oxford. After kind Nicoan Bac-Sea-falutes, the next morning the Lion and the Dutch departed, each their way; and the fame com an Oxford Sea-Jaintes, the next modeling the Line and the decimal which being impected, by both Admir-enning armed the Schidam of Delph outward bound, which being impected, by both Admir-ralls, the Matter was fent for, his Committion examined, and good identification guesa. The third king laters his of Iuly was made a folemne publication of his Maiesties Title to Soldania: and on the fewenth Title to Solda. King James his Mount erected. The three and twentieth, I had a Cable of eleven inches spoiled mia publified. 60 with other hurt, and the Hart had a great deliverance, two of her bell Anchors breaking at once: and the Eagle broke two Cables. The fine and twentieth, we fet faile.

Note, that if at any time you have occasion to ride vader Fenguin lland, you bring the Nor- Note for such therne end thereof West by South, or within halfe a Point on either fide thereof and anchor a- as goe into bout a mile from the necreft part of the fland, in ten, eleven or twelve fathoms, white and gray Sellaria Road.

Hand Raff.

Baterala.

Dabul.

Damen.

724

fand. Having a little passed the Cape of Good Hope, being much Wind at North-west North Note for troub. North-weit and North, the Sea was exceedingly troubled, and went so vpon heapes by the Notion Sea at meeting of the North-west and South-east Ocean, that it laboured our ships to the triall of all

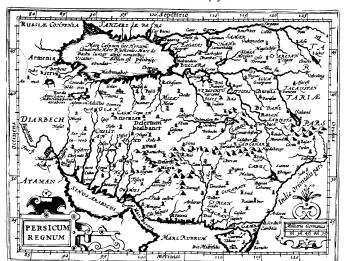

From the eight and twentieth of September, to the first of October, we were hindred eleuen or twelte minutes enery day by a Current to the South latitude, from one to fine degrees thirtie two minutes North. The fewenth of October, latitude nine degrees and fiftie minutes North. Their foure and twentie houres, I have come over the Hand Raff (one of the Mamales) as it is placed in my Card. Note, that every day fince we were in fixe degrees North latitude, we have leene land Fowles, as Castrells, Quailes, Martins, Butter-Hyes, but not any Sea Fowle. The 10 nineteenth, we were due West from Batecala fixe leagues off, depth two and twentie fathoms ozie fand. The twentie two, at fixe in the morning, wee were thwart of Goa four leagues off. the latitude is fifteene degrees and thirtie minutes, rather lesse then more. The fixe and twentieth, we put into Dabul Road in seventeene degrees and thirtie soure minutes, and stayed till the second of Nouember, our men refreshed and recourred, and the two ships for Persia well prouided. The fixt, the Hart and Eagle, eight leagues from the high Land of Saint lobus, tooke their leaue of vs. The seuenth, latitude twentie degrees sixteene minutes. Now are we truly Welt from Damon fixe leagues off, depth eighteene fathoms. The ninth in the morning, we anchored in the outter road of Smally, where we found the Wappen van Zeland, a ship of one thousand Tunnes. At our comming shee tooke in her flagge and falured the London with three peeces, 20 and the Ree Bucke with two. I was fent on shore and found Master Thomas Kerridge President, Master lames and Master Hopkinson, whom I brought aboard. The next day, a consultation was holden for our speedie dispatch after the Hart and Eagle; foure Portugal Gallions attending at Ormus or Iafques Road for their furprifall. The nineteenth, after bufinefie dispatched, we set falle towards Jaquer. The one and twentieth we descried a thip, which yeelded without relitance; Her name, Nostra Semma de Marces, neere two hundred Tunne, come from Museaue,

A Peringall

HONDIVS his Map of Perlia, bound for Chaul, in her two and fortie Arabian Horses, being her principall lading (as built for that purpose) the residue Dates and Raisins : the Captaines name Francisco Mirando

CHAP.16. Preparation for a Sea-fight of foure English flibs.

The fift of December, latitude foure and twentie degrees fiftie five minutes, we met the Hart and Eagle comming from lafques towards Surat , not being sufficient to encounter the Portugal forces there attending, to ruine our Mafters Persian Trade. Thus happily relioned wee made hatte towards lafques to accomplish our delignes. The eight, at their owne earnest follicitation, we fet all the Portugalls and Moores on land, except fome Sea-men Moores whom we detay ned for our fernice, and the Pilot which mildoubting hard measure, intreated to flay. The tenth, the Lords Supper was administred aboard the London. The twelfth, the men who voluntarily undertooke to burne the Prize aboard the Portugalls Admirall, were put aboard her in the night. The thirteenth and fourteenth, the wind against vs. The fifteenth, we had fight of the East Point 10 of Land in Ialques Road, which hath upon it a Tombe or an old square flat House, bearing West North-west, by Compasse twelve miles off. So then from Din Head to this Point, I make the longitude by the plaine ordinarie Sea Chart, nine degrees fiftie five minutes and three fifth parts. and by Mercators projection, ten degrees and one and fiftie minutes. From this place wee might different the Portugall men of Warre fet out from Liebone; whose Fleet confifted of two Portugall Gallions one bigger then the London; and two Flemmilh thips, one as bigge as the Hart; the other leffe then the Eagle : Their Generall Ruy Frere de Andrado, Iohn Boralio Vice-admirall, the Flemmings were commanded by Antonio Musquet and Baltazar de Chaues.

The fixteenth in the morning, our Admirall with the Mafters of his Fleet went aboard the Prize, and carried two Barrells of powder, tome Tarre, and other combuffible prouitions, intending with her to lay the Portugall Admirall thwart the halfe to burne together. Thus fitted, we Dore up with the men of Warre, but it fell calme, and the Current fet vs to neere them that they reached vs with their Ordnance. All night we kept under faile. And in the feuenteenth, being by reason of the Land-turne to leeward of them; they weighed and made towards our Fleet, which attended their comming, albeit they had and carefully kept the benefit of the wind. A- The fight, bout nine the fight began, which continued nine houres without intermission. In the afternoone (a fine gentle Westerly Sea-wind blowing, and we to windward of them) their Admirall, whether of necessitie to repaire some detect about his Rudder, or of policy for some concented ftratagem, anchored; and to the Eastward of him, his Vice-Admirall and the greater Flemming; the leffer to leeward of all stopping his leakes. Now were wee in great hope of our fire defigne, which yet being too foone fired and forfaken of those which had it in charge, prooued fruitrate, driving cleere of all their thips to their reioycing, our difgrace and our Imployers loffe. 30 We feeing them abide at anchor, and keeping the wind of them, turning to and againe close ahead of them; raked them, especially their Admirall, thorow and thorow, fore and after, with all our broad fides, receiving from them only their Praw and Bow Peeces. Out of whom as I passed to the North, two vnfortunate shots cut a-funder the Robuckes weather-leech ropes of her forefaile and fore top-faile in the middle depth of both failes, which renting we could not make her stay, but were inforced for reparation of our failes to beare up to leeward betwixt them & the shoare. In which time their three greatest ships played vpon vs with their whole broad fides, yet, God be prayfed, with leffe hurt then I could have imagined. Thus having compaffed the three last mentioned thips, and luffing to re-ioyne with our owne Fleet (which all this while holding the benefit of the wind played vpon the Portugals with their great Ordnance, as fast as with to many Muskets) I had gotten to wind-ward of the smaller Flemming: who standing off as I did, vntill he had brought the fired ship directly betweene him and me, then turned taile and fleered with all the failes he could make right afore the wind, along ft the shoare to the Eastward : whom to refcue, the other three fet faile, now to gentle, that the Hart pathing along their broad files; received from fome of them few, from others none, either great or small shot. But our Fleet at prefent reunited, delifted their further chafe, the darknesse of the night, and the generall wearineile, challenging a furcease from so toylsome a worke : and anchored after midnight in their (before) viuall Road. In this fight the London and Hart received very little hurt in their huls and tackling; leffe or none among it their men. The Eagles mayne Mait was thot in five places, whereof four quite to thorow : and one Iohn Bancees lost his right arme. I in the Robucke, had one Edward Browne flaine with a great flot thorow his head; a piece of whose skull together with some splinters of the fame that, wounded Matter Thomas Waller one of my Mates in the fore-head to the lefte of his left eye: also John Phenix and Robert Hopworth loft the vie of their right hands. Neuer (God be pray fed) did I heare of folittle hart in folong a fight, as we had on our parts. I cannot truly particularife their hurts, by report of our Merchants, Iohn Boralio their Vice-Admirall and another Captaine were flaine; with thirtie or forty Portugals out of their Admirall (for Moores they account not in the number of their men) the reit vnknowne.

The eighteenth in the morning, wee had fight of the Portugals at anchor ten miles to the East 60 of vs: they had the wind faire to come to vs, but did not. Whereupon we had a generall conference, whether it might be fitter with the first of the Sea-turne (beginning viually about noon) to fland with them and try it out for the Maffery (before they could have happly from Ormus or Muskat, or expected ay le from Goa) or elie to make faile for Iafques Road, there to land

Portugall fup-

our monies and goods (for farprifall whereof they fought and we defended) and this later was concluded. Thither the London attayned that night: the rest rode a league without, The two and twentieth, descrying the Port Galliones open of the Read, to come in as wee supposed with the Sea turne, we hasted and stood off with them. They steered directly towards Ormu, till they met with two or three Frigats from thence with supply of men and munition, which having shipped, they made toward vs but soone repented, and clapt vpon a tacke, and till the eight and twentieth, were either to windward, or fo at anchor that without difaduantage wee could not attempt them. Wee tryed on Christmasse day, but were inforced backe with a present encounter of agust, which made some Blacker aboord vs, say, that the Port had brought a Witch from Ormus to serue them with faire winds. On Innocents day perceiving the drift of our Fabius Cunctator, we took the oportunitie of an Easterly gale, weighed and put things 10 in order for fight. The London and Hart next anchored within a Cables length and halfe from them upon their broad fides, and to indured the hottest burthen of this second dayes fight. For no sooner were they at anchor, but it fell calme and so continued all day, insomuch that the Robucke and Eagle (who had fleered neerer the shoare with intent to anchor, one you the Bow of the Port-Admirall, the other on the Bow of their Vice-Admirall) beeing Easterne, could not with any diligence come to doe any service in halfe an houres space. And no sooner were wee within the levell range of our Ordnance from them, then (there beeing not a breath of wind, and the current against vs) we were driven to anchor or drive further off. But our broad sides once brought vp, the great Ordnance from our whole Fleet playd so fast upon them, that had 20 our mens knowledge equalled their resolutions, not one of them liad escaped vs. How ever, loth to receive a Supper as hot as their Dinner, at three a clocke they cut their Cables and drove The flight and with the tyde (then fetting Westerly) vntill they were out of our reach. Then came their Frigats to them (which the day before had domineered with their Musicke, pendants and flagges along it the shoare, now with a fitter taske) to tow them away all mangled and tome. For their Admirall in the greatest fury of the fight, was inforced to heeld his ship to stop his leakes, his mayne-top-mast ouer-boord, and the head of his mayne Mast. The greater Flemming had both his top-masts and part of his bow-sprit shot away: the lesse having neuer a shrowd standing, ne-

The Vice-Admirall (which both dayes did vs most hurt) escaped best, having commonly this day one or other of their ships twixt him and vs. We kept them company all night in hope the next morning to have given them their paf-ports, but furueying our fhot and finding small store left (notwithstanding that by some happy mistake, the Eagle had a double proportion) and confidering the Voyage which we had to performe, we returned : and left them glad men, the two greater ships towing the two smaller at their sterne. Their slayne I heard not: Ours lost in the London slaine, Henry Crane, Iohn Gore; our Admirall and Peter Robinson dyed of their wounds afterwards. In the Hart, Walter Danie, William Hall, Iohn Muskat, and Edmund Okely were wounded but recouered. The great shot of seuerall forts spent, in the London, one thousand three hundred eightie two. Hare, one thousand twentie foure. Robneke, eight hundred and fifteene. Eagle, eight hundred, in all foure thousand twentie one. Captaine Richard Blith accor- 40 ding to the order (opening the white Boxe N 1.) facceeded our worthy Admirall : my felfe remoued into the Hart, Christopher Browne to the Robucke, and Thomas Taylor was made Master of the Eagle.

The fourteenth of Ianuary, having had for eight and fortie houres precedent continuall extremitie of raine (wind or raine being viuall here for three or foure dayes at the change and full, otherwhiles faire weather) we set faile from Iafques, where we had dispatched our businesse, to Surat, where we arrived the first of February following:nothing in our passage occurring worth recitall, fauing that the feuen and twentieth of Ianuary, wee furprized betwixt Din and the Sand heads, a small ship of warre called Nostra Seniora de Remedio, of burthen one hundred tunnes, Francisco de Sylua Captaine , with thirtie fine Portugals, and twentie fine Moores for 50 Sailers fet out by the Captaine of Din to gard their small Merchants ships from the Malabars. The men were dismissed, and the shippe kept for our vie, and called the Andrew. Shee had in her neyther meate, money, nor commodities, and fearle so many poore sutes as backes. The feuen and twentieth of February, we began to take in goods. The fift of March, the Eagle was fent downe to guard the Princes Iuncke, and to hinder her further lading till free leane and libertie should be granted for passage of Carts with goods, and other our provisions, which have beene restrayed fixe or seven dayes by the grating Governour of Ulpare; by which meanes no Cotton Wooll could come downe till our ship was full laden forward on. The fixteenth, upon notice that the Agra Caffila was robbed by the Decan Armie, refolution was taken to feeke restitution vpon the ships of the said Decan Prince and his Confederates in the action; 60 and the Red Sea intended for our thips wintering. The nineteenth, the Prince his Inncke was dismissed, the Gouernour of Surat having granted under his hand to supply our wants of Powder and shot for our money, with redresse for many other discourtesses.

Since

Since the fine and twentieth of March, till the fixt of Aprill, 1621. the windes have beene cutwardly, viz. South and South South-west and West, and from noone till mid-night blowne so hard that the great stuffe by the shoare permitted no businesse to bee done, except on the last quarter ebbe and first after floud. The seventh, we fet fayle. The ninth, the Eagle and Dutch Pinnaffe called the good Fortune, departed our Company, configned for Achen and Bantam: the London, Hart, Robucke and Andrew intended for the Red Sea, if not too late.

The first of May, the Andrew and our Boats surprized the Saint Antonio a ship of two hun- A Prise. dred tunnes, which we called the May-flower : her principall lading Rice taken in at Barcelor, whence the went to Goa, and the eight of Aprill, had fet faile for Mufcat and Ormus. By these to we understood that Ruy Frere de Andrado, was busie in repayring his foure ships at Ormus : C. that Don Emanuell de Afferedo, is departed about fiftie dayes past from Goa in his succour with Eman. Assaulte two Galliones; one whereof is the same in which the Vice-Roy was personally, when hee fent in supply fought with Captaine Domntons Fleet. The feuenth, in a calme we surprized the Iacintha small from Goa. thip built of a Frigat, from Mozambique bound for Goa : wee called her the Prim-rofe, Thence to the thirteenth, winds variable, calmes, raines. The May-flowre hindred vs much : and the Pilots either were malicious or blind : whereupon we refolued to trust to our owne endeauours to find an anchoring place, whence we might discouer some convenient Road for our safe riding till the ftrength of the Monfon were past, we resolved for Macera.

The second of June, we descryed Land and anchored in seventeene fathomes three miles off 20 shoare : here we found in foure or fine Pits, three quarters of a mile from the waters side, water in abundance. I had fortie tunne out of one Well, which we rolled downe in Hogsheads : the people tractable, little other refreshing. The latitude twentie degrees twentie minutes, variation seuenteene North-westing. The Date Trees by the watering place bare North-west by West, the other end of the Iland North-east halfe East fine leagues off.

The twelfth wee fet faile for the North-east end of Macera, and in the afternoone anchored in seuen fathomes in a faire Bay, cleane ground, a fast blacke ozie sand, the North-east point bearing South halfe a league off:the landing place West South-west two miles off: the Norther part of the Bay North by West soure miles off. The latitude twentie degrees thirtie minutes, variation seuenteene North-west. You may ride in this Bay from fine to twelve, in what depth you 30 will : an excellent, hungry, cold and healthfull place : but a tumbling, rolling Sea for ships: fresh water enough to be had in Pits digged, but except at the viual landing place, very ill to boate:

yeelding no better refreshing then the first, a few Goats and Lambes in trucke for Cannekeens. Whiles the Hart and Robucke were here resolved to stay till the Monsons sury were past; on the nineteenth, we fent Abdelauie an inhabitant of Macera, with Letters in quest for the Admirall as farre as Soar, which returned the fixt of July, with Letters of their being there at Soar, or Rolabelt (fo feuen leagues within Cape Rofalgate; their difficult watering at Tene, surprisall of Simons the the Natives

Chirurgion, and the Preachers Boy on Land by the Portugals and Moores, &c. The fixt of August, the Hart and Robneke set faile from Macera: the eight in the evening we anchored by our Admirall : this Road differing from Macera, in beeing calme, vitally cleere,

40 and by heat taking away the stomacke. The fifteenth set saile. The first of September a Boate of Chaul came aboord the Robucke, &c. The one and twentieth of November, our Fleet fet faile from Swally, and anchored before the The tagues

Barre of Surat. The feuen and twentieth at noone, n latitude twentie, and by judgement twen- Fleet of nine tie eight leagues from neerest Land : we tooke leaue of the lasques Fleet, consisting of the Lon- ships. don, Jonas, Whale, Dolphine, Lion, Rofe, Shilling, Richard and Robers.

The first of Ianuary we found our selues betweene lohanna and Mayotta. The nine and twentieth we anchored in Soldania Road : having beene from Surat hither nine weekes and three dayes, bleffed be God for our fafe and speedie passage. Heere wee watered, washed, fished in the River, buried our Letters, bought three Cowes, one Calfe, foure sheepe, all vnsauourie meate.

The third of February, we fet faile : the nineteenth, anchored at Saint Helena. Heere wee found the Wappen and the Holland Dutch ships: this last fell on fire the two and twentieth, with her Cloues taken in greene at Amboyna. There was another small Dutch ship. They arrived eleuen dayes before vs, and cannot in ten dayes more discharge and relade their damnified Cloues. The eight and twentieth, we let layle from Saint Helena: and the feuenth of June, 1622. an-

For further satisfaction touching the fight, I have added this Letter or Relation sent to the Company from the Chiefe of the Fleet.

Relation

Relation of the fight of foure English ships with foure Portugall ships, two GaL leats, and ten Frigats in the Gulfe of Persia, in the Monethes of December and Ianuary, 1620.

He London and the Robneke arriving at Surat the ninth of December, there understood that the Portugals had fent into the gulfe of Persia an Armado, purposely to attempt the Enghip thipping at their comming thither, whereupon it was forth-with resoluted by the English Fathors at Swar, & the Commanders of the about-named two ships, that they should apply themfelies to the gulfe of Persia, to re-ionne themselves with two other English thips, namely, the 10 Hart and the Eagle which parted from the London and Robucke, before their comming to Surar, and were gone directly toward Jasques in the said gulfe of Persia, and so the said London and Robucke let fayle from Suras towards lafques, the nineteenth day of November, and the first day of December following, they met with the Harr and the Eagle, about eightie leagues short of Is fauces, where all the foure ships ionning together, they received most certaine intelligence by a Portugall Frigat which they met, that the Portugall Armado confifting as aforesaid of four Gallions, two Galliats and about tenne Frigats, were attending them at the Easter end of Lafques Road, where the English ships must come, and so went along towards the same, where the fixteenth day they found the faid Portugall Armado, confifting in these particulars before named the Generall or chiefe Commander whereof is named Ruy Frere de Andrado, whom themselues 20 call the Pride of Portugall, the Vice-Admirall Iohn Boralio, and Inhabitant of Ormus, and late Admirall of those Seas, of the other two ships the Commanders were Anthonio Musquet and Balthazar di Chaues, this day procued calme, fo that it was night ere they came in shor one of

The seuenteenth of December, being the Lords day, wee intended to have sanctified his seruice being under faile a league to Sea-board of them, but about eight of the clocke with the Land turne, they weighed anchor and bore vp with vs , for whom (albeit they had the winde) we shortned faile and stayed neere about nine of the clocke, we joyned fight with them, which continued until the darknesse of the night justly challenged an end to so long and weary a work, they (like a kind Host to Strangers) leaving vs their anchoring place to lodge in, and retyred 30 fome ten or eleuen miles to the Eastward, there to amend and repaire themselues; wee cannot . truely particulate vnto you their hurts and loses in this fight, saue by reports of our Merchants, that Iohn Boralio their Vice-admirall, and the Captaine of one of the other thips, were flaine, with some thirtie or fortie men out of their Admirall, the rest yet vnknowne. The losse or hurt of our men in your own ships, the inclosed Note of this federateenth prefent, will make manifest. Thus for a time we were not diffurbed by our enemies, though by contrary winds we could not get into the viual Road before the twentieth current. The twentie one and twentie two, the most part of your goods was landed, and descrying the Portugall Gallions open of the Road, to come in, as we supposed, with the Sea-turne, we therefore let faile and stood off with them, but after some small shew of bearing up with the Sea-wind, they clapt upon a Lake, and were so 40 fortunate untill the eight and twentieth day, that either they being to windward we could not come at them, or elfe at anchor wee could not, without our great disaduantage, meddle with them.

The eight and twentieth, being Innocents day, both Fleets riding at the Easter Points of the Road, not a mile distant one from the other; we omitted no opportunitie to give battell to our wary protracting enemies, who, as by his working appeared, if hee could have anoyded fight, and by lingting delayes, and the benefit of his Frigats, have hindred vs from the profecution of your Persian designments, he attayned vnto the full heighth and scope of his imployments.

But about one of the clocke, the Lord fent vs a pretty gale, our Fleet weighed and put all things in order for to fight, the London and Hart next anchored within a Cables length from 50 them upon their broad fides, and so indured the hottest brunt of this two dayes fight, for no sooner were they at anchor but it fell calme and so continued all day, insomuch that the Roe Bucke and Eagle, who being somewhat a sterne and steering neerer the shoare, with intent to anchor one vpon the Bowe of the Portugall Admirall, and the other vpon the Bowe of the Vice-admirall, could not not withflanding all diligence vied, come to doe any feruice in halfe an houres space, but being come neere anchored, and all our thips so fitted to keepe our broad sides full vpon them. The great Ordnance out of our whole Fleet played fo fall voon them, that about three of the clocke in the afternoone, not willing to indure to hot entertainment, they cut their Cables and with the Tyde drone downe from vs , vntill being without reach of our Ordnance, their Frigats came and towed them away wonderfully mangled and tome, for their Admirall 60 in the hottest of the fight was inforced to heeld their ship to stop his leakes, his mayne top-mast ouer board, and the head of his mayne mast; the third ship both his top-mast, mizon mast, and part of his how frrit were shot away, the lester ship had never a shroud left standing, nor never a top-mast; the Vice-admirall escaped best, for most commonly hee had one or other of their

CHAP. 16. The Portugall fleet vanquisht and scattered.

Current, with what respect, solemnitie, and decency the time required.

thips betweene him and vs. All this night we kept them companie; with hope the next morning to have given them all, or some of them, their Palle-port, but surveying our shot and finding no great flore left, and withall confidering the great weight and import of the voyage we had to performe, we refolued our returne to lafques, tor the speedy dispatching of our bulineffe in hand, thanking God for putting our enemies to flight before vs, of whom vnto the prefent writing hereof we have heard no newes, neither are any of them arrived at Ormus or Muscat, as our Merchants report, only it is rumored by fome Caffaires, who by iwimming eleaped alhoare, that Ruy Frere de Andrado ' was flaine. All your ships, prayled bee God, remayne seruiceable, and not aboue fine men flaine on our part in thefe two long and great battailes, and not many * This protect 10 wounded, as by the Lift of their names here inclosed will appeare. Amongst whom our worthy notitue. Admirall and kind Commander, received a great and grieuous wound through his left shoulder with a great shot, which hurt hee with such courage and patience under-went, that gave great hope to vs all of his much withed recourse; but having besides his former wound two of his vppermost ribs on the left side broken; the fixt of Ianuarie, he departed this life, shewing himtelfe (as euer before) a resolute Commander, so in his passage through the Gates of death, a most willing, humble, conftant, and affured Christian, his pody we intended to have carried to Surat, and there according to his deferts to have performed his last funerall rights, the Chyrurgians confidently promiting by imbalming and waxe-cloth to preferue him without annoyance this ther, but not with standing this cost and their promise, his body, in regard of his great wound, 20 prouing noylome, we were enforced to bury him at lafques, which was effected the feuentla

The thirteenth of Ianuary, 1620, aboard the Ship London in laiques Road.

Vnder-written by all the foure Mafters of the foure Ships, Ri. Blyth. Rob. Swan. Chr. Browne. Will. Baffin.

VHiles we are publishing these things there are late newes of English Persian occurrents, as namely, that nine English ships have beeneing those Persian Seas, and together with the Persian have paid part of their Portugal debt : Chisman in three dayes being taken, the spoile divided betwixt them. Allo the Baffa of Xeras helped by the English both in feeting over his men, and in beleaging the Towne, hath in two dayes taken the Towne of Ormus, the Caftle holding out; though little hope remayned of it, their water and all hope of helpe being taken from them. The English haue won much honour and reputation of valour : and it they take it, (befides sharing the spoile) are to have the Castle committed to their keeping. They are said alfo to have taken a rich ship, called the Mosambique.

Part of a Letter written from Mr. Robert Smith to his brother Henrie Smith, relating of a rare attempt and exploit of a [mall English Pinnasse, in taking a Portugall ship.

TN our passage from Ioanna to this place, we lost sight of the Rose and Richard, but within sixe dayes 👤 after, the Richard came to vs with a Portugall prize at her sterne , which shee bad taken that night we lost her company. It is a wonder to tell it. The Richard being a Pinnaffe of about twentie Tunnes, manned with fourteene Men and Boyes, and having but two (mall Falconets in her, and the Port wall of two hundred and fiftie Tunnes, with two hundred and fiftie in her, whereof seventie were Portugalls, 50 the rest Mession and States: the Richard comming up with them plyed her demi. Dogs so well, that in the shooting off twentie shot, it pleased God they helled their Captayne, which the rest perceiums stroke all their (ailes amayne, and like tall men came aboard the Richard, fixe at a time, where the Master caufed them to be bound : but fearing to have too many aboard, though bound, he fent a terrible command to the rest abourd, that upon their lines they should depart their ship into their great Boat, which they very valiantly performed, and left their ship to the utter disgrace of themselves and all their Nation, &c.

Giles Hobbs his tranaile from Musco to Spahan, written in a Letter by him-Selfe to the East Indian Companie.

Right Honorable, nor dutie remembred, &c.

He fourth of October last past, a yeere since my arrivall at Spahan, your then Agent Master I Thomas Barker was then adulting for England, mentioning of my arrivall, and allo of his The Barker.

appointment to refend me so soone as he heard of the safe arrivall of your shippes, but it pleased appointment to take him from vs by a fudden death. Whose appointment was the first cause I omitted to write to your Honors; the second, a long & tedious sourney by lets on the Nolga, and also in this Land. The third cause, my Conuoy taken from me, and not suffered to paff: but with the Kings Carauan of Boats, for that the report was, the Coffackes did purpole to make fight with the Carauan, which proued the contrary, It wound be too long to trouble your patience to relate at large the accidents in this my iourney, wherein little happened worthy your notice or expediation, or my hopes to effect your delires. I will therefore briefly make re-

The eighth of May, 1619. Het off from Tenglane, and arrived at African the fixteenth of IQ Inne, from whence I purposed to take my journey and pussage for Timble, and from thence by the Emperours Post to passe the Cherkasses Countrey, and so for Spahan by Land. This passage I could not proceed of, but with the Emperours Carauan of prouifions which would not been twelue dayes : in the interim, I enquired when the Guilan Buffes would goe. The Mafters and Merchants promised fourteene dayes at furthest; so I resolued to passe in them.

The tenth of July, I fet off from Astracan, and by occasion of the Boats stay, to be cleered by the Searchers, it was the fifteenth dicto, our comming abourd the Buffe.

No Compaffe Spian Sca.

The eighteenth difto, the Buffe fet fayle fleering South till we made the Persian shoare, they vie no Compasse but direct their course by the Sunne, Moone and Stars.

The fixe and twentieth dieto, we made land, having great tempest of wind at North-east; the 20 land lying South and West; at evening the wind came of the land still increasing: the next day the Buffe loit her fayle from the yard, and for to fuccour her they hung vp figge baskets, couerlets and Cow hides, throwing great fiore of the lading ouer-boord; the first all our prouision, after the goods: this night we had small rest, the next morning the wind was out of the Sea, and it pleased the Lord to bring vs in betweene a small Hand and the mayne land, and both vs and the Vestell faued.

Callo; Sheray. Shomakee.

Gulin.

Ar devil.

Spaban.

The eight and twentieth, the Master and most of vs went on land, the place called Callop-Theray, no Inhabitants: the wind increased still, that untill the first of August, the Boate could not row aboord the Buffe. This day the Merchants valaded their goods, and the fift dillo, wee procured Hories for Shomakee, and arrived there the ninth diffe.

The Buffe bound her felfe for a Port called Bocks, to lade Neftiere she proceeded for Gulanthe 30 nineteenth of August, I departed with the Cafala from Shomakee, & atriued at Ardenill, the nine & twentieth of the same. The nin h of September, with the Cafala I departed Ardenil, & arrived at Spahan, the fourth of October, 1619. thus in briefe you may please to understand of my long iourney from Teraslaue to Spahan in Persia, no lesse then fine monethes, which, no doubt, might be done in eleuen or twelue weekes, if no lets in the way, as in these subsequents I shall declare.

The first passage is at the opening the River Volga, from Terassame to Aftracan, and so to Turkie by water, which may bee done in fine and twentie dayes, and from Turkie by the Emperors Three passages Connoy to Derbent or Shomakee, Cities under this King, and from those Cities to Ardenill and Cashin with Cafala, and from Cashin as they please to Spahan, the way cleere, and may bee effe-

The second passage is to come off from Yeraslaue the first of Inne untill the tenth delto, and if no let may be at Afracan, in eighteene or twentie dayes, in good time to take the first passage in the Guilan Buffes for Leggoints, a league from Laigon, and from Refts, from whence this yeares Silke was taken ieuen leagues, and from thence to Spahan, fixtuene dayes journey. This may proue the speedier passage, if it please God to lend tauourable wind to passe the Caspian Sea; from Astracan Sea passage is to be had in July, August and September:

The third passage, which no doubt, may bee procured by your Honours Agent there, is to have your Letters tent from Musco, by the Emperours Polt to the Governour of Astracan, to Send the faid Letters, if ouer land, to the Chan of Shomakee, to be fent to the English Nation at Spahan, by the Chans Port, if by Sea to Guilan to the Governour of Refit, accordingly to bee fent to the English at Spahan : the charge to beedefrayed by your Honours Agents, and no doubt, so long as you have here Trade, your Letters by these Governours will bee safely definered : and for the better lafetie of them, the Agent may at his next going to the King, procure two Firmans to those Governours to that effect; and thus much for the needfull transport of your Letters from Musco to Spahan in Persia.

I will now returne and speake something of the Trade at Astracan. the Mare beginnethat the arrivall of the Boats which is in lune; at which time the Persians come in, and bring dyed Silke, Dorogoes, Callicoes and other Persian stuffes, which they fell by retayle and in barter. The Commodities they returne are cloth, but no (great quantitie) Sables, Martens, redde 60 Hides, Cauiare, Butter, the hinder-part of Horse Skinnes, for Leather, and olde Russe Money which they buy at fortie foure and fortie fixe d per robles for exchange. These are the Commodities likewise the Russe transports whereon he makes small profit the olde money failing, and your Honours Trade here will prejudice him much, if not quite ouerthrow his

CHAP.16. The making of Cautare and Ising las. Persian Trade.

In my Passage on the Volga, I held nothing worthy notice except the taking the Sturgeon, and the making the Cauiare and Hinglaffe. The River they pale in from banke to banke, that no Sturgeon paffe up or downe the River, but they fall in the weeres. The Roe they lay in falt Making of Fourteene or fifteene dayes, then take and wash the sale of them, and packe them in the Fat. Causare. The fat Sturgeon hath a yellow Roe, which they packe vp as it commeth to hand, which Roe Thoyleth all that lyeth neere it and much hindreth the fale of the Causare at our Markets. The Ifinglas is made of the firing taken out of the Sturgeon's backe. This weater the But of Causare Ifinelas. fold a five roller the fundred, and fixe robler.

Gentlemen, I am bound by Commission to aduize how many dayse from Arash to the Casi-

10 an Sea and to Aftracan. From Araft to Derbenta Port Towne feuen dayes journeyt This Port Araft lyeth opposite to the Ruser Valga, and may be jayled in flue dayes. All other places where the Debat.

Kings Silke is made, lye negte the Sea, as Rolles, Peomin, Shoft and Logade, in the Proxinct of Refu.

Guidan, the farthest eight leights from the Ports. In Nontendoun, is the Plantation for the Popin. making of Silke, and this yeare a good quantitie made, of which as yet hath never proofe beene Shoft. made for his goodnesse. Thus much for neverelle of the places where the Silke is made to the Levent Calpian Sea, by which your Honours may perceive how necessary the Silke doth lye for its transport by the way of the Volga, if passage might be procured from the Emperours of Masconia; whereas now they are carryed three moneths journey by land to the Post, and not without great charges and trouble, as by the generall adjuce you will well understand; to which I humbly referre you.

Gentlemen, this your Persian Trade, as it is in her infancy bath many Enemies, the Turke, Arabian, Armenian, and the proud Portugall, whole lying tongue ceateth not to diffionour our Kingdome and Nation, but the Lord, I hope, will turne the diffionour open his owner pare.

The ouerthrow of the three first Enemies must be by the presence of an Ambassadour heere, who, no doubt, would perfwade and pull downe the Kings now loftie price of his Silke as you will well find in this yearer Silke received, and no abatement to bee expected, but by freatie of an Ambaffadour, who hath beene expected and demanded for by this King : alfo to accord an as greement with the King for the Silke that is most in esteeme, and profitable for you; and as he is turned Merchant for fale of his Silke, fo likewife to be your Merchant for the good you thall yearely fend into his Land, at fuch prices as may countervaile the price he fets on his Silke. But I doubt, you will fay I paffe the bounds of my Committion or order in writing this briefer Rela-30 tion, of which might be spoken at large. But doubtlesse, not more then your grave wislomes doe foresee, or the better experienced then my selfe doe adusse, to which I humbly referre your Honours, praying the successe may proue to your hearts desires.

Gentlemen, I am forry, you thinke me not worthy to nominate me your feruant in your Letters, and more forry you write me feuerall names and not mine owne name, for which cause I haue beene a daily table foort by some, which of these names they may take for your Honours Seruant, others with me to returne and make my wages with you : and had I good occasion in your Honours employment I should bee very willing thereunto; but howsoeuer I referre mee to God and your Honours, not doubting, but you will deale as well with mee as others, and that I may not returne as promifed I willingly remayne your Honours oblieged feruant readie to vndo dergoe any your Affaires, defiring your Honours will please to nominate mee a certaine yeerely stipend for the time I shall so spend vntill my returne to your Honours , for which I shall bee bound to pray for your Honours helpe and happinesse in this World, and in the World to come eternall reft.

Your Honours may please that yesterday we received a Letter from the Agent from Port Iasques. A fecond Letter directed to Mafter William Bell and the rest at Spahan, adulting the truth as neere as they can be informed, the occasion of your Honours ships not arruall as yet; to which I humbly referre you. Being ordered also by the Agent that the Copie thereof should be dispeeded to your Honours, I have fitted those former lines, long by you expected, of a briefe Relation of my Journey from Yeraslane to Spahan in Persia, also the fittest time for transport of your So Letters to have speediest passage.

Since my arrivall here at Mina with the last Cafila of Silke, nothing hath happened worthy your Honours notice. We expect hoursly to heare the happy newes of the fafe arrivall of the thips at Port lafques, that wee may proceed thither with your goods, which God of his mercie grant, to whose bleffed tuition I euer commend your Honourrs, and rest, Mina, the thirteenth of December, 1620.

Your Honours obliged Seruant, 60

GILES HOBS.

CHAP. XVII.

A Discourse of Trade from England unto the East Indies: Answering to diners Objections which are v fually made against the same.

Written by T. Mun.

732

He trade of Merchandise, is not onely that laudable practise whereby the entercourse of Nations is so worthily performed, but also (as I may terme it) the very Touchstone of a kingdomes prosperitie, when therein some certaine rules shall be diligently observed. For, as in the estates of private persons, we may account that man to prosper and grow 50 rich, who being possessed of revenues more or lese, doth accordingly proportion his expen-

ces; whereby he may yeerely advance some maintenance for his posteritie. So doth it come to passe in those kingdoms, which with great care and warinesse do ever vent out more of their home commodities ; then they import and vse of forraine wares; for so undoubtedly the remainder must returne to them in treasure. But where a contrary course is taken, through wantonnesse and riot; to ouer-waste both forraine and domesticke wares; there must the money of necessity be exported, as the meanes to helpe to furnish such excesse, and so by the corruption of mens conditions and manners, many rich countrees are made exceeding poore, whilft the people thereof, too much affecting their owne inormities, doe lay the

Wherefore, industry to encrease, and frugalisie to maintaine, are the true watchmen of a kingdomis treasury; euen when the force and seare of Princes prohibitions cannot possibly retaine the same.

And therefore, as it is most plaine, that proportion or quantitie, must ever be regarded in the importing formaine wares; somust there also be a great respect of qualitic and use; that so, the things most necesfary to be first preferred; fuch as are foode, rayment, and munition for war and trade; which great bleffings, when any Countrey doth sufficiently entry; the next to be procured are wares, fitting for health, and arts; the last, are those, which ferue for our pleasures and ornament.

Now, for a much as by the providence of Almightie God, the kingdome of England, is endowed with such abundance of rich commodities, that it bath long entoyed, not onely great plenty of the things before named, but also, through a superfluitie, hath beene much inriched with treasure brought in from forraine parts ; which bath given life unto fo many worthy trades , among ft which that unto the East India by name: the report whereof, although it is already (pread to famous through the world: yet notwithstanding, here at home, the clamorous complaints against the same, are growne so loud and generall; that 10 (my felfe being one of the Society, it bath much troubled my private meditations, to conceive the meanes or true grounds of this confusion. But at the last I resolved my selfe, that the greatest number of these exclaimers are led away in ignorance; not having as yet discerned the mysteries of such weighty affaires: Some have beene transported with enuy, as not participating in the faid Society, or being thereby hindred (as they conceine) in some other trade; and others, wholy corrupted in their affections, who whill they willingly runne into these errors, doe also labour diligently to seduce others; that so, this good and glory of the kingdome, might be subverted by our selues, which by the policie and strength of Strangers, cannot to easily be obsted; wherefore, it is now a fit time to meete with such minitious courses, by a true Narration of the passages in the said East India Trade; answering to those severall objections, which are so commonly made against the same: That so these misunderstandings and errors, may be made knowne unto the 20 whole body of this Kingdome, which at this present time is most worthily represented to shose noble af-Semblies of the high Courts of Parliament; where I hope the worth of this rich Trade, Shall bee effectually inquired, and fo in the end obtaine the credite of an honorable approbation.

The first Objection.

Is were a happie thing for Christendome (say many men) that the Nanigation to the East Indies, by may of the Cape of Good Hope, had never been found out; For in the fleets of Thippes, which are fent thither yeerely out of England, Portugall, and the Low-countreves: The Gold Silver, and Corne of Christendome, and particularly of this Kingdome, is exhausted, to buy unnecessary wares.

The Answere.

He matter of this Objection is very weighty, and therefore it ought to be answered fully ; the which that I may the better performe , I will divide the fame into three parts. In the first, I will confider the necettary view use water, which like, In-ally brought out of East India into Europe, annely, Drugges, Spices, Raw-filke, Inparts. In the firth, I will confider the necessary vie of the wares, which are viudico, and Callicoes. In the second, I will imitate the manner and meanes by which the faid wares have been e heretofore, and now are brought into Europe. In the third and laft, I will prooue, that the treasure of England is not consumed, but rather greatly to be increased, by the performance of the faid Trade.

Touching the first, Who is so ignorant in any famous commonwealth, which will not consent The first part to the moderate vie of wholfome Drugges and comfortable Spices ? Which have been fo much concerneth to the moderate vie of whollome Drugges and comtertable spices? Which hade been 10 much the vie of indefired in all times, and by so many Nations, not thereby to surfeit, or to please a lickorish taste dien wares. (as it often happeneth, with many other fruites and wines) but rather as things most necessary to preserve their health, and to cure their diseases; even as it is most notably fet foorth by some Sir Thomas learned men, who have vndertaken to write vpon this subject ; and therefore it shall be altoge- Elisthis Cather needlesse here to discourse vpon their several operations and vertues, seeing that he that Reper India. lifteth, may be well instructed therein; if hee will peruse the Volumes which are penned by the new hishistory learned, for the benefit of all those who shall make vie thereof. But if peraduenture it be yet further veged, that divers Nations live without the vie of Druggs The Franch Aand Spices: the answere is, That either ich people know not their vertue, and therefore suffer cademic semuch by the want of wares so healthfull, or effe they are most miserable, being without meanes others. to obtaine the things which they so much want : but sithence I intend to be briefe, I will insist no further upon this point : For the Obiecters might aswell denie us the vie of Sugers , Wines, Oyles, Raylons, Figges, Prunes, and Currands; and with farre more reason exclaime against Tobacco, Cleth of Goldand Silver, Lawnes, Cambricks, Gold and Silver-lace, Veluets, Sattens, Tastataes, and divers other manifactures, yeerely brought into this Realme for an infinite value : all which as it is most true, that whilest we consume them, they likewise deuoure our wealth; yet neuertheles, the moderate vse of all these wares hath euer suted well with the riches and Maieilie of this Kingdome.

Pppp

I range and the Quantities of ued from Italy. France Italy, South Barbery, and other Countreyes,

But I will come to the raw Silkes and Indico, this being fo excellent for the dying of our I was come to the Law towns to the law of the state of the state of the world; that ornament, to women counts, the great reliefe and maintenance of formany hundreds of poore people, who are gether with the great retort and middle, twifting, and weating of the fame: Infomuch, that by quantities of toutcoment, appropriate the control of the parties graciously pleased to performe, in wreight file, the comming of an advantage of the state of remitting the imposition of sharp and the state of the st ages) to divers states in Italy, and lately also to the Kingdome of France, and to the vnited connected the Low-country.

Now as touching the Trade of Callicose, of many forts, into which the English lately made 10. an entrance, although it cannot be truely faid, that this commoditie is profitable, for the flate of an entrante, among it cannot be the manifecture of Infidels, and ingreat part the Christendome in generall (in relipect they are the manifecture of Infidels, and ingreat part the ware of Christians) yet neuerthelesse, this commoditie likewise is of singular vie, for this common-wealth in particular; not onely therewith to increase the trade into formine parts, but allo thereby greatly to abate the excelline prices of Cambrickes, Holland, and other forts of Linnen cloth, which daily are brought into this Kingdome for a very great summe of money. And this shall suffice concerning the necessary vie of the Indian wares: In the next place, I will set forth the manner and meanes of their importing into Europe

The second part Sheweth the wares haue beene & now are brought in:o Europe.

Indico about

, 8. per cent.

It is an errour in those men; who thinke that the trade of the East Indies into Europe had first Sheweta use manner & the entrance, by the discouerie of the Nauigation by the Cape of Good Hope. For many yeeres be- 20 fore that time, the trafficke of those parts had his ordinary course by shipping from divers places in the Indies, yearely resorting with their waters to Mocha in the Red-Sea, and Balferain the Persian Gulfe: From both which places, the Merchandise (with great charges) were after transported ouer-land by the Turkes upon Cammels, fiftie dayes journey, unto Aleppo in Soria, and to Alexandria in Egypt, (which are in the Mart Townes, from whence divers Nations, as well Turkes as Christians doe continually disperse the said Wares by Sea into the parts of Europe:) by which courie, the common enemie of Christendome (the Turke) was Master of the Trade, which did greatly impley, and inrich his Subjects, and also fill the Costers of his owne Customes. Rates you all which he exacted at very high rates; But by the prouidence of Almightie God, the discourrie forts of Spices. of that Naugation, to the East Indies by the Cape of Good Hope (now to much frequented by the English, Pertugals, and Dutch; and also attempted by other Christian Kingdomes) hath not onely much decayed the great Commerce betweene the Indians and the Turkes in the Red Sea: and in the Persian Gulfe (to their infinite hurt, and to the great increase of Christian Trade,) but it hath also brought a further happinesse vnto Christendome in generall, and to the Realme of England in particular, for the venting of more English Commodities; and for exporting of a lest quantitie of Silver out of Europe vnto the Infidels, by many thousand pounds yearely,

And first, it will be necessarie to set downe the quantitie of Spices, Indico, and Persian raw Silke (which is yearly confirmed in Europe) and in them all to confider the cost with the charges to lade the same Commodities cleere abourd the ships from Aleppo; and the like of all the felie fame wares, as they have beene viually dispatched from the Ports of the East Indies; wherein will appeare that happinesse, which many doe so much oppose; especially our owne Countrey-men, under the gilded termes of the Common-wealth; whilest being indeed either ignorant, or ill affected, they doe not onely grofly erre themselves, but also cause others to hinder as this Kingdome much as in them lyeth, the glorie and wel-fare of this Kingdome; but leaving them, I will let downe the faid wares, in their quantitie and prices as followeth; and first, then hath beene accustomed in former times; as I shall prooue most plainely by that which fol-

Such people the good of raw Silke,

At ALEPPO, Sixe thousand thousand pounds of Pepper, cost with charges at two shillings the pound, six hundred thouland pound. Foure hundred fitte thouland pounds of Clones, at foure finllings nine pence the pound, cost one hundred fixe thouland eight hundreth feuertic flue pound tenne yeerely confu. shillings. One hundreth and fiftie thousand pounds of Mace at foure shillings nine pence the pound, cost there thirtie fue thousand fixe hundred twentie fixe pound. Foure hundred thoufand pounds of Nutmegs at two shillings foure pence the pound, cost fortie fixe thousand fixe hundred fixtie fixe pound thirteene shillings foure pence. Three hundred fiftie thousand of Indico, at foure shillings foure pence the pound, cost feventie five thousand eight hundred thirtie three pound, fixe shillings eight pence. One thousand thousand of Persia raw Silke at twelve faillings the pound, come to fixe hundreth thousand pound. The whole summe of all is 1465001. pounds, ten shillings.

Now follow the same wares both for quantitie and qualitie at their seuerall prices, as they 60 are to be bought and laden cleere of charges,

In the East INDIES,

Sixe thousand thousand pounds of Pepper, cost with charges at two pence halfe pennie the pound, fixtie two thousand five hundred pound. Foure hundred fiftie thousand pounds of Cloues at nine pence the pound, cost fixteene thousand eight handred seuentie fiue pounds. One hundred and fiftie thousand pounds of Mace, at eight pence the pound; cost five thousand pounds. Four elundred thousand pounds of Nutmegs, at four pence the pound, cost fixe thousand fixe hundred fix tie fixe pounds thirteene shillings foure pence. Three hundred and fiftie thousand The expertapounds of Indico, at fourteene pence the pound, coff twentie thousand foure hundred and fixteene pounds twelue shillings foure pence. Ten hundred thousand pounds Persia raw Silke, at lue of 953543.1 eight shillings the pound, cost source hundred thousand pounds. The whole summe of all is, sterling out of 511458 pounds, 5. fhillings, 8. pence.

So that by the fubstance, and fummes of these accounts it doth plainely appeare, that the buy-10 ing of the faid quantitie of raw Silkes, Indico, and Spices, may be performed in the Indies, for neere one third part of the readie moneys, which were accustomed to be sent into Turkey to prouide the fame : So that there will be faued every yeere the value of nine hundred fittie three thousand five hundred fortie three pounds foure thillings foure pence sterling, of readie moneys, that heretofere hath beene exported out of Christendome into Turkey: which is a matter of fuch note and consequence, that it may seeme incredible, before the circumstance be duely confidered; and therefore left I should leave the matter in doubt, it is requisite, that I doe make an explanation of some particulars.

CHAP.17.

And principally, it must not be conceived, that this great advantage which hath beene spoken of, is onely the Merchants gayne; for the Common-wealth of Christendome, hath a very great part thereof in the cheapnesse of the Wares, as shall be (God willing) proued hereafter 20 in his due place.

Secondly, the time of the Merchants forbearance and interest is very long; his aduenture and affurance much dearer; his charges of Shipping, Victuals, Mariners, and Factors their wages, farre greater then by the voyage into Turkey for the fame Wares : fo that the former great difference must be understood in these particulars: whereby we may perceive to our comfort, that the materials of the Kingdome, and the employments of the Subjects ( in lieu of readie mo. Inflance only, neys) becomes a very great part of the price which is payed for the laid Indian Wares: which lings imployed lings imployed cannot hurt the State (as some erroniously suppose) but greatly helpe it, as I shall better proue in Pepper in that which followeth. First therefore, I shew for an undoubted truth, That the Persians, Moores, and Indians, who will require rrade with the Turkeat Aleppo, Macha, and Alexandria, for raw Silkes, Drugs, Spices, Indico, thirtie and fine trade with the Turkeat Aleppo, Macha, and Alexandria, for raw Silkes, Drugs, Spices, Indico, thirtie and fine 30 and Callicoes; hauealwayes made, and fill doe make their returnes in readie money: for other charges what-Wares, there are but few which they defire from forraine parts; some Chamlets, Corrall, societ to delice wrought Silke, woollen Cloth, with fome trifles, they doe yeerly vent in all, not for about fortie unit in Loror first chouland pounds sterling; which is no valuable summe in respect of that wealth which don or here chomand points terring; which is not Persia for raw Silkes; when least, fine hundred tummes of thousand pounds iterling per annum: and from Mocha about fixe hundred thousand pounds money which fterling (likewife yeerely into India) for returne of Callicoes, Drugs, Sugar, Rice, Tobacco, the Perlians and divers other things. So here is still a very great commerce maintayned betweene those Infi- and the Indians dels; not onely for the Callicoes of many forts, and other Wares (which concerne their owne out of variety, vie) but also for the raw Silkes of Persia, which are altogether transported into Christendome. The East India How worthis an enterprise is it therefore in the English East India Companie by whole en- Companie doe deauours there is now good hope to turne a great part of this wealthie Trade into England, by endeauour to flipping directly from the Persan Gulle, whereby the employments, traffick, and Gustomes of bring the raw the Turkes, may be still more and more impaired, and the generall Treasure of Christendome much Persadicelle leffe contumed; as is already performed for the bufineffe of Spices and Indico. And who shall then doubt our want of Silver to maintaine the Trade? if by this way we doe Marcella senobtaine the Silke, which with more advantage and conveniencie will draw the money to this dethyeetely Mart , then it hath beene heretofore conveyed vnto those remote Dominions of the Tarke. And left peraduenture it should be thought, that the trafficke in those parts by the Christians 1. st 5000001.

for the Perlian Silke, is performed by change for other Wares, or by the money which procee- fterling, and 50 deth of the fales of many rich Commodities , which yeerely they fell at Aleppo , Alexandria, little or no Conflantinople, and these parts. The answere is, that neither the Venetians, French, nor Dutch, sends about doe vent to much of their owne Countrie Commodities in those parts, as doe prouide their ne- the value of ceffarie wants of the proper Wares of Turkes: fuch as are the fine raw Silke made in Soria, 100000 land Chamlets, Grograns, Cotten Woolls, Cotten Yarne, Galls, Flax, Hempe, Fleece Woolls, Rice, 2 great value Hides, Waxe, and divers other things; fo that full the raw Silkes of Persia, must be bought in wares. with readie money. Onely the English have more advantage then any other Nation in this tries tends akind : for they vent fo great a quantitie of Broad-clothes, Tinne, and other English Commo- bout the value dities, that the proceed thereof, doth not onely prouide a fufficient quantitie of part of the faid of secool.

60 Turkijh Wares (which fit their vse) but also a proportion of about three hundred great Balls of fitering mo Perfia raw Silke yeerely. And if in any years they chance to buy a greater quantitie of Silke, then must and doe they 25000 L in furnish the fame in readie moneys from the Ports of Marcellis , Genous, Ligorne , Venice , or the ready money.

wates. Steffina

the wed both the manner and the meanes, whereby the East Indian Wares have beene heretofore.

and yet are in part, procured into Christendome. But lest it should seeme incredible, that the Turke would let fo great a maffe of Treasure yeerely to passe his Dominions, to the Indians, and

plahed

ence hath made them dull, lazy, and without aris; enioying diucrs Mines of Gold, and one of Silner, which doe procure their wants of forraine Wares.

Turker bath litle meanes for Linaen but onely from tenance of The readie are yeerely fome States of Sicilia.

The procee-States in Italie dred thousand pounds sterling at least yearly; and for the payment thereof they doe vent at

to the Persians his professed enemies ; I will make the matter yet more plaine. And first concerning the raw Silkes, it is alreadie shewed, that he hath the money from the Christians, besides the benefit he reapeth in their Customes, with great employments also for his Subjects. And for Callicoes (his whole Empire having little or no other meanes for Linnen) he cannot possibly be without them, although it hath, and doth greatly exhaust his Treafure, neither doth he gayne any manufacture by the same, as the Christians have alwayes done by the raw Silke, to the great reliefe of innumerable poore people, fo much prouided for, by the pollicie of all well gouerned and flourishing Common-wealths; As by this occasion, and in a bufinelle of the like kind, I may inflance the States of Genousy, Florence, and Luca; who for the dings of some maintenance of Arts and Trade, doe prouide raw Silkes out of Sicilia for the value of five hun-

ing three hundred and fiftie thousand pounds sterling, is supplied all in readie moneys; which moneys which treasure they doe willingly forsake to procure their Trade: for experience hath taught them that Trade is their employment, and doth returne them Treasure; for by those Silkes (being wrought, transported, and sold at Frankford and other Marts,) they have the better meanes to furnish their Contracts with the King of Spaine in Flanders; and so from Spaine the Siluer must returne againe to Italie. But if I should runne out in this and other particulars (fitting our purpose ) it would make me too tedious, and so carrie mee beyond my ayme. Which is to be briefe. Wherefore I will proceed to cleere tome doubts in those men, who perhaps not having the knowledge of occurrents in forraine parts, might thinke that neither Venice, nor Marcellis haule the meanes or yet the minds, to export such great summes of readie moneyes yeerely out of

Naples . Palermo, Meffina , and those parts , a certaine quantitie of Florence Rashes , and some other Wares, for about one hundred and fiftie thousand pounds sterling per amuss; so the rest, be-

those Dominions, especially Marcellis being a part of France, where neighbourhood doth daily tell vs , that Gold and Silver may not bee convayed out of that Kingdome , for any valuable famme, more then is permitted for the necessarie vie of Trauellers : yet neuerthelesse, experience hath likewife taught vs, that for the effecting of those Trades (whereof we now speake, and which they effeeme fo much) there is a free extraction out of the faid places, of moneyes both gold and filter; whereof with them there is no want; for, the faid Wares doe procure it

First, to Marcellis, it commeth not onely from Genousy, Ligerne, Cartagenia, Malliga, and and Venice are many other Port Townes of Spaine and Italy, but also from Paris, Roan, Sainti-Malloes, Tolouse, furnished with Rochell, Deepe, and other Cities of France; who want not meanes to have great store of Rials ready moneys. and Dollers from Spaine and Germanie.

And in the like manner, the Venetians dispersing the said raw Silkes, and other Wares into the fenerall States of Italie, Germanie, and Hungarie, (who have but few Commodities fitting their barter or exchange, but onely moneyes) are therewith abundantly ferued : for, the Mynes of Hungarie and Germanie affoord good quantitie of Gold and Silver; and likewife the States of Italie, especially Genous, Florence, and Millane, have ever store of Rials out of Spaine in Satisfaction of many great disburfements, which those Merchants make for that King in his occasions Merchants doe of Italie and Flanders; of all which I might make a large discourse, but I conceine I have said sufficient, to flow how the Trade of the East Indies hath beene, and now is brought into Christendome generally; what money is yeerely fent out, by whom, and the possibilitie or meanes which Italie and Flan. they have to performe it. I will therefore in the next place, fatisfie the Obiectors, that it is not the East hidia Trade, which wasteth the Gold, and Silver, Coyne, or other treasure of this King lome in particular.

The third

For fieft, who knoweth not that Gold in the East Indies hath no ratable price with Silver! 60 doth shew how Neither hath the Silver coyne of England any equall value with the Spanift Rials according to the East India, their feueral prices here; besides that, his Maiestie hath not authorized the East India Company, to fend away any part of this Kingdoms Coyne, either Gold or Siluer , but only a certain limited fum of forren filter yearly; which as they dare not exceed, to never have they as yet accomplished the same. For it doth plainly appeare in their bookes, that from the original and first foundation of the Trade in Anno 1601. vntill the moneth of July, Anno 1620. they have shipped How much away onely fine hundred fortie eight thousand and ninety pounds sterling in Spanish Rials, and money and fome Dollers; whereas by licence, they might have exported in that time feuen hundred and wares the East fome Dollers; whereas by merice, they might have exported in that time found numerical and twentie thousand pounds sterling. Also they have laden away in the same terms of minteen nich aue forting the same for the same forting the same forting the same forting the same for veeres, out of this Kingdome two hundred ninetie two thousand two hundred eightie fixe forth cuer pounds sterling in Broad-clothes, Kersies, Lead, Tinne, with some other English and forraine sthence the pounds steeling in Brown-tuoines, assisting, beau, a much, commodities; which is a good Addition, and vent of our Wares, into such remote places; beginning of this Trade. where heretofore they have had no vtterance at all.

A Discourse of Trade to the East Indies. CHAP.17.

And note, I pray you, how time and industrie hath bettered this Trade, when in the last The vent of three yeeres there hath beene fent more Wares to the Indies, then in the fixteene yeeres before; English Wares and yet our expectation is not at the highest; for those new borne Trades within the Red Sea, encreased in and in the Perfian Gulfe, doe bid vs hope for better things, as lately by Letters from Spahan, we the ladin. understand of great quantitie of raw Silke prepared by the English Factors, which ( by Gods affiftance) wee may expect here about the moneth of August next, with encouragement also to vent our English Cloth, and Kersies in good quantities; the like of Iron, Tinne, and other things, whereof experience (of those already sold ) hath given vs sufficient approbation of their

And now (omitting much matter which might be written touching the discoueries of other Trades from one Kingdome or Port to another in the Indies, with the Commodities thereof; Our flocke 20 whereby the employment of our ships, together with the Stocke of money and goods which may be much is fear out of England in them, may be much encreased) I will draw to a conclusion of the point Trade from in hand, and show that what soener summes of forraine readie moneyes are yeerely sent from Portto Port in hence into the East Indies, his Maiestie in the Letters Patents granted to that Companie, hath the Indies. notwithstanding with singular care prouided, that the brethren of the Companie, shall yearely For this see notwithstanding with singular care prounded, that the orenteen of the Companie, man yearry bring in as much Silier, as they send forth; which hath beene alwayes truly performed, with lations, of the an ouerplas, to the increase of this Kingdomes treasure: Neither is it likely that the money Trade from which is thus contracted for by the Companie at certaine prices, and to be deliuered them at suratto Achen, times appointed, would be otherwise brought into England, but onely by vertue and for the per- and all the formance of the faid Contracts: for, without this affurance of vent, together with a good Southerneand price for the faid moneyes, the Merchants would vndoubtedly make their returnes in other India; as 30 Wares; the vie and extraordinarie confume whereof, would be found leffe profitable to the thence affects Common-wealth, when the matter should be duly considered, as I shall yet further endeauour the red Sea

And here I will suppose, That the East India Companie may ship out yeerely one hundred the thousand pounds sterling: yet it is most certaine, that the Trade being thus driven, with sums of India is all readie moneys, it will not decay, but rather much increase the treasure of the Kingdome : which formin Coyne to proue, I will briefly fet downe the fubftance of the English Trade unto the East Indies, concer- The East Indies ning the quantitie of the feuerall forts of Wares, to be yearly bought there, and fold here; with Companie are the viuali prices given for them in both places. And first, I will beginne with their cost and obliged to bring in as charges laden cleere aboord the ships in the East Indies.

In the East INDIES. Two thousand fine hundred thousand pounds of Pepper, at two pence half-penie the pound, out of the cost twentie fixe thousand fortie one pounds thirteene shillings four pence. One hundred and Realme. fiftie thousand pounds of Cloues, at nine pence the pound, coff five thousand fix hundred twenfons, Oyles, tie fixe pounds. One hundred and fiftie thousand pounds of Nutmegs, at foure pence the pound, and Wines, cost two thousand fine hundred pounds. Fiftie thousand pounds of Mace, at eight pence the whereof there pound, cost one thousand fixe hundred fixtie fixe pounds thirteene shillings foure pence. Two is no want, but pounds, of the chouland results in the fourteene pence the pound, coff eleuen thouland fixe rather too hundred fixe in fixe pounds of Indico, at fourteene pence the pound, coff eleuen thouland fixe rather too hundred fixe in fixe pounds thirteene shillings foure pence. One hundred and seuen thouland one A proportion hundred fortie pounds of China raw Silkes, at feuen shillings the pound, cost thirtie feuen thou- of such Trade 50 fand foure hundred nintie nine pounds. Fiftie thouland of Callicoes of feuerall forts, rated at fe- as is hoped uen shillings the piece one with another, fifteene thousand pounds. The whole summe of all yeerely to be is, one hundred thouland pounds.

All the faid Merchandize haue beene often experienced, or bought at or about the prices about from East written; and we doe hope for our parts (befides the Trade of raw Silkes from Perfia) yeerely, India. to lade from the Indies, fuch quantitie of the feuerall forts of Wares as are here fet downe (if it shall please his Maiestie, to protect and defend vs concerning the Articles of agreement made with the Dutch, that they may not violate any of them to our hindrance or damage) all which on wares in England will yeeld (as I doe conceive) the prices hereafter following, viz.

In ENGLAND. Two hundred and fiftie thousand pounds of Pepper, at twentie pence the pound, cost two hundred and eight thousand three hundred thirtie three pounds fixe shillings eight pence. One hundred and fittie thousand of Cloues, at fix shillings the pound, cost fortie fine thousand pounds

737

Howmuch the by tracing to shipping will lade home all the wares afore written from the Eaft the faid thip-ping (vnwrought) is worth about 15000l.fterling India wares wil bring readic moneysinto the Realma. We have no other meanes to procure Treasure but The French and the Venetions lend the value of 600000l fterling yeerely in ready money fome States very rich which have littl: other meanes. Trade of this Kingdome doth export a fure increase to import 120000 l.

into Turkey.

yeerely. So the is 360000 l. fterling. Eucry action fidired in his haue their finallend in money, which

One hundred and fiftie thousand pounds of Nutmegs, at two shill ngs sixe pence the pound. cost eighteene thousand seuen hundred and fiftie pounds. Fiftie thousand pound of Mace, at fixe thillings the pound, cost fifteene thousand pounds. Two hundred thousand pounds of Indico, at fine findings the pound, colt fiftie thousand pounds. One hundred and feuen thousand one by tracing to the Landing to the pounds of China raw Silkes, at twentie stillings the found, cost one hundred and scontinuits of feuer thousand one hundred fortie pounds. Fiftie thousand pieces of Callicos of feuerall forts, rated at twentie shillings the piece one with another, cost niftie thouland pounds. The whole fumme of all is, foure hundred ninetie foure thousand two hundred twentie three pounds fixe shillings eight pence.

So that here would be our owne money againe and more, the fumme of three hundred nine. Indies And the tie foure thousand two hundred twentie three pounds fixe shillings eight penceaduanced towards the generall Stocke of the Kingdome. For although the East India Companie shill disburfe the greatest part of the faid summe advanced vnto his Maiestie for Custome and Impost; and also vnto the Factors, Officers, and Mariners, for wages, together with the cost of shipping Victuals, Munitions, Affurance and the like : yet all thefe (the Materials of shipping onely excepted ) are but transmutations and no consumption of the Kingdomes Stocke.

But if any man object and fay, that the faid Commodities being brought into England (as is before written) they are either confumed in the Land, or being transported into forraine parts, they are changed into other Wares: So that still we want our hundred thousand pounds in readie money. The answere is, First, that in the occasion of this dispute, wee must conceine 20 the faid Wares to be of no vie for this Kingdome, but onely for so much, as doe concerne the Trade thereof. And Secondly, in the faid Trade we must consider, that although the faid goods be fent out, and returned home in other Wares from forraine parts; yet fill, they are negotiated to the increase of the faid Stocke, and for the imployment of the Subic &s. Lafily, if there be a resolution to determine and end the businesse: who doubteth, that the whole value may not bee presently returned hither in readie moneyes? For in Italie, Turkey, and other places, where they are most vendible to profit, there likewise is the money free to be exported at all times and by whomfoener.

And as it is most certaine, that some other Merchandize, sent out of this Kingdome, were the meanes to bring in the hundred thousand pounds in readie moneyes, which is here supposed Trade maketh to be fent and imployed in the East Indies (as aforefaid) to likewife, there is the same power in these Indian wares, to procure other summes of readie moneyes, to bee brought into this Kingdome : For let not man doubt, but that money doth attend Merchandize, for money is the prize of wares, and wares are the proper vie of money; fo that their coherence is vnfeparable. And if the French and the Venetians, made any doubt of this, they would not fo willingly permit the If the generall value of fixe hundred thousand pounds sterling, or more in Spanish Rialls and Dollers, yeerly to be carryed out of their Dominions into Turkey: whereof three quarter parts at least are imployed, onely for the buying of Perfia raw Silkes, which commoditie doth prefently enable them with readie money from divers other States to performe the Trade; whereby their wealth doth much increase, and their people are greatly im; loyed. So to conclude this point, I will onely it doth import adde, that the East India Trade alone (although it be driven in no amplyer manner then is afore written) is a meanes to bring more treasure into the Realme then all the other trades of this Kingdome (as they are now managed) being put together. For if the rule be true, that when the value of our commodities exported doth over-ballance the worth of all those forraigne wares, the East Indies which are imported and confumed in this Kingdome, then the remaynder of our stocke which may be said to is sent forth, must of necessitie returne to vs in Treasure. I am confident, that vpon a diligent and export 480000 true inquirie it will be found, that the ouer-ballance of all our other Trades together, will not amount vinto fo great a fumme of money as the East India Trade alone doth over-ballance in this kinde.

And to make the matter yet more plaine, whereas it is already faid that one hundred thoufand pounds in money exported, may import about the value of fine hundred thousand pounds 50 fterling, in wares from the East Indies, we must understand that part thereof to be properly called our importation that this Realme doth confume, which is about the value of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds therling yearly. So the remay nder being three hundred and eightie thous ally to be con- fand pounds, is matter exported vnto forraine parts in the nature of our Cloth, Lead, Tin, or any other native commodities, to the great increase of this Kingdomes stocke, and that also in so The East India much treasure, to farre as the East India Trade can be rightly understood to subsist in this partias wares which cular. For as all humane actions have their Termination and Ends, fo likewise there must bee were fent be- an end affigned vnto the affaires of the East Indies; which are then truely faid to bee finished, yand the Seas, when this Realme is ferued, and the remainder of those Wares which are fent from hence be- 60 yond the Seas, fold there and converted into money; which likewife from thence may bee brought away freely and without the danger of Law, or prohibition. Foralmuch therefore as it is well knowne to many men, that moneys are thus procured by the Sales of Indian Wares to profit, in the parts of Turkey, and at Ligorne, Genoway, the Netherlands, Marcellie, and other places : yet notwithstanding if all the faid Coyne, or any part thereof should bee diverted from brought into this Realme by some other new imployments or affaires, it must neverthelesse bee granted, that this Realme in the faid India wares had their finall end in monies. But I will cease to heape up any more argu-that kind, if ments, to proue a matter which is alreadic made so plaine; wherefore leaving this Obiection, I Trades did not will endeuour to give Answere to the next.

divert the fame.

The fecond Objection.

10 The Timber, Planke, and other materials, for making of shipping, is exceedingly masted, and made dearer,, by the building of so many great Ships, as are yeerely sent to Trade in the East Indies; and yet the State hathno wife of any of them woon occasion. For either they are not here; or elfe they come home very weake and unferuiceable.

The Answere.

His East India Trade seemeth to be borne and brought up an Unthrift , for it wasteth and consumethall; Neither doth it good to any.

1 But the Obiection, in Some part is very weake:

Снар. 17.

2 And in the rest it is mistaken. For first, concerning the weaknesse thereof, would men have us to keepe our woods and goodly trees. The first to looke upon? they might aswell forbid the working of our wools, and sending forth our cloth to for- Part raigne parts; for both are meanes alike to procure the necessary wares, which this Kingdome wanteth. Do concerneth

they not know that trees doe line and grow: and hemog great, they have a time to dye and rot, if oportuni-the Objection. tie make no better use of them? and what more noble or prositable use then goodly ships for Irade and Warre? Are they not our Barnes for wealth, and plentie, serving at wals and bulwarkes for our peace and happinesse? Doe not their yeerely building; maintayne mun hundred poore people, and greatly in-crease the number of those Artesmen which are so needfull for this Common-wealth? And is not all The provi-30 this good performed also (with great providence) by bringing in yeerely store of Timber, and other pro-dence of the nissions from Ireland? Why then, where is the great waste and dearenesse? I am sure, the East India East india Companie spinds it not; for whereas they doe onely buy their promisions in Hampshire, Essex, Kent, and Company for Barkshire, in all which places they now may have both Timber and Disake. the like, both for goodnesse and price, as cheape (yea better cheape) then they base been this siteen The Ens India yeerer, and likewise in all that course of time their Bookes doe plainly shew that these wares have never Trade have varied much; for if they have rifen any small matter in one yeare, they have fallen as much the next, not indered And yet I pray you observe (besides the East India Companies buildings) the many goodly ships which the materials which serve to aredaily made for other private Merchants ( such as England never had before) and that which is most make thips. remarkable, is the continual late buildings of his Maiestie, thereby yearely adding more strength and 40 glory of great ships, to his Royall and matchlesse Nauy; so that here we see this supposed waste and mant

Teabut, say they, the East India ships are never here to serve the Kingdome upon occasion: Or if The second they be at home, they are weake and unfit for service.

In Trade of Merchandize our ships must goe and come, they are not made to stay at home; Tet ne- shewith the nerleffe, the East India Company are well prepared at all times, to ferne his Maiestie and his King- mist king in domes, with many warlike provisions , which they alwayes keepe in stores such as Timber, Planckes, Iron the Objection. workes, Maits, Cordage, Anchors, Caske, Ordiance, Powder, Shot, Viltuals readie packed, Wine, The Warlike Sider, and a World of other things, fitting the prefent building, repairing and dispatch of ships to Sea; which the EaA as may be plentifully scene in their yards and store-houses at Depetord, and more especially in those at India Compa-Blacke-wall; which are growne fo fansous, that they are daily visited and viewed by strangers, as well nickeepe in Embassidors as others; to their great admiration of his Maiesties strength and glorie, in one only the Miesties Company of his Mircharts, able at Ibert warning to let forth a Fleet of Ibips of great force and sower.

For it is well knowne to all men who please truly to bee informed . That the East India Companie (be- East india sides their Fleets of ships going and comming, and also abiding in the In.ic.) are continually building, Company repayring, rigging, victualling, and furnifling to Sea, with all provision needfull for fich a long Voy- alone. age, some seven or eight great shops yearely; which are to bee seene at an Anchor in the River of Thames in a great forwardnesse some sine or sixe moneths together, before they commonly depart for the Indias, which is about the moneth of March : and they are no fooner got off from the Coast of England but thortir after is the featon of our flippes to returne from the Lidies; who come not home fo The flippes 80 meake as some would have them; for how often hath experience beene made of our ships which have per-which resurne from the East formed two or three severall Voyages to the East Indies! Tet at their returne, they have been induc- indishome, ked, new trimmed and lanched out agains, fitted for the like Voyages, in leffe then two monethes. But it may be replywill be needleffe to frend any more time in howing the errors of this fecond Obiection; therefore I will red in a very rather come to the handling of that which followerb.

CHAP. 17.

The third Objection.

The Voyages to the East Indies doe greatly consume our victuals, and our Mariners : leauing many poore Widdowes and Children unrelieued; Besides, that many Shippes are recerely lent forth to the East Indies, and few we fee as yet returned; Also, this Trade hath creatly decayed the Traffique and Shipping, which were woont to be imployed into the Streights: And yet the faid Trade to the East Indies, is found very unprofitable the Strengens: Ann yearne purch the Common wealth find any benefit by the cheape.

The Answere.

1 / Hy, what a World of Mischieses have we here? First, Dearth. Secondly, Mortalitie. Thirdly, Destruction. Fourthly, Beggerie. Fiftly, And neuer a whit the neere. A very Teame of Calamities, drawing on to miferie; is it not then high time to seeke a remedie? yes verily, and it will be easily done, because these emis never were (as yet at least) procured by the East India Trade, as I shall shew, by answering all the parts in order as they stand : and first of Dearth.

concerneth Dearth.

The manner

their fhips.

how the East

It is both naturall and iuft, that every Kingdome, State, or Common-wealth, should feede 20 and cheriff vp the Natine people of all degrees and conditions what sometime, to their preservation of life and health, with such meanes and moderation, as their plentie shall affoord; and this is not onely due to them in the time of their aboad at home, but also vpon all occasions of Voyages into other Countries beyond the Seas, wherein they shall bee imployed for their owne maintenance, and for the good of the Common-wealth.

Now therefore concerning the position of victuals (which in this Kingdome is yeerely prepared for the fetting forth of those shippes which faile to the East Indies) it is well knowne to many men, that it is alwayes proportioned, for about eighteene monethes; whereas common-India Compaly the Voyages proue a year elonger, so that this ouer-plus of time, is furnished with the victu- 20 ny do victuall als of forreine parts.

And likewife for the Bread and Bisket which is shipped from hence, hath it not alwayes bin made of French Corne, purposely brought ouer hither (and thatat a deare rate) onely to preferue the plentie of our owne graine! vntill now of late dayes that the Farmers heere beginne to cry out and fay, That the cheapnesse of Corne doth dis-inable them to pay their deare Rents: Thus doe the East India Company enery way accommodate their proceedings for the good of the King lome.

And further concerning their Drinke, is it not a very great part water? Some Wine and Sider and but little Becre.

Also the Flesh they eate, is Beefe and Porke, and that onely for three dayes in a weeke; the rest of their victuals is Fish, some Butter, Cheese, Pease, Oat-meale, and other things; all 40 which is proportioned into a very sparing Dyet to enery man by allowance : so that heere is no Excesse nor Riot, or any other meanes to make our victuals scant and deare, as is by some erronioutly supposed; but rather by this course of life, our plentie is much advanced. And so I will giue answere to the next part which is mortalitie and great decay of Mariners.

Good Mari-

counted wor-

The life of man is so precious, that it ought not lightly to be exposed to danger; And yet we know, that the whole course of our life, is nothing but a passage vnto Death; wherein one can neither stay nor slacke his pace, but all men runne in one manner, and in one celeritie; The shorter liver runnes his courie no faster then the long, both have a like passeage of time; howbeit, the first hath not so farre to runne as the later.

Now, it is this length of life which Nature feekes, and States likewife endeuour to preferue 50 in worthy men; but none are accounted fo worthy in this nature, faue onely they, who labour in their vocations and functions, both for the publike good, and for their private benefit. Thus may we esteeme our good Mariners, to be of no small vie vnto this Common-wealth:

but take them from their laudable and accustomed imployments, for want of Voyages to Sea; we see what desperate courses they doe then attempt, by ioyning, even with Tarkes and Infidels, to rob and ipoyle all Christian Nations; so that we may conclude, we must not onely breed vp Mariners, but also seeke by Trade, to give them maintenance.

Well, all this is true, but (fay they) the East India Company doth neither breed nor maintayne, but destroy the wonted number of our Mariners. How can this be, when it is most certaine, that England (belides the East India Fleets) had never yet more shipping then at this prefent? neither doe any of them flay at home for want of Mariners, no, not at this time, when many hundred Sailers are employed in extraordinarie service, for his Maiestie in a Royall Fleet of thips, now at Sea; befides those great numbers of our best Mariners, which have beene and daily are wasted and taken Prisoners by the Turker; so where is this want, or what is our miterie more then the want of true information in them that are foill perfwaded of our Company?

Is it not certaine that as the East India Voyages are long, so likewise in Natures course many The breeding should dye by length of time although they stayed at home? And to recompense the losse of 400. Marithose that dre, doe not the East India Company with great prouidence, yeerely ship out at least ners yearely. those that dye, doe not the East India Company with great proundince, yearery map on a read fourth hundred Land-men in their Fleets, which in one Voyage proue good Mariners to serue the the search a Kingdome and Common-wealth, vnto which many of them were a burthen before they ob- few mens 10 tayned this employment? And thus is the Kingdome purged of desperate and variety people, death ought who kept in awe by the good discipline at Sea, doe often change their former course of life, and not to ouer-advance their fortunes.

Neither indeed are their Voyages so dangerous and mortall, as is reported; for how many of mance of Heour fhips have gone and come from the East Indies, without the loss of five men in a hundreth, nourable acti-Others againe have had worse successful the first beginning, when the sealons, the places and on for the sea. their contagions were not fo well knowne vnto vs; yet time hath taught vs many things, both nice of the K. for the preferuation of health, and speedier performance of our Voyage then heretofore. But wealth. the Method of my Discourse bids me write more of this in the next part, which is destruction; Our Miriners and this I must divide into two parts.

In the first, I will consider the want of divers ships fent to the East Indies, which are wasted red life is that

And in the second, I will answere the supposed overthrow of the Turkje Trade, together many of them. The third part with much of our shipping which were wont to be employed thither.

First therefore, concerning the decay of our shippes in the Indies, it cannot be denyed, but decay of the there hath beene great spoyle of them in these three last yeeres; not by the dangers of the Seas, ping which or by the strength of Enemies; but by vnkind and vnexspected quarrels with our Neighbours feat to the the Hollanders, who have taken and furprized twelve of our flips at feuerall times, and in fundry Indies. places, to our vnspeakeable losse and hinderance; together with the death of many of our Of the Dutch worthvest Mariners, who have beene slaine and dyed Prisoners under their hands; and this hath wrongs & the 30 fo much the more encreased the rumour of their Mortalitie : Neither lift I here to aggraugte the thips taken by fact, more then thus briefly to give answere to the Obiection : for our late vision with the former Relati-

Duteb, doth promise a double recompence of gaine in time to come. And they who make this Trade fo poore and unprofitable, are much militaken in the recko- Hare, Knowles, ning; for the prefent loffes which cauleth many Aduenturers fo much to delpaire, is not in the oc. with the fubitance of the Trade, but by the enill accidents which have befalne the fame and to make Depolitions of this point more plaine, I must yet declare some other particulars: in which I will endeauour ve-in manner all ry briefly to fet downe the fumme of the whole businesse, which the English hath hitherto per- these Indian formed in the East Indies.

First, therefore I doe observe that since the beginning of this Trade, vntill the moneth of Iu- twelve shippes 40 ly last, Anno 1620, there have been funt thirther seventie nine ships in severall Voyages, whereof thirtie foure are alreadie come home in fafetie richly laden , foure have beene worne out by mer Attendance long fernice, from Port to Port in the Indies; two were over-whelmed in the trimming there: (all taken at fixe have beene cast away by the perils of the Seas; twelve have beene taken and surprized by Banda before the Dutch, whereof divers will be wasted, and little worth before they bee restored: and one began the wast and twentie good flippes doe still remayne in the Indies. So this is a true account of our the Steedard

And next concerning our flocke, it is a certaine truth, that in all the faid ships there hath bin Dragon, the fent out in readie money as well out of this Realme, as from all other places wherefoeuer be- Beare, Expediyond the Sea (which hath not beene landed in this Kingdome) the value of fine hundred fortie the San (m. eight thousand and ninetie pounds sterling in forraine Coyne; and together with the said mo-with the Hound ny, there hath been shipped the value of two hundred ninety two thousand two hundred eigh- Our troubles tie fixe pounds sterling, in fundry forts of English and forraine Commodities; all which monies with the Dath, tie fixe pounds ferling, in lundry lerts of Engage and loriance Commontes, at which are and wares amounting vnto eight hundred fortie thousand three hundred feuentie fixe pounds. The summe of the affirest of have beene disposed as hereafter followeth,

First, there hath beene lost thirtie one thousand seventie nine pounds sterling in the fixe ships ever since the which are cast away and in the thirtie foure ships, which are returned in safetie, there hath Tradebegin. beene brought home three hundred fiftie fixe thouland two hundred eightie eight pounds fter- Account of all ling in divers forts of wares, which have produced here in England towards the generall flocke the money and thereof, one million nine hundred, fourteene thousand fixe hundred pounds sterling, for the charges ariting here, is but a change of effects from one to another, as hath beene faid before in to the Eaft Isthis Discourse: So there ought to remayne in the Indies, to bee speedily returned hither, foure dies ever since hundred eight ie foure thousand eight ie eight pounds: In neither can wee conceiue that our charges the hundred eight ie four charges that troubles with the Dutch, will have waited more then the odde eight ie foure thousand eight.

Rerling, hath beene returned from the East Indies which did produce here towards charges, 1914600, pounds flerling, owned:forde.

which killerh

Voyages, The he Staire the thy men in a

CHAP.17.

742

tie eight pounds sterling : fothat I am confident, that there yet remayneth four hundred theufand pounds fterling of good effate, for both the joynt Stockes. And what a great value of In-There remains dian goods this fumme of money may (by Gods bleffing) fhortly returne in our fhippes, which yet in the East are there readie to bring them, the example here doth teach vs to make up the reckening. So Indies to bee returned home that notwithit and ing our great charges of Discoueries, our losses by the danger of the Seas, our quarrels and infinite hinderance by the Duich: yet here the kingdome hath and shall haue her from thence about 400000, thocke againe with a very great increase, although the Merchants gaines concerning the two ioy nt flockes will proue but poore, in respect of the former Voyages, which have not had the like hinderance.

And thus in a few lines may be seene, much matter truly collected with some paines, out of 10 the diners Volumes of the East Indian Bookes.

Concerning the decay of shipping and Trade in to

The Turkey

Now concerning the decay of Trade and shipping which were woont to bee imployed into Turkey, I doubt, that in time it will likewise be affirmed, that the East India Company, have hindered the vent of our white Cloth in the Netherlands, which to report were a very strange thing, But (prayfed be God) to our comfort, we fee the great increase of goodly shippes, daily built and imployed by the Turkey Merchants, with vent of more of our English Cloth (by one third part at least) then in times before the East India Trade began.

Yea, but (fay they) wee have lost the Trade of Spices, and Indico from Aleppo into Eng-

Wel, I grant they have; yet the Kingdome hath found it with more profit by another way, and 20 they likewise are recompensed with a greater Trade, by the exporting from hence of the selfefame Commodities into Italy, Turkey, and other places : neither can it be leffe profitable for this Kingdome, to turne the Trade of raw Silkes from Aleppo, and to bring them from the Perfian Gulfe, with one third part leffe money, then it doth now coft in Turkey; Befides, that by this meanes, the money proceeding of our English Cloth, Tinne, and other wares in Turkey (not finding Commodities fitting to returne for England) would vindoubtedly bee Frought home in Gold, as it hath beene performed heretofore, when by superfluitie of stocke sent from hence in Spice, together with our English wares; the Merchants (beeing thereby furnished with a fufficient quantitie of Turkil Commodities) brought home the remayader of their stocke of those yeares in gold for a great value.

Thus doth it plainly appeare, that these revolutions of Trades, have and doe turne to the good of the Common-wealth; neither hath the affaires of the East Indies impayred or decayed any other Trade, Shipping or Mariners of this Realme; but hath mightily increased them all in it felfe. Wherefore let vs now take a view of this Noble addition of the Kingdomes ffrength and glorie.

But this I must not doe, by fetting downe the number of our English shipping now in the Indies, or lately gone that way; for they have beene heaped thither, these three last yeares together without returne, faue onely fine shippes in all that time; the rest have beene kept there to oppose the furie of the Dutch; but now wee are at vnion, wee shall (by Gods assistance) daily expect divers great thips with rich returnes.

India thips.

And for the future time, this Trade I doe conceive, will royally maintayne tenne thousand 40 tunnes of thipping continually: (That is to lay) going, and returning, and abiding there in the Indies; which faid thipping will employ two thousand and fine hundred Mariners at least; and the building with the repayring of the faid ships, heere at home will set to worke fue hundred men, Carpenters, Cawkers, Carners, Ioyners, Smiths, and other Labourers, befides many Officers; and about one hundred and twentie Factors, in feuerall places of the Indies. And to from thele matters of great consequence, I must begin to write of Beggerie.

The fourth part concernes of widdowes. The East India Trade dorh employ many uen in other Company pay.

The pouertie of Wildowes and Fatherleffe is matter of great compassion, and doth alwaies moue Christian hearts to commiferation and charitie; whereby many receive reliefe and helpe of those whom God hath blessed with better meanes: but how this pouertie should totally bee preuented, it feemeth not onely deficult, but altogether impossible: For besides the cull accidents and miferies, which euer attend on our humanitie, we fee how many daily (euen through their owne folly and wilfulnesse) doe as it were desperately plunge themselves into advertitie. And thus the number of those is great, who having the charge of wife and children, are notwithpoore men, & And thus the number of those is great, who nating the energe of wire and children, are not with-deboift people. flanding altogether without meanes and Artes to procure their maintenance; whereby some of them wanting grace, doe run a desperate course, and have vntimely ends. Others againe beeing Trades refuse. better inspired, seeke for imployment, but find it not, or with great difficultie: fer, who doth willingly entertaine a man poore and milerable, charged with a family, and peraduenture debanched in conditions. Neither doe any of our other Merchants voyages to forraine parts accept of those nouices, who never have been yied to the Sea: So that when all the other doores of chari-Voyages, ney- tie are flut, the East India gates stand wide open to receive the needy and the poore, giving them good entertainement with two Moneths wages before hand, to make their needfull prouifions for the Voyage. And in the time of their ablence, there is likewife payd vnto their wines for maintenance, two other monoths wages upon account of energy yeares feraice: and also if any chance to dye in the Voyage, the wife receiveth all that is found due voto her husband (if he doe not otherwife dispose it by will:) and this often happeneth to be more money, then ever they had of their owne together in any one time. And likewife, are not many poore Widdower, When did and Wines and Children of Black-wall, Lime house, Rascliffe, Shadwell, and Wapping, often relieued by of these Wid the East India Company with whole Hogheads of good Biefe and Porke, Bisket and Doales of dowes begin ready money? Are not divers of their children fet on worke to picke Okam, and other labours Churches, 13 fitting their age and capacitie? What might I not fay of repayring of Churches, maintenance othersoiten of some young Schollers, relieuing of many poore Preachers of the Gospell yearsly with good doe? 10 fummes of money ; and divers other acts of charitie, which are by them religiously performed, The Baft India fammes of money; and differs other acts of charities, which are by them rengiously performed, even in the times now of their world fortunes; for all which I hope there shall be a reward vnto charite.

A Discourse of Trade to the East Indies.

them and theirs. And fo I come to the fift part of this third Objection.

And here I must intimate how much they are deceived, who thinks, that Spices and Indico Thefish Part are no better cheape in England now, then in times past, before the East India trade began. For, the cheapenes it is an vindoubted truth, that in those dayes we often paid fixe shillings, or more for a pound of of Spice and Pepper, and feldome or neuer leffe then three shillings and fixe pence the pound; whereas fince Indico at this the Trade hath come directly from the Indies, it hath been bought commonly at feuerall prices prefent in rebetweene fixteene pence and two shillings the pound : but I will make the difference of price spectof former appeare more plainely by fetting downe the quantities of Spices and Indico, which are yearely 20 Spent in the Realme of England, together with the lowest prices, which they were wont to fell at, when we brought them from Turkey and Lifborne; and the like concerning their viuall prices now that we bring them from the East Indies directly : And first as from Turker, four lam- Prices of spice dred thousand pounds of Pepper at three shillings fix pence the pound, is three score & ten thou-former times, fand pounds: Fortie thousand pounds of Clouesat eight shillings the pound, is fixteene thousand pounds: twenty thousand pounds of Maces at nine shillings the pound, is nine thousand pounds: One hundred and fixty thousand pounds of Nutmegs, at foure shillings fixe pence the pound, is fix and thirtie thousand pounds: One hundred and fiftie thousand pounds of Indico at seven shillings the pound, is fifty two thouland fine hundred pounds. All there finnings being put together. comes to one hundred eightie three thousand five hundred pounds Sterling.

And the felfetame quantity and forts of wares are commonly fold at the prices here under written now in their later times: Foure hundred thouland pounds of Pepper at twenty pence Prices of ipice the pound, is thirtie three thousand three hundred thirtie three pounds, fixe shillings, eight and Indico in pence: forty thousand pounds of Cloues at fix pence the pound, is twelve thousand pound: twenty thousand pounds of Mace at in shillings the pound, is fix thousand pounds one hundred fixty times. thousand pounds of Nutmegs at two shillings fix pence the pound, is twentie thousand pounds: one hundred fiftie thousand pounds of Indico at fine shillings the pound, is seven and thirtie chousand pounds. All these summes beeing put together, is one hundred eight thousand three hundred thirtie three pounds fixe shillings eight pence sterling.

So that this Trade in Spice and Indico only, doth faue the king dom verely feuenty foure thon-40 fand nine hundred fixtie fixe pound thirteene shillings foure pence, which is a matter worthy to be observed; and so much the rather, because it is a certaine truth, that less then a quarter part of this fumme of mony which is thus faued yearely, shall buy in the Indies, the full quantitie of all the feuerall forts of wares before written, which doe ferue for a yeares prouision for this Realme of England; but still it must be remembred, that the custom, impost, wages, victuals, shipping, and pounds fferother charges (which are to be added) will be a greater fumme, then the mony which is paid for ling in the Inthele wares in the Indies: but as I have noted before, the faid charges doe not confume the King diss, willow Spice and Indomes flocke, although it doth greatly abate the Merchants gaine.

And to conclude this point, I will adde unto that which hath been faid; that the commodities onely which we now fend yearely into the East Indies and Persia, are of sufficient value there for a yeare, to returne vs Indico, Spices, Drugs, and all other forts of Indian wares (Raw-filkes of Persia only which is not his formuch excepted) for one yeares continue, or more in this Kingdome: so that now all the money which more are the more very limited with the money which more very limited with the very limited with the more very limited with the very limited with t is fent forth in our Ships doth procure an ouer-plus of the faid wares, to the furtherance of Tiade fortherance of the faid wares. from India hither, and after from hence to forreine parts againe, to the great imployment of the yord the fers Subjects, and inriching of this Realme, both in Stocke and Treasure; all which is matter verie to buy Conworthy to be diligently observed. And so I come to give answere vnto the fourth and last Ob- rands only, or icction.

ly which are fent out of this Kingdome into the East Indies, are of fufficient value to furnish this Realme with an outriplus of all manner of Indian wares (Perfian Raw Silkes only excepted.) to buy Tobac.

The wares one

CHAP.17.

The fourth Objection.

It is generally observed, that his Maiesties Mint hath had but little imployment ever since the East India Trade began; wherefore it is manifest, that the onely remedy for this. and so many enils besides, is to put downe this Trade : For what other remedie can there be for the good of the Common-wealth?

The Answere:

"His fourth objection may be devided into three parts: First, An euill declared: Secondly, A remedie propounded : Thirdly, And counfell demanded.

And first concerning the Euill or want of Silver, I thinke it hath been, and is a generall disease of all Nations, and so will continue untill the end of the world; for poore and rich complaine, they never have enough: but it seemeth the maladie is growne mortall here with vs, and therefore it cries out for remedy, Well, I hope it is but imagination maketh vs sicke, when all our parts be sound and strong: For who know. eth not the mestimable treasure of this Kingdome, in Plate possessed by the people thereof almost of all degrees; in such measure, as neuer hath been seene in former ages? And for his Maiesties Mint, it is well melted downe knowne, that there hath been coyned in fine yeares together fince the East India Company began, six thou- 20 Sand two hundred fourteene pound waight of Gold, and three hundred eleuen thousand three hundred newiashioned, fourescore and source pound weight of sterling Money; all which Gold and Silver doe amount unto the summe of twelve hundred thirteene thousand eight hundred fiftie pounds of sterling Money : How then doth this Trade turns the currant and imployment of the Mint?

But upon the fight of this truth, perhaps it will be faid. That we must refort unto the present times (the been coyned Mint being idle now.) To which I answere, That likewise the Mint had little or no imployment for coynage of Silver in former times, when the faid Company did not export abone fifteene or twentie thou fand Gold and Silucr in his Ma-Founds sterling at the most per annum; no, nor yet in the yeares 1608, and 1612; when in the former iefties Mint, they shipped out but fixe thousand pound, and in the latter but one thousand two hundred and fifty pounds fince the Eaft sterling. So that both wayes we see that the Mint hath had very great imployment fine yeares together, 30 sithence the East India Trade began; and also it hath been without imployment diners yeares, when the East India Company hause sent away but verie small summes of money; wherefore of necessisse there must bee some other causes and meanes whereby our Silver is not exported onely, but also it no Silver coyis not imported into the Realme as in former times. For wee have not had the meanes by our owne plenty, nor by the fearsitie of our Neighbours (for the space of the last foureteene yeares together) to yeares, when fend out hundred: of Ships laden with Corne, as in times past, which was returned home in Silver; but the Faft India Company fent rather of late yeares (as is much to be feared) a great quantitie of our money hath been carried out of the out very fmall Kingdome for that Corne which hath been brought vs from the East Countries and other places, to supply our wants. Thus times doth change and our fortunes change with them: neither list I to make this matter plainer by fetting downe those meanes, which beretofore brought us store of money, euen out of 40 France, and other places, which now are ceased. But without any further medling in the Mint, I will come to the remedie which some propound, by putting downe the East India Company.

wont to bring But here our comfort is that the Obiectors are not our Indges, who fe wisdome and integritie labouring Silverinto the for the honour of his Maiestie, and the good of his Kingdome, will some perceive the mischiefes of this supp fed remedie. And that the pretended enill which many with malico chase, is that great good, ceased at this which other Nations seeke by policie and strength to keepe, and likewise to obtaine; in which propreion: time. The fecond ceedings it concerneth us effecially to observe the diligences and practifes of the Dutch, who with more gladnesse would undertake the whole Trade to the East Indies, then with any reason wee can abandon that part thereof which we now enjoy: neither can our restraint from the Indies keepe our Silver from ting downer of thence, a: long as the Dutch goe thither: for we know, that denices want not to furnish such designes; and 50 the italt India when their Ships returne from India, shall not our Silver out agains to helps to pay a double price, or what The East India they bleafe, for all those wares which we shall want for our necessities?

Trade is great-Thus should the Datch increase their honour, wealth and strength, whilest we abate, grow poore and weake at Sea for want of Trade: And call you this a Remedie? no, rather tearme # Ruine, Destructio:h r Chriftion, or what you list. And (o I come unto the conclusion or last part.

And here I must confesse my self aground for this matter is much too high for my handling besides my might grow excuse is faire, baning alreadie done my taske to cleare the East India Trade from imputation; the which by curdestruc- for want of learning, although I have performed, without varietie of words or eloquence: yet it is done with all integritie of truth, in enery particular, as I shall be ready to make proofe upon all occasions, which The third Part may be offered. And yet before I make an end although I cannot fatisfic enery mans defire, in such mea_ 60 fure at is necessarie: yet I thinke it not amisse to performe the same so farre, at I am able by common which the Ob. practice, and my observations in the Trade of Merchandize, which is my profossion.

And first therefore all men doe know that the riches or sufficiencie of enery Kingdome, State, or Common-wealth, confisteth in the possession of those things, which are needfull for a civil life. This sufficiency is of two forts; the one is naturall, and proceedesh of the Territorie it selfe; the other is artificial, and dependeth on the industrie of the Inhabitants.

The Realme of England (praised be God) is happily possessed of them both: as first, having great of two lotts. plentie of naturall riches, both in the Sea for Fish, and on the Land for Wooll, Cattell, Corne, Lead, Time, Iron, and many other things for Food; Rayment, a. I Munition; insomuch that upon strict termes of need, this Land may line without the belpe of any other Nation. But to line well, to flourish, and grow rich, we must find meanes by Trade to vent our superfluities; therewith to furnish and adorne ve with the treasure and those necessarie Wares which for raine Nations doe associate and here Industrie This Kind of must begin to play his part, not onely to increase and guide the Trades abroad, but also to maintaine and keth tome 10 multiplie the Arts at home: for when either of these faile, or are not effected with such skill as their Countries mysteries hall require, then doth the Common-wealth abate and grow poore: neither is it easily per- which are poor to grow rich fo they being removed, the effects may cease. And this is the subject of our Discourse which were and strong by That which I have hitherto delinered hath beene altogether negative, still defending and proving by who have greaarguments, that the East India Trade hath not burt this Common-wealth: And non changing my ter meanes, fisle, I must affirme as fast the true causes of those emils which we sceke to chase away.

These causes then (as I conceive) are principally source. The first, is the breach of Entercourse by for-Fouse princiraine Nations. The second is the abuse of the exchanges betweet us and other Countries. The third, is pall Caules 20 neglect of dutie in some Subjects. The fourth, is our damage in commerce with Strangers. Now con- which carry acerning all these, I might make a very large discourse; but my purpose is onely to explane the meaning way our Gold of every point in order, as briefly as I can.

And first for the breach of Entercourse; by this I understand those Nations, who have either de- The First befed their Standard, or elfe over valued the price of their Coynes from that equivalence which former_ Cause concerly they had with the Standard and Moneys of this Realme : and also doe tolerate, not onely their owne neth the Stan-Moneys, but also the Coyne of other Countries (and especially of this Kingdome) to bee current with Proceedings them at higher rates, then the prices of the exchange; by which courses (being directly against the En- against enter tercourse) there is a greater cause given of exportation of the Moneys of this Realme, then otherwise course. there would be. For although this is done with great danger to the Exporters of the same, (it being an 30 act against the Law of the Land) yet notwithstanding conconsnesse being ener connersant in wicked actions, thinketh nothing unlawfull which promifeth a certaine gaine; and how to remedie this enill practice I find it not easie. For the debasing of the Coyne, or raysing the price thereof in this Realme, would much imponerally the estates of particular men, and yet in the conclusion, would prone a businesse without end: for who doth not conceine that which would follow beyond the Seas upon any such alteration heere with vs? fo that ftill the enill will remaine, untill we find some other remedie.

And for the exchanges of money vsed betwine Nations, although the true vse thereof is a very The Second landable and necessarie practice for the accommodating of Merchants assaires, and furnishing of Tra- Cause concerlandable and necessarily practice for the accommoduling of exercisins assaults, and surmoning of tra-necessins their occasions, without the transporting of Coone from one State to another, with danger and changes of loffe both to the publike and private wealth: yet is the abuse thereof very presuducial unto thu King- moneys with 40 dome in particular ; while ft in the interim the benefit doth arife unto other Countries, who deligently ob- fortain Counferuing the prices whereby the moneys be exchanged, may take advantage to carrie away the Gold and tries. Silver of this Realme at those times, when the rate of our sterling money (in exchange) is under the vaof those standard amount in large threads of those Ine of that Standard, unto which place they are consused: For inrespect the prices of the exchanges, Strangers here doe rife or fall according to the plentie or fearsitie of money, which is to bee taken up , or delinered out, inthis Realme, the exchange is hereby become rather a Trade for some great moneyed men, then a furtherance and ac- who make a commodation of reall Trade to Merchants, as it ought to bee in the true wife thereof. And thus many Trade by extimes money may be made over hither by frangers to a good gaine, and presently carried beyond the Seas euill, there is an easie remedie, and so I come to handle the next cause which is neglect of dutie. Neither is it my intent to write of duties in their senerall kinds; but onely of that kind of "utie which Realme. is here thought to be neglected by some men in their severall vocations. As it might peraduenture come The Third to passe, in those who have the working of his Maiesties Come, either gold or silver; if diligent care be Cause concetnot had in the fize of eneral piece, to answere instity to his weight: for howsever upon triall of nich neglest many pieces altogether, the weight may be found according to the Couenants, and within the remedies Our heavie ordained in the Indentures: yet notwithstanding many of those pieces may be sized too light, and others money is conas much too heavie, which give th the greater advantage to some people, to carrie away that which is over- usyed beyond weight, and so to leave us them which are too light, if they leave us any. And this mischiefe is not the Seas and 60 single; for thereby a'fo some Gold smiths, regarding profit more then dutie, may bee the more readily welted downs fingle; for thereby also some Gold smiths, regarding profit more then dutie, may be the more readily into Plate here drawne to melt downe the beaute Coyne into Plate and other ornaments both of gold and silver. But in the Realine. what might wee thinks of those men who are placed in authoritie and office for his Maiestie, if they should not withall dutifull care discharge their trust concerning that excellent Statute, wherein it is ordeceined at first, untill some enill accidents doe stirre up our deligence to search out the true causes; that of themselves,

4.2. 成业中级(编/4/10/10/10/10) to a second profit; and yet the mischiese ends not here: for by this meanes the takers up of money in for- Fortain Wates raine Countreys must necessarily drive a Trade to those places, from whence they draw their moneys; brought in 50 and so doe fill vs up with forraine Commodities, without the vent of our owne Wares: but for this great with our ready ed our of this concerneth the councell iefters de-

744

The first Part

concerneth

his Maieffics Mint.

Twentie fiue

pound waight

at leaft of Sil-

in:o Plate, be-as by credible

There hash

India Trade

There hath been little or ned in fome fummes of

Some crufes

and meanes

which were Part forc. r-

neth the out-an Nations.

The Duich

Trade.

money.

report.

uer vearely

thousand

Anno 17. Edw.urd. 4.

The Fourth Cau'e concerneth our commerce with Strangers. Vnskilfull Merchants outerthrow our Trades.

Merchants by education are onely fit to trade in forraine parts.

How rich Commonbecome poore. not burt, but grealy helpe the Common Hopes to inof Indian Wares to forraine parts.

The particular Trade to the East Indies will bring great ftore of treafure into this Realme, if the generall Trad: of this Kingdome doe confume it. The Dutch in particular, are faid to reare fuch infor-

red, that all the moneys received by strangers for their Merchandize, shall be employed upon the Commodules of this Realme? the due performance whereof would not onely present the carrying away of much Gold and Silver, but also bee a meanes of greater vent of our owne Wares: whereof I pumpels to write some thing more in the next part which concerneth our commerce with strangers.

And now I come to the last point, which I feare is not the least amongst the causes of our want of money (lo firre as any fuch may be,) and let it not seeme strange to any man, that Trades should bust and impouerib a Common-wealth, fince it bath beene alwayes accounted an excellent meanes to belpe and enrich the same : for, as this truth cannot be denied with reason, so it is likewise most certaine, that the unskilful managing thereof hath ever proved a great decay unto those Nations who have beene entungled with fisch errours. And are not the examples too frequent in many of our owne Merchants, [0 who not onely by the perils of the Seas and such like missortunes lose their goods, but also even through want of knowledge, wifely to direct their affaires , doe ouerthrow their whole estates? Neither may we properly call this their losse, but rather the Kingdomes losse in them. Wherefore it were to be wished, that this misterie of Merchandize might be left onely to them who have had an education thereunto; and not to be undertaken by such, who leaving their proper vocations, doe for want of skill in this, both ouerthrow themselves, and others who are better practised.

But there is yet a farre greater mischiese by our Trades beyond the Seas, when peraduenture, there might be in ported yeerely a greater value in forraine Wares, then by any way or meanes wee doe export of our owne Commoduies; which cannot otherwise come to passe, then with a manifest impourishing of the Common-wealth: for as it is a certaine courfe to make rus rich, both in Stocke and Treasure, when 20 wee shall carrie out a greater value of our owne goods then wee bring in of forraine Wares; so by confequence, a course contrarte to this, must of necofficie worke a contrarte effect. Neither is this importation meant otherwif- then concerning those Wares, which are consumed in this Realme : for the Combrought in for modities which are brought in, and after carried on unto fortaine parts againe, cannot but t, but doe greatly beloe the Common-wealth, by encre fe of his Maiesties Customes and Trades, with other implayments of the Subsects: by which particulars I might yet fet forth the glorie of the East India Trade, which hath brought into this Realme in fif eene moneths space, not onely so much Spice, as bath ferned the same for the find time; but also by the superfluitse thereof, there hash beene experted into forraine parts for about two hundred and fifteene thouland pounds sterling. So then let all men indge, for raine parts for moon two tuniness and property secrety; when unto these Spices wee may (by Gods 30) what a great value we may hope kereafter to export speech; when unto these Spices wee may (by Gods 30) affifance) adde the infinite worth of raw Silkes , indicoes , Callicoes , and some other things : all which are to be iffued in the nature of Clith , Lead, Time, or any of our owne Merchandize to the enriching of this Kingdome by encrease of the common Stocke. So then to conclude this point , wee ought not to anoid the importation of forraine Wares, but rail er willingly to brial our owne affections to the moderate consuming of the same : for otherwise, how soener the East India Trade in particular is an excellent meanes greatly to encrease the Stocke of money which wee feed thither yearely, by returning bome five times the value thereof in rich Commodities; all which (in short time) may be converted into Treafive, as is plainely shewed alreadic. Yet notwishstanding, if these Indian Wares this brought home cannot be spared, to serue for that purpose of Treasure; but must bee sent forth together with our ownerative Commodities; and yet all little enough, to provide our excesse and extraordinarie consume of forraine Wares: then is it likewise as certaine, that the generall Trade of this Kingdome doth hinder 40 and divert the comming in of the said Treasure, by over-ballancing the value of our Wares exported nothinder and with the in portation and immoderate consume of forraine Commodities. Therefore, for asmuch as the number of the people in this Realme are thought to be greatly encrea-

sid of late time (both in themselves and strangers, ) whereby necessarily the Commodities of this Kingdom, and also forren Wares, are the more consumed and wasted, (a double meanes to abate the Commonwealth) it therefore concerneth vs all in generall, and eucry man in his particular, to stirre vp our minds wealth speciely and diligence, to helpe the naturali Commodities of this Realme by industrie, and increase of Arts; by this filhing seeing that the materials cannot be wanting to make such Stuffes, and other things as are daily brought unio us from forraine parts, to the great advantage of Strangers, and to our no lesse damage. Neither Should wee neglect the riches which our Seas affoord, whileft other Nations by their labour doe procure ledge thereof themselues great Treasure from the same. And as the diligent performance of these things would plentifully maintaine the Poore, and much increase the common Stocke of this Kirgdome: fo likewife for the better furtherance thereof, wee ought religiously to awayd our common excesses of food and rayment, which is growne to such a height in most degrees of people (about their abilitie) that it is now beincredible. See Jond all example of firmer Ages. Neither is it needfull for mee to fet downe the particulars of these hereo: D. Dees abules; for they are too well knowne: and I am confident, that the wifedome of our Gouernment doth booke: as also endeauour to fee them as well amended, to the glorie of God, the honour of the King, and the good of Cap. Smitis. the Common-wealth. Amen.

Ourteous Reader, I could have added others indeauours in this defensive Argument for the East Indian Trade; and especially that of that learned Gentleman Sir Dud. Diggs: But because himselfe is now absent in weightier Employments, and I knew not whether he would be willing to see it must red and marshalled in my Files , I was loth to doe it : For his ill-will I have carrie to bee vinwilling to purchase, whose good-will hath purchased mine and mee (a worthlesse Purchas) in effecting my present good, in affecting greater, that I might have beene enabled to have bestowed on the world my promised perfected World. Wherein not to have fucceeded, is yet (as that vaft and incompetible deligne of mine) to have exceeded, as others otherwise, so herein himselfe. Besides, later occurrents haue ministred other Strings for busie 10 Fingers to harpe on, (though not with best Harmonie), fince the edition of that Booke, I had thought alfo to have added iomewhat out of Mafter Mifeldens FREE TRADE, fitting the present busineste: but seeming to have made not an Indian Voyage, but a Plantation, in so long flay there, I will bring you homewards: and because the wonted way of teturne is by encompating Africa, that course also wee will here take: and to preuent Sea licknesse, and the lazie Scorbute, we will not onely touch on the Shoare, but aduenture into the maine Land, and follow the best Guides, both English and others, thorow the African both Defarts and Habitations: of whom John Lee is the best that hath writeten in that Argument, and as a Lion may conduct the most fearefull thorow the most perillous passages. For what may not Cowards doe, having a. Lion to their Guide and Captaine:

Qqqq 2

For the Readers greater both pleasure and profit , I have here premised to the following  $H_{ist}$  force of Asiaca, this generall Map of Asiaca (published by Hondius) that hee may A Historicy (Mica, von general cary) and proving of abundany in a neem of induced fee, essen with both fees of Coggraphic (the Mappe and the Relation) to trauell therow that leaft knowne part of the Elder-knowne World. Other Maps more particular we shall adde in their places.

HONDIVS bis Map of Africa.

NA-

AN ALPHABETICALL TABLE OF THE PRIN-CIPALL THINGS CONTAL

NED IN THE FOURE LAST

Bookes of the first Part of PVRCHAS his Pilgrims.

Baxin Coaft. 287 Abba del Curia or Adalacora, a long narrow ragged Iland, 280,538

Abdala Chan his manner of humiliation to the great Mogoll, 552 Abrolhos, sertaine dangerous fands Absolutions for Homicide, Treason,

Sodome, Witcheraft, Periurie, and all crimes, Acabars Stately Tombe a description thereof, Acatlan a Towne of Indians

burnt. Achen a description thereof, 467. 119. The English royally entertained there, 467,526,462. A Faltory feiled there, 526. The K.of Achens lesser and prefents to our King 468. A description of the King and Court, 122.468. 534. Quarrell betwixt the Ache. ners and Tecoans,

Achen Bay, fruitfull for Pepper, the Kings entertaining of Captaine Danies, hee u firmed all in Gold, 119.120. The Kings treacherie, and reward 120.121. The land bath plentie of Gold, and Copper mmes, diners kma's of Gammes, Baimes, many kindes of Drugges much Indico, Rubies, Suphires and Garnets; of Beuits, Elephants, Horfes, Buffles, Oxen, Goats, wild Hogs, &c, 121. The King called | Agars a Mine thereof,

Sultan Aladin, bee was a Fifberman, bow he came to bis banour, 121,122. His Court, Cuftomes, and Government, 122. His playing the Merchant, 532. The Kings burialls, 123. His Nanie, 526. His women and pompe, ibid. The people that trade in Achen, 126. Their deers sermes of payment, as Calbes, Mas, Compan, Pardam, Tayell, and the expression thereof. 123. The honourable entertainment of an English Generallby the King of Achen, and Queene Elizabeths Prefents to bim, 1 53. Her Letters fent to the King of Achen, 154. Reasons of league, betweene the English and them of Acher, 155. The League concluded to the Articles agreed on, 1 c6. The K. of Achens letter to Q Elizabeth, 160. Adams an Enolifbman by Vorage by the South Sea to Lapon, 125. His miferies on the Coafts of Chili, 126, 130. His Letter to bis Wife from

Aden a Citie under the dominion of the Great Turke, and u the Key of all Arabis Falux, 229.249. A description of the fituation of the Citie of Aden, A lulterie punifhed with death, 165

lapon,

Atrangie, Spaine fo called, Africa the Mappe thereof, A sareus conquered, and many thoufind of ibem fens to Hell,

Agra the feate of the great Mogoll, 209.23 1. Captain Hawkins bie arriuall thither and his entertainment with the Mogoll, 210,211. It is a great Citie and populous, built with Stone; the Merchandife there, 236. Diners obsernations concerning the way, and occurrences in the way to Agraby William Finch Merchant, 424s 425. Et feq. Terrible fires at A. gra 427. A description of Acra and the Castle, 438, 439. The Countrey betweene Agra and Labor described 420,579. The kingdom of Agra bow fituate, 579 Airebangve Bay the Towne 8. minutes North latitude, 329 Albaca an exceeding bigh Hill vo-muing flimes, Albuq erques exploits, and the first krowledge of the Moluccas, 32 Alcatratzi, a kinde of Fowle that liucth by fishing, great flore of them.

Alcatraz, a kind of Sea-fowle, 10 Alexander Pope of Rome bis prefumption, vourpation, bis former name orc. 18.19. & leq. A name ominous to the world, the Church andto all the Popes that hana beene of that name, 18.19. Alexander the 6. beire of all vices, 19

Alexanders Piller, 437-538 579
Ali, Nuts so called, 100 Allum where bought, and the price thereof, Aloes bow made, 193.280. The plen-sie and price thereof, ibid. An berbe very plentifull whereof Aloes Socatrina is made, 277.419. 539. More of them in Secotora then Christendome can yeerely Bend, 419. How fold, 529.539 Amafine Road, 348. The Hollanders Fort there, Amber-greece, 122. Pieces thereof found of fuch bulk . that many men might Shelter themselnes under the fides thereof without beeing seene,193. Amber the senerall forts thereof, how to know the best and where had. Amboina an Iland discourred, 33 The firmation thereof, 197. An excellent and pleasant description thereof, 698. The Caftle of Amborna.699. The Castle taken by the Duich and the English barred of Trade by them. America, why called India, 9. How fituate, Anarchye worfe then tyrannie, 177 Angizena one of the foure Iles of Comory, a description thereof, 536 Angoxa Iles bow fituate, 335. Neer them a very dangerous shold, ibid. Annoyating of the body after a Arange manner. Anfiame one of the Hands of Comore, the Inhabitants, their Queene, (they have no King) their Religion, Weapons, they greatly defire Paper, &c. 119 Antilopes, 275-512 Antongill Bay, 151. Barterings there, and discretion to be vied in trading with the Inhabitants ibid Apes dimining, or a strange story of an Ape. Aquapolque Hanen, the flate of the Calitle. Apparell of frange kinds, 3 5.37.40

Arabia Falix, 280.340. Dangerous fayling neere the Arabian Coast, 341. The English entertamed on the Coast of Arabia, Arabia not wholly subject to the Turke, 629. Arabian Tongue, the great vie thereof, Arabs their Customes and Manners 418. Their Armes, perfons, apparell, Women, gallantrie, Children, Faith, Dyet, 418.419 Avacke a hind of bot drinke vied in fierd of Wine, 173.154.626. How it is made, and the dangerow drinking thereof, 533.154 Arauso rich in Gold.

Arecca a certaine fruit like a Peare, 38. Arecca er Aracca Betula, a finit like a Nameg, it draweth the Rhume exceedingly, and procureib a mighiie ftomach, 122 Atica Road bow fituate, Arimoa Iland. Armies almost infinite. Art the Excellency thereof,

Arucetto an Iland in which are Men & Women not past a cubite in beight, baning Eares of such bigneffe, that they lie upon one and coner them with the other, 44 Ascention Hands, 90.133

Almere a Child-gining Saint, 428. A description of Aimere before the Mogoll made it bis Royall residence.

Affab Road, 289. The English kind. ly vied there, Aile-bornes, Bucklers, & diners fores of arinking Cups made berof, 4:6 Altrolabe, and Tables of Declinati-

Aftronomicali rules & inftruments the excellency thereof. Athenime a notable Example of Gods punshing thereof, Atlantike and Indian Seas have

Atonza bew fituate,

Au-uffine Bay how fituate : the Inbabitants their condition, forme, language; the fertilitie of the Country, &c. 118.192.334.417 Variation there, 191. This Bay is unfit for any Ships to expell refreihing, 192. Shelmy ground, Riwers, Fiftes, Weapons, Beasts, and Wormes there, 417. Nanticallob. Seruations concerning places betwist the Lizard and S. Auguftine in the Ile of S. Lawrence, 444.445. & leq. of mote for the finding out of the River of S. Auguttine in S. Lawrence; and of diners (mall lles in the way thence to Achen, 448.449

Auroca, a Towne with fine hundred Spaniards in Garrison continually affaulted by the Chilefians, 81 Axicoca an Herbe which the Indians perpetually chem, Aynam He discouered, 650

BAb-Mandell Straights, 284. Bachian or Bachan, an bigh copped round Iland, how fituate, 357. 699. The Hellanders hinder the English Trade there, wiid. The small forces of the Hollanders in Bachian, ibid. Bichan taken by the Spaniards, 677. Two Bachans, the one called Great Ba-chan, the other Old Bachan, 699 Bagdat a Cuie two English miles in compasse, seated on Tygris, very populose, and of great trafique of Strangers being the way to Perfia, Turkie, & Arabia, 237

Baharem a famous Iland, where they fift for Pearles foure moneths in the yeere, and where are the best Pearles which are round and O. rient.

Baia Delicia, a very goodroad, 538 Baradore Cape first paffed, Baldiuia is rich in Gold Balce an Iland to the Eastwards of Maccaffar, flanding in 8 degrees and a balfe to the South of the Equinoctial. It bath flore of Rice, Cotton-yarne, Slaues, and course white Cloth, Baliara a City neer unto the Perfian Gulfe, a mile and balfe in Circuit where come monethly diners Ships of forty or fifty Tunnes from Ormus, laden with all forts of Indian Merchandizes.

Banca a great Hand, 443.452.453. Banda certain Hands fo called, where Nutmegs and Mace is plentifull. 33-392.717. The fituation of thefe Ilands, 186. A Vorage the ther by Captaine Keeling, 196. Contentions between the Hollanders and Bandaneffes, 720. Ships taken by the Hollanders at Banda,687. Three fenerall furrenders of certaine of the Banda In lands made to the Kings Maieflue of England, 701. English trade in Bands, 199.203. Kindnelle of the Bandaneffes tothe English, 240. The flate of Banda 324. A pithy description of the Ilands of Banda, 697. Cinill

Bander Zeda a place on the Abaxin Coast. Bangaya Straits, 226. Bangaya I-Land, 239. Banians then diners Imperstitions and Customes, 485 Bankingle Ile, wars among the Bandane [es, 709

Bannaras a very good fruis, Bantam a very great Towne in land Maior, the firmation and description thereof, 136.164.317. Their food and houses, 165. Great flore of Pepper to be bad there at a rea-Jonable rate, 159.161. A Faitory fetled there, and a Letter and prefent fent from the K. of Bantam. to the Queene of England, 162. Fires and treason at Bantam, 177 The K. of Bantam his Circumcia fion, pompe, and prefents, 180.181

THE TABLE

Captaine Keeling bis arrinallat Bantam, 195. The distance between Bantam & Celebes is 225 leagues, 197. The price of commodities encreasetb at Bantam and wby, 382. Bantam weights & Ca-(bes, 390. Customes at Bantam 191. Commodities vendible in Bantam,391. A fectall note for thefe that fayle neere Bantam, 442. The Pangran of Bantam bu susuffice, 6 2 2. The way from Bantam to Patania, and thence to Izman. 64 s. The K. of Bantams letter to the King of England, 705 Barateue an Iland discoursed, a description of the people and Country 5. Ermisfull and rich in Gold, Siluer, Copper & Sulphur, plentsfull of Nutmegs Ginger, long Pepper, Limons, Cucumbers, Cocos, Figu, Sagn &c.

Barbarie a voyage thither by Macham an Englishman, Barbarous workes, Barkes of trees which bite like Pep-

Barke John Thomas, one of Sir Fr. Drakes Conferts met withall by M.Candilh, 59. Another Barke taken by Candith comming out of Aricaroade, Barnauels Hands.

Barres of Silner met withall, Barterings on the Iland of Zubat. 40. In the Hands of Molucca, 44. 363. In the Bay of Soldana, 118. 320.In the Bay of Antongill, 151 With certain Indian (hips, 308 Bata Iland or berwife called the Batte, or Battoo, bow fitnate, bath no

Inhabitants, abounds with wood, Riners, Fish, Munkees, Battes, 124.639 Batacala the price of Pepper there,

Batochina an Iland which ftandeth in one degree from the Againo. nottial line Northward, Bats as bigge as Eagles, 39. They are good to be eaten, ibid. Others as bigge as Hounes, $6. Others as big as Hares, in Shape like Squirvils, 114.417. Other ftrange Bats which are faid to ingender in the Eare. Bawdes vid Panders. Bay of Saint Helena, 26.319.69.

Bay of Bengala, or Gangelike, Bay of Quintero bow fituate, 62 Bay of Pifca bow fituate, Bay of Paita, the Towns and prizes found there.

Bay called Aguada Segura, Bay of Saint Augustine, 118.192. 334-417-444-445-448-449-The Interced Bay, 525. The Voluntary Bay, Beadesvery cuitly and rich, 224 Beanes growing upon bigh Trees, the Cods two foot long, 118 Beane Trees of venemous nature, wherewith the Inhabitants of Sierra Leona poyfon their Ar-rowes. Beaits of Strange forme like Stagges and Buffals, 72. Beafts like Harts 91. The beautifull beast, 192 Other Strange Beasts.

Stians of Socatora. Beefe of Saldania taketh fult well,

Bengala a mightie Kingdome, a de-Scription thereof, with the Cities

the East Indies, and the miferable difasterous successe ibereof.

Mallagens Minnian, the best fort commeth from Syams, which is fort not fo good commetb from Sumatra ; a third fort commeth from Priaman & Barrow fe, which u not vendible in England, 389 Buft bie voyage to the East Indies,

456.457. Et leq, Captain Beit se entertained at Achen, and greatly boundered by the King, Bettaile an berbe which the lanans

U (mally carry with them wherefoener they goe in boxes which is bee in operation, they eate it continually to warme them within, and present the Fluxe.

Bettre or Vetele a Tree like the Bay Bezar the fenerall kinds, bow to know the best, and where it is to bee

Bhar, an Indian terms of weight, which is 360. of our pounds, 123 Biamye the chiefest place for Indico in all the East Indies, where are twelve Indico mills. Biana, the place of finest Indi-

Biles the cause of death, Bintam an Iland described, 62 | Birds of a ftrange forme, 44.39.83.

92. 134.133. Great plentie d Birds, Birds of Paradice. Birth-day Rites performed by the Great Mogoll, Blacke men, found in an Hand difconcred, Blacke Kmg, Bloudshedding among St the Indsans a token of fisendibip, Bloudie Flux following upon the cating Palmitos.

Bloudie Experiments. Bloy He, the fitnation thereof, 197 Boat's of ftrange falbion, 37.61.66 Bohol an Hand difconered, Becket Canonized Bolutan a great Hand, one bundred Bedwines, or the old Iacobite Chriand eightie miles long, Bongo, Bonitos a kind of Fishes, Borneo how fitnate, 77, It is an I-

Beloule, a place on the Affab Coast,

Botun Ile, deferibed, 229.455. and Ports therein. Benjamin Wood, bis Vorace unto gerous should neere st, 45$ Bouton Straight in full of sholds, 85 Bramenes their Superfluien, 327 110.111. E: feq. Certaine Bramenes who record Beniamin a Gumme, called by the the names of all such Indians as walb themselnes in the Riner Ganges, Bramport a great Citie gonerned by Can Canow,the funation thereof 236. Muskets, Snaphanfes, Pistols, and Swords, are beere very (aleable : Woollen cloath would bere prone a great Comodity, 236

India.

A description of Bramport, 484 Brasill first descouered : whence so named, 30. Two and twenty degrees & a balfe toward the South Pole or Pole Antartike, 34. It bath aboundance of fruits of all kindes, good Sugar Canes, and diners forts of Beasts, 24. The Inbabitants of the Countrey make great fires for a Sacrifice to the land one of the greatest in East

Aduertisements concerning the

Straights of Botun, 3 56. A dan-

Denils : they vie Conturations, making beapes of fand and other Ceremonies, for the destroying of Ships that come about the [houre, and that florence and tempefts may arife.

Braile Ordnance of the King of As cheu. Bread made of Pene feed. Bread made of Cufeus beaten and mingled with Honey, Breuitie much affected by the lapomians, 373. Bribing people, 166

Brickes Sun-dryed wherof are made Castles, and other edifices,

Burney or Porne an Iland great andrich, having onevery great Citythe fituation of the Iland, 42 It is fored with Campbire, Cinamen, Ginger, Merobolanes, O. ranges, Limons, Sugar, Cucum. bers, Melons, Swine, Goats, Hens. Deere, Elephants, Horfe, &c. 43 Burning of the dead vied by the Indians, Burying of the dead, Strange Ceremonies vied thereat, Biriall of Grants. Burro Iland. Buthuan an Iland very rich where is Gold and Spices, 38. The King a man of most comety personage, branely attired, bis name Raiz

Butter not eaten by the Iaponians,

Button Iland , 197. The King of Buttone.

Celumba, ibid.

the reason,

Abis a france beaft, the bone whereof worne in a Bracelet Stayeth a mans blond notwith fanding any wounds. Cabo Tormentofo, or the Tempefluous Cape, Cacafuego a richibip taken, Cacaos, a kind of fruit like unto an Almond. Caffers their Commodities and man-Caghuian, an Iland great and in a manner w babited the people are barified Moores, they ofe poyfomed Arrowes, and bane store of Gold. Cana an Iland. Caimaes, certaine Nobles of Caleent, fo called. Caldway a Londoner, an excellent Musician surprised. Calecut or Callicut Voyage 28.29.4 Ship of Calcut met withall by the English, 306. An English Falto-

ry at Calecut, 531. The Samo-

Time or King of Calecut, 28.531

commendation thereof,

THE TABLE. Conenants betwirt the English & | Cape Bogiader, the King of Calecut, Cape Nou, Californe a bow fit wate. Cape Baiadore first paffed, Caleghan arich Iland, 3 Ś Cape Blanco disconered, Calues-skins eaten. Cape S. Katharine. Cambina, Cape of Good Hope the Discoury Camboia Iland, 281,648 It is not fo thereof. 7-447-45.68 far Eafterly as is fet in our Plats, Cape Corye, Cape of S. Mary where are precia Cambe, a wood to dre Red. cions ftones, Camel-fashioned-sheepe vsed for Capo defiderato. carriages, Cape Caligara, Camelions plentifull. ₹6 Cape of Malacha, Camulicai , a marnellone cold kinde 45 Cape Cantin, of fruit. Cape of loy, Cananor where situate. Cape de Sant Francisco, Canaries by whom discouered, and in Cape Friom Brafile. whose possession they are now, 6. Cape Froward the Southermost The senerall Hands and manner of part of the Straits. Sayling through them, Cape of S. Lucar, very like the Nee-Candahar Monniaines, 521. The dles at the He of Wight, 60 Cur of Candahar, the antiquitie, Cape called Cabo Fallo. and Inhabitants thereof, 522 Candahor the Prince thereof his in-Cape Confaluo mbere she winde v. Swally in the night bloweth from comlitie, land, in the day from Sea, 72 Candish bu Voyage into the South Cape de Cadera, where the Spani-Sea , & from thence round about ards as they paffe to the Molica the Circumference of the whole cas, ofe to take in mater, 85 Earth, 57.58.59. & i.q. Hista-Cape Commerin, 310.532 king of the great Ship of the King Capul Hand, the tranner of the peoof Spaines, called the Great Saint ple, their Commodities are Coces. Anna, 65. The Merchandise in Potato Roots, Hens and Hogs, 67. the great (hippe; one hundred and The inhabitats with al the Ilands two or twenty Pezos of Gold, ibid. adiogning promife to and the Enghis letter tothe Lord Hunfdon, 70 hilb against the Spaniards, 68. Canes m each knot able to containe Neere this Ile are many Whirletwo gallons of water, pooles, Canibals found, 34. One feene of fla-Carbuncle a Beaft very ftrange of ture as big ee as a Giant, bauing a true. voyce like a Bull, ibid. Other Ca-Carob Trees. 45.59.131.243 Castoni certaine wild beafts to called. Cannow a great City, where se much trading for Cloth, Swords, Peeces, Armor, Colours for dring; & Caitle of S. George della Mina, 7 all Clothes there will fell well, 236 Caffleton bu Voyage to the Moluc-Canno Iland, cas with foure ships, Catighan an Iland full of strange Canoas very firange, Canquomorra or Boamaro an exfoule, some of which have bornes. ceeding great Bay, the Countrey and Bats there are as big as Eavery fruitfull and pleafant to begles: Egges there are batched in Sand. Canters Spanish Fishermen ta-Causara the manner of making ibereof, Cape Das Agulios , the most Son-Cebela, 709. Berwint it and Botun therly Promountery of Africa, lye dangerous /hoalds, where the Compafe bath no Va-Celebes. 186.197.355 riation: it let hin 35, degrees of Cepta conquered. the South Pole. 118.204 Ceremonie vfed by the Mogol pre-Cape Virgines the description there. faging good fortune. 559 Ceffier Cape, 649 Cape Tingeron, a very bigh Cape, Cevlon Hand. 320 Chacalla Bay 64 Cape Verde, difcourred, 6.48. The | Chaine of frange vertue,

247 Chamelions great flore, 417. Ther

THE TABLE

eas flyes; Channell of S. Ierome, Chapmans Chance, a very good Harbour. Chappell Bay, Chariot drawne by Buffles, Chariot drawne by Bullocks, Cheribon, Cherioneffus called Aurea, beeing rich in Gold, Chefle-play in India. Chiametla an Indian Towne, 64 Children married at ten reeres old. Chili the trading of the Coast thereof, 50.81. Wine of Chile, 50.51. It is the most fertile Region in the World , of of most wholefome are, it bath Gold Mynes, Fruits, Mayes, Hogges, Horfes, Kine, Sheepe, Goats, &c. 74. The Mether City is Saint lago, where is a Gold Myne, 84. They killed the Spaniards, Anno 1599. Powring molten Gold suto the Governours monib, and making a Cup of bis Scull, and Pspes of his |bankebones, China Dilbes and Silke. China the description thereof, and commedities there 164.292. The Inhabitants very frugall, & bane great flore of Pepper, 169. Their Weapons, Apparell, Relegion, 166 Fine thousand Chineffes put to death for trading in forreine parts, Chinabata Strait, a [boald not farre from the entrance thereof, 382 Chinocrates bis insention to attract bus Iron !mage, Chindanna, or White Sanders, where plentifull, the price, and which esteemed best. Chippit an Ilandrich in Gold; and bath plenty of Rice, Ginger, Hoes, Goats, Hens, 42. The firmation of the Hand, ibid. Chitor an ancient great Kingdome, the description thereof. Choree and bis Copper Armone, Choromandell. Christ acknowledged by the Chinose .. to be a great Prophet, whom they call Naby Ita; Christians of India, Christianitie vied au atricke, rather of sensualitie then of denoti-Christians eracified by the Emperor of lapan. Chuquifaca the Biftop thereof PERSONA.

Church in India with Croffes and Alians erected by the Spaniards, 60. Another Church with Alar. Crucifixe and Bells burnt, 63. A Church in the way to Tamara, left desolate, the doore fout, veported to be full of Spirits , 529 Cici a drinke somwbat sowrish made of Mays. Cilapulapu Prince of Mathen, 41. Hu Army, Cimbubon an Iland discouered, wheren are strange things the leanes whereof feeme to line, ftrange fifbes, Crocodiles , wilde Hogs and Ostriebes. Cinamon where plenty, Cipanghu an Hand difeonered, 36 Circumcifion, 67,414. The manner and order of the Circumcition of the King of Bantam. Citie of Kings or Lima, the bigneffe, gonernment, and excellent fituation thereof, Cinet, how to know that which is Ciuet Cats great flore and how taken, Civill mars an bindrance to English Trade. Clokes of Penguin skint. Cloth made of the Barkes of Trees. Cloud of daft. Cloues the Storebonfe thereof in the Hands of Moluccas, 33 44.227. 357.359. The maner of weighing, and trading with the Naturals for Clones, 362.363. They are cheap at Bantam. Cloue-trees their bignesse, boughes, leanes, barkes, Clones bow growing, and when gathered, 44. A Clone tree differing from all other in its fruit , which is called the Kings Cloue, Coach drawne with Oxen, Cochee Port, Cochin a front Hauen. Cochinching the trading there unluckie. Cockfightings vfed in the Iland of Pulasan, 42. In Achen, 156 Cocus a fruit of certaine Date-trees, wheref is made Bread Wine, Oile, and Umeger, 37. The description of the Tree that beareth Cocos, 47. Greet flore of them., 47. Cocus Iland. Coen the Duich Generall bie (mel-ling titles,

Coho, a black bisterifh drinke, made of a berry like a Bay-berry, brought from Mesca, Supped off bot, good for the bead and flomache, 419 Coines of the great Mogdil, 217 Coines at Surat, Columbus bis birth, bis affection to Nanigation from his childhood his Mariage, Studie of the Mathematicks, Religion, Wildome, & s. 8e His grounds for the Discourre of the New World, 9. His first Voy age and Improvement therein of the Marmers Art, 10. The Portugals have fought to objeure his exployes, Comedie planed by women, 224.268 Comedie atted by Kings and Nobles, 403. The maiter thereofi with their acting Song and Mnficke. Connets which appeared m Common-wealthes that are rich bow then may become poore, 746 Comoro Iles. 118.228. They are Ilands very pleasing in fight, and, fruitfull in nature, 119. At Samda, Ilbookee, Auroane, Mootoo foure of the Hes of Comore, there is absordance of ebenja Rice , and the people good ; but Inghezeegee and Malale : The more of the Tame Ilands . have fmall flore of Rice, and the perple very treatherous, تووت Compaffe, the vie and excell wie thereof, 2. The variation thereof. 3. Compaffe and Seaturds wied by the Moores Conception Hand," Condemned per fons fet on fhore, 37 Congo what Kingdome, Conses frangely multipling, e. Of wonderfull bigneffe and fashions SA. Rarities in fome Countries, 181.182. Conie Iland, 133.446 Conturing concening Knauer, 398 Copper Mones, Copper where m chiefe request, 229 Con imbo bath fore of Brafe, 84 Cotall where plentsfull, Corea, a Country in which are great Bogger, for remedy against which they bane great Waggens, which equen broad wheeles under faile as Ships doe.

Corpo Sancto, a flame about the Coryat his tranells by land from Ie-rusalem to the Court of the Great

Mogoli, 992. 93. His obfernati-ons, newes, thrift, difafters letters.

ring at Sea,

bigneffe of a great Candle appear valiant man,

Curia Mulia Ilandi,

Cryle of Honour, what is it.

222

119

Currents, respect must be had therunto, otherwise will follow intollerable errours, 191.278. The main power of the Current leffened, 192. Opinion of the cause of the Currents, shit. The North Current lost, 248, The force of a Current, 309. 525. of great Current to the Westward, 316. A frong Current fetting South South-west, 334. An extreame Current to the Southward, 335. A Current to the Eaft-ward 364. A great Current Shoeteth our betweene Corea and the main of bina 380. A Current to the East Nor. beeast, 384. Current neere Cape Das Aguilhas bow it fets, 479. The Current often de. cemeth, 527. A ftrange Current running fifteene dayes Westerly. fifteene dayes Eafterly, and fifteen dayes no wayes , 529, Other frange Currents, 618.630.652

DAbis an Image fo called, made of Copper, the description & worldip thereof, Dabull the firmation theref; the English bane trade sbere, 272. 567. 656. Double dealing there, 303. Store of refreshing at Dabull, et good chespe, 6 5 6. Kind entertainment of the English at Dabull, Daman, vid. Doman. Damiadee a Riner which falleth into the River of Synde, Dancing, 396 Danger by beate of Pepper. Dangers by a Molato, 172 Darts very dangerous, Date-trees producing frange fruits, Dates plentifull. Date-trees bearing fruit twice a

Dauies bie directions for the Eaft-Indies, CALTS. Day difference in computation of time, bow canfed, Daytaot, a City where are fold great flore of Drugs, Postados, & Calico-lawnes, Death canfedby fodaine ioy. Death and extreme fickneffes in the East Indies, 179. The death requeft, of Sir Thomas Powell and his Lady, Decan mars, 424,425. & feq. Sul. tan Coroone imployed in the

Decan wars, Decre large and might, 48. Great beards thereof. Delicacie ernell. 222 Delisa Road, a very good place for the West Monfan; two miles ein ther East or West from the Road

it doth continually blow fo much wind, that no ship can ride it, 193 Delly an ancient Citie, and the Seat of the Great Mogolls Ancestors, now rained 578. Some affirme it to have beene the Seat of Porus conquered by Alexander, & that there flands a Pillar with a Greek Infeription, Denis Fernandez bie Veyage, Deruis or Saint, lining on a Hill, reported to bee three hundred reeres old. Defelem Iland. Defolam Straight, 197-239 Defolate llands. 229. The defolate

Ilands not defelate of Coco wats, and other good pronifien, 229 220 Deuils appeare to Grants when they dye, and dance about their bodies, 25. There is a great Denill they call Setebos, the leffe they call Cheleule, this, Other firange Demils, 35. The Denill appearing in strange formes to the Inhabitants of the Hand Timo ,45. The Densil prayed to, 166. The Denill a Lear or beleed. 399-402 Diamonus where plenty, 77.292. An inestimable rich Coffer of Diamonds.

Diamonds of foure waters , and of diners colours, 292. A Rocke of Diamonds, Dibnee & Towns in Socotora, 418

Diego Roiz an Ile fo called bow fituate, abounding with ftrange birds, 122. A dangerom place for rocks and (healds that lye about it, 134

Diego Gratiola, a pleafant Iland, bow lituate, full of Coco-trees, abounding with Birds and Fift, Diofcuria er Diofcorida, vid. So-

Diseases caused of Famine. Difease of Saint Iob. Doara Iland, Dogges Hand in 14. degrees 12.

minutes, 925. leagues from Pe-Dogges killed, 323. Dogges in great

Doman bew fituate, 529. Plentifull provision, and other commeditue there for luttle money, $29.530

Domingo a Spaniard his escape, 64 Don Alphonio the first King of Portugall, Dorfui Cape, Dos Banhos, fine Iles fo called, how fituate, full plaid in most Chares: they abound with Fowle, Fift, Coco Nuts,

Down on bis East Indian Voyage and attempts, 500. 501. & leq. The death of the worthy Captaine Nicholas Downton, Doy a great Iland, a description thereof,

Drake his renowmed Voyage the first Generall which ener fayled about the whole Globe 46.47.48. & leq. He fayled on the back fide of A. merica to 42 degr. of Northerly latitude, 52. Hee came to Nous Albion where be was received by the King of that Country, who refigned his Crowne and Kingdome to him, 53. The fame of Sir Francis Drake.

Drakes Streight. Drinke very firange and bomely, 100 Drinkers of Sea-water, Dromedanes, 219. Their firefineffe to gine affault to any Citie, ibid. Drugges of fundry kindes, great flore,121.389. Certaine Rules for the choise of sundry Drugs, as also from whence they may bee had,

Drummes made of a metall called Tombaga, which makes a most Hellifb found, Drunkenneffe vied to testifie lone, 534. A prettie preuention there-Duas Iamanas two Hands which for their likelihood are (o called, 278 Dutch Victory against the Spani-

Dutch Frayes, 183.184.185. Quarrels between English and Dutch,

Dutch pretences against Banda, & the English there, 202. Vacharitable purpoles of the Dutch, 241 Dutch fermpulofitie and English re-Colution, 242. A Dutch testimony of Dutch miquity, 32 1. Dutch wrongs, and the fights betweet Sir Thomas Dale and them, & feq. The happy uniting of the English and Dutch, 641, 642. English kindnesses to the Dutch, 664. Durch miner and crueltie, 668. 669.671.672.682.684.692. 693.695

Durch bostulity to the English, 68; The Dutch excuse their owne wrongs, 688.186. An answere to their excuse, and proofe of their abule.600.601.Et feq. Ditch Voyages, to the East Indies, 706.707. Et leq. Dutch gaines, and present state of their India Trade , 819. Ill gonernment of the Duten Indian

Commanders, 722. The cause of the Dutch-English-Indian warres; Dwarfes, TAres of certaine people cut into a C round (well, hanging downe very low upon their cheekes, 54 Extes and Nofes of three shouland Coreans, buried in the Temple of Miaco', which were maffacted at one time. Earth is as a great Loadstone, Earth-quikes, 105.385.666.697. one most bideous and horrible Earth quake, Eatt Indies the flate thereof, 80.8 1. Et leg. A description of the Forts, Souldiers, and military provision, as alfo of their Trade and Shipping in the East Indies . under the fernice of the Generall States of the Vnited Proninces, and his Excollencie, as u was in July 1616. 87. Queene Elizabeths Patent. for the Eaft Indies, 139. The file of their Corporation, Seale, first Gouernour, first Commuties,140 Their Oath, day of yeerely Eleftion of a Gonernour, their Daputy Gonernour, 141. Freedome for the Sonnes and Apprentifes of such as are free of the Company; their place of Assembly, authority to make Lawes, 142. Power to pumilb offenders their paring of Custome, 143. Their liberty for the carrying out of forvein Coine, 144. Forfenmes, de. 145.146. The first Voyage to the Latt Indies, by Sir Tames Lancafter for the Merchants of London . 147

148. Ettiq. The fecond Voyage

(et fortb by the Company into the East Indies, Sir Henry Middleton being Generall, wherein were imployed foure ships, &c.185 186

Eifeq. The third Voyage to the East Indies, fer out by the Company of Merchants, trading in those parts; wheren were imployed three (hips in them the number of three hundred and ten perfors, Cartain-

Keeling chiefe Commander, 188.

Captaine William Hawkins relations of the Occurrents, which bappened in the time of his refidince in India , wretten to the Company, 206.207. & 11q. A Letter from the Vice-roy of the Eaft Indies, to the Meull agamft the English 212. The fourth Voyage to the East Indies. with two firps under the command of Alexander Sharpey General, and Richard Rowles Linusnant Generall wub the disconerie of the Red Sea, 228.229. & seq. The fixt Voyage fet forthby the East Indian Company in shrek Ships, Sir Henry Middleton Admurall, 247.248. & icq. The fementh Voyage into East India, fet out under the command of Captain Anthony Hippon, 314 The principall places of Trade in the East Indies, 322. A lournall of a Voyage made by the Pearle to the Eait India , wherein went as Captaine M. Samuell Caffleton of London, and Captain George Bathurft as Lientenant, 328. The eighth Voyage fet forth by the Eaft Indian Societie , wherein were imployed three shippes under the command of Captaine Iohn Saris, 334.335. & leq. Places of principall Trade in the East Indies with their feneral names and ficuations, o also what commodities they doe affoord, and what is there defired, 390.391. 392. & feq. The minth Voyage of the Indian Company to the East Indies, Edmund Marlow Captaine, 440. 441. & feq. Dirette ons of Mafter Ichn Davis for the Eaft Indies, 444. Sen-courfes from Port to Port in the Eaft Indies, 452.453.487. The tenth Vorage to the Eatt India, Mafler Thomas Best chiefe Commander, 456.457. & 1eq. The elenenth Voyage to the Eatt India, Anno Dom.1611. Witten b, Ralph Wilson 486. 487. &c fig. The ewelfib Voyage to the Est India, the Captaine Mafter Christopher Newport. Anno 1612. Written by Walter Payton, 488-489. &icq. The fecond Voyage of Captaine Walter Payton mte the Eatl Indies. fet forth by the Eatl India Company, and what happened therein. 528. & leq. Places in the Eaft Indies furrendred to our King, 611. A Relation of the fifth Voyagefor the loyne Stocke fet forth be the Eaft Indie Societie : confisting of fine shippes all under the gonernment of Captaine Martin Pring, 631.632. & leq. Dutch Nanigations to the East Indies, out of their owne lournals and other H Stories, 706.707. & leq. A discourse of Trade from Eng. land unto the Eaft Indies : an-Swering to diners objections which are viually made against the fame. 722. 733. & feq. How the Eaft In ha Trade doth eurich this Kingdome, 736. The manner bow the East Indian Company doe victual iber Ships, 740. Their promission for timber and planke, 7:9. Their warlike promision; and his Maiesties strength in the East India Company alone, 739. The frength of the East Indian (bipt, 742. The East India Trade greatly defired by other Christian Natsons. Echat Shaw bis pietie to bis Mo-Ecliples of the Moore, 284. 364. 385. 402. 63 2. The Moone ( eclipfed that the Chineffes and Iauanies beating Pans, and Morters cryed out, the Moone was Eclipse of the Sunne, Edoo a great Cirie in Iapan, 374. The King of Eloo bis Letter to the King of Great Britaine, 374.

Effeminatenffe, Egges batched in Sand. Elephants, 42.43.57. 121.219 325. 711. An Elephant Shot, 190. Elephants Royall, and trained Elephants , 218. Strange things done by Elephants, 219. Ambite Elephant 322. 4 ftrange artificiall Elephant, 425 Wild Elephants 424. A fight of wilde Elephants, 467. Executions done by Elephants, 542. 219. Brauery of Elephants, 559 Elizabeth Bay, Emanuell King of Portugall the beginning of his Reigne, bis Expeditions, 26. His Firet fent to the Eaft Indies, 26.27.28. His fecond fleet fent to the Eaft Indies: their discourry of Bratil and other 30.21 Engano Ile. 450.634 England famous,

English honour and fame in the East mired, ibid. Horrible treacheries intended to the English and re-nealed. Englishmen in the time of Henry the Second their Expedition to the Holy-land, their toyning with the Portugall King , and vanquishing the Moores, Englishmen abused by Hollanders, 119.183.199 Euglish kindneffe to the Dutch in Banda, ill rewarded, 200. Prinate quarrels among the English 4-broad, 378. English I cloufic over the Spaniards , 404. English Branado a canfe of sufficion by the Mogoll, Englands Forrest, vid . Pearle Hand. Enuie the fary thereof, 12. The first

Sinne in the Denell. Equinoctiall Line, 36.313.316. 317. The best course to paffe the Equinoctiall Line, 445.479 Eruco, afilner Mine

Estac a kind of Capers, eaten in fal-Fires made for a Sacrifice to the lets where plentifull, Eftriges, Evans bitten by an Alegarta; 191 Eude an Hand where groweth great plenty of Cinamon, Euganolland Eunuches. 541.547 Exchanges of moneyes with forreine Countrejes, the vife and abuse thereof. Executioners in Lauin, where any are condemned to dye, and the next of kinne, Execution of a China Thiefe for stealing English Goods, Executions very ernell, 219. 542

The maner of executing offendors in Iapan, Experience better then inftruments to Nanigators,

T.Ace-painting, Face worfbipped Factories fetled for the English-East Indian Company in the East Indies; the names of the places, Faithleffe people. Falpits to take Swine, Famine most extreame fuftained by the Portugais in a Voyage, 36 Farfing what it fignifies, Fatipore a Citie as great as Lon-

Featts, and Festinal dayes of the | Flowers or graffe feene in the Sea, a Great Mogoll, 225-543 Indies, 178. Their refolution ad- Featts of the Gentiles , 327. The Fluxe the canfe thereof, 191. Is great Fealt of the Pagans , inni- raignes much in laun, 168. The

ting their dead Kindred, banqueto ting and making merry all night with canale light at their granes, 395. Another Solemene Feaft of the Pagans, & the mauner therea Feathers in request, and much defired by the Mogoli. Feluke Bay, the Towne and Mount.

Fernando Ilands, Fetipore a famous Citie in the great Magals Countrey, a description thereof, 428. The Interpretation of Fetipore is, A Town of Content, or a place of Hearts defire obtavned.

ight with Spaniards and Indians. Fires called Saint Ellen , Saint Nicholas, and Saint Clare, innocated for the flaying of Tempests,34

Denill, 48. The terrem of the word Fire, Fires in lauan. 168.160 Fiery Wormes, Fiery King, 322 Fire-boats, Fireworkes rare and excellent, 628 Finch bis Obsernations concerning be Voyage to the Indies, 414-415 Firando the King thereof and his Nepbew, 365. The King of Firando bu letter to the King of England, 38 3. A great & dangerous fire in Firando, Fish beaded like a Swine , with two hornes, the rest of the body alone bone, and as it were a Saddle on the backe, 43. Six thousand jifes taken in an boure and balfe, 189 Abundance of fifb, 278. Ara-nenom fish, Fishermen and Fisherboats in great abundance, Fitz bis Indian Voyage. Flats and Rocks very dangerous betwive Achen and Bantam, 161

Fleet-royall of Peru, Flemmings cowardife, 118. Flemmings put to death at Bemermaf-Sen, 386. They affault the Cafile of Mosambique, Flesh not eaten by the Arabs, 419 Flores and Cornes. Floris bis Voyage to the East Indies.

Signe of Land,

THE TABLE.

Fluxe succeeding the Scorbute,179 Flying fifbes, 36.48.132 Five liand. Fogo, or Fire, an Hand on the South of the Straits of Magellane, 80 Formofa Bay or Gulfe, 337.652 Fort called the Nativity. Foteima a Prince in amity with the King of Melinde, Fowles with bornes, 20. Fowles in abundance, 275.50.72.331.416 A ftrange Fowl of the bignes of a Turkie, or great flore of them, 221

Franciscans fent to the East Indies for Connersion of the Infidels, 30 Frankes; the Westerne Christians in the Easterne World are since that Expedition of Godfrey of

Bullen , fo called , because the principall of that Army were French in Nation or Originall, 305. in marg. Fraternitie of the freed Lion, 79

French Pockes common in the Iland Glittering of the fea very ftrage,132 of Iaua Maior. Fuccate a large and faire Towne :n Iapan as bigge as London , the description thereof,

Fugitiue Knauel. Funerall Rites, 166.225.226

Ain is God of the godlesse, 572 IGallanza, the condition of the Inhabitants, they will trade with no stranger, Gallies of Achen, Gama bu Expeditions, 26.27. His Alls at Calecut, and his returne, 28.29.O:ber Voyages of Valcus Gama and Stephen Gama, 31 Gandauce a Towne, the Inhabitants whereof observe the Law of Py-thogoras. Ganges bu beginning and greatneste. Garments very rich bestowed by the Grand Mogor upon Master Iohn Mildenhail Englishman, Garrisons in Iapan changed enery three veeres.

Geele and Duckes which lay Egges twice a day, Geilolo a long Iland, Gemmes of infinite worth,

Centiles.

Gemal-din-Vilin, Viceror of Patan, and Lord of foure Cities in , Bengala bu courtefie to Sir Thomas Roe Embaffadour from the to Earthquakes, King of England to the Great Good fignes an iland that bath gold Mogoli,

Goole Bay, 38.44 | Gora afaire Towne in Perfia, where

Gentile feafts, 327. The King of the Gentiles, & their Superstition, 44 George Spilbergen hu Voyage, Generall of a Dutch Fleet of fix /hips, which paffed by the Magellane Straits of South Sea unto the Eatt Indies, othèce home, 80.81. & leq.

Giants met withall, & their falkion and stature, 34.58.79.91.118. 182.73.35. Their Phylicke, and feeding 35.79. Their language, 26. A Giant baptiled ibid. Their munner of bursall, 58. Their wea-

Giana Hands. Gicaliam Iles, Gilbert bis learned Worke of the Magnete, Gilolo an!land inhabited of Mores and Gentiles, Gingathas certaine Boats fo called, Ginger where plenty, 42.43.45

Goa wenne and lost, and recourred againe, 32. The fituation therof. 238 God enemy to the Spaniards Auarice, which would entaile the wide

World in the East and West to Spaine. Godana a place in Petfia where u mate great flore of raw filke, 237 Gola a frust which growes inclosed in a fhell, reddilh,bitter,about the bignes of a Walnut, with divers corners INALE. and angles; it hath great vertue for the teeth and gummes ,

Gold plentefull, 38.39.42.532.121 84.74.75.68.67.43.44.45.54.56 60. A |hip laden with Gold, Gold brought from Zofala,

Gollin the Iland Humunu, Gold of Baldinia, taken from the Spaniards by Sir F. Drake, 91. Ve-72 fine Goldin the Hand of Panama,68. Gold Mine at S.lago,84. Gold Mines great flore in Achen, 121. Store of Gold in dust at Manangcabo, 161. Gold in abundance at S:am, 195. The beft Gold and most plenty is had at the great Hill of Pallaman, 532. Golden Reuer who fo called 6. Gold and good con-

Sitution of body or mind not agree-Gonahpee one of the Banda liands, very barren, with a burning top, reelding nothing but cinders, fire, and smoke, 697. It is very subject and white Corals, is flore of raw filtes, Quilts, filk carrets, and Turkelbes, 237 Go:0 Hand, 369. The King of Goto defirous that the English /hould come into hu Kingdome, 369 Grapes very ripe and (weete in Hin-Graffe great ftore met withall in the Sea, Grashopper met in the Sea, Greene Bay,

Greete the first towne of Perlia, 237 Grochye a great Hand, neere it ly A.or fine (mall Hands, which cover the mayne of the great Iland, 348

Guammequote a great Iland, 86 Guana an Ile of the Ladrones, the commodities, colour, and flature of the people there. 66.67.75 Guardatus Cape, 293.305 a local distance of Wilderline

Guatuico Hauen. Guinney Pepper, Gulfe called Pacificum,

Gummes brought to fell infleed of Amber, wherewith diners have beene deceined, 152. Senerall forts of Sweet Gummes, 340

Gumme Arabicke fold at a reafonable rate. Gunts a race of Horle to climbe Hils.

Gurnets Head, a Rocke er Point fo called Guzerat a goodly Kingdome bow fi-

Aire entring. Haleboling an Iland vid.Bacuian.

Harbour excellent to trimme shippes

Haipahan one of the greatest Cities in Perfia, the people curious in all Sciences , especially in weaking Girdles and Shaffes, in making Veluers, Sattens, Damaikes (arpers of wonderfull fineneffe, there are all manner of Drugs, Spaces, Turkelles , with flore of Pearles, Deamonds and Rubies, all forts of filtes, aswell wrought, as raw, 237

Hatch bis East Indian Voyage and Relations concerning the fame, 618,619. & icq.

Hawkins, his relations of the occurrents which happened in the time of his residence in India, in the country of the Great Mozol, & of hu departure fro thence, 206,207 & 1co, be taketh a Christian gentlemoman of the Country towite, 211 bis departure f. o the Mogols Court, and bu lourney with Sir

Henry, third Sonne to Iohn the first King of Portugal bis greatnes. Valour and discoueries, 4.5.6. His Herbe like Neelwort, profitable against the Scorbute, 73. Herbe (like Semper viuum) whereof the Aloes, called Aloes Socatrina is made of all forts , very plentsfull, Hermano de Lavo Iland, Hermodactyles where pleiful, 419 Her nousetylus deleribed, 429 Hils very high concred all oner with Ice,91. A Hill that burneth continually, Hippon bis Verage to the Eaft Indies, 314.215. & feq. Hu death, 221 Hollanders calumniation of our English nation, 136. Their drunken disorders, 169. They called themselves English in the Indies, which the Indians Supposed had bin true, 171.258. Some kindres Showed by them to the English. 174. They and the English are enemies in trade otherwise friends. 177. They are much hated in the Indies 178.183. Quarrels betwive the English and them, 183 Hollanders turned Moores, 193 A supposed King of Hollan . 195 Wrong done to the English by the Hollan ters, 199.119.183.240. 243. 409. 522. 612. 614. 616. Ungruteful obtrustors of Hollanders, 201.609. Three fbips of the Hollanders taken and one burnt at Manilia, 246. Fight betweere the Hollander . & Portugals, 222. The Hillanders binder Englith Trade at Bachian, 257. The fmall forces of the Hol-Linders in Bachian, ibid. Ther labour to binder the English trade at Amalane and elfembere, 359. 360. Certaine Hollanders put to desthat Beinermaffen, 386. A great Caracke taken by the Hollanders, 287, Forty Hollanders flune, ibid. Three Portugal fhips bur a bi the Hollanders , 386. Hollamlers aits in the East defsafted 408 Their Sea force, ibid. The fight of the Hollanders and the E whih, and doing them ma. 27 unsufferable wrongs, 409. Vnch istian, inbumane, & Denillish impiety of the Hollanders to the English, 412.692.693.695. A fight betweene the Hollanders & Portugals, 421. Other paffages betweene them, 422. A letter concerning wrongs done at Banda to the English by the Hollanders, 608. The Hollanders lines (aned by the English at Moccasor, 608 A Sea fight between the Hollanders and English, 619.6 20.634. 637. A peace concluded bet wixe them, 621. Hollanders brauadoes to the English, 637. The happy v. nating of the English and Dutch, 641. English kindnesses to the Hollanders , 664. Hollanders trechery, ininty, and cruelty to the English, 668.669.670.671.672 673.682.684. Cunning trickes of the Hollanders on Banda, 681 The Hollanders declaration of the affaires of the East Indies, faithfully translated according to the Ditch Copie, written in an-Swere to the former reports, touching wrongs done to the English. And an answere written by certaine Mariners lately published: with depositions , further opening the iniquity and cruelty of the Dutch , 687. 688. & feq. 693. 694.695 Honey of certains Flyes leffe then · Ants. Hope Iland, 98. Horne Iland, 101

Horfes in great request, 544.555 Horse prized at about ten thousand Downas.

Houses made of Canes, 489.310 Hugh Gallant a Barke of forty tuns Sunke, Humility of the Great Mogoll, $62 Hummocks of Tecu, with the high land ouer them, how they beare, 194. A Shoale fouremile from the fhere how that beareth, ibid. Humunu an Hand which hash Gold. white Copall , many Fruit trees, and flore of cleare Springs , 37 Hungry Bay, Acatra, 656.642. Aide fent to the King of lacatra against the Datch, Spaniards , 410. Hollanders lago the Mother City of Chili, wronging the English name, ibid. 1 Their proclayming warre against where is a Gold Mine. lambe a place which yeeldeth flore of great grained Pepper, 532 Iames of Maiorca, a man kilfull in Nanigation, 5. lapara the Towns, & English bonfe there, malicionsty burned downe by the Dutch, 698 Iapan the fitnation, length, & bredth thereof, the disposition of the people, their merchandise, &c. 129. It is a Country rich in Siluer and Gold Mynes, 65. 129. The men make them selue s bald, except onder the binder part of the bead.76 Their Shippes the Strange forme thereof, 67. The people are very Superstitions, and have amongst them many lesuits & Franciscan Friers,129. The king & bis Court, 131. The lapons are not Suffered to land in any Port in India with weapons, being accounted a people So desperate that they are feared in all places where they come, 137.

The Hubit , Rites & customes of the laponias, 366.367. The king of Iapons kindneffe to the English, 367-396.400. English broad clothes fold by the Dutch in Iapan, 369. The manner of excuting offenders in lapa", bid. Feafting and drinking of healths in lapan, 268. English prefents ginen to the Emperour of lapar 270. An intention of the Spaniards to difconer the Northward of Japan. 370. The Soune of Tiquafama, the true beire of lapan , bow defeated of bis right, 371. Weapons, Souldiers, Diet, Temples, Highwayes, of the Iaponians, 372 The English entertained by the Emperour of Iapan, the Cafile & Court of the Emperour, 373. Primiledges granted to the English at Iapan, 375.376. The Iaponian Charter, 375. English Factory fetled in Tapan, 379. A note of requestable commodities vendible in lapan, together with their prices, 394. A memorial of (neb Mersbandsze as are to be bought in [2pan, othe prices as they are there worth, 395 The relation of captain of Holland, Tafques an English Vorage thinber. 607. laua Maior, an Hand, gonerned by s. Kings, they are much delighted in coloured clothes, as red and greene; the manners of the people, 57. I bere is lana Ma or er

Coxe concerning Iaponian Affaires 395.396. & leq. The Emperer of lapans letter to the king

THE TABLE.

Minor, the Morifco, or Arabian tongue is common amonast them. 68. Their commodities, their king, ibid. Their weapons, 1 36. The deftription of Lina Maior, with the manners of falbions of the people, both lauans & Chyneffes, which doe there inhabit, 164. 165. & leq. Their religion, meapons, apparell, bribing , theensbreffe , oc. 166. Then treathery against the English at Bantam, lauan oprores, Ice neere the Phillipinas in September, 75. Ice a finger thicke in one night in Zenan, Idalcan Prince of Goa his valor, 32 Ider Aga bis letter, o entertainment of the English at Moha, 342 Idolarry & Idolaters, 7.28.84.166 367-373-377-599 423-437-438 Idols de troyed, 40 Virgins dedicatedto an Idol, 3 74. Indian Idol, 423 Idolatrous worship of an Image at Calcout, 28. A face worshipped by the Indians, 437. A Strange Idol. Ilands like four harp Mountains 45 or the fables thereof, Hands 8. degrees to the Northward feet and a long (harpe taile, are land without ground, 95. A long very good meate, ber HuBand. Ilands of filhers, 280. Sea ful of Ilads Bera pote an Indian drinke , very pleafant and sweet in taste, 227 lefuits bane the managing of Portugall traffick in lapon, or are in reputation as Demigods; neither admit other order of Religion , 76. Their entertainment in the Ealt India, 486. Ichuites called Teapassed in an Embleme or Picture, 83. Their calumniation of our Englith Nation, 115.127.131. 502. 503. Sundry practices of theirs, ibid. & 205.210.211.215 502. lefaits blondy flots, 209.208

Iewels of the great Mogall, 217.

Hand of Saint Helena, the situation thereof, the great store of diners excellent fruits in it abundance of Partridges, Pheafants, Turkses, Giati, Swine, 69.70.124.205. 319.445.465. Hand of S. Andreu bath great flore of fewle & wood, 64. Hand of S. Ingo, large, faire, rich & fruitfull, schabned

parely by Portugals, & pare by Mores, Ilands great flore disconered, 6.37

38.39.42.43.45.48.54.68.94 103.136.193.646 Ilands of Banda, Amboyna, and Moinceas discouerea.

Hands desconered where are precious Stones, 34. Hands replenished with Penewins and Seales. Hands caile t unfortunate, baio, Camuca, Cabalu, Chiai, Li-lands de scouered,

of the Line,

Il inds of exceeding height, Hands called Infulz latronum, or Ilands of Theeues, 37. Foure 1-lands named Caualo, Huinangan, Hibuffan, & Abarien difcowered, 28, Ilands of Zeilan, Zubut, Meilana, & Calaghan, difcouered fine Hands more, Zeilon, Bohol, Canghu, Barbai, & Ca-

Iguanos a kim of ferpents with foure least of a Chyneis Wife floins from an betwine Banco & Borneo,646 He of Fogo, or the burning Hand, m the North side whereof is a confuming fire, Iles Dos Reys Magos, . Illha da Nobon. Illha de Tritt. Zz, Illhas Primeiras, tines of which name a merry left | Images very strange, India rich in Coine, the reafon, 2 22. The chiefe Commodities for In-Indian Merchandize: Indian Voyages by the Portugals, 26.28.30.3 2. By Englishmen, A Colledge of Isluices in Mizco 109.110 & kq. 147. 185.206.

the chiefe City of I pan. 377. Ic-& leq. 314. 328. 334. By the furticall bumanitie, diminity and Dutch, 706.707. & 109 preaching, 421. An Englishman Indian Hands first de fcouered, 11 poyfoned by the lefuites in India, Indian logue, a begging Frier of the Bramene Religion, > Indians of Brange forme, their manners . and attire. 26. 06. 118. Their rude custom in buying, 270. The base dealing of certaine Indians with our English, 290. The Indian Coast differend by (wimming of Snakes, 310. The principall places of Trade in the Indies, 322. The maner and meane: by which Indian wares have been and now are brought into Eu-

Indicombere plentifull, 121. 236 159. What Indico u, & the making therof, 236.430. The growth and variety of the berbe, 429. The Country and Citie of Brana bath the finest Indico,

Indus, 530. 573. The famous River Indus in ordinary Waps fally placed. Inhumamitie most barbarow, 290

Inffruments often deceme the skilfulleft Namigators, 189 Inundations 326

Ioanna lland, 620 Iohn Mildenhall Englishman kis Travels into the Indies, and in the Countries of Perfis, and of the Great Moger or Megull, 114

THE RESERVE THE PARTY OF THE PA

tighan, 39. Eight Hands more | Iol-n Dauies Englithman Ceptain; discouered, Ceana, Canida, Cabis Voyage to the E flerne India. Pilot ma Duch flop, 116. Hin pan, Nuzza, 43. Twenty other 1ficund Voyage with Sir Edward Michelborne into the East Indies, in the Tygre a Shippe of two bundred and forty tuns, Iohn de Austria or Fimula, bom King of Candie, woody Hand, 317. A bigge Hand Ichn the first King of Portugall, in one degree, forty minutes, 329 danobter of John of Gannt, 4

Ichns liand, In the description thereof, 4:0. The Hellanders Factory destroyed in Ior.464. Ratilpont King of lor described. Intian an Iland which yeeldeth ftore 120 of Mace , the King thereof 77. The chiefe Priest thereof, a man 335 of 120. seeres, bee balbmany Hines to keepe him warme, 78

Ireland challenged for the Popes Iron firance louers thereof, Linglas bon made, I I e hath best deferued in Difco-

Ivan de Nova Hand , 335. Land unexpected neere luan de Noua, Iuanny one of the foure lles of Comorie. Indians connerted to Christianity, 60 Iub.il, two Hands fo called ; viz.luball Succor , and Iuball Arree, 292. They are insuroned with die ners other (maller Ilands , to the Southwards, Iunkes or Boats of fortie tuns made of (ocos formed, nflead of Pinnes canched, lockled and wholly fi sed. victualled, and fraughted with that uninerfall Tree, 537

194

TAlender, an Order of Moorih Votaries, Kataries their Kingdome, Keeling bie Voyage to the Eaft Indies, 188. His dif afters and putting backe for Sterra Leona, and wort bappened till bis departure from Saldania, 189.190. Hu departure from Saliania, and what hippened after till the ships parted company, 191.192. Hu Obfermations at D. lifa, 193. His comming to Pria man and Barntam, 194.195 Keeling Bay, Kewce a chiefe China Merchants courtefie to the English. Kings Iland almost conered all over with Egs. Kings pubt at by the Popes Hornes.

King Iohn the Second bie Difconeries and advancement of the Art of Naugation,

King of Calcut his entertaynment of Gana, his personage, fplendor, ornament and geftu e, King Pailips Caty built by the Spamards in the Straits of Magellan, left defelate which Candilh, therefore called Port Famine, 19 King of lacacra bis Army, 177. His prope and bomage to the King of Ban am, King of Bantam bis cirumcifion, 180 His pompe and presents, 181. Many petty Kings under bim,

King of Cobina defirous to fee an Englishman , bauing neuer feene any before,

King of Rehita riding upon a Com commeth to visit the English,349 King drunken drowned,

Ackee lland, bow it lyeth, 196 Ladrones certame rich Iles, the Commodities thereof, 66. The colour & flature of the people, their images, ibid. &c

Laghan , a kinde of Water-foule as bigge as Crowes, which Whales fuellowing downe are them solnes denoured.

Lahor ose of the greatest cities of the East . a description thereof , of of the Kings Honfe there , 432.578 Diners wayes and pallages, from Lahor to Agra, 434. The Constrey betweene Ajra and Lahor, described,

Lampan an Iland in the Straits of Sunda, the . mbabitants great es nemies to the lauans. Lanagapatan, 220. The Hollanders bane a Factory there, ibid. Lancatter bis Voyageto Eatt India, for the Merchants of London, 147.148. & leq. What befell bim on the way sill bee departed from Saldama, 149. Their departure from Saldania, and proceeding in their Voyage to Achen in Suniatra, with their trading at S. Maries, Antongill, Nicubar, andother Occurrents, 150. Their entertamment and trace at Achen, 152.153. Their entertaynment of Trade at Bantam, 160, 161. Their Seaperils.

Language the most uninerfall, and not changed at the confusion of Babell. Lantchidol a great Sea fo salled, 45

Lantore the greatest and richest 1land of al the Iles of Bands, frong o almost inacceffible; as it were a Caftle, fearle a tree in the Iland but beareth fruit &c.

Lantor the town in Banda, the King of England his Letters & prefent fer tibitber, 198. They of Lancote furender the land to the King of England, 680.703. The Hollanders inuade Lantore & burne the Towne, 682. The people plead Subsection to our King, 682. Lantore subdued by the Hollanders with much bloudfied, Lawes for Debt. Laverence Ile, 150. Obsernations concerning the Inhabitants, their Weapons , Riners, Fylhes, Beafts, Trees, Wormes, &c.

Lent called by the Mahumetans Rammadam, their manner offa-Sting in that feafon, Leicar, very admirable, one of the Mogols Wonders, Letters concerning the difaster of a London france called the Vnion. 234.235. A letter laid in a B1fon of Gold, and sarried upon an Elephant with Minfir. l. Lances. and Flags, and fo prefensed to the Queene of Parane, 321. Sundry letters of Sir T. Roes concerning Indian, Perfian, Portugall, and Turkifb affaires, 581. 582. & feq. Lies of or on the Dewill, Light made with the Gumme of a Lignun Aloes , the best commeth from Mellacka, Syam, and Cambaya; how to know the beft, 389.

There is Ligaum Aloes to bee bought at Bantam. Lima a Citie in Peru, the excellent firm ition thereof , the buildings, number of inbabitants, Temples, Monafteries, Archbifhops, Paftors, Colledges of lefuits, Cr. 83 Limons, whole Woods full, 89.415 a description of the Limon tree, 416 Linga an Ilara lying under the Egainoctial Line,

Limen Clab good Merchandife in the Iland of Barateue, Lion of the Sea. 131

L zard, great ftere, 417 Luattone of all stones the most precions, 2. The natures and versue therof, bio. Rich mynes discourred by 11, 2. It moone boot in all plan ce. alike, 36. Ligoffe Hand, 652 Loren allana, zery fruitful, abounding with Goats, Berfes, Hogges, Hers Melons, & Girny Corne, with plenty of fish & Seabirds, 117 subes an Ile fo called of certaine fishes,82. Two fowles taken in it of admirable greatnife, two ells in beicht, and three in breadth , the biscke wings, and talons like an Eagle recked like asheepe & c.82

Louis Ile. Lucapera Iland, 317.443.646 Lutapara falia an Iland disconered

Lusson an Hand bigger then England & Scotland, to which many Ilands adiogne : the riches thereof arile more out of traffick then fertility.

Lying a great ftratagem. Lyma an iland where situate 75

M Abrahomba Ilands , which are very high, and lye on a row, South-west and North-east, balfe a league from Sierra Liona to Seaward.

Macchian an Iland fifteene minutes toward the Pole Antartike, 45. 3 57. A description thereof, 699. The Factories there, Mace plentifull in the Hands of Bang

Macham an Englishman first discowerer of Madera er the Canaries. Machian a /le with three Forts. 86 Machico pare of a Hand fo called from an Englishman called Macham, who arrived there, and buried therein a woman, &c. 5

Mackaffar an Iland not farre from the Celebes , it affoordeth great Store of Bezar flones, Rice, and other victuals great plenty, 392 Macrib Chan the Gouernour of Cambayabu bafevanity, 299 Madagaicar Ile. 118.277

Madera Hand, or the Hand of wood. mby fo called, and where fituate, Great flore of Sugar there, ibid. Madradrumba Hes inhabited by Negroes. Maganoxa lland, 328.537.538 Magalianes bus compassing of the World by the Ship called San Victoria, the occasion of his Voyage and the particulars of the fame,

33.34.35. &ieq. Magelane Strait, 35.49. It is full of fafe hauens, and the farrest Strait in the world, 36. The bredsh and length thereof, 50.60. Poffeffion thereof taken by Sir Fran. Drake for the Queene of England. 50

Magnete vid. Leaditone. Manumets bod, banging in the roofe of a Temple by the attractine power of Loadstones, 2 Diners ceremonies vied in Expectation of Mahomet, whom the Jewes call the Meilias, 123. The Mabumetake manner of fasting till Sun-

Mahumerans weake fprited men, veyd of refolution, 219. A Mahumetan King entertained by the English 226. The esteeme of a Mahumetan: Saint Hoghee Munde, 435. Certaine Mabnmetans surprise the English, 495 Maio Hand descourred

Maire and Schouten their Circumnaurgation,88.89. & itq. Malacca a Kingdome rich in Gold: the Portugals fend to extertaine amitie there, 32. The Kingdom

Malacca Bay a very good place to ride in. M.laian Language, Maldius the King thereof becomes vasfall to the K. of Portugall, 33 Meldicia Hands, they are reported to bee eleuen thousand in number, are wholly cowered with Cocostrees, by reason of which there is great Trade, for they make Ropes, Cables, Sayles, Wine, Oyle, and a bind of Bread of that Tree and his Fruit, 119 Mallus an Hand full of long and round Papper, the men Cambals, Maliapor a Towne, bow fitnate, 314 Man a visible God of this visible

World. I. His voluntary rebells-

Mandeuile bis Tranels.

Mangdando agreat Citie, where fituate, Mamles.

Map of lapan,

ders in the Molnecas. Marriages at the age of three

> Maries Iland, 12.150. How firmate,60. It yeeld: th diners forts of Fruits, Hogs, and Hennes, 60. The inhabit ant stheref made all Chris Stians 60. It is richin Gold,74. 75. The people, Mariow bu Voyage to the East indies,440.441. & feq. His death, Marrah, a Road in the Straigh of Sunda, abounding with Butfles, Goates, Hens, Duckes, and Store of victuals.

Marro Hand, 360.361.451. Neere it a dangerous Should, Maihma a place of good vent for our English Commodities, Maffatlan road, a very great River, but barred at the mouth it finndeth in 23. cerrees and a buffe under the Tropicke of Cancer,64 Maitiffe Dog m great request 517 Mafulipatan Rond, 216.220.225.

Matchan, a very furious Beast, beg. ger then a Lion, princely to bebold, flotted white and red, with many blacke streakes, ibe; killmany people, Ma chma the principall Mart towne of Yadzo, Mathan an Iland the Inhabitants facrifice to the Sunne, and wfe Strange Ceremonies. Maurice Bay. 73921

Manangcabo, a place where is store ! of Pepper, and store of Gold in

Mayo certaine Ilands fo called, 47 Mayotta one of the Hands of Como-

Manilla an Indian Iland inhabited Mayz a kind of W beat. by Spaniards, rich of Gold and Melinde the nature of the Countrey many other Commodities, 67.75 and people, 27. Gama his wel-Mappes sometimes falle and wherecome there, 29. The maine Land 320.528.582 of Melinde, Mercators last Edition of the Mans of the World prefented to the Mo-

Map of East India, containing the Empire of the Great Mogoli, 578 goll, 569. The Booke by the Mo-Another Map of the East Indies Merchants of Sanguelos carrying 700. Handius bu Map of the the richest Commodities and men

East Indies, Map of Zealan. Map of Perfia, Map of Africa.

Maraces a new Fort of the Hollane Mare pacificum, 25. Portugals ( iled there three months & twentie dayes before they fam any land, their extreame famine there, 25 Terrer

Mert, or M. nta, a Towne which bathth ee Markets enery necke, where is fold great flore of In we. Cotton-wook, Tarne, and Cotton-Meskite the fairest and highest in the whole world, Mellena an Iland abounding muh

Dogs, Cats, Hogs, Henres, Goats. Rice, Ginger, Couns, Myll. Panicke, Barley, Figges, Oranges, Waxe, and Gold in great quantitle,39. The fituation of the !land, Mauritius an Ile, the Latitude and description thereof, 204.709

ro ; the Kings kindnesse to certaine Englishmen that landed of marnetlem capacitie, our Traces.

Merchandize of diners forts, 38.67

Merchandize the Commendation

and Excellency bereof, 732

fis to trade in forreine parts, 746.

Vnskilfull Mercining enerthrow

Mermaids feene, leaping a good

beight out of the Sen,

Merchanis by Education are orely

118.536

sbere.

Meffulapatan, vid. Mafulipatan. Meitizo is one which bath a Spant. ard to bis futber, and and a dian to his mother, Metecalou a Citie in Zeilan of great trade baning great flore of Smamon, Pepper & Clones, 124 Mexican Ships trade yeerly at Manilla,76. They likewife trade m the Palippina's for Silke, Gold, and Muike, with other commodittes of China, Mexuma Iles bow fituate. Miaco the greatest Cute of la an, consisting most zpon Merchandizing; a faire Temple there, and an Altar whereon they offer Rice and (mall money ; recreibe Aliar an Idell made of Braffe, + c.377. The Merchants of Misco deale badly with the English. Michelborne bu Voyage to the

Sir Henry Middletons Voyage to the East Indies, 247.248. & leq. The proceeding of his Voyage till bee came to Moha in the Red Sea 247. His dangers at Moha and Aden, and the Chaining of him-Selfe and fenen more by shanecks. 251. Ent of bie men flaine, 252. Himselfe and foure and thirtie others of his Company are fent to the Balba at Zenan, 254. His escapes from the Turkes, 262. 29 1. Paffages betweene bim and the Portugals, 267.268. His entertainment at Cambiya, 269. His going to Dabul, and thence to the Red Sea, 271. His Letter to Captaine Dounton, 290. His Composition with the Indians for former loffes by the Turkes, 308. 309. His death, Middleton Bay, Militarie Order of Iclus Chrift, Milke not eaten by the Iaponians. becanfe they hold it to bee as bloud. Mina discouered.

Mindore Iland, Mint worke in our Kingdome, 744 Mir in Turkie fignifieth, Lord, 281 Mirabelles an Ile, whole two Rockes feeme to threaten the skie. 85

Miracle whereby diners Infidels were connerted to the Faith. Al. A presended Miracle of a Crucifix, $87. Miracles disclarmed by le wites, Moa Iland, 104. Vid. Moka and Moha.

Moccafor Road, Mocha Ilana bom fitnate, 60.130 Mocrebchan his barbarous v fage of Captaine Hawkins, 296, 207. 208.211.212. Heen a backefriend to the English at the Great Mogols Court, Mogador an the on the Coast of

Barbarie, Mogoll bis Person and Countrey,

209.216.& leq.425.426. Mo-gols, wby fo called, 585. A defeription of diners Cities and Townes of the Great Mogols Country, 426.438.439,427.581 & leq. Christianitie feemed to be affected by the Mogoll, 427.586. | Moha. vid. Moka. The Great Mogoll in danger of a Lion, his manner of Hunting 430. The Mogoll and bie eldest Sonne at variance, 431. The Mogols Mobols, 429.433. Articles betweene the English and the Mogols Subsects, 458. Sir Thomas Roe, Emballadour from the King of England his arrivall at the Mogols Court, and bis entertainment there, 540. 541 & feq. 547. The Great Mogols Court described, 542. An Ene. lift Horse much desired by the Mogol,544. His state, and entertainment of Captaine Haw. kins, 209.210. His faire promifes, 210.211. His inconfrancie, 212.213. The Offices, Customes, and Revenues of the Mozoll 216 His Treasure and lewels, 217. 550. His Empire dinided into fine great Kingdomes, 216. His Beasts of all forts, as Elephants, Camels, Oxen, Mules, Deeres, Dogges, Lions, Baffalaes, & c. 2. 8.558. He is beyre to enery man. bis Tents as large in compaffe as London, 218. His magnificence, 559. His wealth and meanes thereof, 223. 483. His demotions and hending bis time, 224. Eunuches onely and Women his bou-Shold Courtiers, 541. Great for lemnities on the Mogols Birthday, 550. His curiofitie and bountie,551. His entertainment of a Perfian Embaffadour, 554. His affiftance of the Persian against the Turke, 5 . 6. His Cnies very ruinous, 562. He is in drinke, 564 Hee is gracious to the English 566.581. The English Sufficited by the Mogoli, 567.575. Diners passages between the Mogol and Sir Thomas Roe, 576. Ade-Scription of the Kingdomes and Proninces Subject to the Great Mogoll, with the principal Cities and Riners, the fituation and borders, and extent in length and breadth, 578.579. & leq. The King of Englands Letter to the Mogoli, $80. A Copie of the Grand Mogoll bis Letter to the King ibid. Letters of Sir Thomas Roes concerning the flate of the Great Mogol, 582.583.584. 585. The description of the Great Mogols Seale, 591. Thomas Cosyat his Letters and Newes from the Great Mogols Court, 592. 593.& feq.

Mohelia Iland neere unto Comora. it jeeldeth very good refreshing

489.529.618, Moka or Moha, Citie which is the chiefe Staple for all Indian trade, 230.250.623. The description of Moin, 260.284. A principall note concerning the Road, 346. The weights of Moha, 347. The entertainment of the English at Moha by Ider Aga, 342.623. 246. Their manner of Sealing at Moha, and the forme of Indian writing, 343.3516 Extremitie of heate there when it begins, 346. The great and rich Customes in the Port of Moha, :48. English Commodities not vendible in unv quantitie at Moha, 352. English Trade begun to bee setled at Mo-

Mokalia one of the foure lles of Comorie, 536 538. The governement, manners, and commodities thereof.

Moluccas the first knowledge thereof, to whom they appertained, 32. They are fine Ilands in number. named Tarenate, Tidore, Mutir, Macchian, and Bacchian, 440 392. In all the Ilands are found Clones, Ginger, Bread of the branches of Sagn, Rice, Goates, Seeepe, Hennes, Figges, Almonds Pomegranats, Oranges, Limons, Hony, Sugar, Orle of Coem, Melons, Gourds, Camulichai, and other Fruits ; Popingages, &c.44; 86.359. 360.292. A discourse of the present State of the Moluccos, 86.227.360.361. The Voyage of Mafter David Middleton 10 the Moluccas, 226.227. & leq. Mifery of warres in the Moluccas,357. Diners instructions concerning the Molucca Hands, 362 The Flemmings feuerall Forts in the Moluccas, and when they first planted them felmes there, 363. The manner of Trading with the Moluccas for Clones, 363.392. The commodnies requested there, 201. Saylers courle from Bantam to the Moluccas, 454. A pishy description of the Molucca Ilands by Captaine Humphrey Fitz-herbert, 697 Mompyne, Monasteries in Lima a Citie of Pe-

Monuments very ancient,

Monoboca, English Captines there,

696. A copie of their Letter fent

<13

THE TABLE.

unto the Dutch in the East In-696.697 Montons (pecial notes concerning them, 137. 193. 198. 230.338.

Moores their treacherous plotting against the Portugals, 27.29.30. Warre began betweet Moores and Portugals, 21. The Moores treacherie at Malacca, 32. Thor Superfittion, 44. Their treachery against certaine Englith, 229. The English befriended by a Moore, 256. Strange and valerow attempts of English among the Moores, 327. The Moores inconstant inftly punished, 602 Morocco Saddle, an Iland fo ter-

Morro Moreno how fituate, Motere, certaine Ilands fo called.

Motir Iland, a Fort erected in the North part thereof by Admirall Wittert,

Moyella, one of the Ilands of Comora, a place of good refreshing, the King being a Mahometan, was entertained by the English, 336. 1 bat bartering; there, 337 The Kings vsage of the English, and his giving them a Note una der his hand for further friend-

Mozambiq ie Iland disconered, 27.

Mozombique a Port of the Portugals, Mullet Sound, Munkeis an infinite number of ibem. Murther punished by Fine, 165.169 A strange tiyall to finde out a Murcherer, by taking a small ball of Braffe out of a great Kettle of boyling Oyle, Mulicke instrumentall and Vocall v fed by the I apons, Muske three forts thereof, bow to know that which is beit, Muskle-Coue a Bay fo called, where were great store of Muskles, 59 Matinie the fore-runner of greatest exploits, Mutir an iland directly under the Equinostiall line,

TAbon a place where Sugar groweth in great abundance, and Cotton-wooll, and all manner of Graine, and where all kind of

Victuals are very cheape, 236 | Nights in the Stay be of Magelane Nairos, the K. of Calceents Guard and Souldiers fo called. Narlinga an Indian Iland, the Kings offer to the English for Trade, 326. The Kings death, and bus Wines burning themselnes quick with his Corpes, Nassau Ilands, a pitifull fight be-tweene the Inhabitants and Hollanders. Natiuidad Port.

Nauigation bath two later beloes tnenowne to antiquitie, 2. The poore prentiship which it fermed in former ages, 6. The advancement thereof by King Ioan the fecord 7. Spaniards taught to ob. ferne the Sunne and Pole in their Nanigations, Neccius bie Voyage to China, 712 Needle the vie thereof, 2. The first finders ont of the Variation ther-of 3. It is the foule of the Compaffe 4. Variation thereof in the Magalian Voyage, Negapatan, Negroes of curled baire, 26,96, 36

Their weapons, ibid, Certaine 1-Linds and Townes inhabited by them, 58.96. An Iland called the lland of Negroes almost as bigge as England, 68. The Negr. King bis Throne, Garments. Palace. Pronision &c. Neta the chiefe place in the Hands of Banda, 186.198. The King of Englands Latters and prefents to Ners, 198. The Caffle of Ne-13, and the flate thereof, 698 Netherberi a Towne where is a Market of all brazen wares, Shirts of Maile, Swords, and Bucklers, Lances, Armours for Herfes : Cotton-woolls, Cottongarne, Pintados, Shafbes, and all manner of Drugges, 236. It is a Newberie bis Tranels, New Holland an Iland which hath great fore of Cinamon and Preciam flones, Mines, Elephants, fertile fruites and odoriferous plants, New-yeeres festimall folemunie.

tiendible.

Neylackey a listle Hand neere Polaroone. Nicobar Ilands bom fituate, 123. I 52. They are pleafant and faitfull, have good road for Ships, the people most bafe.

very Short in the moneth of Octo-Nill, vid. Indico.

المراجع والطان فكالمصاحد

Nine a remarkeable number, 557 Ningim Roote, where found, the right and ripe time to gather it, 319. It is a medicinable roose much prized in lapan, Somewhat like a Skirret ; box fold, 528 Nintam Iles, Norose a soiemne Feast, and the rites tbereof, North Starre the fight thereof lost.

by those that sayled past the Equinottial line, Notaferes or Nutafira Iles. Nous Albion a description of the people and Countrey, 52. Their King, his Crownes, and Guard, 53. The causes why the Countrey was called Nous Albion, 54. Gold and Silner there, Nouelties the effect thereof, 573 Nutmeg Trees, Nutmegs plensifull in the Ilands of Banda, 33. In the Hand of Baran tene, 56. In Coteway,

Ares of an excellent kind, 366 Oathes very strange, 623 Oblations of Rice and Small money in the Temple of Mia-

Ogon a fruit wherewith the Negrees por fon their Arrowes, 415 Oyiter-trees ; or Oyfters toon Trees spawning and increasing infinitely, the Oyster suffering no bud to grow, Olibanum fold at a reasonable raie,

Oliver Noore bu Voyage round about the Globe, 71.72. & feq. Opium very plentifull, 238. How place where Cloub would be very Orange Fort eretted in Ternate, 86

Ormuz the King Tributarie to Portugall, 52. Tributarie likewife to Ifmaell the Perfian X2 or Sophi, ibid. It is an Iland in circuit about therise miles, and is the dryest Iland in the world: beere is great trade of all forts of Spices, Drugges, Silkes, Cloth of Silke, fine Tapestries of Persia, great flore of Pearles , Perfian Horfer, c.

Olaca a Towne in Tapan as bigge as London, a description thereof,

O fackav

Oviter treet,

PAgan Princes Christened, 428
Pageants and Shewes very artificiall and presse. 181.182.182 Pagod an Idoll or Idoll Temple of the Pagans, 404. Three faire Papods richly wrought with mlaid workes, adorned richly with lewels, and maintained with rich offerings, Pahan or Pan a Citie burnt by the King of Ior, 321. A Feast made in bonour of the King of Pahan, Pahanaunis a Towne in Persia where is made great fore of raw Silke, Painting much delighted by the Great Mogoll, 546.547 Paleacate, bow fitnate, 315.320. A dangerous shoale neere #, 314 Palimbam Point, Palimbon Straight, and theway to Palmito wine, otherwife called Moy 414-415 Palmito tree. Panama an Iland that bath mines of very fine Gold. Panders in Iapan, their abominable esteeme after death, they are bridled with a bridle of Straw, and dragged through the Streetes into the fields, and there cast upon a Dunghill, for Dogs and Fowles to denoure, Pan-Hange a very plentifull Countrey, full of Gentrie, Shipping, and victuals very cheape, where fituate, Pantagoms an Iland, Parra a Citie of great traffique in Persia, but especially for raw Silke, Parrots plentifull, 80. 331.416. Gray Parrots, ibid Pasharaboues, a Fowle shat deligh-teth to come to a Ship in the night and bolding out a band will light is a very contagious place, 465. 468.531. The best Gold and most plenty is had there, as also the greatest quantitie of Pepper, the fairest and best cheape, 532 Patagoni, certaine Giants focal-Patahan iland. Patana or Patania a Region, where fituate,77.320.648. The Queen thereof ber State , a Letter prefented to her with great pompe, 221. The Ispanites great enemies to the Paranes, 321. The personage of the Queene of Patana, and her going a Hunting, 323 A Factorie for the English at Patania, 324. Vproare by lagan Slanes in Patania, ibid. The Dutch trade at Patania, 713 uiloghon an Iland discourred where were found blackemen, 42 Paula Commendators wife of Peyta, a woman for Beauty, Wifedome and Vertue, of Singular repatation in India, Payton bis first Voyage to the Eaft-Indies, and what happened therein, 488.489. & feq. The fecond Vayage of Captaine Walter Payton into the East Indies, fet foortb by the East Indian Company, and what bappened therein, 528.529. & feq. Pearles as big ge and round as Hen-Egges,43. Other Peatles of great bigneffe found in the Ilands of Zolo, and Taghima, ibid. Pearles taken in the Riner of Saint lago, 64. Great Store of Pearles in Zeilan, 124. The best Pearles are in the Iland of Baharem, which are round and Orient, they fifth for them foure Moneths in the yeere, Pearle Iland the fituation thereof, 331. A place as good as the world can affoord for refreshing, bath store of Fowle and Fish, 231. Pedra Branca, a Rocke full of Fowle, and be-dunged, which canfeth the top thereof to bee white, and gines it the name, egu, a place where are store of Rubies, Saphires, and Spinels, 236. The Kings of Tangu and Arracan, become fbarers of the Kingdome of Pegu, 122. The King of Pegu s flaine wish a Pilon, wherwith they flampe Rice, ibid Pelabry Roade, Pelagius bis making bead against Pallaman the trading there, 465. It the Saracens. Pemba Iland, 228. The condition of the people. Penance of a Woman taken in action with an Eunuch, at the Great Mogels Court, Pene an Herbe not much walike our winter Sauvrie, of the feed whereof they make Bread at Sierra Leo-Pengwins Fonles that line of Filb. baning billes like Rauens, no feathers, but a certaine Downe, of colour blacke, fat and cannot flie. Ilands discourred wherein are infinite plenty of them, 34.50.58.59 61.72.73.90.150.136. The Pengwin Confutes that definition on of a man, to bee Animal bipes implume, Pengwin Hand, 19.61.73.90.130 190.226.536 Pengwin-eaters certaine people fo called. People with long barre, 37. Wab Eares downe to their armes, 28. Others quite oner-growne with barre,43. Other firange people, People most filtby and loatbsome, People most perfidient, Pepper plenifull, 45. 56.77.119. 121. 161. 172. 194. 532. The manner bow it groweth, 121. Danger by beate thereof, 172. Good Counsell concerning the buring of Pepper at Priaman, 194. Great decest in buying Pep-Pepper-Hanen, Perlian Tranels, 236. 237. & feq. The Perfian Countrey described, 522. 524. & fiq. Commodities to be carried from England into Perlia, 237. The Commodities of Perfia their monyes and mea fure. 523. The King of Perfia hie Firman for the English,524 A P rian Emballadours arrivall at the Coart of the great Mogoli, bis prefents, behausour, entertainment, 555.556. He frewed fuch Anticke trickes, that be appeared rather a lefter or lugler, then a person of any granitie, 5 57. He is distasted by the Mogoll, 568. Perlian Newes, 582. The Map of Perfix. 724. Diners wayes from Ruffia by the Cafpian Sea into Pertia, 7:0. Pertian trade,

Peru relations of the Government

THE TABLE

chercof. Palus or P. Zo, a kind of Gold meight wbat it is, Perelopie Road bem finate, a description thereof, 315. 316. 320-442 Peter Aluerez Capralis Gue Emb. Cadour from the King of Portugall to the King of Calecut, 30 Peter Couilian first desconerer of Pretter John, and of the Indies and Sophala. Peters Patrimonia Peyta a Towne in India frong and impregnable: it bath two Churs ches, a Monasterie, many goodly Buildings , an excellent Hawen & c. Philippina Ilands the description thereof, Pictures of diners forts, 432.433. Notable question abons the Pi-Eture of Venus and a Saire, 964 Pictic of a great Prince to bis Mo-Pike a signe of Authorities 272 Pilgremages to our Lady, Pilgrimages to Tencheday, 373 Pilgrimages to Polle Medoway a Moore Dinell or Saint, for Wealth, Children, or what elfe they defire, 437. Other Pilgri-438.486.518 mages, Pinange, a Nat in operation very bet, which the lauans eate centimually to warme them within, and present the Fluxe. Pinfons their maligning of Columbus, Plantan-trees where growing, their Plant very ftrange, a small twigge whereof growing up to a young Tree, in offering to plucke up the fame, it shrinkes downe into the ground, and finketh, unleffe beld very bard : plucked up, a great Worme is the roote of it, and as the Tree promoth in greatneffe the Wornse demunifierh. The leanes and pill ftropped off it turns into abard Stone, like to white Corall Plate the plenty thereof in our King-Plats falle. 220.529 Playes, or Interludes, 167 Plen y canfe of Dearth, 353 Plummes of diners forts. Point Arre, Pola Teliore an Iland, bow fitu-

Polaroone Road, 610, 698. The English were the first Christians that ener came into the Road of Poolarone, 610. The King of England intituled King of Poolaroone. Polar ran foments, Pole Astartike, Poldauis worne by a King of lapan, Pontana a great Citie in Purrop facked, Pooloo Rowdon au lland Pope shallengeth Christs richt oder the Christian world, 12. His preformenom Edille, 17, Hu Ap. thority long fince refished by Englifh Befoops, Pope Martin the fift bis Indulgence and Denation to the Crowne of Portugall. Popes Bull made to Caffile, tonchihe the new World,12. His Difofall thereby of Kingdomes and Countries. Popes of most wicked and lend conuerfation, 18.19. Their vfurpation, 21. 22. Their temperall Power refmed, 23 . The renowncing their Baptismall name, 25 Popingay Land, Popingayes, Porcellina a kind of fine earth whereof the Indians made flately diffes and other vellels. Porpofice great flo e, Porto Santo an Iland by whom encountred, why fo called, the Ayre, Soyle, and Natmes, Port of Valparizo. Port Tarapaxa, Port Defire, an Harbour in which is an Iland or two, where is great flore of Scales, and gray Guls, 98 Port Famine where fituate, 59.73 Portugals praife, 4. Their beeing bebolding to the English, s. Then discontent and compromise with the Spaniard, and their first Discouerie of the East Indies, 26. 27. & leq. Their villerie at Malacca, 33. Then fame thereby atchieved. Portugall wiles disconered, 156. Craft retorted. Portugals treacherie, 208.209 Portugals pride, and inimie to om English, 207.330. 268.420. Their abuse of our King, ibid. Their insolence, proud affronts and diffimulation with the Englifh, 294.295. Three bundred Portugals affault the English, 206. Another affault of the Por-tugals to the English.

Portugall Ship taken by Sir Francis Drake, 48. Three other Portugall Sheps taken by the Englifh, 111. d Portugall Frigat taken,295. Portugall Fugutuet, 201. A Partugali Ship of three bundred turner taken, 304. Fight betweene the Hollanders et Portugals, 332. Three Portuguil Ships burnt by the Flemmings, and three by them clines, 286. Dangerous fights and other pallaget betweene the Portugale and Hollanders, 421.422. Fight of the E gliff with the Portugals. 459. 460.480. 554.481.482. 905.518. The Postugals great anthority in the Indies, 492.them Forces, Alls, Accompts fight with the English and difgraceful repulle, 505.506. & leg. Care of the English to present the Portue is attempti, 413. A declaration of the Ports, Cities, and Townes, mbabited and traded unto by the Portugall, between the Cape of good Hope and Iapan, 534. A Fray betweet the Portugals and English, 500. A fight betwins Portugals & Navros 609 Portugall fies,633. Portugail mfa. lence,711. A Sea-fight bermixt the English and the Portugals, 726. A wonderfull viltory as Sea agamft the Portugals, 728. The Portugall Fleet vanganfbed and (cattered, Potania, vid. Parana. Potatoes plentifull, Pot full of Rials of plate found, 52 a Herbe called Ycho, Potoffi, called La valla Imperiali, comprehending a great Monntaine in which are Silver mines. 83. It is fo cold that nothing growes in foure leagues pace, but Prefter John, the K. of Benin wellfall, and Tributarie to bins, 7. O. ther relations of Prester Joh. e 40 Prisman Read, 450 125.229. Obfernations for going into the road, 533. The 3. Ilands of Priaman bowthey be, 154. What flore of Pepper there, ibid, Good counfell for trading there, ibid. Many Ilands to the South of Priaman, 450. Dangerom Sholds neere it. 533. Primeiras Ilande, 335 Princes Ile. Printing the Innentors thereof. 3 Priviledge for 14. yeares granted by Q. Elizabeth to certaine Advensurers, for the Difconery of the Trade for the Eait Indies, 139.

208

140.8 feq.

Procta-

Plalmes of David known to the Mahumetans, and fang by them, 160 Publication of the Popes Indulgenses in Peru, u warth to the K.o. Spain yeerly 1470058 pounds 8; Publike loffe by primate Trade, 374 Puerto Seguro, a Harbour in Bra-Pulaoan a marmeileus fraitfull Iland, Bored with Rice, Ginger, Hogs, Goats, Hens, Figs, balfe a pardiong, Ou biggen a mans arme, Cocot, Battatos, Sugar Canes of pleafant Roots. Pulo Tuto Iland, Pulo Calafai.

Pulo Pagadure,

Pulo Lack, 354. Pulo Condor, 381 Pulo Cili or Pulo Cecir, Pulo Cotan, 281. Pulo Tingo, 281 Pulo Timaou where fitnate, 136. 381.443. The Sea there runneth alwayes from the beginning of Nonember , to the beginning o Aprill to the Southward : et l'o from Aprill to November backs againe to the Northward. The wind also in the aforesaid moneths is Northerly, & m the other monethi Southerly.

Pulo Labuck an Iland bem fitnate,

Pulo Sumatra, two fmall Hands fo called, Puloway & Pulorin Ilands fo calkd,186.698.198.242.516.609 610. The infolencies of the Hol. landers at Puloway, and their abufes to the English, 533. 609. Hu Maiefty of England intituled King of Pooloway, & Poolaroone, 701, The He of Poolaway taken from the English by force of Armes 61 . The English right by Law & Equity unto Polaway, 617. The furrender thereof to bis Maiestie, and the fortifring there by the English , 664. Pumicestone Ile, aplace which alwayer burneth , & casteth forth

Pumic flones like to Fuego, 620

the Equinoffial to the South. 62

Wight in England, init are Cot.

mons, Pomegranats, &c.63. The Puns an Iland within one degree of chiefe Towne therein barns, 63 Punta de Sancta Luzia. Punta de Galle, Pythagoreans, their opinions and ceremonies, Vadranes the viethereof, 27. They were in vie with the Moures in the Indian Seas, before the Portugals descoured

Q cene Elizabeth ber praife, 110. Her Lessers to the King of Cinina in the behalfe of certain Eng. hih Merchants, 110,111. Her Patent for the Eatt Indies, 139. 140,80 kg. Herfame, 153 Queiton llands, dangerous low I. Quilos a large Kingdome 900 miles in length: Merchants of diners Countriestrade there; at se full of Springs, Trees, Cattle wilde and tame, rich in fyle and fifting, 30 Quincero au Harbour,

Quriqueynam an Iland,

D Acke, a kinde of Wine made of Rice, firing as Aqua-vit &, a little whereof will forme to bring one afleepe, 1 54. Vid. Aracke. Raia Booneioo his going to the Warres. Raine very feldome, none in foure Moneths, Raine called the Oliphant, being an buge ftorme vinal at going out of the raines in the Mosel's Countrey, 549. Ralif Iland, Raymond bis Voyage, Rebellion by the Kingdomes of Cambaya and Lantangh, 322 Rebels at Bantam, Red Railes a place of bonour at the Morels Court.

312.324 Red Sea, the Straits thereof paffed, 230.293.304. Ocemerents concerning the fame, 339. & feq. Red Cliffes, Reedes as bigge as a mans leg, and full of cleare water wholesome to be drunke. Religion of Buthuan, wone other then the lifting up of their bands soyned together, and their faces toward Heanen calling upon their God Abba. The le almost as big as the le of Religions and Sects in the Mogels Comutrer. 583.585 Reuree a Towne confiling of Hufton-trees Fig-trees Oranges, Li-cloth, Indice, and other Commodities, and are a peaceable people to deale withall. Rice plentefull, 121. A ftrange fa-Shion of boyling it, Rice-Wine called Arach, Rice transported from lapan to Yed. 20, hash yeelded foure for one, 384

Riches of a Kingdome w of two forts Rising after a strang fashion, Ripplings of the water, 650.337 River of Good-tignes, River of Plate, River of S. Lago, in which are growing many Plantans, and where is a great aboundance of Fift, 64 Rocke flanding in 48 degrees to the Southward of the Line, the deferipison thereof, 58. Rockes very dangerous franding in 6.deg. to the South of the Line, 152. Other Rocks the fame way bid. A funa ken Rock, 318. A Rock reilaine Quick-filmer and Vermilion, 136 Roe, L. Embaffadour from bis Maieftie of Great Britaine, to the Great Mogoll bu Voyage ; and observations collected out of his Iournall, 535. His arrinall at the Mogols Court, and kinde enter-

Rofifeo Road. Rogue-Pize an Iland which lies in ten degrees and balfe to the South of the Equinottial line, 151. A faire and pleafant Iland, exceeding full of Fowle, and Coco Nut-Romish Religion at Rome nothing elfe but Reafin of State, Rolinging one of the Hands of Banda farrendred to the King of Eng.

tainment there, 541-547-548.

Rubies plentifull, 121. A Rubie weighing 350. Retties. 212 Ricmos is in the Red See, and is the place from whence Salomon (ent bis hips to Ophir for Gold, which is now call Achein, as by tradition they doe affirme,

C' Aboyna Rocke,

Saddle Hand. Sago a Roote whereof the Indians make their Bread. Sailes very ftrange, Saint. vid. Deruis. Sailot a Village where is Rore of Sugar, and finite of all forts, bardmen, who deale in Cotton- | Sal-armoniacke Pits, Salvancke bis Voyage through India, Perlia, part of Turkie, the Perlian Gulfe, and Arabia, 1609 Written unto Sir Thomas Smith 235.236.& feq.

Saldana Road, 133.150.185.275. 329 446. 466.535. The Land subabited by a most fanage and beastly people; yet very fruitfull, full of Oxen, and Sheepe, and abounding with flore of wilde Beast's and Fowles, wilde Decre, Antilopes, Babions, Foxes, Hares, Offrsches, Cranes, Pelscans, Herons, Geefe, Duckes, Phefants, Partridges, &c. 133. 275.536. The manner of trading there, 149. Their difficult Language, 150. Promision more fearfe at S.ldania then in times past, and why, 275. The description and Commodities of Saldania 276.319.320. The people defire nothing fo much as Copper, 229 Salettes a people under the King of Iohor, which for the most part keepe in their Prawes, with their Wines and Children, and line on Salt Ile in the Strait of Sanda, 195.

Salt Hills,451. Dangerom Rockes neere them, ibid. A Ship white with Salt, Salutation vied by the Iaponi-

San Saluador, or Guanahani an Iland disconered by Columbus, 11. The nature and fash ton of the Inhabitants. Sanaga Riner, Sanguelos Merchants of marues. loss capacitie, baning fore of Gold, excellent in all bandy-crafts and Sciences.

Sanguin Ile, Sanguis Draconis, 280.539 Santa Maria de la Concetion, an I land so called, and by whom difconcred. Saphires plentifull,

Saracens their conquering of Spain, Saragaffo or the Sea of Graffe, 372

Sarangani an Ile where is Gold and Pearles, Saris bu Eaft Indian Voyage , bu Courfe and Ails to and in the Red Sea, Iaua, Moluccas, and Lapan (by the Inbabnants called Netfoon, where also he began and fetled an English Trade and Fa-Horse) with other remarkeable Rarities. Collected out of bis owne Iournall, 334. 335. & feq. His arrivall at Moha, 343. His Porage to Bantam, 353. Hu Voyage to the Ile of Iapan, and what befell bim in the way, 354. Obsernations of the faid Captaine Ionn Saris, of Occurrents which bappened in the East Indies during his abode at Bantam, from October, 1609 sell October 1609. As likewife touching the Marts and Merchandizes of those parts : to which are added certaine Obsernations of his tonching the Townes and Merchandize of principall Trade in shofe paris of the world, Satelland. Sauages the most brutish that ever were feene,59. Men-eaters and feeding upon raw flesh, Sauages Arrowes, and other weapons, 58.73.102. The manner of trading with them, Schouten bis Circumnanigation : who Southwards from the Straits of Magellane in Terra-Del-fuogo, found and discourred a new Passage through the great South Sea, and that was fayled round about the world.

Scurucy the best remedy for the prewenting and curing of it, 149. The canfe thereof. Sca full of great Weeds and Herbes, Sea of Graffe. Seared as if mixed with blond, full of red Wormes, which taken up lease like Fleas ,79.90. A (mooth Sea in great wind, 526 Sea as white as any Whay, 618.632

Sea-fight by Night between Dutch Ships and Spanish, 81.82 Sea-Mewes plentsfull, 91.94. Bigger then Swannes, Sea-Lyane Sea-Monster having a borne, and firthing against a Ship a strange accident thereupon, Seales, sertaine Hands disconered replensshed with them, 34.58.62. 64.90.91.150. An Iland found by Sir Francis D'ake that bad fo many as would have laden all bis

South Sea, and mifery in the Straits nine moneths, wherein William Adams Englifbman was chiefe Pilot, Sebaldinæ :hree Hands not mentioned in Mans, they are stored with

S. Sebastianes Iland. Seed, whereof a little being eaten; mateth a man to surne Foole, all things feeming to bim to be Metamorphofed ; abone a certaine rate it is deadly porson, Selagues Port. Selims rebellion, Seperdowne a good place to refreit Sepulchres very (umptuom. 226 Sequeria bu Embaffage from Portugall to the King of Malacca, bis entring League with the Kings of Pedir and Achen, 22 Seraes what, and where built, 520 Seragaffo weeder. Seran treacherie, Selebos a Dinell innocated by Giants. Scuernie of the Mogoll 222.546. Severitie for fighting and drawing of Weapons. Seuere Instice in Lapan, Sent vid Cents

Seyloan Coast, Sheathing of Ships and Rudders which goe for Surat and other places very necestary, Sheepe plenty, 74. Of a very strange forme, 118.275. Huge tayled Sheepe, Sherley Embassadour in Persia, his lone to the English, 498.499 Ships for want of Pitch, trimmed with a bastard Frankincenfe, 30. A Ship fast on a Rocke, and strangely gotten off, Ship of three bundred Tunnes taken by Candish, called the Lewis, 62 Other rich Ships taken, ibid. A great new Ship burnt, 63. A Ship of the King of Spaine taken called the great Saint Anna, 6 .. Decay or loffe of English Ships, 533. Englith Ships taken by the English, which might elfe hane endangered their Countrey-men.

570. A Ship burnt by reason of a bot drinke which in breaching tooke fire, 620. Senen Englifh Ships taken by the Hollanders, 678. Ships taken by the Hollanders at Banda. Shoalds in the Straits, 80. Many dangerous Shoalds. ebald de Wett his Voyage to the Shooters or Marke-men very exgrifise, Shrimps of ten Inches long, 417 Siam a Country which bath flore of

Gold, and presions flower in quantitle and chespe ; there is good went for red English Chath, 195

Sighelmus bie Tranels to India fent by King Alfred, whence bee brought precious Spices and Ie. 110 Silks of all fores, whence made and baď, 393.731 Siluer Mines. Silver met withall by Sir Francis Drake, Silver exchanged weight for weight with Gold. Sinan a description thereof, 628 The likelihood of venting English Cloth at Sinan, Siriaugh, a Tomne or Fort lring upon the River of Pegu, given by the King of Arracan in keeping to the Portugals, Sitting at meate croffe-legged, 38 Smelts of 16. Inches long, 90 417 Smelt-Bar.

Snakes farimming on the top of the water, a figne of being neere the Coast of India, 310. A buge Snake of fine and twentie foote long, and as bigge as a man in the waste, it burts no man, but beld a good fortune. Sobay a Village that confisteth altogether of Spenners and Weamere and there is much Calico Cotten cloth made there.

Socatra. vid. Socotora.

S secodanna. vid. Succadania. Soccorora Iland, 230.237.304. 418.529 539. A long drought there, 279. The entertainment of the English there, 339. The Inhabitants, their Armies, perfors, apparell, gallantrie, dres. Women, Children, Fasth, Religion, Merchandsze, barnest, &c. 418 419. A Caneat for fayting to Socatra, 529. The Sultan of Socatra, Sodomi-, ftrange meanes vied for the presention thereof. Soldania Bar, 118. 205.228.525.

535.631. The Inhabitants, their Manners , fashion , bertermos, ibid. The whole someneffe of the Arre, and fraufulneffe of the Sorle, full of good Herbes , as Mints , Calamint , Plantine, Ribwort, Trifelium, Scabious. dec. 118,119.525 Solor an Iland in the Indies, 324. The Iland, and Caftle, with great quantitie of Sandal wood taken by Captaine Schot, Sombrero Iland how it lyeth, the People, their Priefts, the Country fall of Trees Inflicient for maine Masts, 152. A ftrange Plant growing there, South Pole, 34. The 49. degree ther-

South-favers. Spaniard taken in the Straits of Magelane, Spaniards flaine in the Voyage of Mafter Thomas Candith, 61 Spanish cruelty m the Indies, 23.24 Their Anarice, God enemy there.

Speaking like the elocking of an Henne. Spicerie plentifull 11. The rates of Spices, 736.737.734. Prices of Spice and Indice in former times compared with thefe latter times Spiders whofe webbe is perfett good, and strong as Silke, 192.417 Spilberg bu going to Zeilan, 711 Spowies of water, come powring out of the Heanens. Standing a token of bonour, fitting of submission, contrary to our ( uflomes.

Staple erected at Cochim. S arres about the South Pole, 36

Seed his Iourney from Aimere m India the place of the Great Mo. gols residence in Spahan, the reyall feat of the K. of Perfia, m the affaires of the East Indian Society 519. 520. & leq. His lourner by land through Perfix and Turkie.

Steuens bie Indian Voyage, 110 Storax very good and plentifull, 450 Straight of Magellan, the fairest in the World, full of fafe Hanens pleutifull of good water, wood, berbs. er fib. 35.36 Straits of D-folon or Solore, 355

Straits of Victoria, Strait of Maire certain new Straits so called. Sturgeon the manner of taking it, Subtilties discovered, and retorted. 156.157 Succadania in Borneo, a Factory for the English feeled there , 220. 392. Ther : are great of fore Diamonds which are accounted the best in the World, 393. Commodi-wes vendible and in request shere;

and diners instructions for those which trade there Sugar great flore in Madera, c. Plenty thereof in Bratill, 34. In the Hand of Burnes or Potne, 43 Sula Hand. Sultan Corforoone diners Relations concerning him, Sumarra an Hand disconered, 45.

119. The Kings forces 157 Speciall observations for those that fagle berwixt Priamon & Sumatra, 194. The bigb land of the Manne of Sumatra, 312. Anote of many Ports & passages obsernatlein & abone Samatra,450.451 Store of Gold in Sumatra; as alfo Beniamin, very good Storax, with other Commodities, 450 Sumbdit an Iland disconcred, 36

Summer-hay abounding with Parrots and faire Trees, Sunne the different beight thereof obserned in the Voyage from the East Indies, Superfitious Spaniards, Superstition of Bramenes. 3 2 7 Superflitions of the laponians, 395 396. 397. 398. Diners Superfitions enstames of the Banians.

Superfitions of the Great Mosell.

Surat a description thereof 423. The Great Mogoll granteth a Fallory to the English there, 461. The Nabob of Surat unkinde to the English, 517. The English Amballadours arrinall at Surat, the Cornes and Wares ibere $30. The English entertained by the Captaine of Surat. 627.628 Surunga a City in Ispan as bigge as Swally Roade standeth in the latitude of twenty degrees fifty fenen minutes : variation fixteenedegrees thirty minutes 271. Anexcellent Market there, 298. Obfernations of the Trdes there 202

London , a description there-

Syam, 319. 321.392. The Road of Syam a fafe Harbour , but in a South-west wind 322. A Factory left there for the English, 324 The Commodities there . B.niamin, rich flores brought thither from Pegu, Silner in bullion, 292 The Commodities vendible, 392

Syuerford a Captaine the first canse of breach between Hollanders &

THE TABLE.

Addie, a kind of Wine fo called, Taghima an Iland where is great

Store of Pearles, Tahannee a Towne voon Machian. where the Portugals beretofore bane had a Fort, but now there is none neither for them nor the Flemmings , there is the best viding of the whole Hand, but very neere the shore, yet free of all dan-

Taicke. Offriches fo called. Tamara, Tamarin Iland the fituation thereof, the King his entertayning of the English, 278.279.339 340 Tamaryn trees great ftore , 118. 277.417. They beare Cods of greene fruit , which bath a very Soure tafte, ts beld good againft the Scuruse, Tambayck a metal of great ofteeme, Tanaffaria a City of great trade, 123 Tangu an Iland, the King there-

Tarrye or Taddy a ftrong wine, 436 Taually Bachar, Teccoa Iland, 277,311 Tecon ftandeth in 25. minutes of South latitude, and bath divers Shealds about it, Tecoo a description of the Iland. 464 629. The trading there, 465. 660. The unbolfomeneffe of Iecoo, 527.532. Quarreli betweet the Achenets and Tecoans, 527. The people of Tecoo baje, barbarous bloudie theenifh, (ubtile, Oc. 532. Fire and treachery visuall in Tecoo, 660. The price of Pepper there. 660.661. Diftreffe in Tecoo; the English marthered there, Tecu , notes for the Road and Variation there, Tempelt in Firando very fearefull, and the Grange effects thereof.

Temple at Calecut, Temples in Iapan. Tents exceeding rich, 225.559 560 A Tent as large su compaffe as London, Terceras or Flemmish Ilands defcourted. Ternate an Iland under the Equinelliall Line feure minntes , vn- | Tobacco-pipes,

King thereof offereth himfelfe & bis kingdome to the fernice of the Queene of England, 55. A Ca-Riethere, bid. The Maiefty of the King, thid. The Forts there, 86. Thu Iland is the Seat of diffention betweene the Spaniard & the Dutch, 699. In this Iland w

Maleia a Towne (ubieft to the Hollanders, 85. The King of Ternates Letter to the King of England, 704-705-The King of Ternate bis titles, Cerru Furgo, the Landon the South of the Straits of late found to bee but Ilands. Testament printed in the Iapan language, Theeuish people , 97.94.196.168.

An ancient custome concerning condemned Theenes. Thomas Doughtie executed, Thomas Springe an Englishman of great towardneffe in Voyage of Schald de Wert, Ticabella Iland, Tide of swelne boures Floud and turclus Ebbs in Sunda, 282.

Vislans Tide called the Bore, lidore on of the chiefe Ilands of Molucca, 43.360. Where fituate, 45. The Forts therein, 86.161. It is rich in Spice, 699 The King of Thiores Letter to the Kings Mayeffy of England, Tidore taken by the Dutch, 715 Timber wrought by mans band without Iron.

Timoia a Pirate.

Timor a great Iland, wherein u found the wood of white Sanders, and Ginger, and dimers fraits , fundry kinds of Beafts, and plentse of Victual and Gold, 45. The Inhabitants Gentiles, the Denill appeareth to them in diners formes. Tingabaffe Hand. Tingo Ia ia a watering place fourteene leagues from Bantam, and shree Langues and an batte to to the Westwards of Incatta.

Tobacco balfe their food at Sierra Leona, 415. Danger by Tobac-der the Pole Antartike, 45. The | Tombe of King Acabat a deferipa tion thereof. Tonda iles. Tortoyles great fore met with-80.22 t.

> Towne of Saint ligo taken, so. A Towne fine isme: burni m three moneths. Trade , obfer sutions concerning the fame, 572. Danger to the publike by prinate Trade, Trade makerb (ome States very -rich , which have little other meanes. Traveors Hand. Treacherie of the King of Achen, Treacheries of the lauans against the English at Bancam, 167.

Treafon at Bantam, Tree whose leanes as some as they full on the ground , dot firre and remoone from place to place as though they were aline, 43 Tree perlaing excellent [weete was

Trees very france, 277.415 417. Trees like Willowes bearing Frants like Peafe cods, Trees for on fire which continued burning senen yeares, s. A Brance l'ree which the Lidians call The Tree of Life. Tree-cloth. Tribute paid in fift to the Spaniards, Trinquanamale a Citie of great Trade for Cinamon , Pepper, Cloues and many other rich Commodities, Turkes called Rumos in the Lides, and the reason thereof, 123. Turkift Firmans. Turkish sreacherie at Moha and Aden with the Englith ; and the extreame dissimulation of the Turkes, 250.251.252.625 307. The English imprisoned by the Turke ,257. The of cape of diwers of the English from the Turkes. 262. Refluxion made by the Turkes to the English. 264. The Turks practice to porfon the Wels at Affab. 266. The cumming treacheru of the Turkes to the Eng. lish in many particulars, 281.282 283.285. Their blondie Trea-(on, 286. The Great Turkes Patent to the English for the Red

Sea, 345. The forme of the Grand

VAlparisa a safe Road, Varella Cape, Variation, special notes concerning the fame , 189. 302. 316. 317. 331.338. 357.365. 380.445. 447.481.645. The greatest Variations, 645. 331. The bigbest Variation betweene Brafill and the Cape of Good Hope, 446. No Variation at Cape Fallo, 447. The bigbest Variation of Achen and Tecu, 481. Rule of Variation, 525. The uncertainty of the Variati-Variation of Depths, Vault-workes to rob the English Merchants in Iauan of their goods, Velagan, Vent of red English Cloth in Siam, Victuals bengbt cheme, 190.319 Villaines moft notorious, Vines both of Banda, Amboyna, and the Moluccas, are pruned thrice a yeere , and enery Prunage bath bis Umtage, 698 Vingeron the Gonernour thereof bu entertaynment of the Eng-Virgines dedicated to an Vision in the Planets. Viun Point, Vniuerfitie in Peru , haning me bundred Dollows of all Faculties , foure kunded Masters of Art , fixe bundred Priests, a thousand Students , the Profellours receive of the King a thenfand Pezos Penfion , Oc.

Varulineffe of Mariners when Prey

Banda

is present,

Vulcans Hand,

Vrtatan , a Towne

W VV Aggadashes certaine weapons veed by the lapans refembling a Welch-hook, Wallaway River, Walfingham bis relation of the Conquest of Cepta, or Seut, Warres between the Spaniards and Chili, 74. Betwint the Turkes and Permans, Warre and Trafficke incompatible.

Water of a strange qualitie, Water the ordinary drinke of the Isponians drunke warme, 372 Water-fpring very ftrange, Water Iland, Watering of Saint Blafe, 29

Water-flouds very great and extraordinary , 326. A fearefull ripling of the Water, 337. Spents of water, 515. An Iland that bath none but Raine Water, Wayre one of the Ilands of Banda furrendred to His Massitie of Weapons of diners forts, 414. Weedye See Weedes called Trombas, fignes of being weere the Cape of Buona Esperanza, Weights of feneral forts, 390. The weight vied on weighing of Be-

England,

content of their fewerall Tailes, Werts Voyage to Zeilan, Westmintter Hall, aflat Hillipine weere the Roade of Samt Augu-

Whales 73.92,276.536. A buge Whale an bundred turnes or weight. Whirle-winds, White Rocke, White Capes met withall to the Southward of the Line, White Sanders plenty, Wild Beafts of diners forts, 416

Williamson Floris his Isamalite the East Indies, 319. 320. & Winds ben produced, 12, Obfernathereof for those that trancil to the East Indies, 193. Fanourabie Windes in the full of the Moune, Wine of Date-trees, Wine distilled out of Rice, and as frong as our Aquauitz, 368. Strong mingled Wine at the Mogols Court, Viues which kill themselves after their Husbands deaths 69. Winebeenstaucie, 324. Three of the King of Velur, bis Wines burne themseines quicke with their hafbands corp: , 326. Winely fidelity.

Women Counfellers, 112 Women Admirals. Women Shauer, Women that would cut off their Husbands beads in the night and fell them to the people, Women in the Hand of Zubut very well fanoured, they dance naked and play on certaine Timbrels

Women voluntarily burning with their dead Husbands. Women with their howholds that line in Boats upon the water: they eatch filh by during , and their eyes by continual dining grow as red as blond, Women Actors of Comedies in 12-

made of Metall, pan , being alfo common women, and their price rated, 368. A Towne of common Women, Woody eilding excellent, good, farre, and (weet water. Wood-pidgeons large bodied like Wormes very frange, 417. Many

Wormes in Surat, 480. Strange Wormes in the Surat Sea , which ease through ships and how to prewent the fame, Worshipping of Stones and Rocks,

7. A Tree much worthipped, 423 A mans Face which the Indians much worship, powring abundance of Oyle upon it, 437. A Tombe wor Shipped, Writing on Barkes of Trees , 42. A ftrange forme of Indian

TEminaleque Straights, 371 tions concerning the alteration | A Sima or Mashma Hand, 366

Yedzo

THE TABLE.

TEd20 Iland the description

Acocia Gonernour of Mozambique vifited by the Portugals with great pompe, and was feafted by them, Zacotora lland, the latitude thereof, 249. The King thereof, bis enter.

Zamall Iland, 37. Named the Iland of Theenes, Zanzibar, the treachery of the people there, Zeilan an Hand of great Trade, baming flore of Victuals, Sinamon, Pepper, and Clones, Precious Stones, and Pearles , 124.320. 630. 711. The Map of Zeilan, Zeuan the situation thereof, &c. 255. The description thereof, 258 | Zuluan an Hand, sayning of Sir Henry Middle- | Zofala yeilds Gold and other rich Commodsties.

Zolo an Iland where are Pearles of exceeding bigness, 43 Zubut an Hand of good Traffique, The King thereof baptifed, bie personage and apparell, 40. The Queene of Zubut her personage and apparell, 41. She is baptifed, with ber Daughter and fortie of ber Gentlewomen , ibid. Frue bundred men there baptifed, 40

FINIS.

LONDON,

Printed by William Stansby for Henry Fether stone, and are to bee fold at his Shop in Pauls Churchyard at the figne of the Rose. Anno 1625.